CMD Analyst Comments:	A recent interpretation of the Chapter 12B Equal Benefits Ordinance has concluded that fees associated with memberships, conferences, educational presentations, training sessions or publications that are unavailable from another source and are provided by a governmental, professional or trade organization or association do not meet the definition of "contract" in the Equal Benefits Ordinance. Compliance is encouraged, not required. A waiver is not necessary.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Government Audit and Oversight Committee, Board of Supervisors

FROM: Mark de la Rosa, Director of Audits, City Services Auditor

DATE: January 29, 2025

SUBJECT: City Services Auditor Summary of the Implementation Status of Recommendations, July 1 Through December 31, 2024

The City Services Auditor (CSA), Audits Division, of the Office of the Controller (Controller) follows up on all recommendations it issues to departments of the City and County of San Francisco (City) every six months after original issuance. CSA reports on the results of its follow-up activity to the Board of Supervisors' Government Audit and Oversight Committee. This process fulfills the requirement of the San Francisco Charter, Section F1.105, for auditees to report on their efforts to address the Controller's findings and, if relevant, report the basis for deciding not to implement a recommendation.

The regular follow-up begins when CSA sends a questionnaire to the responsible department requesting an update on the implementation status of each recommendation. CSA assigns a summary status to the report or memorandum for each responsible department according to the status of each recommendation. The statuses are described in the table below.

Summary of Follow-Up Statuses

Summary Status	Status of Recommendations	Further Regular Follow-Up?
Closed	All closed	No
Open	At least one open, including any that the department contests	Yes

Based on its review of the department's response, CSA assigns a status to each recommendation. A status of:

- Open indicates that the recommendation has not yet been fully implemented.
- Contested indicates that the department has chosen not to implement the recommendation.
- Closed indicates that the response described sufficient action to fully implement the recommendation or an acceptable alternative or a change occurred to make the recommendation no longer applicable or feasible.

Also, CSA periodically selects reports or memorandums for a more in-depth, field follow-up assessment, in which CSA tests to verify the implementation status of the recommendations.

Exhibit 1 shows the number of recommendations CSA followed up on and their resulting status during the period and summarizes the status of reports for each department, while Exhibit 2 lists the reports closed in the period because all the recommendations have been addressed.

Open Recommendations

Although most of CSA's recommendations are implemented within two years of their issuance, some remain outstanding for longer. The average age of the open recommendations is 13 months and ages range from 6 to 48 months. 11 of the open recommendations are 24 months or older:

- 10 recommendations directed to Public Health are 30 months old.
- 1 recommendation directed to the Police Department is 48 months old.

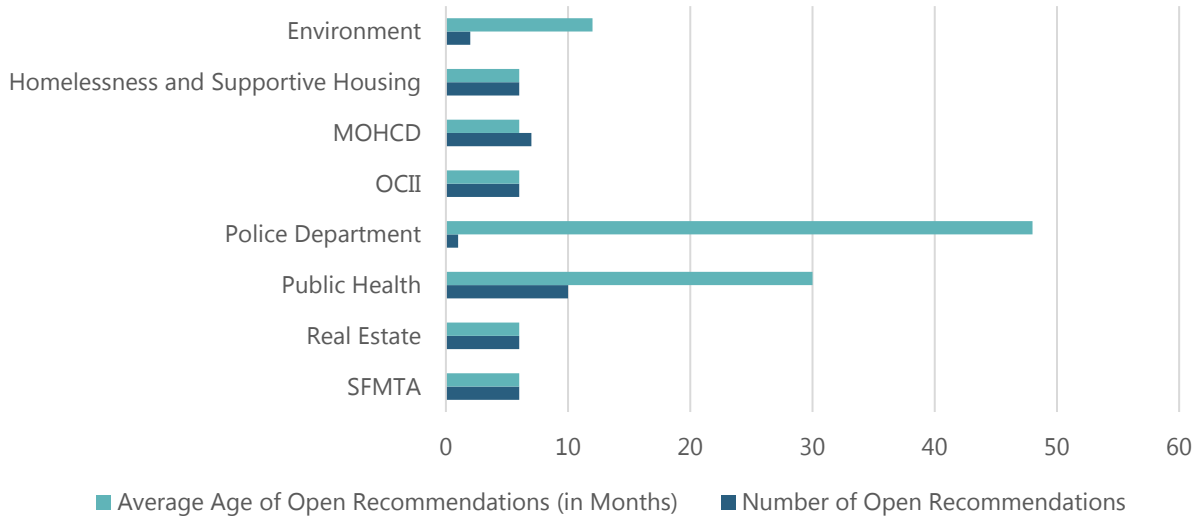
Exhibit 3 shows the number of open recommendations, by department, and their average age.

Exhibit 3: Number and average age of open recommendations followed up on, by department



In some cases, a department has implemented few or none of CSA's recommendations. This does not necessarily indicate that the department is not trying to resolve the underlying issues. In some instances, the department has not yet had the opportunity because the recommendations relate to events that happen only periodically, such as labor agreement negotiations, or because the recommendations were issued too recently for the department to have achieved full implementation. Exhibit 4 summarizes the reasons departments reported for not fully implementing the open recommendations addressed to them.

Exhibit 4: Summary of open reports, as of December 31, 2024

Dept.	Issue Date	Report Title	Open Recs.	Reason Reported for Not Yet Implementing Open Recommendations

The action plan identifies the lead city department for each issue and any technical assistance support needed and provided.

PLANNING DEPARTMENT REPORT

Date:	January 24, 2025
Report Name:	Interim Zoning Controls - Health Services and Social Services in Upper Market Street NCT and Castro Street NCD

Statement of Purpose

This report was prepared in response to a resolution (BF 240683), introduced by Supervisor Peskin on June 11, 2024, and enacted into law on July 26, 2024 (enactment number 405-24). The resolution imposed interim zoning controls for an 18-month period for parcels within the Upper Market Street Neighborhood Commercial Transit District (NCT) and the Castro Street Neighborhood Commercial District (NCD). The interim controls require a Conditional Use Authorization (CUA) and specified findings for a change of use from a Health Services Use or a Social Services Use. These interim controls will be in effect until January 26, 2026, at which point they may be extended for an additional six months, or until the adoption of permanent controls requiring CUAs for Health Services or Social Services Uses in these districts, whichever occurs first.

The resolution directs the Planning Department to submit a written report to the Clerk of the Board six months after the effective date, and every six months thereafter the resolution is in effect. The report should describe the measures taken to alleviate the conditions that led to the adoption of resolution 405-24. Upon receipt of the report, a hearing is required pursuant to Planning Code Section 306.7(i) for the Land Use and Transportation Committee to consider this report.

Background

According to the adopted resolution, the proposed interim controls were put into effect due to the challenges faced by organizations and individuals providing mental and behavioral health services in the Castro and Upper Market neighborhoods. These providers have been threatened with eviction as landlords attempt to dramatically increase rents in the aftermath of the pandemic. Currently, only a handful of queer-focused health facilities are left in the Castro, and those that provide care at low to no cost are even more rare. The adopting resolution also emphasizes that the LGBTQ community has a unique need for affordable, culturally competent, and accessible mental, medical, and behavioral health services. It highlights the disparities the LGBTQ community faces in accessing these services within close proximity to the Castro neighborhood and the Castro LGBTQ Cultural District.

Existing Controls Within the Castro and Upper Market Neighborhood
Depending on the services being provided, mental and behavioral health services fall under either Health Servies or Social Service or Philanthropic Facility. Health Service uses are principally permitted on the first and second floors and conditionally permitted on the third floor and above within the Upper Market NCT and Castro Street NCD. Additionally, Social Service or Philanthropic Facility uses are principally permitted on all floors in these same districts.

Planning Code Section 102 defines Health Service and Social Service as follows:

> Service, Health. A Retail Sales and Service Use that provides medical and allied health services to the individual by physicians, surgeons, dentists, podiatrists, psychologists, psychiatrists, acupuncturists, chiropractors, Sole Practitioner massage therapists as defined in Section 29.5 of the Health Code, or any other health-care professionals when licensed by a State-sanctioned Board overseeing the provision of medically oriented services. It includes, without limitation, a clinic, primarily providing outpatient care in medical, psychiatric, or other health services, and not part of a Hospital or medical center, as defined by this Section of the Code, and Sole Practitioner Massage Establishments as defined in Section 29.5 of the Health Code, but does not include other Massage Establishments, which are defined elsewhere in this Code.
> Social Service or Philanthropic Facility. An Institutional Community Use that provides programs and/or services of a charitable or public service nature, including but not limited to arts, education, financial or housing assistance, training, and advocacy. In addition to providing their services on site, such uses may also conduct their administrative activities on site as a Principal Use.

Affected Projects
The interim controls were put forward in response to the possible eviction of Queer LifeSpace (QLS) in May 2024. QLS was founded in 2011 and located at 2275 Market Street within the Upper Market NCT. It is a nonprofit counseling agency that provides affordable, evidence-based mental health and substance abuse services to the LGBTQIA+ community in the Bay Area. The Department understands that QLS is still operating at the site and has not been evicted. Additionally, the Department has not received any CUA applications triggered by these interim controls.

