

LEGISLATIVE DIGEST

[Administrative Code - Harassment of Tenants in Single-Family Units Through Rent Increases]

Draft Ordinance amending the Administrative Code to prohibit landlords of single-family homes and condominiums covered by existing eviction controls from circumventing eviction controls through rent increases; and to clarify that a rent increase intended to defraud, intimidate, or coerce the tenant into vacating such a rental unit may qualify as tenant harassment.

Existing Law

State law gives the owner of a separately alienable property (hereafter, “single-family home”) the right to raise rents on existing tenants. But a single-family home that is exempt from rent control can be subject to the rules in the Rent Ordinance concerning evictions and tenant harassment. Admin. Code § 37.2(r)(7). Thus, the Rent Ordinance already prohibits landlords of all types of rental units, including single-family homes, from evicting their tenants without just cause, and requires that all landlords who have performed owner move-ins and other types of no-fault evictions take certain actions to mitigate the impact of those evictions. Id. §§ 37.9(a), 37.9A, 37.9B, and 37.9C. The Rent Ordinance also provides that no landlord shall, in bad faith, influence a tenant to vacate any type of rental unit through fraud, intimidation, or coercion. Id. § 37.10B.

Amendments to Current Law

The proposed ordinance would amend the Rent Ordinance to state that endeavoring to recover possession of a single-family home by means of a rent increase that is imposed in bad faith with an intent to defraud, intimidate, or coerce the tenant into vacating the rental unit in circumvention of the above-described eviction controls may qualify as tenant harassment.