To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Jaclyn She's and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Jaclyn Shea

Subject: Divest from the SFPD

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Aanya and I am emailing today to demand a divestment of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestment is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,

Aanya Kapoor

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers
My name is Medea Petronis-Branch, and I am a San Francisco native. I care deeply about this special place. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate restructuring in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city!! Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. Please invest in our community members. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage and will to change. Don't let us down.

Sincerely,

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Darianne. I am a resident of the Inner Richmond, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. C'mon, man. This is San Francisco. Summer of love, hippie city and all that. I've lived here my whole life, long enough to know that all that's long gone. But it will also always be a part of SF's identity, our history, our core. Maybe someday we'll be worthy of it again. Please, make the decision that will help the most people.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Mairi McCaslin, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Corinne I am a resident of the Outer Richmond, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Corinne Limbach

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Charlotte, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Charlotte Zhao

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is [name]. I am a resident of [SF neighborhood], and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Casey Templeman

To Mayor Breed and the San Francisco Board of Supervisors:

My name is Tamara Chu, and I am a resident of San Francisco (District 8). I would like to thank the Mayor and Supervisor Walton for their stated commitment to reallocate funds from the SFPD toward our black community and to begin to repair deep systemic issues that no amount of surface-level policing has helped solve.

My hope is that the momentum we have seen this week does not end here. I ask SF to dream big and set an example for the rest of the nation. Policing is a bandaid on top of a fractured city. How can we have shared identity, pride, and trust in each other when those that are most invested in the soul of this city can't afford to live here? When the only businesses that can survive - that will survive COVID-19 - come from the outside and are only here to make a buck?

There will be many who can't imagine a world where the police aren't called on to handle every issue in the community through force and punishment, because they have only ever known a world where one lives in constant fear of their neighbors - neighbors who aren't getting their basic needs met by the only system that has a responsibility to take care of them. Let's show them something better.

More money in the right places is just the beginning. All I can say is that SF never felt more whole and connected than when we were marching together this week, buoying the most vulnerable amongst us. I hope our city can carry that spirit forward.

Sincerely,
Tamara Chu

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Erika Francks, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Erika Francks

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Olivia. I am a resident of the Mission, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Olivia Bernadel-Huey

Hello,

My name is Senta Wiederholt, from the Outer Mission neighborhood in San Francisco, and I am writing to ask you to vote NO on Police Commission nominees Nancy Tung and Geoffrey Gordon-Creed. Right now, our community needs police reform. Neither of these candidates have experience in, or are advocates of, this sort of reform. Moreover, their opinions, or lack thereof, on past instances of murder by police officers is beyond concerning. As Police Commission members, these candidates would be responsible for holding the police accountable in these instances, and they have each on separate occasions shown that they have no interest in doing so.

The specific instances I am referring to are the cases of Mario Woods and Jessica Williams, when Nancy Tung stated that she didn't believe officers should be charged or fired, and Geoffrey Gordon-Creed claimed to have no opinion on the issue. A candidate who has "no opinion" on the issue of police brutality and murder of our residents has absolutely no place on the police commission: not now, not ever. This is unacceptable. I urge you to vote "NO" on these two candidates.

All the best,
Senta Wiederholt

My name is Elaine, and I am a resident of San Francisco. I am writing to you in support of defunding the police and rerouting their roles in the city to more qualified personnel.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. I also ask you to consider redirecting issues the police handle to better qualified social workers such as psychologists, crisis intervention teams, and city employees specialized in taking care of the homeless. HSH has some really cool people working for them who know how to handle the homeless way better than the police.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Elaine Denham

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Samantha Pfau. I am a resident of the Mission neighborhood in San Francisco, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Samantha Pfau

Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Betsy Johnson, and was a resident of San Francisco for seven years before moving to Sonoma County. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Hannah Estrella. I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>).)

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Hannah Estrella

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Loren Shourd, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

You have seen what a community can do we it shows it for itself, and we as San Franciscans are showing up. And we need your help. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Loren Shourd

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Jerrica. I am a resident of the Richmond district, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Jerrica

My name is Lina Eltahir, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Lina Eltahir

Dear Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Kate Boeyen, and I am a resident of the Richmond district of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate and meaningful action in how Black people are treated in the US. As San Francisco's elected officials, you are being called on to rise to this occasion and right the systemic wrongs of our city with more than superficial gestures and solidarity statements.

Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. As we all know, the police have been relied on to address these issues (specifically mental illness and homelessness), which should never have happened. This shows an appalling lack of care and concern for unhoused San Franciscans. I say San Franciscans because they are as much a part of this city as we are and we are all in this together.

I call on you all to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards alleviating homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. This is a chance to create a care-centered, just society, and a chance for SF to lead the way.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Kate Boeyen

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman, My name is Emily Walker. I am a resident of the sunset district, and I am emailing today to demand a divestment of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few. As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change. (With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)). I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Emily Walker

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Margaret Helfrich, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Margaret Helfrich

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Elisa Jeffries. I am a resident of Ingleside, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestment is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Elisa

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Jacqueline Tan, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Sarah Hobstetter and I am a resident of San Francisco and small business owner who has been proud to work with San Francisco as a small LBE. I was grateful for the swift decision making by our elected officials to call shelter in place (Covid). This action saved lives.

The protests that have grown across the nation are calling for meaningful change to the ongoing white supremacy, anti-blackness, and systemic racism that permeates our society. This moment is a profound opportunity for San Francisco to be at the forefront of change.

I am asking you to respond to the calls from your community to defund the SFPD.

Racism is a public health and safety emergency. We need to respond to it with the same strategic and informed energy that was so clearly demonstrated during the early shelter in place. This is an urgent moment in history, and I implore you to make San Francisco an example of change.

Thank you,

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Victoria Wilkinson. I am a resident of Noe Valley and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>).)

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Victoria

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Cole Church, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Cole Church

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Esme. I am a resident of the Dogpatch, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Esme

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Chang Liu, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Chang Liu

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is [name]. I am a resident of [SF neighborhood], and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Lucy M.

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Kathryn Copeland, I am a resident of The Castro and I am emailing today to demand a divestment of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestment is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Kathryn Copeland

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Paige Rossi and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I was happy to hear Mayor Breed's commitment to redirect funds from the SFPD to underserved communities. I wanted to further call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Paige Rossi

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Tomu Fujii, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Tomu Fujii

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is [name]. I am a resident of [SF neighborhood], and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>).)

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Jessica

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

San Francisco is one of the wealthiest and most privileged cities in America. We have an obligation to catalyze change— we can become the beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to reestablish the well known, and constitutionally gifted rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Too often our military police decide the fate of another human's life based on little more than prejudice, fear, and hate. This can no longer remain the status quo. Change is coming. Are you with us?

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I have personally witnessed SFPD choking a Black woman and throwing her to the ground while she was in the throes of a mental health crisis. Because it wasn't caught on camera, no one will be held accountable. I, and many supervisors have seen the property of unhoused people violently confiscated by SFPD and the unhoused left to suffer and die. Actions like this are happening every day, and the SFPD will never be equipped to respond to these issues that are a result of systemic housing inequality and systemic racism.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans, and addressing the upcoming city deficit due to COVID-19. I call on you London Breed to sign the pledge along with the Board of Supervisors to leave Prop C uncompromised.

Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Living on 48th and Balboa I see this first hand- why have we left it to our police to respond to our homeless crisis. Giving out urinating in public citations... fees the homeless will never pay. There must be a better way.

Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Molly Ackerman, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Thank you,

Molly

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Alex Smetaniuk and I am a resident of San Francisco, Outer Richmond neighborhood. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. Please do the right thing.

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has received too much of our limited resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Nor education which can preemptively address many issues of inequality. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officials:

My name is Mackenzie Betrone-Harpst, and I am a resident of San Francisco. I write to you after attending the protest and moment of silence outside of City Hall today; Mayor Breed, thank you so much for joining us. I am hopeful that we can build upon this movement to implement real change within our city.

I write to you as a military spouse who believes that the militarization of police is repulsive. I am a fundraiser for a youth-development organization serving 100% people of color - all of whom are terrified of the police. I am a recent San Franciscan who believes that this city can be better.

I studied the implementation of police-worn body cameras in the City of Boston from 2016 - 2018 while working on my masters' in public policy at Simmons University (in Boston, MA). What I learned during that time is that, until police unions are neutered, no meaningful reform can or will happen within police departments. As we now protest for change with regard to police behavior, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided.

I am shocked by the FY20 budget of the SFPD, at over $600M. Now is the time for bold action. I urge you to make significant reductions to this budget and repurpose these extraordinary resources towards addressing the bigger crises facing our city, including homelessness, mental health, or affordability of housing. I'm begging you to have the political will to back your words up with actions.

San Francisco can lead the way - if only we have the courage to follow in the steps of Minneapolis and dismantle this broken system.

Sincerely,
Mackenzie

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Jhenna Voorhis. I am a resident of the Inner Sunset in District 5, and I am emailing today to demand a divestment of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change. With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign

Zero: <https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestment is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Jhenna Voorhis

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Perry Shimon, and I am a resident of the Bay Area. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Perry Shimon

Subject: Residents Demand Defunding SFPD
Date: Tuesday, June 9, 2020 3:03:23 PM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Lexi Spaulding, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness in both policy and behavior, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Residents of our city have been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources and a danger to our city. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, education, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Less than one-third of what is spent on policing is spent on caring for our unhoused residents. Instead, we see the wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I want to live in a city that values its people, their health and safety, their growth and education, their families, and their ability to stay in the city. I don't want to live in a city that instead has a huge police department that endangers the lives of my neighbors and friends.

As a resident of the city you work for, I am calling on you to defund the SFPD and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. I want you to also invest resources to better fund the education of our youth, to bring more public health services to the city's residents, for community events, community gardens, and building an affordable and regenerative food system.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. The SFPD do not run this city, we do, and we can make these changes.

Sincerely,

Lexi Spaulding

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Jackie, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers, My name is Meaghan, and I am a resident of and homeowner in San Francisco for the last 20 years, moving to the city because I thought it celebrated racial diversity and was trending in a better direction in terms of those equity indicators.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources - and we shouldn't expect the police to provide the social services that are most needed by our communities. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police to those who most need services or protection. I've reached out to Supervisor Ronen of my district about this in the past to advocate for resources in my neighborhood to serve our most marginalized communities.

City Hall, Room 200
1 Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett Place
San Francisco, CA 94102

Dear Mayor Breed:

We write to you at this moment of local and national crisis to urge you to recommit to timely and meaningful reforms of the San Francisco Police Department (SFPD). As the largest legal organization in northern California committed to police reform, we pledge our resources to assist you and our police department.

As you know, there remains deep distrust and anger within communities across the country toward law enforcement due to a long and continuing history of police violence against people of color. Unfortunately, this is also true in San Francisco. This moment presents an opportunity to reinvigorate police reform efforts, which have been dangerously delayed and in some respects fallen short of community expectations. We commend your pledge as Mayor to Commit to Action with Obama.org. Our more specific recommendations align with the pledge to review use of force policies, engage communities by including a diverse range of input, experiences, and stories, report to the community and seek feedback, and reform the community's police use of force policies.

Over four years ago, San Francisco's leadership undertook the Collaborative Reform Initiative (CRI), an ambitious effort to reform the SFPD following the officer-involved shooting of Mario Woods, a 26-year-old African American man, among others. Great gains in several areas have been made through the CRI process, most notably in SFPD's Use of Force policy (DGO 5.01) and practices, and most recently, on Bias Free Policing DGO 5.17. Overall, however, the CRI process is years behind schedule and in need of revival. Of 272 major reform recommendations made in October 2016 by the U.S. Department of Justice (USDOJ), SFPD has "substantially" implemented just 40 to date.¹ At the same time, USDOJ also directed SFPD to update all 119 of its Department General

Orders (DGO)—many of which are decades out of date—but that systematic review is only getting underway now.

Unfortunately, it is not just the timeline that presents a serious challenge. The California Department of Justice (Cal DOJ) identified a number of problems in a recent progress report on SFPD's efforts that the Bar Association of San Francisco's Criminal Justice Reform Task Force (BASF-CJTF) believes must be addressed.² BASF-CJTF continues to offer our support and partnership in improving the CRI reform process at this juncture and we are happy that we have developed the research, resources to do so. We've worked collaboratively with SFPD since 2015.

We outline below a number of specific recommended first steps but first raise an overarching concern. BASF-CJTF is troubled by SFPD's failure to engage more members of the community in a meaningful way during the CRI reform process. At USDOJ's recommendation, Executive Sponsor Working Groups (ESWG) were established by SFPD to elicit community views to assist SFPD in improving its policies, as well as increase legitimacy and public trust in the process. Unfortunately, with the exception of the Community Policing ESGW, most of the working groups were not as open or inclusive as hoped, often proved unsuccessful in actually incorporating community input, and now have ceased meeting regularly. Sadly, many community members and organizations stopped participating quite some time ago. Stalwarts like BASF's CJTF have remained involved, but for the ESGWs to succeed, SFPD must renew its outreach to the community—especially young people of color—and the SFPD officers who lead the ESGWs must begin – we hope with your encouragement – to incorporate the community's input meaningfully into SFPD's implementation of the remaining recommendations.