Environmental Review

This Report was determined not to be a project per State CEQA Guidelines, Sections 15378 and 15060(c)(2), because it does not result in a physical change to the environment.

Report Conclusion

There are at least two other provisions in the Planning Code that require CUA for replacing an existing use: one for replacing movie theaters and the other for grocery stores. However, the Department's experience has shown that this type of land use control is often ineffective in achieving its long-term goals. This is because the city cannot mandate that a business remain operational. These CUA requirements are designed to disincentivize landlords from evicting tenants or demolishing buildings with these uses, aiming to preserve such businesses. Nevertheless, these businesses frequently close because they are no longer economically viable. Once a business ceases operations, the CUA requirement often discourages new tenants from occupying the space, resulting in vacancies that can persist for years or indefinitely. A similar issue arose with the CUA requirement for the removal of gas stations, which was ultimately repealed under the Constraints Reduction Ordinance.

The interim controls under discussion were initially adopted in response to mental and behavioral health service organizations in the Castro and Upper Market neighborhoods facing the threat of eviction due to significant rent increases sought by landlords. As of this report's date, QLS, the one organization known to have been at risk of displacement, continues to operate at its site and has not been evicted. While it is unclear whether these interim controls directly prevented QLS's eviction, it is possible that the CUA requirement played a role in deterring such an outcome; moreover, the Department's understanding is that the outstanding issues between the tenant and landlord have not yet been resolved.

As a long-term solution, the Department does not recommend making these interim controls permanent. The most effective land use approach to encourage and support these uses in any neighborhood is to permit them outright, with minimal regulatory barriers. Other than the CUA requirement for Health Services on the third floor and above, there are no Planning Code restrictions preventing the establishment of Health Service or Social Service uses in these districts. However, implementing permanent controls that require CUA for the replacement of these uses could unintentionally discourage landlords from leasing new spaces to such businesses or organizations.

Health Service and Social Service uses are vital to the city and particularly important to the Castro and Upper Market neighborhoods. Nevertheless, the city should explore alternative, non-land use strategies to retain and attract these critical services in the Castro neighborhood. Such approaches could prove more effective and sustainable in supporting these uses over the long term.

San Francisco Police Department Releases Video to Raise Awareness About Blessing Scams

Video was produced in partnership with a blessing scam target and Self Help for the Elderly

The San Francisco Police Department has produced a new video to help raise awareness about blessing scams and to give community members – particularly members of the Chinese community – important information about how to avoid being targeted by criminals seeking to steal their money and property.

The video, which was released Thursday, was produced with input from the SFPD's Community Engagement Division, Self Help for the Elderly, The San Francisco District Attorney's Office, the Community Youth Center of San Francisco and other city and community groups.

Self Help for the Elderly provides culturally competent services to the senior Chinese population in the San Francisco Bay Area.

The video features three volunteer actresses: Siu Lee Shui C as the Blessing Scam target, and Rong Rui Juan and Mok Lei Yu acting as scammers. Ms. Siu Lee Chui C is well aware of these scams from previous collaborative education and prevention efforts. Earlier in January, she experienced an encounter with two scammers in the outer Sunset area and was able to flee from the scammers safely.

She later informed her friends about the encounter to remind others to stay vigilant through social media platforms and at her place of worship. She also discussed this experience with her family members who decided to contact the police department. As someone who frequents one of Self Help for the Elderly's senior centers, she also informed the center's staff and neighbors there at a later time.

Ms. Siu Lee Chui C decided to collaborate with SFPD when she learned of the department's mission to produce a video to help educate members of the public on ways to refuse to engage with scammers and strangers.

"I applaud Ms. Lee for her bravery to work with the San Francisco Police Department on reporting the incident and telling her story to our Chinese community through this video," said SFPD Chief Bill Scott. "This is a result of our Community Engagement Division officers, Special Victims Unit, Sheriff's Office and District Attorney's Office's efforts and commitment to outreaching to our community and organizations like Self Help for the Elderly. As we are investigating these crimes, we want to continue to remind community members to stay vigilant to prevent blessing scams by continuing to talk to one another often and working with SFPD to report these crimes."

"Self Help for the Elderly often reports back that seniors have a hard time rejecting strangers even when it they think it is necessary," said Anni Chung, CEO and President of Self Help for the Elderly. "That is why it is important to shift the video's focus on telling them how to say no. Our staff members along with a senior who came so close to be in contact with scammers were eager to participate in producing this video with the San Francisco Police Department to tell the important story."

About The Blessing Scam

Blessing scams often involve Cantonese-speaking suspects who approach a victim about visiting a doctor. An additional suspect often approaches the group and acts as a fortune teller, stating the victim and a loved one will be cursed or suffer some form of misfortune. To relieve the curse, the victim must present the fortune teller with valuables to be "blessed."

The suspects then convince the victim to bring valuables, consisting of currency and jewelry in a bag to another area. After the so-called "blessing" is performed, the suspects give the victim another bag containing worthless items. The victim is instructed not to look in the bag for a specified amount of time or the "blessing" would be invalidated.

It's often days or weeks later before the victim knows they've been victimized.

TITLE 14. Fish and Game Commission
Notice of Proposed Changes in Regulations

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the California Fish and Game Commission (Commission), pursuant to the authority vested by sections 265 and 355 of the California Fish and Game Code and to implement, interpret or make specific sections 265, 355 and 356 of said Code, proposes to amend Section 502, Title 14, California Code of Regulations (CCR), relating to waterfowl, migratory; American coot and common moorhen (common gallinule).

Informative Digest/Policy Statement Overview

Current regulations in Section 502, Title 14, CCR, provide definitions, hunting zone descriptions, and 2024-25 season opening and closing dates, and daily bag and possession limits for hunting of waterfowl. The proposed Frameworks for the 2025-26 season were approved by the Flyway councils in August and considered at the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's (Service) Regulations Committee meeting in November. The Frameworks allow for a liberal duck season which includes: a 107-day season; a 7 daily duck limit including 7 mallards but only 2 hen mallards, 3 pintail, 2 canvasback, 2 redheads, and 2 scaup (during an 86-day season); and closing no later than January 31. The duck daily bag limits and season length, as well as the season lengths for geese, are provided as ranges below, to allow the Commission flexibility in determining the final regulations.

A range of season length (zero bag limit represents a closed season) is also provided for black brant. The range is necessary, as the black brant Framework cannot be determined until the Pacific Flyway Fall Brant Survey is conducted in October 2024. The black brant regulatory package is determined by the most current Fall Brant Survey, rather than the prior year survey. The proposed season length and bag limit will be updated per the Black Brant Harvest Strategy pending results of the fall 2024 survey by the February 2025 Commission meeting. See the Summary of Proposed Waterfowl Hunting Regulations for 2025-26 table in the Initial Statement of Reasons for the range of season and bag limits.

Lastly, Federal regulations provide that California's hunting regulations should conform to those of Arizona in the Colorado River Zone and those of Oregon in the North Coast Special Management Area.

The California Department of Fish and Wildlife-recommended changes to Section 502 are:

1) Provide a range of duck season lengths between 99 and 103 days in subsection 502(d)(2)(B) for the Southern San Joaquin Valley Zone, subsection 502(d)(3)(B) for the Southern California Zone, and subsection 502(d)(5)(B) for the Balance of State Zone.
2) Provide a range of season lengths for the goose regular season between 99 and 103 days in subsection 502(d)(2)(B) for the Southern San Joaquin Valley Zone, and subsection 502(d)(3)(B) for the Southern California Zone; and between 99 and 100 days in subsection 502(d)(5)(B) for the Balance of State Zone.
3) Increase the pintail daily bag limit in all zones, subsections 502(d)(1 through 5)(C) to 3 per day.

4) Consider swapping the timing of Youth Hunt Days in subsections 502(e)(1)(B)2., 3., and 5. with the Veterans and Active Military Personnel Waterfowl Hunting Days (VAMP Days) in subsections 502(f)(1)(B)2. through 4. for the Southern San Joaquin Valley, Southern California and Balance of State zones.

5) Allow up to four days of falconry-only season in subsections 502(g)(1)(B)2. through 4. for the Southern San Joaquin Valley, Southern California and Balance of State zones.

Minor editorial changes are also proposed to clarify and simplify the regulations and to comply with existing federal Frameworks.

Benefits of the regulations

The benefits of the proposed regulations are consistency with federal law and the sustainable management of the state's waterfowl resources. Continued benefits to jobs and/or businesses that provide services to waterfowl hunters will be realized with the continued adoption of waterfowl hunting seasons in 2025-26.

Evaluation of incompatibility with existing regulations

The Commission has reviewed its regulations in Title 14, CCR, and conducted a search of other regulations on this topic and has concluded that the proposed amendments to Section 502 are neither inconsistent nor incompatible with existing state regulations. No other state agency has the authority to promulgate waterfowl hunting regulations.

