Hello,
The city has too much money? please refund the money back to me.
$20000 for a garbage can? Holy s....
Wasteful
Is it because recology over charge us , so the politicians buy their can

My name is Kathryn Bircher. I live in Glen Ellen. I just saw report on prototypes of street trash cans being developed. I think the price is ridiculous.
I think high school shop class, Union training class, or college or Vocational School students could brainstorm what you need for only cost of production. Or make it a contest among a few of those. Maybe you could use all those designed with school name or logo on them. No law they have to be uniform.
Please at least consider this idea.
You could highlight capabilities of young people and save taxpayers money. Sounds like a win-win to me.
Thank you,
Kathryn Bircher

Cannot believe you are willing to spend $20,000 per trash container. With the homeless situation, drugs and crime issues facing the city I find this expense exorbitante and superfluous.

Okay, besides the fact that $20,000 is absurd, in the SF Chron article it mentions that the proposed cans will have a handle to open a chute.

Uhhh.... I do NOT want to touch a handle on a public trashcan! Didn't anybody consider this???? Seriously, why would anyone want to grab a handle on a public city trash can???? Even before Covid, something I won't do, unless of course you provide $100,000 wash stations by each can... Please reconsider this design flaw.

The current cans are fine. Just try emptying them more often. And putting back the ones that were taken away a few years back (for what logical reason, I still can't fathom).