Overall, our experience informs us that the CRI reform process has lost momentum and is not delivering the changes that San Franciscans expect. It is noteworthy that the Minneapolis Police Department failed to timely implement federal recommendations, despite commitment to doing so by the department and the city's leadership.³ We cannot similarly allow reforms to stall here in San Francisco.

BASF-CJTF remains a committed partner in improving and speeding the CRI reform process, as well as promoting other steps to improve policing in San Francisco. We are therefore calling upon you and other stakeholders to take the following actions immediately to reinforce community trust in the reform process:

1. Expedite implementation of the Serious Incident Review Board and amend DGO 5.01 to include as reportable force, any use of force to overcome resistance irrespective of complaint of injury or pain; and such review must occur within 30 days and results must be publicly reported. In January 2020, an SFPD officer detained a young African American man with her knee on his back and neck, similar to the tactic that killed George Floyd; in the last several days, Chief Scott announced an investigation.⁴ Regardless of whether this use of force was consistent with current SFPD policy, SFPD should have immediately reviewed the incident, and all use of force incidents, to determine if it complied with policy and whether changes to policy and training were necessary. Current policy requires the reporting of this use of force only if “persistent complaint of pain” is also reported. SFPD must establish new protocols for documentation of force that requires supervisors to review body worn camera footage and create/broaden an internal Use of Force Review Board to review all uses of force immediately to enable continuous, critical examination of SFPD's policies, training and practices. As part of this review, supervisors must be required to determine and document whether any force was justified and whether officers followed de-escalation requirements set out in DGO 5.01. Findings of these reviews should be made publicly available online.
2. Appoint and confirm experienced police reform advocates to the two vacant seats on the Police Commission. It is imperative that the two vacant Police Commission seats be filled by individuals who are experienced, knowledgeable and committed to police reform, and have a demonstrated understanding of and ties to those communities most often subject to over-policing or excluded from much needed police services.

3. Require greater transparency and information sharing by SFPD with the Department of Police Accountability (DPA). Currently the DPA does not have direct access to SFPD's body worn camera footage although civilian oversight agencies in other counties do. Nor does DPA have direct access to SFPD's manuals, training materials, unit and bureau orders, and instead must request access to this basic information in each case. DPA must request use of force and stop data in each case instead of having direct access which is necessary for DPA's complaint investigations and audit functions.
4. Create greater transparency regarding officer disciplinary hearings and findings. The Police Commission should revise its rules governing misconduct cases to maximize transparency, consistent with state law. There should be timely reporting of all DPA and Internal Affairs Department (IAD) cases, including at a minimum, public disclosure of a factual summary, disciplinary recommendations, findings, and the disposition of each case (i.e., whether discipline was imposed by the Chief and/or the Commission).
5. Hold SFPD and the SF Police Commission accountable to deadlines and increase community participation in the CRI process. Deadlines for each of the outstanding USDOJ recommendations should be posted for the public on SFPD website and monitoring and reporting mechanisms implemented to assure compliance. SFPD should be required to complete and post for public comment their revisions to all Department General Orders they intend to update this year and the next two years. SFPD should reconvene ESGs on Use of Force, Accountability, Community Policing and Recruitment with renewed community participation to complete USDOJ recommendations. Members of the ESG on Bias are meeting but have called for greater community participation. SFPD should convene immediately Working Groups for those Department General Orders for which community input is imperative.

We know that you and the other stakeholders remain committed to timely and meaningful reform of SFPD. As the last week has amply demonstrated, the stakes for San Francisco could not be greater. We stand in partnership with the City we

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Jessica Nijjar and I am a resident of San Francisco/Daly City. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

Date: Tuesday, June 9, 2020 3:22:08 PM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Mayor Breed, Chief Scott, City Manager Kelly, and San Francisco City Council Members,

My name is Chris Iyer, and I am a resident of Menlo Park, CA. I am writing to you today to demand that you immediately redirect funding from the San Francisco Police Department towards BIPOC communities.

The senseless killings of George Floyd, Breonna Taylor, Tony McDade, and countless others have demonstrated the infuriating prevalence of police violence and brutality in communities across America. While these events are devastating, they should not come as a surprise. Since the 1600s, policing has been a tool to enforce the social order — an order that oppresses and brutalizes BIPOC Americans.

For too long, policy-makers and law enforcement have upheld a system founded upon racialized fear to brutalize and devastate BIPOC communities. Additionally, most policing reforms (e.g. implicit bias training, diversification, and enhanced accountability) fail to address the root problems inherent to policing, as demonstrated by the implementation (and clear failure) of these programs in the Minneapolis Police Department.

Thus, I am demanding that you take the following actions immediately:

1. Defund the San Francisco Police Department by reinvesting 50% of this budget in BIPOC communities, collaborating with leaders from these communities to identify areas of need (including, but not limited to healthcare, housing, and education). This could mean transforming the role of first responders — for most calls, social workers, mental health experts, and community leaders have the right expertise to solve the problem, as seen in Dallas.
2. Abolish qualified immunity and other legal protections for police officers who have committed acts of violence. Nearly every single officer involved in racialized violence has never faced serious punishment. Hold officers to the same legal standard as the rest of the citizenry and punish these acts of unnecessary violence.
3. Demilitarize the local police force immediately. This includes, but is not limited to, stopping the deployment of excessively militarized police (especially in the ongoing demonstrations), restricting police departments from using federal grant money for military weaponry, returning whatever military equipment has already been received, banning no-knock raids, and restricting the use of SWAT teams.
4. Open investigations into all officers with reports of police abuse and release body counts for all officers.
5. Cut all ties between the San Francisco Police Department and local public schools.
6. Ban ICE from all protests and gatherings in San Francisco.

These actions are only first steps. Racialized police brutality is a systemic problem that requires federal, state, and local action, and I am demanding that you do your part. Black Lives Matter.

Sincerely,
Chris Iyer

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Sarah Duyer, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week has seen protests across all 50 states calling for justice and an end to racist and anti-black policing. Racism is built into the structure of our policing system in America and has resulted in generations of citizens of color being harassed and imprisoned at an alarming rate.

San Francisco has been known to be a progressive city at the forefront for the rights and equality of its citizens but there is still so much work left to do. BIPOC are more likely to experience homelessness, which has become a huge and ever present issue among our population with the lack of access to affordable housing. They are also more likely to be stopped or harassed by the police and jailed or hospitalized instead of being given services they desperately need.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

It is absolutely unconscionable that in a city with so much wealth and advancement in technology we are unable to take care of our most vulnerable populations. We have the resources and we could be the force for change needed to set a positive example to other cities. That is why I ask you to defund and demilitarize the police and allocate those funds to community organizations that can support affordable housing, mental health care, and safety for our BIPOC citizens.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Sarah Duyer

I am a resident of District 8 in San Francisco. I am writing to demand that the City Council adopts a People's Budget that prioritizes community wellbeing and redirects funding away from the police.

We are in the midst of widespread upheaval over the systemic violence of policing. I will no longer accept empty gestures and suggestions of "reform." I am demanding that my voice be heard now, and that real change be made to the way this city allocates its resources.

Support for communities in need is necessary now, more than ever. I demand that the City Council defund the SDPD. I join the calls of those across the country to defund the police. I demand a budget that adequately and effectively meets the needs of at-risk San Diego residents during this trying and uncertain time, when livelihoods are on the line. I demand a budget that supports community wellbeing, rather than empowers the police forces that tear it apart.

As the City Council, the budget proposal is in your hands. It is your duty to represent your constituents. I am urging you to completely revise the budget for the 2020-2021 fiscal year, and to fund care, not cops. You need to adopt a People's Budget. Public opinion is with me.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Mikayla, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need, including mental healthcare and rehabilitation services. These changes would be a major step toward healing and strengthening our community.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Mikayla Richter

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Yoongi Tom, and I am a resident of San Francisco. I grew up here in the city and am now working as a resident physician at San Francisco General Hospital.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and devastatingly harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to cut the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. I see the deleterious effects of these misplaced budget priorities every single day at the hospital. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Emily Banks and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Emily Banks

Subject: Please defund SFPD and re-direct funds to support our communities

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Ana Sanchez Balsells, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, affordability, or education in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. I also call on you to re-direct funds from SFPD to support SFUSD. Given the Covid-19 pandemic, school districts across the state will be facing significant budget shortfalls. The city of San Francisco could re-direct funds from SFPD to SFUSD to overcome these shortfalls, and ensure that every school has community resources such as school nurses, access to mental health services for students and families, social workers, and partnerships with community outreach organizations.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Ana Sanchez Balsells

My name is Sara Uduwela, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Komal Kumar, and I am a resident of San Mateo county and Stanford student. I've grown up in the Bay my entire life, visiting SF almost every week. As you know, this past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. SF has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue, and I wanted to write to you regarding this.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. This seems incredibly corrective rather than preventative- if crime rates go down because of increased social services, why would there be a need for so much police funding? Wouldn't this be more sustainable?

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Dear Mayor Breed,

My name is Isabelle Fenn, and I live in the Mission District of San Francisco. In the last few weeks, we have seen a wave of protests demanding rapid and meaningful change when it comes to the police, anti-Black racism, and systematic oppression of our most vulnerable. San Francisco has been at the forefront of a lot of this. I have recently become aware that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

The SFPD is a waste of our resources. Last year, their budget was $611,701,869. Despite this extraordinary spending on police, there have not been major improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health or affordability.

I call on you to slash this budget, and devote those resources towards some of the above causes. I demand that you represent me as your constituent, and meaningfully defund the police department.

Sincerely,
Isabelle Fenn

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers
My name is Erin Samuelli, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Subject: Defund SF Police NOW!

Dear city officials -

My name is Catherine Van Dyke and I am a resident of Gordon Mar's district and a resident of San Francisco. The past few weeks, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I REPEAT - NOTHING HAS IMPROVED IN MY 10 YEARS HERE. If anything, this city has become more exclusive, more difficult, more dangerous and more callous towards its citizens. Most SF residents can agree that one of our biggest concerns year after year is the homelessness crisis that affects not only neighborhoods safety but public health. Policing has done NOTHING to solve this and year after year, it gets worse. Tent cities get shuffled around, humans get ignored, trash, needles & human excrement cover neighborhoods. The immense sadness I feel everytime I walk next to someone experiencing homelessness is becoming difficult to ignore or to bear.

Of course, there are many elements at play but EVERY politician in this city seems unable to acknowledge that increased budgets for Police (and with that increased responsibilities) have done NOTHING to improve this issue. It's time for something new. It's time to take millions of dollars back to fund health centers, building projects, mental health teams, crisis teams to do the appropriate work that Police CANNOT and WILL NOT ever be able to do. If they could, they would've by now.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget by a third at MINIMUM and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. If nothing is done, you can guarantee that I as well as many others will vote you out of office.

If you actually think Black Lives Matter then take care of our black citizens instead of pushing them out. Awards and community recognition does nothing if you can't give people a home.

The charade is over.

If we are truly the radical city we think we are, We need to take these massive steps towards change. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

I leave you with this quote from David Brown, Former Dallas Police Chief:

“We’re asking cops to do too much in this country. We are. Every societal failure, we put it off on the cops to solve. Not enough mental health funding, let the cops handle it. Here in Dallas we got a loose dog problem, let’s have the cops chase loose dogs. Schools fail, let’s give it to the cops. That’s too much to ask. Policing was never meant to solve all those problems.”

Let's give money to those who can.

Sincerely,

Catherine Van Dyke

Subject: Letter from SF Resident regarding 2021 Budget

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Margaux Joffe, and I am an accessibility professional, a mental health advocate, Bay Area native and a resident of San Francisco.

I've never written a letter to any city officials before but I feel we have reached a tipping point where all citizens must be engaged and stand up for what is right.

I want to start by thanking you Mayor Breed and your team for your leadership through COVID19, your response to the death of George Floyd, creating safe spaces for the city to grieve and protest, and for using your platforms to address important conversations on the topic of racism and police brutality.

I am reaching out regarding 2021 budget allocations. It has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. I found out that last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city.

One of my high school friends is an officer with SFPD, I have family in the military and I respect the men and women who dedicate their careers to serving and protecting others. However, I am deeply concerned with 1) the amount of money going to police instead of other services the community needs and 2) the police brutality that continues especially against black and disabled people.

I call on you to reallocate a large portion of the SFPD budget towards solving homelessness and mental health crisis, which is felt most by our Black and disabled neighbors and veterans. I implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

Mayor Breed, you are the leader who can guide this city towards a better future, I believe in you and I know you also want to heal and strengthen San Francisco. Policing is not the way. There are other ways to keep our communities safe which yield a greater ROI.