Availability of Modified Text

If the regulations adopted by the Commission differ from but are sufficiently related to the action proposed, they will be available to the public for at least 15 days prior to the date of adoption. Circumstances beyond the control of the Commission (e.g., timing of Federal regulation adoption, timing of resource data collection, timelines do not allow, etc.) or changes made to be responsive to public recommendation and comments during the regulatory process may preclude full compliance with the 15-day comment period, and the Commission will exercise its powers under Section 355 of the Fish and Game Code. Regulations adopted pursuant to this section are not subject to the time periods for adoption, amendment or repeal of regulations prescribed in sections 11343.4, 11346.1, 11346.4, and 11346.8 of the Government Code. Any person interested may obtain a copy of said regulations prior to the date of adoption by contacting the agency representative named herein.

If the regulatory proposal is adopted, the final statement of reasons may be obtained from the address above when it has been received from the agency program staff.

Impact of Regulatory Action/Results of the Economic Impact Assessment

The potential for significant statewide adverse economic impacts that might result from the proposed regulatory action has been assessed, and the following initial determinations relative to the required statutory categories have been made:

(a) Significant Statewide Adverse Economic Impact Directly Affecting Business, Including the Ability of California Businesses to Compete with Businesses in Other States:

The proposed action will not have a significant statewide adverse economic impact directly affecting business, including the ability of California businesses to compete with businesses in other states. The proposed 2025-26 waterfowl regulations are expected to maintain a similar level of recreational waterfowl hunting opportunity for the public and thererfore the same levels of business competiveness.

(b) Impact on the Creation or Elimination of Jobs Within the State, the Creation of New Businesses or the Elimination of Existing Businesses, or the Expansion of Businesses in California; Benefits of the Regulation to the Health and Welfare of California Residents, Worker Safety, and the State's Environment:

The Commission does not anticipate any impacts on the creation or elimination of jobs, the creation of new business, the elimination of existing businesses, or the expansion of businesses in California. The proposed waterfowl regulations will set the 2025-26 waterfowl hunting season dates and bag limits within the federal Frameworks. The total hunting season length is proposed to remain the same as the current (2024-25) 107 days, with only modifications to the season types (duck, goose or falconry-only); these modifications will have little to no impacts to jobs and/or businesses that provide services to waterfowl hunters. The Commission anticipates that the proposed 2025-26 waterfowl hunting regulations will provide benefits for the health and welfare of California residents by providing opportunity for outdoor activity. The Commission expects no benefits to worker safety as that is not a subject of the proposed regulation. The Commission does expect benefits to the environment in that setting these regulations facilitates maintenance of sufficient waterfowl populations and their habitats while providing for the public's beneficial use and enjoyment.

(c) Cost Impacts on a Representative Private Person or Business:

The Commission is not aware of any cost impacts that a representative private person or business would necessarily incur in reasonable compliance with the proposed action.

(d) Costs or Savings to State Agencies or Costs/Savings in Federal Funding to the State: None.

(e) Nondiscretionary Costs/Savings to Local Agencies: None.

(f) Programs Mandated on Local Agencies or School Districts: None.

(g) Costs Imposed on any Local Agency or School District that is Required to be Reimbursed Under Part 7 (commencing with Section 17500) of Division 4, Government Code: None.

(h) Effect on Housing Costs: None.

Effect on Small Business

It has been determined that the adoption of these regulations may affect small business. The Commission has drafted the regulations in Plain English pursuant to Government Code Sections 11342.580 and 11346.2(a)(1).

Consideration of Alternatives

The Commission must determine that no reasonable alternative considered by the Commission, or that has otherwise been identified and brought to the attention of the Commission, would be more effective in carrying out the purpose for which the action is proposed, would be as effective and less burdensome to affected private persons than the proposed action, or would be more cost effective to affected private persons and equally effective in implementing the statutory policy or other provision of law.

TITLE 14. Fish and Game Commission
Notice of Proposed Changes in Regulations

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Fish and Game Commission (Commission), pursuant to the authority vested by Sections 200, 203, 203.1, 219, 265, 325, 331, 332, 460, 1050, 3051, 3452, 3453, 3953, 4334, and 4902 of the Fish and Game Code and to implement, interpret or make specific Sections 33, 200, 203, 203.1, 255, 265, 331, 332, 458, 459, 460, 713, 1050, 1570, 1571, 1572, 1573, 1574, 3051, 3452, 3453, 3950, 3953, 4334, 4336, and 4902 of said Code, proposes to amend Sections 360, 362, 363, 364, 364.1, and 708.5 Title 14, California Code of Regulations, relating to big game hunting for 2025-2026 seasons and chronic wasting disease testing.

Informative Digest/Policy Statement Overview

Unless otherwise specified, all section references in this document are to Title 14 of the California Code of Regulations (CCR).

Background

Big Game Hunting Tags

The Fish and Game Commission (Commission) periodically considers the recommendations of the Department of Fish and Wildlife (Department) regarding amending big game hunting regulations. Considerations include recommendations for adjusting tag quotas, setting hunt periods, modifying area boundaries, authorizing methods of take, among others, to help achieve management goals and objectives for big game species management. To maintain appropriate harvest levels and hunting quality, tags and seasons must be adjusted periodically in response to dynamic environmental, biological, and social conditions.

Current regulations in section 360, 362, 363, and 364 provide definitions, hunting zone descriptions, season opening and closing dates, tag quotas (total number of hunting tags to be made available), and bag and possession limits for deer, bighorn sheep, pronghorn antelope, and elk hunting, respectively. Harvest of a deer, bighorn sheep, pronghorn antelope, or elk is authorized for an individual with a tag for a respective hunt zone or area and season or specific property.

Individuals are awarded general hunting tags for deer, bighorn sheep, pronghorn antelope, and elk through the Department's Big Game Drawing. Deer and elk tags are also distributed through: (1) Cooperative Hunting Area "Landowner" tags, and (2) Private Lands Wildlife Habitat Enhancement and Management Area (PLM) tags. Lastly, the Shared Habitat Alliance for Recreational Enhancement (SHARE) Program, also distributes elk tags through a lottery following the Department's Big Game Drawing.

For all big game species, a limited number of fundraising tags are also available for purchase, usually by auction, via non-governmental organizations that assist the Department with fundraising.

Chronic Wasting Disease

Chronic wasting disease (CWD) is a fatal neurological disease caused by prions, posing significant risks to cervid populations in North America. It leads to herd declines, altered age structures, and threatens hunting opportunities due to concerns over disease transmission. With CWD now present in California, focused efforts are needed to manage and mitigate its spread.

The primary purpose of a late-season deer buck hunt is to increase sampling of individuals at highest risk of CWD infection—mature bucks. These animals are more likely to contract and spread CWD due to their behavior, particularly during the rut when they engage in increased social interactions. By targeting these high-risk individuals, the hunt enhances the likelihood of detecting positive cases, which is crucial for effective surveillance and management. The state's goal is to detect CWD at a 1% prevalence with 95% confidence across five sampling units, and this hunt would significantly contribute to that effort.

Additionally, removing infected bucks reduces environmental prion contamination, slowing transmission and helping maintain healthier deer populations. This targeted hunt complements ongoing surveillance, providing a proactive strategy to detect and manage CWD while supporting conservation and hunting opportunities in California.

Periodic adjustments of tag quotas in response to dynamic environmental and biological conditions are necessary to maintain sustainable populations of elk, provide public hunt opportunities, alleviate conflict, and keep with mandates and management recommendations. Unfortunately, administrative procedures and the Fish and Game Code require the Fish and Game Commission to receive proposed changes to existing regulations prior to the completion of surveys and analyses, thus necessitating a range of numbers. Analyses for all big game species are scheduled for completion by March 2025.

Proposed Changes

Section 360 Deer

No changes to subsections (a) through (b).

Add subsection (c)(16) to establish a late season buck hunt in the portion of hunt zone D-7 that is in Madera County and to set a tag quota range of 0-50 tags.

Establishing a late season buck hunt in deer hunt zone D-7, where CWD was recently detected, will serve as a strategic tool to increase sampling of mature bucks, the demographic most likely to be CWD-positive. These animals engage in high levels of social interaction during the breeding season, increasing transmission risk. By targeting this segment of the population, we can better detect CWD cases, aiding early detection and response efforts. This action aligns with objectives identified in California's Chronic Wasting Disease Management Plan (Munk et al. 2024) and public requests for expanded hunting opportunity submitted in Petition 2021-017 and at Commission meetings.

Renumber subsections (16) through (44).

Section 362 Nelson Bighorn Sheep

Amend section 362(a) to redefine the north and western boundaries for Zone 6 (Sheep Hole Mountains)(Figure 1). The proposed adjusted zone boundaries more accurately reflect the home range of bighorn sheep in this unit, based on recent GPS collar data. It is anticipated that the new boundary will increase hunter opportunity.