Thank you for taking the time to read this letter

Sincerely,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Niku Radan and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Niku Radan

Subject: Urgent Budget Reallocation Measures to Empower our Community

Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Ryan Cartwright, and I am a resident of San Francisco, a Bay Area native, and a current student at SFSU, attaining my BA so I may one day become an educator and serve high needs schools in CA. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America, in the wake of the brutal police murders of George Floyd, Ahmaud Abury, Breonna Taylor, Bay Area residents Sean Monterossa and Eric Salgado, and countless others. It has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. This is a unique opportunity to decide what sort of future we want for our city and if we miss our moment, it may not come again in time to save the lives of countless San Franciscans, particularly our Black and brown neighbors. We must seize it.

SFPD is a blatant waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending far too much on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. If the obsolescence, excessive force, and inefficiencies of the police needed any confirmation, the past two weeks have provided them in abundance, not just here, but across the nation.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans, as well as putting money into our fiscally precarious public schools, establishing treatment based solutions to drug addiction, and funding community organizations. Taxing big tech is also a means of accomplishing these goals. I am begging you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need, every youth a transformative and empowering experience in education, easing the public health crises only exacerbated by Covid-19, and establishing/reinforcing institutions that uplift our communities, especially our communities of color.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Ryan Cartwright

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Alexa Wiczorek, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869 - the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to greatly reduce the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Alexa Wiczorek

To whom it may concern,

About 5% of the SF population is black and yet they make up 37% of SF's homeless population and half of SF's jail population. Even the SF Police Commission site's section on Homeless Resources named "Public Interaction with the Homeless" gives information on how to make a citizen's arrest if the police aren't around while simultaneously listing various misdemeanors to look out for. This type of behavior and encouragement from SFPD helps uphold a part of the systematic racism in the city. Those experiencing homelessness should be helped, not heavily policed.

Moving on to white gentrification. In 2019, Farmer Brown, an 11 year old black-owned restaurant in sf, had to close because rent went from $3,500 a month to $14,000 a month within a year. Landlords in SF are turning over their residences to outside real estate companies that hike rent costs. Multiple black businesses have had to close and multiple people are having to move out of the city due to unwavering white gentrification and the leadership in the city is doing nothing about it or the lack of rent control. Favoring corporations and big tech does not foster community.

In February of this year SF Public Education faced over $40 million dollars in cuts and around 500 layoffs.

In an interview about police officers last year, Mayor London Breed was quoted in saying, "The police department is understaffed... ultimately police presence is what's going to make a difference."

In the same interview the Mayor is also quoted saying, "It's not always popular to support police funding at the Board of Supervisors, but at the end of the day, every member of the Board of Supervisors is asking for larger police presence in their communities and this is the only way we're going to get it." As a reminder, the SFPD received over $600 million the year before.

How is it that you can magically find MORE money for SFPD, but when teacher unions, black businesses, and the homeless population, just to name a few, were asking for your help, they're left out? Police reform means even more funding to SFPD, please instead fund more social workers, mental health providers, EMTs, support those experiencing homeless and the like.

The acceptance of gentrification for white economic growth in the city is ridiculous and the budget cuts on public education are horrible. Corporate greed needs to leave. Defund the Police. Black Lives Matter.

My name is Helen Weng and I am a resident and homeowner of the Tenderloin neighborhood of San Francisco. I have read your tweet of your commitment to redirect funding from the SFPD to support the African-American community in the upcoming budget. Living in the Tenderloin reminds me every day of how many people in this city need public services and resources, resources that have historically been given to the police department. Although I know you have already committed to the following demands, I still would like to reiterate them to reinforce that this is not just a passing reaction to the death of George Floyd, and that I look forward to real change in your next budget proposal.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Jacqueline Lee, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Jacqueline Lee

To Mayor London Breed, all other leaders in the city of San Francisco,

My name is Peggy Sue Amison, and I am a registered voter in San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. At this pint in time I actually live in Europe, I would never be able to afford to live in San Francisco.... The fabric of our city has been terribly damaged with the speed and absolutely astronomical rents -- We have lost all the people who made this city unique in every way. Also education measures need to be focused on - so many young people end up falling into the judicial system simply out of poverty and lack of educational opportunities to grow and thrive.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. Also its high time that this city focused on the care of those who suffer from mental issues and results of PTSD, trauma - many of those caused by all of the above.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. You have the power in your hands. Make a difference - I would love to return to this city one day - right now I can only use my voice to vote...

Sincerely,

Peggy Sue Amison

Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. In addition to the extreme deficits in our city's public education.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Justin Hollister, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has not been a judicious use of our city's resources.

Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to reallocate a significant portion of the SFPD budget towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Jacqueline and I am a Washington, DC resident from Ward 4. Since your Congressional Reps won't advocate for our statehood, and continue to hold a boot to the neck of citizens of the District as well as your own residents, I am holding all civic officials accountable until we have police abolition and state representation. I was born and raised in San Francisco and the Bay Area, so I'm starting with California civic bodies.

The last time I was back in our beautiful state, I watched in horror as BART Police assaulted a young man. Did he deserve to have his head bashed into the curb repeatedly because he couldn't afford BART? He didn't deserve that. Noone does. That was not an isolated incident. And I shouldn't have to be ready to film police brutality when I'm coming from my great aunt's memorial. My trauma is nothing compared to this SFPD and this nation's treatment of Black, Brown, and poor people.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. San Francisco has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a complete parasite of fiscal resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While spending extraordinary amounts on policing, you have not seen improvements to safety, outreach programs for the unhoused, mental health, or housing affordability in our city. Instead, nationwide, we can see wasteful and harmful actions of your police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. My grandfathers were both veterans. My uncles are vets. My great aunt was a marine in WWII. Not a single veteran should be sleeping on the street, and I hold you all personally responsible for this tragedy.

The residents of San Francisco, the most beautiful city in the world, implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. The people of San Francisco have spoken, and want SFPD defunded so you can invest in community services over policing race and poverty. You can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only you have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Jacqueline Keller

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Lina Karamali, and I am a resident of the San Francisco Bay Area. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Lina Karamali

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is John D'Antonio, and I am a resident of San Francisco (District 5!), as well as an educator in SFUSD. This past week, our nation has obviously been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

My name is Moira Vinnett, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Moira Vinnett

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Stacie Moorman, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Isabella Lane, and I am a resident of Marin County. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We need reformation of our police force. With the high use of drugs on the streets in this city, especially in the Tenderloin, there needs to be psychiatric training on how police should calmly handle situations with those who are autistic or have mental illness. There should be public rehab facilities. Our streets shouldn't be littered with needles and empty whisky bottles. The current protocol is obviously failing and many issues need to be solved.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Isabella Lane

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards allocating more money for school districts. As a former teacher and current employee in the Ed tech space, it is evident that with increased budget cuts for districts, teachers and administrators are struggling to meet the basic needs of their students, especially during this time of distance learning and the unknown of whether schools will be opening their doors this fall.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Nicole Khazanedar, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans.

We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is REBECCA SALADOFF, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD is largely an abused use of resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. We've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, yet have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see unethical, unlawful and exploitative actions from our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans; toward equity programs to uplift underprivileged and impoverished communities with attention to education, extra curricular activities, and rehabilitation programs and services; access to healthcare resources, especially for the black community who has suffered in high numbers from COVID-19; access to mental healthcare, for those who have fallen victim to abuse, trauma and neglect as a result of being systemically disadvantaged; financial help for both the small businesses that have suffered from collateral damage from the riots and looting, and the black organizations who are leading this empowering movement and teaching us all how to demand change.

Let our city lead by example by answering the cries that have gone unheard in this nation for centuries.

Sincerely,

REBECCA SALADOFF

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Catherine Heinen and I was born and raised in San Francisco. I've loved this city my entire life. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. That is where your power comes into play, as my protesting can only go so far.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. There has been so much city money funneled into our homeless population and yet it is still one of the top priorities our city must handle. By putting so much money into the SFPD, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. We led the US charge in handling Covid, so let's be one of the first in becoming anti-racist.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is [YOUR NAME], and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Dennis Wai

Subject: Divest from the SFPD

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman, My name is Hannah Taylor. I am a resident of the Mission and I am emailing today to demand a divestment of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health.

These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level.

These harmful issues persist and something needs to change. (With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>.) I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge.

These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Hannah Taylor

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Avery, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Avery

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Kristin Olson, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Kristin

Subject: Thoughts on the 2021 Budget for San Francisco
Date: Tuesday, June 9, 2020 9:05:52 PM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Trevor Goosen, and I am a resident of San Francisco. It has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police with a lack of basic resources for those in need. The SFPD has not been a useful resource for many people living in our city.

I call on you to drastically lower the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, community outreach and services which would be a benefit to all living in San Francisco. I urge you to give every member of our community in need or experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be an inspiration for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Trevor Goosen

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Sarah Agnes Overton, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Sarah Agnes overton

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is [YOUR NAME], and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Amit

My name is Rachel Lucero, and I am a resident of Mission Terrace in San Francisco.

This past week, our community has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources and I am calling for a decrease of funding to SFPD in favor of increasing funding towards other categories that better serve the SF people. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. I have been in support of the work that South of Market Community Action Network has been doing to advocate against Muni fare increases and think that having increasing access to public transit would be a great place to start with reallocating SFPD funds.

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Dear Mayor Breed, San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Bex Brzostoski, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed specifically: I went to hear you speak at the kneeling for justice event a little over a week ago, and I was moved by your speech. I can tell how much you care about this city, and how deep your roots are here. I remember specifically the line from your speech, "I may be the mayor, but I am a Black woman first." I know that you have the interests of the Black residents of San Francisco close to your heart. And now, it is time to listen to them, to the Black people who walk these streets, and who build their lives here.

You have had a truly inspiring life. You defied all the odds and worked incredibly hard to get where you are. But please remember, every person who lives on the street or in the single occupancy rooms in the tenderloin: they tried just as hard as you did. They're just as human as you are. They were just unlucky.

And if you go to any of the other protests, the ones organized by the people, you'd hear those people speaking. They know their communities. They know their circumstances. And they know that what they need is better social services, better rehabilitation facilities, better housing— not cops.

I beseech you to seek them out, and listen to what they are saying. Be open to learning from them, because they know what they need.

Wishing you the best,

Bex Brzostoski

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Daas Khalsa, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Daas Khalsa

My name is Meredith Simpson, and I am a resident of San Francisco and a third grade teacher for SFUSD.

I implore you to redirect funds from the SFPD to our schools! Fill the projected $84 million+ budget shortfall and more! Our city's children deserve a world class education. They deserve to be prepared for the jobs the Bay Area has to offer. Do you know how many Chromebooks actually function at my school site? Not enough! And we are in Google's backyard. Our students should be the most tech literate kids in the country!

When the WHO had declared the coronavirus a global pandemic but schools were still open, the district did not provide us with a single bottle of hand sanitizer, not one bottle of disinfectant spray. We have two sinks of my floor for 150 students and staff to share. How will we ever be able to return to school and avoid spreading viruses?

With the loss of school time during the pandemic, our students need safe, loving, clean, and rigorous learning environments filled with all the caring adults that were there before. Now more than ever. SFUSD needs more money!!

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards this city's future, our children.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Dear Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

The choice to resource punitive systems instead of stabilizing ones does not make communities safer. Instead, a living wage, access to holistic health services and treatment, educational opportunity, and stable housing are far more successful in reducing crime than police and mass incarceration.

To Mayor Breed and Supervisor Mandelman,

My name is Andrew Hebert, and I am a resident of San Francisco residing in Noe Valley. Since George Floyd's murder on Memorial Day weekend, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

As you debate next year's budget, I implore you to think big and ask how San Francisco can transform policing and public safety in San Francisco. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see the wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to defund SFPD budget and instead use some of those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness and addressing the mental health and addiction crisis in our city, which disproportionately affects our Black neighbors and veterans. As a public health professional, I long to see the day where San Francisco provides the services and care that it's most vulnerable citizens need. In fact, I recently experienced this in my apartment building, where my neighbor called the police as he felt threatened by his roommate and worried for the safety of his neighbors as he was suffering from a mental health emergency.

While the police did an admirable job of deescalating the situation, my neighbor and his roommate were left without him receiving any mental healthcare nor was his roommate provided without any resources to help address his schizophrenic breakdown or help link his roommate to care. If we rethink public safety, I would have loved to have seen an officer addressing the situation in collaboration with trained counselors and/or providers who could address my neighbor's mental health emergency.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. San Francisco already leads the way by addressing HIV via rapid start and in our response to the COVID-19 outbreak, so why can't we think big when it comes to transforming policing and addressing mental health and all aspects of public safety?

I thank you for your time and look forward to seeing SF continue to live up to its progressive values.

Sincerely,

Andrew Hebert, MPH

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

San Francisco has a history of being one of the most progressive cities in the nation however, we can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. I hope you seriously take the time to reflect on how we can all work together to build a better future for our Black citizens of San Francisco.