Amend subsection 362(b)(1) to specify that the Open Zone Fundraising Tag can only be used to hunt in zones that are allocated at least one general public tag. This will ensure that if a Zone is not issued general tags due to biological or environmental concerns, the Open Zone Fundraising Tag may not be used to harvest in a zone with zero tags allocated.

Amend subsections 362(b)(1), 362(b)(2), and 362(b)(3) to correct citations of Fish and Game Code from “subsection” to “subdivision.”

Amend subsection 362(b)(1)(A) to include Zone 10 in the Open Fundraising Tag. Zone 10 was created in 2019 but was never incorporated into the Open Zone Fundraising Tag language.

Amend subsection 362(b)(2)(A) and add subsections 362(b)(2)(B) and (C) to rename the Marble/Clipper/South Bristol Mountains Fundraising Tag to Single Zone Fundraising Tag 1 and following season information;

Amend subsection 362(b)(3)(A) and add subsections 362(b)(3)(B) and (C) to rename the Cady Mountains Fundraising Tag to Single Zone Fundraising Tag 2 and following season information;

During the regulatory change process for the 2022-2023 license year, the Department proposed a quota of zero for the Marble/Clipper/South Bristol Mountains Fundraising Tag. The Wild Sheep Foundation expressed concern at this loss of Department revenue and hunter opportunity. Increasing flexibility in the Fundraising Tags by renaming them to decouple them from specific hunt zones is intended to mitigate that issue in the future. Decoupling from a specific zone also allows managers the ability to assign the fundraising hunting opportunity to hunt zones that hold hunter interest and fundraising value.

Amend subsection 362(b)(4)(A) to remove Zone 10 and add subsection 362(b)(4)(D) to add Zone 10.

Amend subsection 362(b)(4)(C) Zone 7.

Amend subsection 362(b)(4)(C) 1.to create a Period 1 hunt season with the existing summer season dates and add subsection 362(b)(4)(C)2. to be the new Period 2 hunt season with new winter season dates. Zone 7 is an extremely difficult area to hunt and has the lowest hunter success rates for any of the Nelson bighorn sheep hunt zones; adding a winter season to this zone is intended to increase hunter opportunity and potentially hunter success. Period 1 and Period 2 are two separate hunts with two separate tag allocations. As such, hunters will have to choose a season (i.e. Period 1 or Period 2) when they apply during the Big Game Drawing.

Add subsection 362(b)(4)(D) Zone 10.

Add subsection 362(b)(4)(D) 1. to create a Period 1 hunt season with the existing season dates and add subsection 362(b)(4)(D)2. to be the new Period 2 hunt season as a late winter season. Zone 10 hosts one of the largest populations of Nelson bighorn sheep in California and by splitting the season in half we can maximize hunter opportunity and experience while reducing crowding. Period 1 and Period 2 are two separate hunts with two separate tag allocations. As such, hunters will have to choose a season (i.e. Period 1 or Period 2) when they apply during the Big Game Drawing.

Amend Subsection 362(d) to modify hunt tag quotas to ranges for each hunt zone.

Section 364 Elk Hunts, Seasons, and Number of Tags

Add 364(f)(7), 364(f)(8), and 364(f)(9) to add archery only elk hunts in the Central Coast (364(d)(3)(A)), La Panza (364(d)(2)(A)), and Siskiyou (364(a)(1)(A)) hunt areas to manage increasing populations and provide hunter opportunity. The proposal is also responsive to hunter requests for new hunting opportunities.

Amend 364(s)(2)(A) to increase bull tags in the General Methods Tehachapi Hunt (CDFW Region 4). The current tag allocation is 5 bull tags and 10 antlerless tags. The Tehachapi Hunt was established in the 2023 hunting season to mitigate increased abundance of non-native Rocky Mountain elk. These non-native elk were introduced as part of a fenced game farming operation in 1967; elk subsequently escaped the enclosure and have since increased in abundance and expanded their range beyond Tejon Ranch into surrounding communities in Kern County and the Southern Sierras.

Human-elk conflict has exceeded tolerable levels in some areas. Current abundance levels are above objectives outlined in the 2018 Elk Conservation and Management Plan. Observed bull:cow ratios (47mm:100ff) are also above the Elk Conservation and Management Plan objective (25mm:100ff). Continued range expansion may result in non-native Rocky Mountain elk overlapping with endemic tule elk in the Owens Valley, resulting in hybridization between the two subspecies. This presents a threat to genetic integrity of the endemic tule elk population, and it is desirable to prevent hybridization between these subspecies from occurring as described in the 2018 Elk Conservation and Management Plan.

To help address these concerns for the Tejon Elk Management Unit, the Department recommends increasing bull tags and reduce the likelihood of dispersing bulls in the Tehachapi Rocky Mountain General Methods Hunt to help achieve goals and objectives outlined in the 2018 Elk Conservation and Management Plan.

Amend 364(u)(4)(A) to increase the bull tags in the General Methods Gabilan Hunt. The current tag allocation is 4, the proposal would increase the allocation to up to 10 bull tags to manage the increasing population and reduce elk conflict.

Amend 364(u)(18) to add new periods and increase the Lake Pillsbury bull and antlerless tag quotas. the first period (u)(18)(A) with 4 antlerless tags, and the second period (u)(18)(B) with 2 bull tags. The proposal would adjust the 2 bull tags to 0 to 4 antlerless tags, and adjust the season accordingly to fit in the hunts without overlap, and add 3 hunt periods (u)(18)(C), (u)(18)(D), and (u)(18)(E) for Lake Pillsbury. Scott Dam, which creates Lake Pillsbury, will be decommissioned and reduce carrying capacity in the Elk Management Unit (EMU). The proposal is necessary to reduce elk population size as dam removal approaches. The proposal is also responsive to hunter requests for new hunting opportunities.

Add 364(w)(7), 364(w)(8), 364(w)(9) to identify novel archery only elk hunts, tag allocations, and seasons. The proposal is necessary to identify tag allocations and seasons for the proposed archery hunts.

Section 364.1 Department Administered Shared Habitat Alliance for Recreational Enhancement (SHARE) Elk Hunts

Amend 364.1(a) to extend the SHARE elk hunt season in two conflict zones (364(a)(2)(A) Northwestern Hunt Zone and 364(c)(1)(A) Mendocino Hunt Zone), as described in Section 555.1. The existing season opens August 15 and continues through January 31. The proposal would extend this season from July 1 to June 30. The proposal is necessary to address intolerable levels of elk conflict in conflict zones. The proposal is also responsive to hunter requests for new hunting opportunities.

Amend 364.1(l)(17) to increase the antlerless tags SHARE tag allotment for the Bear Valley Hunt. There is currently 1 SHARE antlerless tag for Bear Valley. The proposal would add up to 5 antlerless tags (total of 6 tags). The proposal is necessary to add veritable hunt opportunities to the Bear Vally EMU, where the elk population heavily occupies private land versus public land. The proposal is also responsive to hunter requests for new hunting opportunities.

FGC Section 325 is proposed to be added to the authority section cited for Section 364 and as a reference for Section 364.1 to support the need to reduce elk numbers in certain areas.

Section 708.5 Deer Tagging, Reporting, and Testing Requirements

Add subsection (e) to define CWD Management Zones (CMZs). Based on the history and current understanding of CWD, it is likely, if not certain, that CWD will be detected in areas outside of the four hunt zones identified in the emergency regulations (D7, X9a, X9b, and X9c). In this proposal, what defines a CMZ is reframed to allow for new CMZs if CWD is detected outside of the currently affected zones to prevent delays in management actions. Adding a definition of a CMZ is necessary to adaptively manage the CWD outbreak in California over time, as target zones for mandatory testing will be variable based on current detections. Adaptive management is a cornerstone of the definition of "credible science" as defined in FGC Section 33.

The defining criteria for inclusion as a CMZ are:

(1) any deer hunt zones, excluding Zone A, in which a CWD-positive animal has been taken;
(2) any deer hunt zones, excluding Zone A, within five miles of the location from where a CWD-positive animal was taken; and
(3) any county within Zone A where a CWD-positive animal was taken, or is within five miles of where a CWD-positive animal was taken.

The specified distance of five miles is necessary to create a biologically reasonable boundary for detections that fall on or near county or hunt zone boundaries. Zone A is too large and must be broken up into counties to create manageable CMZ boundaries.

Add subsection (f) to establish a mandatory sampling requirement. Mandatory testing is needed to enhance CWD surveillance within CMZs to determine prevalence and the geographic extent in affected areas, to clearly define the initial outbreak, and is one of the main objectives when responding to initial CWD detections as outlined in California's Chronic Wasting Disease Management Plan (Munk et al. 2024). Knowing the prevalence and geographic distribution of a CWD outbreak informs decision makers and directs management actions. Tests are done on postmortem samples and the majority of those come from hunter-harvested deer and elk. Hunter-harvested deer from the affected hunt zones is by far the most scalable and accessible source of samples for CWD testing. The Department will also increase its response to and sampling of other mortality sources or take. Enhanced surveillance in the affected populations is the necessary first step to providing better information to hunters, partners, and decision makers following these first, and any future detections, of CWD in California. Knowing the prevalence and geographic extent will allow the Department to make informed decisions on CWD and deer management where CWD is detected.

Add subsection (g) to describe the minimum information that hunters must provide with their sample. This is necessary so that the Department obtains essential information for monitoring the spread of CWD, such as the geographic location of the take, and to ensure the Department can contact hunters if CWD is detected in their harvest.

Add subsection (h) to indicate how and where the Department will provide current information on CWD detections in California. This is necessary to ensure hunters have a place to find appropriate and up-to-date information on CWD and the status of their hunt zone to comply with mandatory testing.

Benefit of the Regulations

The goals and benefits of the regulations are to help maintain sustainable populations of deer, bighorn sheep, and elk, provide hunting opportunities where feasible, alleviate human-wildlife conflict, and achieve management recommendations in existing unit plans.

Consistency and Compatibility with Existing Regulations

The proposed regulations are neither inconsistent nor incompatible with existing state regulations. Section 20, Article IV, of the state Constitution specifies that the Legislature may delegate to the Commission such powers relating to the protection and propagation of fish and game as the Legislature sees fit. The Legislature has delegated to the Commission the power to adopt regulations governing deer hunting, bighorn sheep hunting, pronghorn antelope hunting, elk hunting, SHARE elk hunting, and deer tagging, reporting, and testing requirements (California Fish and Game Code Section 200). No other state agency has the authority to adopt regulations governing deer hunting, bighorn sheep hunting, pronghorn antelope hunting, elk hunting, SHARE elk hunting, and deer tagging, reporting, and testing requirements. The Commission has reviewed its own regulations and finds that the proposed regulations are neither inconsistent nor incompatible with existing state regulations. The Commission has searched the CCR for any regulations regarding the adoption of deer hunting, bighorn sheep hunting, pronghorn antelope hunting, elk hunting, SHARE elk hunting, and deer tagging, reporting, and testing regulations; therefore, the Commission has concluded that the proposed regulations are neither inconsistent nor incompatible with existing state regulations.

Regulations adopted pursuant to this section are not subject to the time periods for adoption, amendment or repeal of regulations prescribed in sections 11343.4, 11346.4, 11346.8 and 11347.1 of the Government Code. Any person interested may obtain a copy of said regulations prior to the date of adoption by contacting the agency representative named herein.

If the regulatory proposal is adopted, the final statement of reasons may be obtained from the address above when it has been received from the agency program staff.

Impact of Regulatory Action/Results of the Economic Impact Assessment

The potential for significant statewide adverse economic impacts that might result from the proposed regulatory action has been assessed, and the following initial determinations relative to the required statutory categories have been made:

(a) Significant Statewide Adverse Economic Impact Directly Affecting Business, Including the Ability of California Businesses to Compete with Businesses in Other States:

360 and 708.5: The proposed action will not have a significant statewide adverse economic impact directly affecting business, including the ability of California businesses to compete with businesses in other states. This proposal is economically neutral to businesses.

362: The proposed action will not have a significant statewide adverse economic impact directly affecting business, including the ability of California businesses to compete with businesses in other states. The proposed action adjusts tag quotas for existing hunts. Given the number of tags available and the area over which they are distributed, these proposals are economically neutral to business.

363: The proposed action will not have a significant statewide adverse economic impact directly affecting business, including the ability of California businesses to compete with businesses in other states. The proposed action adjusts tag quotas for existing hunts. Given the number of tags available and the area over which they are distributed, these proposals are economically neutral to business.

364 and 364.1: The proposed action will not have a significant statewide adverse economic impact directly affecting business, including the ability of California businesses to compete with businesses in other states. The proposed action adjusts tag quotas for existing hunts and expands certain hunt opportunities. Given the number of tags available and the area over which they are distributed, these proposals are economically neutral to business.

(b) Impact on the Creation or Elimination of Jobs Within the State, the Creation of New Businesses or the Elimination of Existing Businesses, or the Expansion of Businesses in California; Benefits of the Regulation to the Health and Welfare of California Residents, Worker Safety, and the State's Environment:

360 and 708.5: The Commission anticipates no impact on the creation or elimination of jobs within the state, no impact on the creation of new business, the elimination of existing businesses, or the expansion of businesses in California as minor variations in hunting regulations are, by themselves, unlikely to provide a substantial economic stimulus to the state. The Commission does not anticipate direct benefits to the general health and welfare of California residents or to worker safety but anticipates benefits to the environment through the preservation of the deer population.

362: The Commission does not anticipate impacts on the creation or elimination of jobs or businesses within the State; no significant impacts to the creation of new business, the elimination of existing businesses, or the expansion of businesses in California are anticipated because the expected economic impacts of the proposed regulations are unlikely to be substantial enough to significantly stimulate demand for goods or services related to bighorn sheep hunting. As previously mentioned, periodic or annual adjustments of tag quotas in response to dynamic environmental, and biological conditions are necessary to maintain sustainable populations of bighorn sheep and hunt opportunities, as well as keeping with mandates and management recommendations. If greater numbers of hunters visit the areas in the state with increased annual opportunities, businesses that provide goods and services to Nelson bighorn sheep hunters could benefit from small increases in sales for that license year. The Commission does not anticipate direct benefits to the general health and welfare of California residents or to worker safety but anticipates benefits to the environment.

363: The Commission does not anticipate impacts on the creation or elimination of jobs or businesses within the State; no significant impacts to the creation of new business, the elimination of existing businesses, or the expansion of businesses in California are anticipated because the expected economic impacts of the proposed regulations are unlikely to be substantial enough to significantly stimulate demand for goods or services related to pronghorn antelope hunting. As previously mentioned, periodic or annual adjustments of tag quotas in response to dynamic environmental, and biological conditions are necessary to maintain sustainable populations of pronghorn antelope and hunt opportunities, as well as keeping with management recommendations. If greater numbers of hunters visit the areas in the state with increased annual opportunities, businesses that provide goods and services to hunters could benefit from small increases in sales for that license year. The Commission does not anticipate direct benefits to the general health and welfare of California residents or to worker safety but anticipates benefits to the environment.

364 and 364.1: The Commission does not anticipate impacts on the creation or elimination of jobs or businesses within the State; no significant impacts to the creation of new business, the elimination of existing businesses, or the expansion of businesses in California are anticipated because the expected economic impacts of the proposed regulations are unlikely to be substantial enough to significantly stimulate demand for goods or services related to elk hunting. As previously mentioned, periodic or annual adjustments of tag quotas in response to dynamic environmental, biological, or social conditions are necessary to maintain hunt opportunities, as well as keeping with management recommendations. If greater numbers of hunters visit the areas in the state with increased annual opportunities, businesses that provide goods and services to elk hunters could benefit from small increases in sales for that license year. The Commission does not anticipate direct benefits to the general health and welfare of California residents or to worker safety but anticipates benefits to the environment.

(c) Cost Impacts on a Representative Private Person or Business:

360 and 708.5: The Commission is not aware of any cost impacts that a representative private person or business would necessarily incur in reasonable compliance with the proposed action. However, in complying with the reporting requirements for CWD in the CMZs hunters may incur a cost related to the transportation of a deer carcass, head, or lymph nodes to a testing facility. While the Department has limited information and data regarding how far hunters drive to reach a sampling station, meat processor, or taxidermist, the estimated range that a hunter is likely to drive to and from the facility is expected to be between 5 and100 miles with an average expected driving distance of 52.5 miles. Applying the average California gas price of $4.678 per gallon to the average expected driving distance of 52.5 miles, with the expectation that most hunters drive a truck or SUV with an average gas mileage of 18 miles per gallon in order to haul their gear and carcass(es), gives an estimated individual cost of $13.64 in transportation costs for delivering a sample to a testing facility, meat processor, or taxidermist.

362: The total net number of tags is anticipated to increase from the previous year, so no adverse economic impacts to individuals or to businesses that support bighorn sheep hunts are anticipated. The Commission does not anticipate significant impacts on the representative private persons or businesses.

363: The Commission does not anticipate significant impacts on the representative private persons or businesses.

364: The Commission does not anticipate significant impacts on the representative private persons or businesses

(d) Costs or Savings to State Agencies or Costs/Savings in Federal Funding to the State:

360 and 708.5: The Commission anticipates that the proposed regulatory action will require additional expenditures of approximately $475,900 to maintain the proposed mandatory testing of deer carcasses for CWD. These costs are expected to be absorbed within the Department's existing budget and performed by staff currently operating in the capacities described in Table 1 of the STD 399 Addendum. However, the Department is projected to experience higher deer tag sales that may result in revenue increases (see STD. 399 and Addendum). No other state agencies are anticipated to be affected by the proposed emergency regulatory action.

362: No new costs/savings or change to federal funding are anticipated for state agencies. However, the Department is projected to experience higher bighorn sheep tag sales that may result in revenue increases (see STD399 and Addendum).