Thank you for your continued dedication to our great city.

San Francisco state university has been denied public bonds and the funded necessary to survive. It is one of the largest universities which serve a student body all across the Bay Area. I am a student and alumni of the fine institution and it suffered from a lack of funding especially in STEM, which this city thrives on.

I have generated good commerce and research as a result of the fine education I received from the distinguished professors. The departs suffer budget cuts, and a lack of support from the city.

I am pleased that speaker Pelosi addresses anti-blackness in policing. I would like to address policies against diversity quotas and hiring practices. I want my workplace to hear the voices of the world—which we colonized. That’s not to say that I do not love this country, but my generation is sick and tired of inequality and the lack of change. I hope this new bill in the government will address these issues. Sincerely, with love—

Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

Hello,

I understand you are extremely busy, but I am hoping you can take a few minutes of your time to read what I have to say as it is extremely important and reflects the community that I live in. My name is Kylee Ruvalcaba and I am reaching out as a representative and as a citizen of San Francisco to urge you to create necessary and long overdue change for our community.

For the last several weeks, people have felt pain, community members have protested, and cities have literally been on fire as the death of George Floyd was ANOTHER black life that was taken by the police. People are terrified and have used their voice to showcase that enough is enough. We have reached a breaking point as we are additionally in the midst of dealing with a global pandemic that is affecting, infecting, and killing us. With even higher percentages targeted in the black community.

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Just imagine if we started seeing REAL change on those areas and how not only would that better our city, but eventually our nation as a whole!

I call on you to reduce the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

It's amazing to hear you speak on moving these funds to different areas and I hope you can follow through. We are demanding big change and transformation and we are looking to you, as our local leaders for true hope. Hope we can hopefully count on. We need you. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. Please use your voice and position to implement these changes.

Sincerely,
Kylee Ruvalcaba

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Tyler Wick, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Valeria Chavez. I am a resident of Sunset District, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Valeria Chavez

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Emily

Dear Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Annie Tahtinen and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a drain on our community's resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco General Fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to cut the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans, and bolstering social services like workforce development and training for good jobs. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

I work at Jewish Vocational Service of San Francisco and am committed to helping our community thrive through finding good jobs. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow and I know you all have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Annie Tahtinen

Subject: Defund SFPD and invest in social services!

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

As a resident of San Francisco, I am writing to call on you to divest from the police and invest in social services for our community, especially for our Black neighbors. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the city budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD is not the best use of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we've seen the harmful actions of our police.

We are protesting in the streets; we are contacting you, our elected officials. Show us you are listening!

Sincerely,
Stephanie Yang

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources and has negatively impacted our communities. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

It breaks my heart and my fellow San Franciscans deserve better. In a city so INCREDIBLY RICH, this is entirely unacceptable.

My name is Daniel Bernstein, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD is largely an abused use of resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. We've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, yet have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see unethical, unlawful and exploitative actions from our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans; toward equity programs to uplift underprivileged and impoverished communities with attention to education, extra curricular activities, and rehabilitation programs and services; access to healthcare resources, especially for the black community who has suffered in high numbers from COVID-19; access to mental healthcare, for those who have fallen victim to abuse, trauma and neglect as a result of being systemically disadvantaged; financial help for both the small businesses that have suffered from collateral damage from the riots and looting, and the black organizations who are leading this empowering movement and teaching us all how to demand change.

Let our city lead by example by answering the cries that have gone unheard in this nation for centuries.

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Rissa Kromlidi. I am a resident of Athens, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Rissa Kromlidi

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Owen Wood. I am a resident of Greer, SC, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Owen Wood

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Josh Fandel, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Josh Fandel

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Camren Casarez

The SFPD budget could be better used elsewhere. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Hallie, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Hallie Mayo

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Chris Frakes, and I am a resident of San Francisco. It has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as protests for meaningful change to racist and Anti-Black behaviors continue to happen across the country. San Francisco often leads the charge when it comes to social change, and I hope we can continue to do so now.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on wasteful and harmful policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. While the SFPD budget increased:

- My husband, Rory McMahon, a 5th grade teacher in SFUSD paid for his classroom to have books and school supplies out of pocket (much of which was not reimbursed), and yet he doesn't earn a living wage from this city.
- We donated the leftover N95 masks we had from last year's fire season to UCSF because of the lack of PPE available in the city, state and country.
- The unhoused population has increased, particularly in the most diverse areas of the city (e.g., the Tenderloin).

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget (and make plans for the SFPD to use their remains budget on much needed de-escalation training), and instead re-allocate the budget toward education, public health, and homelessness—all of which disproportionately affect the Black and Brown communities in our city.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is [YOUR NAME], and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Becca Holt, and I am a resident of San Francisco. I work at Equal Rights Advocates, an SF-based civil rights organization that provides legal services to survivors of sexual violence. My daily work focuses on closing the justice gap for student survivors and ensuring they are not pushed out of school. The path to justice and healing is deeply personal for every survivor, yet an unease or an experience of actual harm when dealing with the police is a common thread across many of our cases. As a survivor advocate, I am writing to urge you to defund the SFPD.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. I currently work as a street nurse providing care to our unhoused on the street and I know how much support they need. Though San Francisco's black community accounts for only 5.2% of the population, a 2019 survey found 37% of unhoused San Franciscans self-identify as black.

Additionally, I implore you to divest funds from the SFPD to invest in education, and work with schools to implement restorative justice programs in place of the current punitive systems of suspension and detentions that lead to the early criminalization of youth of color through the school to prison pipeline.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Lisa Lee, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Lisa Lee

Hi Joel,

While I agree with many of the points in your article (specifically, if we get rid the police, who are you gonna call?) , SFPD has a long way to go. I'm a middle aged white guy and I've had numerous interactions with SFPD where they basically acted like cowboys.

It's culture problem and those are very hard to fix. The culture of SFPD starts with their union and union leadership. Every time I hear what the head of POA has to say ,it's usually something obnoxious or a lame justification for something bad one of their members did. This stretches back to numerous leaders of POA . As far as I can tell, the rot starts there.

Police reform starts by disbanding their union and rebuilding SFPD culture from the ground up. Good luck with that.

-regards,
Paul Nisbett

Subject: Defund? Abolish? Or Reimagine?

Hi Paul —

The call to “defund the police” is gaining traction after two weeks of nationwide protests over the murder of George Floyd by police and decades of police violence against Black people.

“Defund the police” is a phrase with many definitions, which has led to a lot of confusion.

Are we talking about Mayor London Breed’s version? She was one of the first mayors to announce they would redirect a portion of their police budgets to Black community organizations.

Or is it the Minneapolis version, where city council members have called for a dismantling of the police force? When liberal Mayor Jacob Frey said “I cannot support the full abolition of the police,” the large crowd gathered around him chanted “Shame!”

San Francisco’s police department is certainly not exempt from shameful acts of racial bias and violence. And yet today, we are one of only a few cities to have embraced all eight policies that significantly reduce instances of police violence. The New York Times included San Francisco on a list of cities “where police reform has worked.”

That’s why a literal defunding or abolition of our police department is not the answer.

I believe San Francisco can build upon our progress toward reform and ending systemic racism. This is the path San Jose has chosen, where Mayor Sam Liccardo announced his budget will focus on police reform without defunding the department. Governor Gavin Newsom said he prefers “reimagining” law enforcement instead of “eliminating” police. Even presumptive Democratic presidential nominee Joe Biden said he favors reform over defunding.

In San Francisco, we can dedicate funds to retrain the current force and hire a new generation of officers who come from the communities that the police have historically failed.

We can invest in more social workers and treatment beds and stop using police officers as our only response to homeless encampments or residents suffering from severe mental illness on our streets.

We can even create a dedicated side force of unarmed peace officers focused on building community trust and addressing non-violent crime.

Investment, not defunding, is the best way to keep everyone safe and achieve the community-orientated policing everyone deserves.

Read my full article, which explains in greater detail why this is the time to remake, reimagine and reinvest.

Sincerely,
Joel Engardio

P.S. I'm a candidate for San Francisco supervisor with a focus on public safety and families. I'm running to represent the westside neighborhoods of District 7 (see map) and to advocate for all San Franciscans on citywide issues. Learn more about my personal background here. Don't Abolish the Police: Let's Remake, Reimagine, and Reinvest

"Defund the police" has different definitions. Let's be clear: a literal defunding or abolition of San Francisco's police department is not the answer. Investment is the most effective pathway to the community-orientated policing everyone deserves.

Why a Pandemic Budget Is Necessary

San Francisco has been good at flattening the coronavirus curve. But will City Hall make the tough decisions to flatten a devastating economic curve? Our $13 billion budget was racking up debt in boom times. Now, the projected deficits are staggering. There are no shortcuts to survive the coming recession. We must enact a "pandemic-era" budget of shared sacrifice.

Greetings

My name is Walter Parenteau and I am a white San Francisco resident. Our city spends extraordinary amounts on policing and it is TIME for a big change y'all! In a just society, it's my belief we'd reallocate those funds and spend it in ways that improve the safety of all citizens, provide housing for those experiencing homelessness, provide mental health services, and more. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources elsewhere.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Subject: DEFUND SFPD FOR PUBLIC SAFETY

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Maggie Batterman, and I am a resident of Inner Richmond, San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Maggie Batterman

I am not a native San Franciscan, but I have felt a lot of pride in how SF has risen to the challenge of Covid-19 and the early steps we took to combat this pandemic. Racism is also a pandemic, and one that has been plaguing our nation for decades. I hope that we can also be a leader when combating racism.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

On top of diverting minuscule funds from SFPD to lift up communities of color, can you please look at Portland, Oregon's Cahoots program <https://whitebirdclinic.org/services/cahoots/> as a possible model for diverting a much larger percentage of the Police Budget?

It seems like this can be proposed as a much needed relief to the demands on the police department and earn huge support from SF citizens who fear what "defunding police" means.

Too often I have seen police respond to issues on the street with the wrong attitude—we who live in our neighborhoods can recognize mental health issues better than the police and are at a loss for who to call when help is needed. Too often police escalate the threat of violence in their aggressive and unempathetic responses.

A prime example of this was the killing of Luis Gongora on the street I live on. I knew this homeless man and as a white female who often passed him returning alone late at night from work, I never feared him. The police who fired 8 shots at him on a morning when he was sitting on the sidewalk with a kitchen knife staring off into space- officers Mallone, and Steger (who was supposed to be supervising) are more to be feared.

I also call for a zero tolerance for misconduct—the police unions hold too much power for protecting these menaces to society.

Sincerely,

Alison Pebworth

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Kearney Coghlan, I am a resident of San Francisco and a second year law student. I've had the chance to hear Mayor Breed and various Supervisors speak at a number of the protests we've seen in front of City Hall, and I know that the San Francisco elected leadership holds their positions often because of their commitment to social justice.

I have been glued to the news these past few weeks, watching as people across the country have stood up to oppose the scourge of police brutality against Black people. This is just one outgrowth of the systemic racism that I am committed to confronting, and for that reason, I write to you today.

I know that San Francisco is one of the cities that has implemented the 8 best-practices of policing, as defined Campaign Zero, but it is not enough. Despite having a budget of some $600 million, our city suffers from intense issues around wealth inequality, displacement, homelessness, mental health crises, and still police brutality.

Since my childhood, I have seen SFPD use their time and powers to force people who are homeless to move their encampments. Often, this is done at night, disrupting people's dignity and opportunity to rest. While this may disappear the problem of homelessness from wealthier residents, it doesn't solve any problems.

Mayor Breed and Supervisor Walton have already committed to diverting money from the SFPD budget and putting it towards Black communities. I applaud this step, and urge a complete rethinking of the role of police in our city. I would love to see adequate funding for social work teams who could assist people having mental health episodes, the provision of housing for all who need it, and investment into educational and business opportunities for our Black residents and people living in poverty.

San Francisco has an opportunity to boldly lead in this arena, creating a more humane and healthy city that supports its residents, rather than policing them. I look forward to seeing your actions toward this end.

Sincerely,

Kearney Coghlan

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Diana Thompson, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards social programs and solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

As the COVID-19 pandemic has made blatantly clear, the education and technology gap within districts and throughout the state is a true injustice to the youth and future of our country. To simply write off education by saying that there isn't enough money to give to education is a sick lie. Change happens in schools, but instead, we see that money allocated to the police departments and the wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

On top of diverting minuscule funds from SFPD to lift up communities of color, can you please look at Eugene, Oregon's Cahoots program <https://whitebirdclinic.org/services/cahoots/> as a possible model for diverting a much larger percentage of the Police Budget?

It seems like this can be proposed as a much needed relief to the demands on the police department and earn huge support from SF citizens who fear what "defunding police" means.

Too often I have seen police respond to issues on the street with the wrong attitude—we who live in our neighborhoods can recognize mental health issues better than the police and are at a loss for who to call when help is needed. Too often police escalate the threat of violence in their aggressive and unempathetic responses.