363: No new costs/savings or changes to federal funding are anticipated for state agencies. However, the Department may experience a change in tag sales that may prompt change to Department revenue (see STD399 and Addendum).

364: No new costs/savings or changes to federal funding are anticipated for state agencies. However, the Department is projected to experience higher elk tag sales that may result in revenue increases (see STD399 and Addendum).

(e) Nondiscretionary Costs/Savings to Local Agencies:

All: None.

(f) Programs Mandated on Local Agencies or School Districts:

All: None.

(g) Costs Imposed on any Local Agency or School District that is Required to be Reimbursed Under Part 7 (commencing with Section 17500) of Division 4, Government Code:

All: None.

(h) Effect on Housing Costs:

All: None.

Effect on Small Business

It has been determined that the adoption of these regulations may affect small business. The Commission has drafted the regulations in Plain English pursuant to Government Code Sections 11342.580 and 11346.2(a)(1).

Consideration of Alternatives

The Commission must determine that no reasonable alternative considered by the Commission, or that has otherwise been identified and brought to the attention of the Commission, would be more effective in carrying out the purpose for which the action is proposed, would be as effective and less burdensome to affected private persons than the proposed action, or would be more cost effective to affected private persons and equally effective in implementing the statutory policy or other provision of law.

California Fish and Game Commission

Melissa Miller-Henson
Executive Director

Dated: January 7, 2025

TITLE 14. Fish and Game Commission
Notice of Proposed Changes in Regulations

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Fish and Game Commission (Commission), pursuant to the authority vested by Sections 200, 205, 219, 265 and 275 of the Fish and Game Code and to implement, interpret or make specific Sections 110, 200, 205, 219, 255, 265, 270 and 275 of said Code, proposes to amend Section 28.30, Title 14, California Code of Regulations, relating to recreational take of barred sand bass.

Informative Digest/Policy Statement Overview

Unless otherwise specified, all section references in this document are to Title 14 of the California Code of Regulations (CCR).

The barred sand bass fishery is a historic recreational fishery in southern California that is open year-round and managed collectively with kelp bass and spotted sand bass. Current regulations include a five-fish bag limit (in any combination of the three species) and a minimum size limit of 14 inches (35.6 centimeters); these were established in 2013 due to concerns about the status of kelp bass and barred sand bass stocks. While no formal stock assessment exists for barred sand bass, abundance estimates, based on fishery independent data, suggest a severely depressed population in southern California. The presumed decline is likely due to a combination of environmental conditions, poor recruitment, and fishing pressure on easily targeted spawning aggregations.

In consultation with fishing industry representatives, fishery researchers, and stakeholders, and with guidance from the Commission's Marine Resources Committee (MRC), the Department proposes modifications to Title 14, Section 28.30. Proposed language in 28.30, intended to limit take and possession of barred sand bass, includes a range of options for a sub-bag and possession limit for barred sand bass within the overall five-fish combined limit for kelp bass, barred sand bass and spotted sand bass, to be decided through the Commission public noticing process. The options are a range of bag and possession limits of 0-5 barred sand bass, varying seasonally, with a sunset provision ending June 1, 2028. This sunset provision allows for conservation of barred sand bass while the Department works with stakeholders on further reviewing data and developing models to evaluate potential future regulations that will help increase and sustain the barred sand bass population and support public fishing opportunities. The proposed regulation amendment is intended to reduce the overall number of barred sand bass taken by the fishery, specifically during the spawning months when barred sand bass are most vulnerable to fishing.

The proposed changes are as follows:

Subsection 28.30(b) is proposed to be amended to specify bag limit changes to one species, barred sand bass, within the salt water basses complex. This amendment is necessary to further protect barred sand bass spawning aggregations.

Add subsection (c)(1) which would create a limit within the spawning season on barred sand bass (June 1 through August 31) and (c)(2) which would create a limit during all other months. The square brackets indicate a range within which a final number will determined by the Commission. Add subsection (d) which would provide for a sunset provision for subsection (c), repealing it as of June 1, 2028.

The subsections would read as follows:

(c) Barred Sand Bass Limit: Notwithstanding subsection (b);

(1) From June 1-August 31 a maximum of [0-5] barred sand bass may be taken or possessed.

(2) From September 1-May 31 a maximum of [1-5] barred sand bass may be taken or possessed.

(d) Sunset Provision: Subsection (c) shall remain in effect until June 1, 2028, and as of that date is repealed.

Benefit of the Regulations:

The Commission anticipates benefits to the State's environment by sustainably managing California's ocean resources. The barred sand bass population would benefit from reduced fishing effort during their spawning season when they are most susceptible to fishing, which ultimately supports a more sustainable fishery in the long term. The adoption of scientifically based limits provides for the maintenance of sufficient populations of barred sand bass to ensure their continued existence for the environment and for the businesses that rely on recreational barred sand bass fishing.

Consistency and Compatibility with Existing Regulations:

Article IV, Section 20 of the State Constitution specifies that the Legislature may delegate to the Commission such powers related to the protection and propagation of fish and game as the Legislature sees fit. The Legislature has delegated authority to the Commission to promulgate recreational fishing regulations (Fish and Game Code sections 200 and 205). Commission staff has searched the California Code of Regulations and has found no other state regulations that address the recreational take of barred sand bass. The Commission has reviewed its own regulations and finds that the proposed regulations are consistent with other recreational fishing regulations in Title 14, CCR, and therefore finds that the proposed regulations are neither inconsistent nor incompatible with existing state regulation.

Availability of Modified Text

If the regulations adopted by the Commission differ from but are sufficiently related to the action proposed, they will be available to the public for at least 15 days prior to the date of adoption. Circumstances beyond the control of the Commission (e.g., timing of Federal regulation adoption, timing of resource data collection, timelines do not allow, etc.) or changes made to be responsive to public recommendation and comments during the regulatory process may preclude full compliance with the 15-day comment period, and the Commission will exercise its powers under Section 265 of the Fish and Game Code. Regulations adopted pursuant to this section are not subject to the time periods for adoption, amendment or repeal of regulations prescribed in sections 11343.4, 11346.4, 11346.8 and 11347.1 of the Government Code. Any person interested may obtain a copy of said regulations prior to the date of adoption by contacting the agency representative named herein.

If the regulatory proposal is adopted, the final statement of reasons may be obtained from the address above when it has been received from the agency program staff.

Impact of Regulatory Action/Results of the Economic Impact Assessment

The potential for significant statewide adverse economic impacts that might result from the proposed regulatory action has been assessed, and the following initial determinations relative to the required statutory categories have been made:

(a) Significant Statewide Adverse Economic Impact Directly Affecting Business, Including the Ability of California Businesses to Compete with Businesses in Other States:

The proposed action will not have a significant statewide adverse economic impact directly affecting business, including the ability of California businesses to compete with businesses in other states. The Commission anticipates that the impact of the proposed regulations on the entirety of marine sport fishing activity is not expected to be sufficient to significantly impact sport fishing expenditures to businesses within the state.

(b) Impact on the Creation or Elimination of Jobs Within the State, the Creation of New Businesses or the Elimination of Existing Businesses, or the Expansion of Businesses in California; Benefits of the Regulation to the Health and Welfare of California Residents, Worker Safety, and the State's Environment:

The Commission does not anticipate any significant impacts on the creation or elimination of jobs, the creation of new businesses, the elimination of existing businesses, or the expansion of businesses in California. Sport fish-related businesses may have to adjust to changes in the composition of recreational fishing opportunities, but these changes are not expected to be substantial due to the fishery being kept open and from the sufficient substitutability of kelp bass as an alternative species.

The Commission anticipates benefits of the regulation to the health and welfare of California residents. Providing sustainable fishing opportunities encourages recreation, which can have a positive impact on the health and welfare of California residents.

The Commission does not anticipate benefits to worker safety from the proposed regulations.

The Commission anticipates benefits of the regulation to state's environment including preserving fishing opportunity, along with the continuation of the reasonable and sustainable management of barred sand bass resources.

(c) Cost Impacts on a Representative Private Person or Business:

The Commission is not aware of any cost impacts that a representative private person or business would necessarily incur in reasonable compliance with the proposed action.

(d) Costs or Savings to State Agencies or Costs/Savings in Federal Funding to the State:

None.

(e) Nondiscretionary Costs/Savings to Local Agencies:

None.

(f) Programs Mandated on Local Agencies or School Districts:

None.

(g) Costs Imposed on any Local Agency or School District that is Required to be Reimbursed Under Part 7 (commencing with Section 17500) of Division 4, Government Code:

None.

(h) Effect on Housing Costs:

None.

Effect on Small Business

It has been determined that the adoption of these regulations may affect small business. The Commission has drafted the regulations in Plain English pursuant to Government Code Sections 11342.580 and 11346.2(a)(1).