A prime example of this was the killing of Luis Gongora on the street I live on. I knew this homeless man and as a white female who often passed him returning alone late at night from work, I never feared him. The police who fired 8 shots at him on a morning when he was sitting on the sidewalk with a kitchen knife staring off into space- officers Mallone, and Steger (who was supposed to be supervising) are more to be feared.

I also call for a zero tolerance for misconduct—the police unions hold too much power for protecting these menaces to society.

Sincerely,

I join my fellow San Franciscans in hopes that our city can see the potential in defunding the SF Police department. The department has been a drain on city resources for far too long, while simultaneously bringing far more harm to the city than it solves.

With such tremendous homelessness, and a shocking and growing disparity of wealth between the classes, the massive portion of the city budget spent on policing would be far better used to fund community and health services, and our city would be far healthier in so many regards.

In hopes for a healthier and police-free future for San Francisco, I thank you for your time.

Subject: Defund the SFPD - Re-appropriate to SF Social Services, Education, Etc

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Michael Lim, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, bolstering education, social services, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans.

I implore you to seriously consider this request and take action. There are many critical public departments and services which are underfunded and can seriously make a difference in the community if they had the means.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Regards,

Michael Lim

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Joe Fromer, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Joe Fromer

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is [name]. I am a resident of [SF neighborhood], and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,

Joseph Nolan

My name is Taeva Shefler, and I am a resident of San Francisco. I am also the Director of the Prisoner Advocacy Network, a San Francisco-based network of attorneys, law students, medical professionals, and community members advocating for more humane and constitutional treatment for incarcerated individuals in California. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I lived in SOMA on Sumner Ave. for many years; many of you know this area as a hotbed for the unhoused. Many of my unhoused neighbors were in fact just that - neighbors. I came to know many of them and found that if I was friendly, I was respected. When police came by to "clean up" the streets, I saw them act in humiliating ways - tearing up peoples homes; throwing things into the trash rather than allowing a person to clean up their own things; sometimes acting in violence toward people who had peacefully been sleeping on my street for many nights. Later that night, my unhoused neighbors would be back, but often right on the sidewalk rather than a tent. To me, this is far from effective social services.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. Think about the improvements to the quality of life for all San Franciscans if we were to redistribute six hundred million dollars to social workers, homeless support services, TEACHERS, youth after school programs, mental health care, and job training. I see a beautiful future if we invest in the world we want to live in, rather than allowing ourselves to be governed by fear.

Sincerely,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Victoria Santiago, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Victoria Santiago

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Cecilia Noecker, and I am a resident of San Francisco in Mission Bay, District 6, as well as a postdoctoral scholar at UC-San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was over 600 million dollars, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

Particularly in the midst of a pandemic, we should not be prioritizing spending on police over badly needed education, health, and social services. It is galling and completely inappropriate for Mayor Breed's proposed budget to include increases in police spending while proposing cuts for every other section of the budget.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards a) solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans, and b) pandemic relief for Black residents and other underserved communities of color. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

Finally, independent of the budgeting process, I ask for the following simple and immediate actions to promote racial justice in our city:

1) Support, pass, and implement the Right to Protest Safely Act proposed by Matt Haney, Hillary Ronen, and Shamann Walton to ban the use of violent crowd control tactics by police. We have seen in numerous, terrifying examples around the country the last couple weeks, with my former neighborhood of Capitol Hill in Seattle as a notable example, that police departments cannot be relied upon to use restraint with these tactics, and that they only escalate conflict and harm the taxpayers who are funding them.

2) Remove Neighborhood Watch signs across the city. These signs, reading "Suspicious Activities Reported to Police" in large letters, are particularly prevalent in wealthy white neighborhoods. They are intimidating and threatening to Black people and anyone for whom the police do not represent safety but rather violence. Neighbors should look out for one another but not by calling the police on anyone deemed "suspicious".

I thank you for your leadership in these challenging times. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Kathleen Wong, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to education, safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards funding education, providing community resources, and solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Wong

Dear Commissioners,

Thank you for your recent work in creating a new anti-bias policy for the San Francisco Police Department, and for resuming your work during this critical time. My name is “Jane Doe” and I am writing to share with you recent correspondence (attached) with the Board of Supervisors from the survivor community concerning the Police Commission; and, to urge you to defund the San Francisco Police Department so that its enormous budget may be redistributed to effectively serve the communities of San Francisco.

Black lives matter, and black survivors matter. Racial bias and misogyny go hand in hand. These biases are endemic to the the culture of law enforcement and are baked into its clay. Racism and misogyny pervade the San Francisco Police Department and endanger the public. Nationally, sexual violence is the second most common form of police misconduct, though it is seldom discussed. NPR reports that a police officer is caught in an act of sexual misconduct every five days. “Say Her Name” became a plea and a rally cry largely because there is not equal attention given and outrage elicited when black women are killed by police. “No More Stolen Sisters” is a plea and a rally cry against the extraordinary violence and abuse of girls and women in the native and indigenous community.

In San Francisco, victims have repeatedly, publicly decried law enforcement’s incompetence and misogyny in responding to rape, sexual assault, and other gender violence. Lawsuits, public hearings, news articles, and the US Department of Justice have failed to result in reforms. SFPD is an absolute nightmare for our community. 85% of federal funds for domestic violence goes to law enforcement and the criminal justice system. That money could be redistributed to support survivors. The City and County of San Francisco could provide:

1. Living wage jobs for advocates, case managers, and social workers that work with survivors;
2. Emergency cash grants for survivors to support their immediate needs in the aftermath of experiencing violence;
3. Free mental health services for every family impacted by domestic partner violence;
4. Job placement, workforce development programs, and small business loans for survivors to rebuild financially;
5. Investment in community building for survivors; and
6. Investment in community accountability and restorative justice programs.

As you are aware, SFPD is being sued for its repeated, systemic failure to respond do the absolute bare minimum in response to supporting survivors. This is a tremendous drain of time, money, and energy for people who are already traumatized. Several rape victims have had to file civil lawsuits because of incompetence and misogyny on the criminal law enforcement side. The costs to the victims are incalculable. Meanwhile, misogyny traumatizes and exacerbates the silent public health crisis of gender violence. Drug-facilitated rape has become increasingly common. Domestic violence kills people. Women are being preyed on, abused, and subject to violence because SFPD has refused to reform. It is time to defund this department that is such an arm of patriarchal violence and let the community support and rebuild itself with critical services, practical needs, and pathways to healing and justice.

Half of all police killings are people with disabilities. Police officers are not equipped to respond to mental health emergencies. Pulling the trigger and killing a person who is deaf or hard of hearing is a tragedy of ableism that must be prevented from happening again by redistributing SFPD's budget. Police are unfit to interview survivors of sexual trauma with or without disabilities, as they are unable to meet the needs of people in trauma, and especially of disabled survivors with different communication needs. To best serve the community, we urge you to seek the guidance of an expert on disability justice. Disability justice is racial justice.

We want deep, systemic change for our transgender community, who experience transphobia and biased policing, and for our undocumented community, who may not call the police for help due to the likelihood that even as a victim of a crime they will be presumed to be a criminal. We are outraged at the constant police violence against black and brown people, the misogyny, ableism, transphobia, homophobia. We hope that you will use your seats and voices to overcome the power of the POA. It is shameful that such organizations obscure transparency and create barriers to accountability and justice. When police officers commit violent crimes, like murdering Breonna Taylor, Tony McDade, Sean Monterrosa, George Floyd, and so many others, they must be arrested and prosecuted. We urge you to take every step possible toward reform as you defund.

Thank you for your work and your consideration. Please feel free to contact me at any time, we in the survivor community would be happy to engage with you about the accountability that we need from law enforcement, and how to strategically redistribute SFPD's massive budget in a way that serves the communities most harmed by its history of biased policing.

Respectfully,

“Jane Doe”

VOICES OF Survivors

June 1, 2020

To the Members of the Board of Supervisors,

Thank you for your work to meet the needs of San Francisco during this pandemic. We are a grassroots community writing to address how appointments to the Police Commission impact survivors of gender violence. Police brutality left unchecked by cities and counties has caused the nation to erupt in protests. We urge you to insist on candidates better suited in calling for police accountability.

The San Francisco Police Department has a history of bias in policing which inflicts serious, lasting trauma. In January 2016, “Jane Doe” was raped and reported to SFPD. SFPD responded with shocking misogyny and indifference. SFPD was then under review by the US Department of Justice in the wake of SFPD’s tragic killing of Mario Woods. Heather Marlowe filed suit against SFPD that January. Jane Doe wrote the DOJ in April 2016 about SFPD’s handling of rape, and retaliation. The DOJ interviewed her; gender bias and accountability were detailed in the DOJ’s report of findings. SFPD’s text message scandal is most remembered as racist; it was also sexist and homophobic. This culture of misogyny so endemic to SFPD has led to multiple recent lawsuits (re domestic violence & sexual assault), public hearings, and news articles. Victims who muster the courage to report gender violence are routinely belittled and brushed under the rug by SFPD. It is not “revictimization,” but its own unique trauma. It is rape culture at SFPD. Appropriate recourse must be available through the Police Commission.

At the 2018 Board hearing called by Supervisor Hillary Ronen on the City’s response to sexual assault, countless victims testified as to a litany of horrors by law enforcement. SFPD was hostile. Since then, rape victims continue to report the very same treatment by police, who, unchastened, make a mockery of rape investigations and rape victims. It is extraordinarily traumatizing. Further, misogyny at SFPD endangers the public. We grow less safe every time a rape investigation is undone or done incompetently.

The Police Commission must aggressively work to change SFPD’s systemic disregard for gender violence. Unfortunately, Nancy Tung and Geoffrey Gordon-Creed are unacceptable candidates for this important work. So nonexistent is Ms. Tung’s interest in rape that not even her campaign for District Attorney compelled her to learn why the DA’s Office came under fire for failure to prosecute rape on a serial basis. In over a dozen debates that we attended, she affirmed that the DA’s office was doing a great job with sexual assault. She blindly voiced support for the institution’s status quo, ignored the facts, the victims, and the possibility that even the attorneys want change. Sexual assault reform became a key issue in debates, yet Ms. Tung pivoted to other issues when it came up. She was the only candidate that did not meet with the survivor community¹ or even bother learning about the issues. Ms. Tung, plainly, could not have cared less.

As a traditional “law and order” candidate, Ms. Tung’s social justice views are oppositional to those held by the majority of San Francisco. She holds positions are on the wrong side of today’s movement: she opposes closing juvenile hall, which incarcerates an exceedingly disproportionate number of black and brown youth; she supports the use of tasers, which studies show a lead to more police violence and in custody deaths; she accepted campaign funding from the Police Officers Association, a toxic, far-right menace that is dressing officers in Thin Blue Line masks and pins, and most recently defended an officer for kneling on a person’s neck in the same way that killed George Floyd. Ms. Tung’s comments during her campaign suggest a limited scope of interests to what affects the people and issues about which she is passionate without regard to the harm caused in other communities of concern. In sum, she is an entirely unacceptable appointment. Geoffrey Gordon-Creed, too, is wholly unqualified. Corporate litigation and real estate law are not practice areas in which one develops the legs needed to stand in a Police Commission.

The appointments of Nancy Tung and Geoffrey Gordon-Creed are an affront to this community. We urge you to vote unequivocally against confirming these appointments, and insist that Mayor Breed make nominations that will move the San Francisco Police Department toward reform. It is time for San Francisco to enact an agenda that centers survivors, and putting survivors on the Commission would be a good place to start.

Sexual violence, systemic racism, and our movements for accountability and transparency are inherently linked. As we share in the protests against police brutality and reel from the losses of George Floyd, Breonna Taylor, Nina Pop, Ahmaud Arbery, Tony Mcdade, Sean Reed, and so many others, we ask you to stand up for the need for accountability in the Hall of Justice and throughout our city by insisting on Police Commissioners capable of ushering in an era of change.

Sincerely yours,

A Community of Rape Victims, Survivors, Warriors, & Allies in San Francisco²

¹ As a community, we declined to specifically endorse a campaign. Moving the needle forward on the issues was and is our North Star. We met with candidates to discuss our experiences with San Francisco law enforcement as victims of rape and sexual assault, and serve as a resource on much-needed policy reform. We were pleased Suzy Loftus made reforming sexual assault policy a priority during her brief tenure as DA, in coordination with District Attorney Chesa Boudin, who made made reform a key platform issue. Leif Dautch also met with us to understand the issues and seek policy guidance.

² We meet bi-weekly to discuss issues of gender violence and our policy goals, we welcome you to join us any time. Please contact the sender to join in setting a Survivors’ Agenda.

Dear Supervisors,

Please see the attached letter from a number of survivors of rape and sexual assault urging you to vote against the appointments of Nancy Tung and Geoffrey Gordon Creed to the Police Commission.

The additional attachment is the Jane Doe letter to the Department of Justice investigator who was conducting the civil rights review of SFPD in 2016. Thank you for your consideration in this important matter. Please do not hesitate to contact me with questions or to join our community in discussion. We meet next on Wednesday evening at 6:15 via Zoom and would welcome your participation.

Although some individuals have previously gone on record with their names linked to rape and assault in hearings, news articles, public statements, and civil lawsuits, we are signing this as a small grassroots community and prefer to keep a measure of privacy around publicly linking our names to sexual violence when possible.

Kindly,

Members of the SF Survivor Community

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen much improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Courtney Lorraine, and I am a mental health social worker in the Tenderloin. I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,

Courtney Lorraine, ASW

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Danielle Blakkan, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

Personally, I volunteer at SF suicide prevention and would LOVE it if I could send Mobile Crisis instead of the police when emergency services are needed for a caller. However, Mobile Crisis doesn't operate 24/7, with additional funding it could. The Homeless Outreach Team could also use additional funding to support our homeless community. The D.O.P.E project could use city funding to help prevent deaths due to overdoses.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Danielle Blakkan

My name is Lucy Dillon, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior and racial injustice. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. I realize that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue, and therefore the opportunity to respond to the desires of the citizens of San Francisco.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. I am a teacher, and I feel that our city needs to take huge strides in providing resources, access, and opportunities to our underserved students. I feel strongly that much of the SFPD budget needs to be redistributed to our education system.

In short, I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving issues such as homelessness and underserved schools.

Mayor Breed, SFBOS, and Elected Officers of the great city of San Francisco

My name is Jordan Beaston, and I am a resident of San Francisco. Recently, our nation has had nonstop protests demanding swift and powerful change regarding police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been a spearhead of much of this action. I have learned that the 2021 budget is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a drain on our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was grossly overfunded $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have neglected improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I implore you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those excessive resources towards solving homelessness, which is most felt by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need during these turbulent times.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. Be on the right side of history and say NO to anti-Blackness and police brutality.

Sincerely,

The beginning of this message was a part of a template for movements to defund the SFPD, a movement I am in full support of.

I live one block from Third Street, and a few blocks from the 3rd and Palou intersection. The amount of policing in my neighborhood is unjust. They antagonize the black residents of the Bayview, particularly the homeless around the 3rd and Palou intersection. I hear sirens day and night. I do not fear for my own safety, as I am a young white woman, but I fear for the safety of my neighbors of color. I live in a residential area, filled with families and two blocks away from an elementary school, we do not need this much policing!

I work part time at ECS in an office that manages supportive housing and care for the homeless in San Francisco. I propose that you take the money from the police budget and use those funds to implement the solutions outlined in the UCSF and Tipping Point "Behavioral Health and Homelessness in San Francisco" research paper.

This would keep shootings like that of Jessica Williams in 2016 from happening again. Instead of taking the life of another homeless civilian, we should give them the proper care and housing they need.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Brady and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city.

Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Brady

Subject: A Call to Action from a San Francisco Resident

Importance: High

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Caitlin Rand, and I am a resident of San Francisco. I also work for the city and take much pride in that. I am writing today because our inaction and complacency around police brutality as a city must stop. We have always been at the forefront of social issues as a city. We have been a safe haven for marginalized groups around the world. I have much pride in the history of our city. We need to make sure that we are on the right side of history again.

I am aware that the budget for 2021 is being decided as people take to the streets demanding accountability and justice for the atrocious crimes the police have committed. I have seen first hand the waste of resources SF PD has been.

I have seen SF PD officers target my friends of color, threaten them with violence and death. I have witnessed 12, let me repeat 12 SF PD officers and 4 cop cars holding 3 underage women of color in handcuffs. How is this necessary?! I asked myself this question as I stood and watched, thinking I have to be here and watch to make sure they do not hurt these girls. As I watched the video of Mario Woods being gunned down by a firing squad of SF PD, as I saw the horrific news of multiple SF PD officers being involved in a child sex trafficking ring. How many more acts of injustice will be done before we actually protect our most vulnerable citizens.

Last year, the SF PD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, I have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, I see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I see funds being allocated away from the sector of the city I work for. My heart hurts.

I call on you all to slash the SF PD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. San Francisco has a black population of less than 3%, but accounts for over 40% of the people who are living on the streets houseless. I implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Caitlin Rand

To Mayor London Breed, the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco and San Francisco Elected Officials,

My name is Evan Pettiglio, and I am a resident of San Francisco. It has become increasingly obvious that our current systems of justice are not of service. It is now blatantly clear that our infrastructure is not serving the greater good of the citizens of San Francisco. I demand that you take action to assure safety and justice for all of those who you claim to serve; the people of San Francisco.

We need rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America.

I am greatly disappointed by the disproportionate funding given to SFPD, it has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending exorbitant amounts on policing, yet we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. It is almost as if the police do not actually serve and protect the people they exist to serve and protect ?

I demand we greatly minimize the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, potentially the most inhumane issues San Francisco citizens face, and which is felt most severely by our Black neighbors and veterans. It is vital that you give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. Justice for San Francisco citizens.

Sincerely,

Evan Pettiglio

Subject: 2020-2021 Budget Recommendations
Date: Wednesday, June 10, 2020 3:00:52 PM

Hello,

My name is Jina and I am a life-long resident from District 5. I was moved by the recent protests and crimes and I wanted to state my budget priorities as a constituent and tax payer.

I'm quite disappointed to see that last year the SFPD received over $600 million, majority of which comes from our general fund. Not only is relying on the police an insufficient solution to crime and poverty, but it's also an institution that perpetuates these same issues. It takes money away from the initiatives that you yourselves are presenting and it's a destruction of our city's resources. I demand that we defund and abolish the SFPD and replace it with community-based initiatives.

To be clear, I do not want police reform. I want to see a plan proposed by my representatives to abolish the SFPD. Two weeks ago, I thought this idea was unrealistic and maybe not even possible. But after reviewing research-backed ideas and solutions, abolishing the police seems like the bare minimum that local governments can do if they remotely want to address racism and poverty.

Please start by ending SFPD's four-year hiring plan and do not include the reserve funding for "police devices" in next year's budget. Please also reallocate the money from SFPD/Sheriff towards the budget areas of Community Health, Public Works, and Human Welfare. There are initiatives such as Portland's "Street Response Teams" that replace cops with trained mental health professionals. I'd like to see initiatives as such in my community.

I also want to see more resources and funding to D5 organizations. For every 10 additional organizations in a city, the violent crime rate lowers by 6% and the property crime rate lowers by 4%. I also would like to see a reconstruction of all affordable housing projects in the Western Addition. It's been long overdue in certain areas and I believe that it can have a transformative effect on our community.

I love San Francisco so much and it pains me to feel like our city's inequality is getting worse and worse. Please be the leaders you promise to be!

Thank you,

Jina Bae

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Rebekah Goldstein and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Rebekah Goldstein

My name is Andrew Callaway, and I grew up San Francisco. I went to SOTA and CCSF and I love this place dearly.

Let's talk about the budget.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which would make up for some of the mayor's texts that leaked out... We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

Maybe you could offer some sort of police to social worker pipeline program?? So anyone who loses their job from the police being defunded can instead contribute to the community in a positive way and pay their bills etc? That would be legendary, historybooks type shit if you could pull it off!!!

Sincerely,

Andrew Callaway

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Shannon Conway, and I am a former resident of San Francisco. I went to SFSU and earned my bachelors degree-the first in my family since my grandfather. The city of San Francisco shaped my life for 8 years and made me who I am today. The city of San Francisco opened my eyes to the beauty of diversity-celebrating and understanding peoples' differences. It is a city that will always own my heart and one that I always hope to use as an example of what could be. That being said, I want to bring up something I believe this city is very much capable of...

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has proudly been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

A church I used to attend in the city always mentioned how San Francisco is beautiful, but broken. Please, let's distribute these funds to aid the broken-it is truly too loud to ignore.

I believe in the city of San Francisco and that it can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. I am putting my trust in you to also take action. Thank you for your time and continued efforts.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Subject: 2021 budget divesting the police

Dear, Mayor Breed, San Francisco Board of Supervisors, San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Delaney Balderas and I am a proud resident and voter in San Francisco. I appreciate your commitment and service. I am reaching out in an effort to call upon your leadership to create meaningful change in our city in regards to anti-Blackness, antiracism, and preventing police brutality.

I understand that the budget for 2021 is being decided as protests continue. I understand that for last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. This is a massive amount of money to spend on policing. And yet this hasn't tracked to meaningful improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city.

It's encouraging to see these news articles <https://missionlocal.org/2020/06/san-francisco-police-chief-bill-scott-open-to-defunding-police-department/> and <https://www.sfchronicle.com/bayarea/article/SF-leaders-say-they-ll-redirect-police-funds-to-15318633.php>.

And want to add in my voice to advocate for the continuation of these considerations. So that we divest budget dollars from policing to alternative, preventative forms of community safety and health, especially for our Black neighbors. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. I implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

Thank you again,
Delaney

Dear Mayor Breed, the SF Board of Supervisors, and SF elected officials,

I am a recent USF graduate and newly credentialed teacher, who has taught within SFUSD and plans to stay here as long as I can. Our students, whose range of needs and strengths are as diverse as their identities, stories, and backgrounds, need counselors and not cops.

The number of times I have seen SFPD vehicles and officers outside of my school is alarming. I cannot imagine what it would be like to be a student faced with the oppressive authoritative forces of the police at my school, a place that is supposed to nurture learning, build community, and make everyone feel safe. Students do not feel safe with a police presence in schools. Teachers do not feel safe with a police presence in schools. There is no need for police in our schools. I demand restorative justice practices, and that the enormous, oversized budget allocated to the violent SFPD be instead moved to SFUSD, whose budget was severely cut already this year despite being underfunded already. I am begging you all to follow in Minneapolis' steps and disband the police department, reallocating funds and resources to the educational needs of parents, families, students, teachers, and communities throughout the city.

As a history teacher, I am picturing how I will teach these events someday, and how they will be remembered and recorded. I hope we will all be proud of our actions, and the brave changes that we made.

We need a serious commitment to defund SFPD and reallocate those resources towards services that directly benefit communities — such as housing, education, and mental health among others — with a view towards dismantling SFPD entirely with new distinct institutions taking on its various roles. The vast majority of current police roles should be performed by people whose training backgrounds are more aligned with social workers than soldiers.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Joyce Chow and I am a resident of the Fillmore district in San Francisco. These past few weeks, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Joyce Chow

Dear Mayor Breed, San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Ronny Kerr, and I am a resident of San Francisco. As you know, nationwide protests, largely peaceful, have once again raised the alarm that racism is still very much alive in this country. The momentum and scope of the protests tells you this moment is different: People will not stand by and be appeased by gestures of solidarity or toothless measures.

The people now demand rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Thankfully, San Francisco has been a leader in this area, and I'm hoping we can continue to push even harder to lead the nation to a better future.

My understanding is that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. Last year, the SFPD budget was $600M+, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

Let's start by defunding the police.

Sincerely,

Ronny Kerr

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Meghan, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Meghan Miller

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. Maybe we could allocate some of the funds to professionals who know how to deal with mental illness and deescalating situations. It's obvious our current police force believes that brute force is the main way to deal with these sorts of situations.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. These budget decisions are also occurring in the midst of a dramatic decrease in tax revenue, forcing the city to freeze salaries and roll back plans to increase salaries for certain workers.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards education, drug treatment programs, and solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. No more military grade equipment and six figure salaries for people who are meant to protect and serve. This isn't a war zone, so they shouldn't be equipped for one.

Policing doesn't solve the problems we face. We need to provide better public school education, drug treatment programs, and financial assistance to at risk individuals so they don't turn to petty crime. Our current criminal justice system accomplishes nothing but lining the pockets of police and prisons. Why do cops with no higher education get paid more than teachers with Masters degrees?

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. I can assure you, myself and the other voters in the city of San Francisco will hold you accountable.

NO!!! Do not defund the police fund. They need more funding to properly get crime under control. Not to mention all the damage done by some of the protesters to their equipment.

We have outreach programs that can be funded. Try "GO FUND Me" if you cant find another way. There were a lot of protesters out there.. Ask them for a dollar a piece!!

Also tell Muni to do the business of public transportation and stay out of the politics and support the police when they need to be transported.

Dearest Mayor Breed, San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Ryan, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change concerning police behavior. I am imploring you to please NOT cut funding to the SFPD. There is no situation that this doesn't end up doing more harm to the very people and communities it's aiming to help. This coming from a mixed minority myself who has been victimized by the crime and theft over-running San Francisco. Together we must get to the root cause of the socio-economic disparities and not focus purely on the end of the funnel of these issues. A data-driven reassessment and analysis of current policies to determine their impact on our local community would be a wonderful next step.

Thank you,
Ryan

My name is Kiley McLaughlin, and I am a resident of San Francisco. I am writing again to urge you to take action to defund SFPD and redirect those funds to services and community based orgs working on the ground to improve mental health, homelessness, and other essential resources that actually keep our communities safe, as it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided now.