Consideration of Alternatives

The Commission must determine that no reasonable alternative considered by the Commission, or that has otherwise been identified and brought to the attention of the Commission, would be more effective in carrying out the purpose for which the action is proposed, would be as effective and less burdensome to affected private persons than the proposed action, or would be more cost effective to affected private persons and equally effective in implementing the statutory policy or other provision of law.

Re: CSAC Federal Update – Federal Funding Pause and Analysis

Yesterday, the White House Office of Management and Budget (OMB) issued a memorandum directing a comprehensive analysis of federal financial assistance programs that may be impacted by recent Executive Orders. In addition, federal agencies were directed to temporarily pause all activities related to this federal financial assistance as of today at 5:00 p.m. ET so that this funding can be reviewed. While this is an evolving situation, CSAC wants to share with counties what information is currently known and resources given the potential significant impacts to funding that counties utilize to serve communities.

Key takeaways at this point in time include:

- A federal judge has issued a temporary restraining order barring the funding pause from taking effect until next Monday, February 3.
- Federal financial assistance subject to the pause and analysis includes funding that may be impacted by recent Executive Orders, such as those on foreign aid, diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) programs, and gender ideology.
- The White House has indicated that programs that provide direct benefits to individuals are excluded from the pause and not subject to the review though some of these programs have experienced access issues to funding systems today.
- Federal assistance is defined to include things such as grants, cooperative agreements, and direct appropriations.

Paragon Government Relations, CSAC's advocacy team in Washington DC, has drafted an overview memo that summarizes the OMB memorandum. It includes the latest updates, analysis on key excerpts, and impacts that programs are already experiencing. Below are additional resources:

- OMB Memorandum (January 27) – Initial two-page memorandum
- Instructions to Agencies (January 28) – Lists 2,600 accounts with a spreadsheet that must be completed with certain information including planned spending through March 15
- OMB Q&A (January 28) – Document with additional information about what programs may be impacted
- Lawsuit (January 28) – Filed by a coalition of non-profits to seek a restraining order

Counties are on the front lines utilizing federal funding for providing vital support to families and leading projects to strengthen our communities. CSAC will continue to stay engaged with our federal team to understand the impacts and identify opportunities to advocate for counties to have access to needed resources. Below are some opportunities for counties to support our efforts and stay informed:

- Assist CSAC with understanding the impacts by sharing anything your county is experiencing at the local level such as difficulty accessing funding streams. Please send that information to Justin Garrett, CSAC's Federal Affairs Manager, at jgarrett@counties.org.
- To keep counties informed, CSAC has created a page on our website (https://www.counties.org/federal-funding-pause-and-analysis) where new resources will be added as they become available.
- CSAC has reached out at the state level to learn how the State of California may be responding to this memorandum.
- Additional email updates will be provided when there are significant developments.

Respectfully,

Graham Knaus
Chief Executive Officer, CSAC

Subject: URGENT: Protection of SFUSD STUDENTS

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear City Attorney David Chiu, Members of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and SFUSD Board of Education,

I am a SFUSD high school student writing to express my deep concern and anger regarding a recent incident that threatens the safety and well-being of our students and undermines San Francisco's sanctuary policies. On the morning of January 23, 2025, a student from Visitacion Valley Middle School reported being approached by an immigration law enforcement officer on the 29 Muni bus. The officer questioned the student about their identification and origin. Thankfully, the student is now safe with their family.

San Francisco has long been a sanctuary city, committed to protecting all residents regardless of immigration status. The Due Process for All Ordinance (Administrative Code Chapter 12H) explicitly prohibits local law enforcement and public employees from cooperating with ICE. Furthermore, the SFUSD's Sanctuary Schools Resolution ensures that no ICE officer is permitted on our campuses or near our students without a signed judicial warrant.

This incident, occurring on public transportation, represents a blatant violation of our city's sanctuary policies. It instills fear among our students and families, disrupting their ability to learn and thrive.

Immediate actions taken include:

1. Notification of SFUSD leadership and neighboring schools to ensure heightened awareness and vigilance.
2. Engagement with RISE-S (Refugee & Immigrant Solidarity in Education) to support the affected student and family.
3. Coordination with the San Francisco Rapid Response Network to provide direct assistance to the family.

However, these steps are not sufficient. I urge you to take the following actions:

- Enforce our sanctuary policies rigorously to prevent ICE from infringing upon the rights of our students and families.
- Hold ICE accountable for any actions that violate our local laws and ordinances.
- Educate our community about their rights and the protections afforded to them under our sanctuary policies.

We must stand united in protecting our community from fear and intimidation. Our schools and city are sanctuaries, and we will not allow any entity to compromise the safety and rights of our residents. I am within the right to request a meeting and I would like to request a meeting with the SFUSD board of education as soon as possible. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Artemis Cierra

Dear Supervisors,

On behalf of the American Heart Association, I am writing in support of Dr. John Maa's application for a health equity seat on the San Francisco Sugary Drink Distributor Tax Advisory Committee (SDDTAC). Dr. Maa has previously served on the committee and is eager to return, bringing his expertise, leadership, and passion for public health to continue the important work of reducing sugary drink consumption and addressing its impact on community health.

In his prior tenure on the SDDTAC, Dr. Maa demonstrated his ability to work collaboratively with a diverse group of stakeholders to advance health equity through the committee's recommendations. His expertise in public health and his analytical approach have been critical in contributing to the committee's efforts to effectively allocate funds from the Sugary Drink Distributor Tax to support initiatives that promote health equity in San Francisco.

Dr. Maa is a dedicated public health advocate, with years of experience working to reduce the burden of chronic disease. As a recognized leader in the field, he has long been an advocate for policies that reduce sugary drink consumption, which contribute to preventable conditions like heart disease, obesity, and diabetes.

Dr. Maa's deep understanding of the health equity impacts of sugary drink consumption, coupled with his hands-on experience in public health advocacy, makes him an ideal candidate to serve in a health equity seat on the committee.

The American Heart Association supports Dr. John Maa's reappointment to the SDDTAC.

Sincerely,

Subject: Plan for a Cleaner SF

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

In response to Mayor Lurie's inquiry about effective tactics to achieve a cleaner San Francisco, we have developed a comprehensive plan to address the root causes of the litter problem affecting our city. This plan is the result of ongoing collaboration with Refuse Refuse, Russian Hill Neighbors, and the National Stewardship Action Council (NSAC), and is detailed in the attached PDF, A Plan for a Cleaner SF.

This plan outlines a more holistic approach to litter abatement, including a thorough analysis of the litterrelated challenges we face. We recommend conducting a citywide study to prioritize the allocation of resources—time, money, and effort—towards addressing these challenges. This study should assess what actions citizens can take, the responsibilities of the city, and ways we can encourage coordinated efforts between the city and residents to tackle these issues together.

We are currently coordinating with the Mayor's staff to schedule a meeting for further discussions. Given the shared commitment we feel from local government to resolve these challenges collectively, we are also sharing this plan with you. We will follow up to request meetings, either with you individually or as a group, depending on your preference. Please feel free to respond directly to us to discuss how you would like to proceed.

We believe that a cleaner San Francisco will lead to a healthier, safer, and more prosperous city for all. We are inspired by the new leadership and the growing spirit of cooperation between the Board and the Mayor's office, and we are eager to contribute in any way we can to support your efforts in fulfilling the promise of a cleaner, more vibrant San Francisco.

Best regards,
Barbara Bella and Vince Yuen

Why Should a Cleaner SF be a Priority?

Health and Safety

- Litter breeds more litter: A cycle that's difficult to break.
- Mental health and crime: Research links the presence of litter to increased mental health issues, as well as higher levels of violence and crime.
- Toxicity to humans and animals: Items such as cigarette butts and feces pose significant health risks, both to people and wildlife.
    - Cigarette butts: These contain significant levels of microplastics, which are associated with cancer and other serious health conditions.

Economic Health

- Tourism decline: Litter negatively impacts tourism, leading to reduced visitor numbers, lower tourism revenue, and a diminished experience for those who do visit. This creates a self-reinforcing cycle of decline.
- Impact on small businesses: Areas heavily affected by litter often see a decrease in sales and business activity, as customers avoid dirty, unappealing locations

Community Morale

- Civic pride erosion: Dirty streets and neglected infrastructure contribute to a decline in civic pride and a sense of community.
- A legacy of care: It's time to take control of the narrative by demonstrating that government can take meaningful action. By creating cleaner, safer streets, we can restore pride and foster a sense of care for our city.

https://www.researchgate.net/figure/Longitudinal-Relationships-between-Litter-and-Crime_fig2_41432856

What are the issues?

We are endeavoring to identify all the litter-related challenges we face and recommend a thorough study to prioritize the allocation of city resources—time, money, and effort—in addressing these issues. This should include determining what citizens can do, what responsibilities the city must take on, and how we can foster coordinated efforts between the city and its residents to tackle these challenges together.