SFPD has been a waste of resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions perpetrated by our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards providing services including and especially safe housing for our houseless population in SF, which disproportionately affects our Black neighbors and veterans. I implore you to give every member of our community experiencing houselessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

Sincerely,
Kiley McLaughlin

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Diana Henninger, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

Hello,

My name is Benjamin Gullickson and I have lived in San Francisco for the last 8 years, happy to call it home. In light of recent events across the nation I am demanding that you, in your positions of power, defund the San Francisco Police Department immediately. Last year the budget for the police department exceeded $600M, funds that could have been better provided for social workers, therapists, or teachers. It has been proven that the police are harmful to black people everywhere, an epidemic that San Francisco is not immune to.

There is no defensible reason to have a budget that high for a service that isn't fair and just to all of our citizens, only the white ones. The systemic racism that has been highlighted by recent horrific acts as well as mass protests has shown that defunding the police is a great place to start. How can it be that the starting salary of a police officer is higher than that of a teacher? That's bullshit, and I can't abide by that inverted reality any longer.

Defund the police and allocate the funds to resources that will make San Francisco a better place for all.

Thank you,
Benjamin Gullickson

According to a 2015 study, 45% of homeless people suffer from mental illness. It has been estimated that people suffering mental health issues are sixteen times more likely to be killed by police officers due to first responders being unaware of their condition. Police are not trained enough about deescalating the situation and how to help people suffering from mental illness. I am writing to urge you to fund, instead of the police department, but to measures that help solve homelessness and mental issues. Many cities have implemented and have observed the success of housing first. Besides, I recommend that the emergency response team should start including mental health experts to help mental health victims with their skills. Not to mention the need of police officers to receive more extensive training on racism and mental health.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Lorisa Salvatin, and I am a resident of Hayward, CA. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Lorisa Salvatin

Dear Mayor Breed, SF Board Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers -

My name is Elizabeth Kroner and I am a resident (and voter) of SF's District 8 in Diamond Heights. I am writing to demand that SFPD's over 600 million dollar budget be slashed and that those funds be redirected to social services.

We live in a city overrun with wealth disparities and homelessness, and the police's surveillance and violence falls disproportionately on our communities of color and low-income citizens. This racism and violence has never been permissible, but in light of the nation's recent protests, this injustice can no longer fly under the radar.

As someone born and raised in SF, who spent all my school years in SFUSD, I know how important resources are. I urge that you redirect funds from SFPD to social services and education. As Durham, NC's Mayor Pro Tem put it, "The safest communities don't have the most cops, they have the most resources." Along this continuum, beyond just slashing SFPD's budget, I demand that we begin the process of dismantling the police department all together. It is clear that this is a necessary step in eradicating the legacy of white supremacy and patriarchy upon which this nation was built and continues to profit.

I urge you to defund SFPD and work toward abolition.

I write this in the memory of Mario Woods, Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, and the many more unnamed Black and Brown folk who have been murdered by the hand of SFPD.

Thank you for your time,
Elizabeth Kroner

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Katie Dilley

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Joseph Tamayo, and I am a resident of San Francisco in District 1. While it is encouraging to see Chief Bill Scott open to the idea of defunding a portion of the budget for his department this week, it is simply not enough.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and ultimately begin abolition of the SFPD, instead using those extraordinary resources towards housing, education, empowering our community with non-police solutions and investing in medics, social workers and crisis workers trained in de-escalation to broaden the city's idea of law enforcement and begin phasing out our dependence on the SFPD. In its current form, it is simply an egregious waste of our resources; we need a new model. We continue to see violence and instigation from our police.

While we've been spending enormous amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, or mental health and have seen outrageous budget cuts to SF public schools this year.

The leadership of our state and of our city in the early stages of the COVID-19 pandemic was very encouraging and served as a beacon for other cities to follow suit.

San Francisco is a city that prides itself on being at the forefront of public health. We can be that same beacon for reimagining safety in our city and for phasing out our dependence on a police force engrained with systemic racism. That would be a San Francisco that I would be proud of.

Keep your community and its safety at the front of your decisions and be part of a change that will inspire other cities and leaders across the nation to follow suit.

Sincerely,
Joseph Tamayo

To the Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee: Supervisors Fewer, Walton and Mandelman:

My name is Melanie Kim and I am a third generation San Francisco resident. I am emailing today to demand a divestment of funds from San Francisco's Police Department and redistribution of these funds towards services focused on housing, economic stability, education, and health. These investments must be for the benefit of all of San Francisco's poor and marginalized communities, but most importantly, they must benefit San Francisco's Black residents. As we build life-affirming programs and services for San Francisco residents, the end goal must be to completely disband and abolish the San Francisco Police Department. There is no salvaging or reforming SFPD-- it must be defunded as we make investments in community solutions with the end goal of abolition.

Sincerely,
Melanie Kim

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Nikita, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Regards,
Nikita

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Stella, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Stella Gould

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Leah Wiedenmann, and I am a resident of San Francisco. Over the past two week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America.

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action and I proudly marched with my city last Wednesday. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

Given the tragic state of our city and country, SFPD should not be a key recipient of our limited resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund.

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see inappropriate and in some cases harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to strongly severely reduce the SFPD budget and while increasing those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans.

My neighbors and i implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

I know you all get lots of emails so thank you for reading this. Please support the people of San Francisco, who you represent, in our movement against racial injustice. Our SFUSD system marginalized students of color in San Francisco. We need you to defund the police and support students of color, specifically Black students, in ways that they see fit. I am white, and I do not want to speak to the experience of Black students - that being said, I would love to help the students of SFUSD's participation in this movement however you see fit. San Franciscan children grow up in a majority white city whose white people are disproportionately valued. As you will see, the following is an email template. PLEASE REACH OUT TO ME.

Hi there, San Francisco has the opportunity to be one of the cities that challenge the nation's presumption that the only way to implement public safety (for white people) is state-sanctioned violence (against Black people). Please consider radical action, such as defunding the police and using the money to build more housing and provide mental health first responders. Even if the consequences of a radical approach aren't fully known, I'm willing to trade my short-term safety and privilege to experiment with building a safer and more just society long-term.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Christopher Auyeung, and I am a resident of Glen Park, SF. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Chris Auyeung

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Mayor Breed, Chief Scott, City Manager Kelly, and San Francisco City Council Members, My name is Denise Chan, and I am a resident of San Francisco. I am writing to you today to demand that you immediately redirect funding from the San Francisco Police Department towards BIPOC communities. The senseless killings of George Floyd, Breonna Taylor, Tony McDade, and countless others have demonstrated the infuriating prevalence of police violence and brutality in communities across America. While these events are devastating, they should not come as a surprise. Since the 1600s, policing has been a tool to enforce the social order — an order that oppresses and brutalizes BIPOC Americans. For too long, policy-makers and law enforcement have upheld a system founded upon racialized fear to brutalize and devastate BIPOC communities. Additionally, most policing reforms (e.g. implicit bias training, diversification, and enhanced accountability) fail to address the root problems inherent to policing, as demonstrated by the implementation (and clear failure) of these programs in the Minneapolis Police Department. Thus, I am demanding that you take the following actions immediately: 1. Defund the San Francisco Police Department by reinvesting 50% of this budget in BIPOC communities, collaborating with leaders from these communities to identify areas of need (including, but not limited to healthcare, housing, and education). This could mean transforming the role of first responders — for most calls, social workers, mental health experts, and community leaders have the right expertise to solve the problem, as seen in Dallas. 2. Abolish qualified immunity and other legal protections for police officers who have committed acts of violence. Nearly every single officer involved in racialized violence has never faced serious punishment. Hold officers to the same legal standard as the rest of the citizenry and punish these acts of unnecessary violence. 3. Demilitarize the local police force immediately. This includes, but is not limited to, stopping the deployment of excessively militarized police (especially in the ongoing demonstrations), restricting police departments from using federal grant money for military weaponry, returning whatever military equipment has already been received, banning no-knock raids, and restricting the use of SWAT teams. 4. Open investigations into all officers with reports of police abuse and release body counts for all officers. 5. Cut all ties between the San Francisco Police Department and local public schools. 6. Ban ICE from all protests and gatherings in San Francisco. These actions are only first steps. Racialized police brutality is a systemic problem that requires federal, state, and local action, and I am demanding that you do your part. Black Lives Matter. Sincerely,
Denise

Hi Mayor Breed, SF Supervisors, and city leaders,

Thank you for the response. I appreciate that you all are listening, and that you are making plans to divert funds from the SFPD and into our city's Black communities, which have been severely underserved.

However, these plans are not enough. The 8 Can't Wait steps have been disproven to make a difference—Minneapolis had 7/8 and that didn't prevent George Floyd from being murdered with 4 police officers present.

San Francisco may require an investigation every time an officer discharges their weapon, and we may have a Department of Police Accountability, but what happens after that? Police unions all over the country work hard to make sure that no officers will ever be held accountable for their actions.

I also have no trust that accountability matters to the SFPD when half of the cops I've seen recently haven't even been wearing masks during a pandemic—something that is required of everyone else in the city, and is a very simple thing the rest of us do to show that we care about the health of the people around us. It worries me that they don't care.

Related, just a month ago the POA wore Thin Blue Line masks to a protest, which most people would consider a coded anti-Black Lives Matter symbol. When they were banned from wearing them, the President complained that "San Francisco's professional protesters played the race card". That is a truly despicable thing to say, and we are supposed to believe they will act fairly and without bias?

I applaud the SFMTA for no longer transporting militarized police to protests, and like the POA themselves suggested, we should take it a step further and stop criminalizing poverty.

With all the hundreds of millions of dollars that the SFPD drains from our city budget, one would think that they would at least be effective at their jobs and worth all that money. But they aren't. I have called the police, and they were unhelpful. I have been with friends who had their cars broken into, and the police did nothing. I've had friends call the police when they were in danger and they were told they couldn't do anything. What are we paying them SO MUCH money for?

The imbalance of priorities in our city budget is especially egregious given the worldwide

attention our city has gotten over the lack of services for citizens experiencing homelessness. Combining our need for housing and social services with the economic impact that the pandemic has had on our city, it's clear that we need a lot of money to rebuild our city and help our most vulnerable neighbors.

It is obvious to me, and many San Franciscans, that defunding the SFPD and reallocating these hundreds of millions of dollars to fund education, provide housing, invest in infrastructure, support healthcare, and actually address the core issues that people in our city are experiencing would make our city safer and better for everyone.

I'm proud to be a San Franciscan, and I'm proud that our city has always had courage in leading our country and the world in making revolutionary changes and pushing progressive ideas. Police brutality and racism in general are issues that are deeply ingrained in our institutions and culture, and eradicating them requires more brave leaders willing to make radical changes. I urge you to be those leaders.

Thank you for contacting the Office of Mayor London N. Breed.

Mayor Breed stands in strong solidarity with the communities across the country who are grieving the loss of yet another Black life. Mayor Breed has lived and breathed this grief as members of her community and her family have died at the hands of police officers. As Mayor, London Breed will not tolerate a Police Department that brutalizes San Franciscans. In our City, we need a Police Department which protects residents, victims, and their families and we will not stand for the violence that we've seen perpetrated against Black and Brown communities by police officers across this country.

The San Francisco Police Department is one of the best in the country when it comes to measures to combat use of force, avoid bias in policing, and prioritize police accountability, and has already implemented all of the policies recommended by the "8 Can't Wait" campaign. Despite these achievements, there is more we must do to ensure fair and just policing. Mayor Breed established a policy that requires an investigation every single time an officer discharges their weapon and to present these findings to the Police Commission. In addition, Mayor Breed co-authored the amendment to create the San Francisco Department of Police Accountability which is tasked with investigating all officer-involved shootings and complaints against the Department, making policy recommendations, and conducting audits of the Department. For more details on SFPD policies and protocols, please see this website.

San Francisco has made substantial progress on police reform in recent years, especially around our use-of-force policies, but we know there are structural inequities in our city that continue to impact our African-American community each and every day. The Mayor's Office has also worked tirelessly to tackle the underlying causes of these issues by investing in programs that equitably support our youth and their development and provide more opportunities to those in need of a second chance. Mayor Breed has announced a plan to prioritize redirection of resources from the SFPD to support the African-American community in the upcoming budget (see attached announcement). In tandem with Supervisor Shamann Walton and the Human Rights Commission, Mayor Breed will work to identify programs that can have the biggest impact on our Black communities for funding. The leaders of the City & County of San Francisco will not rest until the Police Department and all branches of government are free of prejudice and all San Franciscans have equal treatment under the law.

Please do not hesitate to reach out if you have any further questions,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Aine Walsh, and I am a resident of San Francisco and an sfusd student. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources and its partnership with sfusd is disgraceful. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Aine Walsh

Hi Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Chin Lu. I'm an American citizen, taxpayer, and your constituent for a decade now—I've lived in San Francisco at zip code 94103 for ten years.

Recently I've come across a lot more information about the American police system that I didn't know previously. Because of that, I would like to call on the San Francisco city government to go further and defund the SFPD. Implementing the policies from 8CantWait.org is not enough. Please slash their budget of more than $600+ million dollars, and instead invest that funding into education, helping people experiencing homelessness, mental and physical health services, and affordable & safe housing.

A few years ago, I came home late at night to find a man who appeared to be experiencing homelessness at my building's front door. He was in a wheelchair and he was visibly bleeding from his head onto his face. I asked him, and he said he didn't remember how he got the injury. I called 911 and the ambulance EMT workers who showed up were absolutely disrespectful to both me and the man. They sighed heavily and said things that basically implied I was wasting their precious time by calling to help him. They talked down to both of us for a long time before finally getting out of the vehicle to actually help him.

I live in the Mission, and there are a lot of makeshift camps on the streets in my neighborhood. I can tell that they're disproportionately mostly people of color. Sometimes I get harassed by these men experiencing homelessness, and many of them appeared to have mental health or addiction issues. Instead of having more arming police officers with more weapons, I would rather that budget is used to improve the safety of our city by helping these people back on their feet. Increasing the amount of affordable housing, and mental & physical health services will be a much more effective way of solving the issues at the root of the problems—We need more preventive measures and programs that will help people thrive instead of more resident-policing.

Thanks,

Chin Lu

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Erika Villalobos, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Erika Villalobos

Hello Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers!

My name is Dr. Lucy Brennan, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police and no data to show that the excessive funding the police department receives is benefiting the community.

I call on you to reprioritize the use of the SFPD budget. Instead use those extraordinary resources to fund small-businesses, mental health and addiction services, affordable and educational opportunities. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Dear Mayor Breed, Chief Scott, City Manager Kelly, and San Francisco City Council Members,

My name is Retesh, and I am a resident of San Francisco, CA. I am writing to you today to demand that you immediately redirect funding from the San Francisco Police Department towards BIPOC communities.

The senseless killings of George Floyd, Breonna Taylor, Tony McDade, and countless others have demonstrated the infuriating prevalence of police violence and brutality in communities across America. While these events are devastating, they should not come as a surprise. Since the 1600s, policing has been a tool to enforce the social order — an order that oppresses and brutalizes BIPOC Americans.

For too long, policy-makers and law enforcement have upheld a system founded upon racialized fear to brutalize and devastate BIPOC communities. Additionally, most policing reforms (e.g. implicit bias training, diversification, and enhanced accountability) fail to address the root problems inherent to policing, as demonstrated by the implementation (and clear failure) of these programs in the Minneapolis Police Department.

Thus, I am demanding that you take the following actions immediately:

1. Defund the San Francisco Police Department by reinvesting 50% of this budget in BIPOC communities, collaborating with leaders from these communities to identify areas of need (including, but not limited to healthcare, housing, and education). This could mean transforming the role of first responders — for most calls, social workers, mental health experts, and community leaders have the right expertise to solve the problem, as seen in Dallas.
2. Abolish qualified immunity and other legal protections for police officers who have committed acts of violence. Nearly every single officer involved in racialized violence has never faced serious punishment. Hold officers to the same legal standard as the rest of the citizenry and punish these acts of unnecessary violence.
3. Demilitarize the local police force immediately. This includes, but is not limited to, stopping the deployment of excessively militarized police (especially in the ongoing demonstrations), restricting police departments from using federal grant money for military weaponry, returning whatever military equipment has already been received, banning no-knock raids, and restricting the use of SWAT teams.
4. Open investigations into all officers with reports of police abuse and release body counts for all officers.
5. Cut all ties between the San Francisco Police Department and local public schools.
6. Ban ICE from all protests and gatherings in San Francisco.

These actions are only first steps. Racialized police brutality is a systemic problem that requires federal, state, and local action, and I am demanding that you do your part. Black Lives Matter.

Sincerely,
Retesh Gupta

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Noelle Roth, and I am a resident and home owner in San Francisco. These past weeks, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Homelessness is actually getting worse and we've normalized the experience in SF. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans, and on education of our community and our children.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is John Cavellini, and I have been a resident of San Francisco for 15 years. My family was/is still part of SFPD. I also have family members within the bay area who are part of law enforcement.

Our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

We've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our housing.

I call on you to divert funding/budgets away from the SFPD and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. Our city's current policies and spending needs to be re-addresses and prioritized away from police and into services that will work to lift up the community.

I also ask that you chastise the SFPD over their recent threat to MUNI to "call someone else." Remind them that their responsibility is to protect drivers and passengers if 911 is called. MUNI is not responsible to use civilian/public transportation to bus militarized enforcement to generally peaceful protests.

Together, we can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

John Cavellini

Hi, my name is Nik Zaleski and I live in San Leandro at 714 Rodney Drive. I am asking that the San Francisco Board of Supervisors take emergency action to defund the SFPD and shift investment to long-term safety strategies for Black communities, such as education, local restorative justice services, and employment programs. More officers, guns, jails and prisons are not a solution to longstanding problems of racial disparities, injustice, and police violence.

Thank you,
Nik

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Jasmin Godoy and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Jasmin Godoy

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Meredith Brown. I am a resident of Ingleside, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change. (With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Meredith Brown

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Libby MacKenzie, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Dear Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Lorenzo Mena. I am currently a resident and scholar here in San Francisco. As many of you probably know we have been facing massive demonstrations around the global asking for change with regard to police behavior, combating/denouncing racism, and helping change the way we as a society treat/view Black people. I have some suggestions for the budget which normally would go to SFPD. The reason being is San Francisco has been a pillar for change! And we must maintain that status.

As a concerned citizen I am asking that you all consider allocating the funds which normally would go to SFPD to other areas. Allocation of these funds to education, homeless shelters, and transportation can greatly impact the inhabitants of this city. Education here in this city is something which is important. We have one of the best research institutions here in our own backyard and to help get more students into places like this we must funnel the money from SFPD into the SFUSD. By doing this we can give opportunities to those who normally wouldn't receive them, as socioeconomic status plays a major role in the outcomes of BIPOC. BIPOC do not have the same access to a quality education and funding this increases their chances to obtain the same opportunities affluent areas do. Another key facet to this is allocating funds to help with the homeless population. This is a major issues which also plagues our city, and giving them proper shelter and mental health access will help greatly. Lastly, by funneling some funds to our transportation can make the experiences for many individuals better. It can create jobs to those who need it, and make buses less crowded especially given that COVID-19 spreads easily from close person to person contact.

I am asking that you all consider slashing the budget which would normally go to SFPD, and consider using those funds to help our community in San Francisco! Our community here is San Francisco would benefit so much from the slashing and reinvestment of those funds to education, homeless shelters, and transportation.

Best,
Lorenzo Mena

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Angela Han, and I am a resident of San Francisco.

I call on you again to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

As we see across the nation, many cities are rethinking what policing looks like and are calling for defunding and disbanding of their police departments. Let us do the same.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Angela Han

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Kelly, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. Dear Mayor Breed, Chief Scott, City Manager Kelly, and San Francisco City Council Members,

My name is Ryan Miller, and I am a resident of San Francisco, CA. I am writing to you today to demand that you immediately redirect funding from the San Francisco Police Department towards BIPOC communities.

The senseless killings of George Floyd, Breonna Taylor, Tony McDade, and countless others have demonstrated the infuriating prevalence of police violence and brutality in communities across America. While these events are devastating, they should not come as a surprise. Since the 1600s, policing has been a tool to enforce the social order — an order that oppresses and brutalizes BIPOC Americans.

For too long, policy-makers and law enforcement have upheld a system founded upon racialized fear to brutalize and devastate BIPOC communities. Additionally, most policing reforms (e.g. implicit bias training, diversification, and enhanced accountability) fail to address the root problems inherent to policing, as demonstrated by the implementation (and clear failure) of these programs in the Minneapolis Police Department.

Thus, I am demanding that you take the following actions immediately:

1. Defund the San Francisco Police Department by reinvesting 50% of this budget in BIPOC communities, collaborating with leaders from these communities to identify areas of need (including, but not limited to healthcare, housing, and education). This could mean transforming the role of first responders — for most calls, social workers, mental health experts, and community leaders have the right expertise to solve the problem, as seen in Dallas.
2. Abolish qualified immunity and other legal protections for police officers who have committed acts of violence. Nearly every single officer involved in racialized violence has never faced serious punishment. Hold officers to the same legal standard as the rest of the citizenry and punish these acts of unnecessary violence.
3. Demilitarize the local police force immediately. This includes, but is not limited to, stopping the deployment of excessively militarized police (especially in the ongoing demonstrations), restricting police departments from using federal grant money for military weaponry, returning whatever military equipment has already been received, banning no-knock raids, and restricting the use of SWAT teams.
4. Open investigations into all officers with reports of police abuse and release body counts for all officers.
5. Cut all ties between the San Francisco Police Department and local public schools.
6. Ban ICE from all protests and gatherings in San Francisco.

These actions are only first steps. Racialized police brutality is a systemic problem that requires federal, state, and local action, and I am demanding that you do your part. Black Lives Matter.

Sincerely,
Ryan Miller

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city..

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Ryan Young, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past few weeks, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action.

Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness and to fund education, which are two issues that impact our Black neighbors. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We implore you to fund SFUSD and invest in our students' futures. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Encompass and prioritize black and brown needs. Change the outcomes for the expendable essential worker so they can live and work in their communities with dignity and stability. Why are poor people at the whim of rich people's donations for food, healthcare and housing when crisis ensues? Why have food banks, go fund me's and Venmo donations from our virtual communities the new safety net. Our tax dollars should cover quality healthcare and education & food and housing security. What else is the roll of government? SF prioritization of services encourages and continues the criminalization of poverty. Universal guaranteed basic incomes. Housing for every body. Decriminalize crimes of necessity (food, medicine, infant needs and clothing). Reimagine a budget that encompasses the whole kaleidoscope of San Francisco's population.

Subject: From an SF resident - Let's make SF into a national example into what the future of policing can look like
Date: Thursday, June 11, 2020 11:00:07 AM

Hello Mayor Breed, the SF Board of Supervisors, and SF Elected Officers:

My name is Esther, and I'm an SF citizen of 7 years that voted for your mayorship. I feel compelled to let you know that I - as one of your constituents - feel extremely strongly about your upcoming budget proposal.

As we've failed to see meaningful police reforms materialize for decades, citizens across the country are demanding a different tactic - to completely reassess and reimagine what policing should look like in 2020.

SF has been at the forefront of much of this work. I know you've proposed diverting SFPD funds to invest in our black communities. While we don't know exact numbers yet, we know the budget for 2021 will be presented in August.

I'm writing to urge you to think really radically about how this money can be used. It's exciting! To see so much of our taxpayer dollars potentially go to this new category of community investment. This is not a time to think conservatively, to think of how we can roll this out incrementally. This change is coming DECADES late.

Long-standing generational problems are radical problems that need radical solutions with a lot of upfront investment that may not yield immediate results - we still need to make these investments. We have seen little improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city - possibly because the ROOT CAUSES of these issues are not being addressed, and are instead being "resolved" with the hammer that is SFPD.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to invest in change with our dollars (NOT just our words), and to do so radically.

Sincerely,

Esther Weon

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Stephanie Schug, and I work in San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. The city of SF has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability. Instead, we see the wasteful and harmful actions of the police - including the most recent actions of aggression against protestors.

Every time I am in the city, my heart breaks at how much it has failed its residents. From the rampant homelessness to the lack of affordable housing (the two being related, of course) to the inefficient policing I see on a regular basis (I have personally been approached by a police officer to ask me (a white woman) if I was "OK" after a mentally ill black man simply approached me to ask for the time! The man wasn't doing anything wrong (he'd yelled at a car previously but whatever). I wasn't in danger. It was just bizarre and unnecessary.

As you discuss the budget for the year, I call on you to slash the SFPD budget significantly - and instead use those resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

My name is Alyssa Casimiro, and I am a resident of San Francisco. I am also a School Social Worker with SFUSD, working in a program that is combatting the Pre-School to Prison Pipeline and significant disproportionality of Black and Brown students being suspended, expelled and placed in SpEd. This program is called Shoestrings. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. I call on you to allocate funding to the School District, which is currently in a major deficit which will lead to major layoffs in the coming year. This will negatively impact the learning, mental health, and safety of the children who reside in San Francisco. Teachers, Social Workers, Nurses, and School Therapists are pivotal in supporting young people, particularly during this time of Covid, where children and families are faced with traumatic experiences such as food insecurity, job insecurity, safety issues without access to schools, and extreme learning loss. The mental health and safety of your community depends on you allocating the excess funds that are budgeted to SFPD to SFUSD to support youth directly.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action.

Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund.

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Will Keating

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Lisette, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Lisette Luu-Maldonado

My name is Noreen, and I am a resident of San Francisco. These past few weeks, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. I want San Francisco to be remembered for its response to this, as well as how we protect our own during the pandemic. We must include our populations without homes. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.