- Single-use plastic and takeaway packaging: generated by disposable items that are discarded in public spaces.
- Human and dog feces: contributes to unsanitary conditions and health risks in our neighborhoods.
- Unintentional litter from Recology and wind: inadvertently scattered by waste collection or blown by the wind.
- Compacted duff (tree litter): debris caused by insufficient tree pruning and inadequate street sweeping.
- Unkempt medians and transit stops: Overgrown, neglected areas diminish the city's appearance and functionality.
- Illegal dumping: Improper disposal of waste that clutters our streets and public spaces.
- 311 capacity: Limitations in the city's ability to efficiently manage and respond to litter-related concerns.
- Lack of awareness of property owner responsibility: Insufficient knowledge among residents and businesses about their obligations to maintain clean surroundings.
- Graffiti: Vandalism that further detracts from the city's appearance and civic pride.
- Absence of San Francisco PRIDE: The erosion of a collective sense of pride in our city, contributing to its decline.

What are some possible solutions?

City-wide Education Campaign: Promote the virtues of litter abatement with a campaign reminiscent of "I LOVE NY" and "KEEP AMERICA BEAUTIFUL." The goals include:

- Educating residents and businesses about their responsibility for property upkeep.
- Encouraging active participation in neighborhood cleanup efforts.
- Instilling civic pride, inspired by Lady Bird Johnson's advocacy for beautification that went beyond cosmetic solutions: "Where flowers bloom, so does hope — and hope is the precious, indispensable ingredient."

Enhancing City Resources: Provide additional support to SFPW and UFC for:

- Expanding mechanical street sweeping and ensuring consistent service throughout the city.
- Improving coordination with Recology's waste collection routes.
- Encouraging the use of 311 services and expanding its capacity to meet demand.
- Increasing the frequency of median and transit stop cleanings.
- Scheduling regular tree pruning and sidewalk maintenance, including weeding of public areas.
- Educating the public on the harmful effects of dog urine on newly planted trees.
- Providing dog parks with education and waste bags to encourage responsible disposal of dog feces.
- Reviewing the adequacy of trash receptacles across the city, ensuring there are enough to meet demand.

Expanding Neighborhood Cleanup: Foster community-driven efforts by expanding neighborhood cleanup programs to involve more residents in maintaining their surroundings.

Drone Pilot Program: Launch a drone program to identify illegal dumping sites and pinpoint areas most in need of attention.

Tackling Cigarette Litter: Advocate for a ban on cigarette filters at the county and state level. Cigarette filters are the most littered item globally and represent the largest source of plastic waste on Earth.

Next Steps

Schedule a meeting in January to discuss and develop a plan. Please provide suggested dates.

ADDENDUM

Most of Russian Hill, North Beach and Nob Hill do not have street sweeping, despite repeated appeals. Do all areas have adequate scheduling?

Cigarette Butts
One-Third of All Litter

The Source:

- The tobacco industry produces about 6 trillion cigarettes each year.
- The filters of roughly 4.5 trillion of these cigarettes pollute our oceans, rivers, city sidewalks, parks, soil and beaches every year making cigarette butts the number one most littered item on Earth.

The Impact:

- Smoking-related debris is one-third or more of all debris items found on U.S. beaches and in rivers and streams and make up 34 percent of the total litter collected in California.
- Cigarette waste is a significant contributor to storm drain trash.

Cigarette Butts

The Most Abundant Form of Plastic Waste

- Each filter is made of cellulose acetate, which break down to 15,000 strands of microplastic fibers which pollute our food, water, and air.
- Plastics can take years to decompose, which leaves behind mountains of accumulating toxic microplastics to pollute our environment that could make their way inside of us.
- Butts are packed with toxic chemicals like arsenic, lead, copper, chromium, cadmium and a variety of PAHs, that seep into our environment and threaten our oceans and wildlife as they lay discarded on the ground.
- They are poisonous when ingested by children or animals.

Legislative Actions

2009: San Francisco Litter Abatement Fee: In response to a California Study in 2009 that showed that cigarette litter constituted 25% all trash by count, San Francisco enacted a litter abatement tax which is intended to be used to clean up butts from streets, tourist venues, and storm drains. Every cigarette retailer in the City and County of SF is responsible for paying the Cigarette Litter Abatement Fee of $1.50 per pack of cigarettes sold.

IMPACT:

- Encourages litter. This current solution says…"Okay to litter. We'll clean it up."
- Yet no evidence of any specifically funded program in sight.
- Audits by Refuse Refuse tell us that if the same study were conducted today, we would find an increase from 25% to over 30% by count caused by cigarette-related waste."
- Merchants losing business and losing faith in their government.

For the reasons above, we consider this a failed policy and demand change.

2019: SB 424: Introduced by Senator Hannah-Beth Jackson: Prohibition on Cigarettes Utilizing Single-Use Filters and Single-Use Electronic Cigarettes or Vaporizer Devices

2022: AB 1690: introduced by Assemblymember Luz Rivas Smoking Waste Pollution Prevention Act

2022 City of Baltimore: City of Baltimore Files a First of its Kind Lawsuit Against Tobacco Companies for Cigarette Filter Waste

2023 Altria Shareholders Resolution: Calls for tobacco company to pay to clean up plastic cigarette filter litter

2024: Santa Cruz Board of Supervisors: Passed a ban on the sale of filtered cigarettes and cigars on October 29, 2024. The ban is set to take effect on January 1, 2027.

Better Legislation Solutions

Extended Producer Responsibility, (EPR), EPR is a policy approach under which producers are given a significant responsibility – financial and/or physical – for the treatment or disposal of post-consumer products.

- SB 54 establishes a new extended producer responsibility (EPR) program to manage packaging and single-use plastic food-ware products across every sector of the economy. Producers will ensure that the packaging and plastic food ware sold in California Is recyclable or compostable.

Cigarette Litter Abatement Tax on Tobacco Industry

- Write legislation or sue tobacco companies to require cigarette companies to pay a tax on every pack sold to be used for cigarette litter abatement.
    - Recent Atria Shareholder Resolution calls for tobacco company to pay to clean up plastic cigarette filter litter.

Outright Ban on Single-Use Plastic Filters:

- The term filter misleads the public implying nonexistent health benefits, long debunked.
- The filter is the primary source of litter by quantity and toxicity.
- Government cannot require product re-design but it can mandate a ban.
- Given the extensive presence of microplastics in cigarette butts, base a bill on the above SB 54 law by banning cigarette filters with microplastics and toxic chemicals.

We are meeting with local and state representatives and organizations seeking legislation and sponsorship of a bill to ban plastic cigarette filters. We recommend the starting point of a joint investigative hearing with the tobacco companies and Water, Waste, Fire and Public Health Officials.

Hi there, Board of Supervisors,

I'm reaching out to request City and County of San Francisco's support for Senate Bill 45, which requires tethered caps on beverage containers sold in California. This legislation will reduce plastic waste, prevent litter, and improve recycling outcomes. I've also attached the Fact Sheet for the bill, which contains helpful background and details, as well as an updated list of current supporters.

To make it easy to show your support, I've attached a sample support letter template that highlights the adverse environmental impact of untethered caps. Please:

1. Customize the template as needed.
2. Submit your letter addressed to the Author (Senator Padilla) using the Advocate Portal
3. Send me your organization's logo and your signature so that I can add you to our coalition support letter

Your voice as a trusted environmental authority is critical to advancing this policy and we deeply appreciate your support.

Please let me know if you have any questions or need assistance. I'm happy to help!

Thank you,

Best,

SB 45 Fact Sheet – DRAFT: Tethered Bottle Caps

SUMMARY

This measure would require that plastic caps on defined plastic beverage containers be 'tethered' to the container in a manner that helps ensure the caps remain with the container throughout its lifecycle, thereby reducing a significant and especially harmful source of plastic pollution.

Ensuring bottle caps remain affixed to the bottle during the intended use and recovery stage would eliminate a significant source of plastic litter/pollution as well as improve material recycling by reducing opportunities for leakage and loss from stray caps.

Recent studies estimate more than 14 billion plastic bottle caps produced annually in California, culminating in over 22,000 tons[1] of plastic waste. According to cleanup data conducted by the 5 Gyres Institute, plastic beverage caps were ranked as the third most littered item found on beaches and in national parks[2], and the volunteers for the Surfrider Foundation report having collected nearly 30,000 plastic bottle caps littered along our nation's coasts in 2024 alone[3]. Plastic caps were also found to comprise a 'top 5' threat imperiling marine animals and ecosystems[4], whose accidental consumption often proves fatal due to indigestibility or acute toxicity.

Detachable bottle caps also pose a particular hinderance to material recovery efforts, as they are often small enough to slip through or escape recycling machinery.

Ensuring that caps remain affixed to bottles during their lifecycle is essential for litter abatement, marine ecosystem protection, and expanded resource recovery.

BACKGROUND

Recent years have seen momentum in California and internationally for finding solutions to the blight caused by plastic bottle caps, particularly from beach clean-up data and ocean debris waste characterizations, which have continually ranked it in the top three most littered items since 1988[5]. With more than 20 million bottle caps having been discovered during beach cleanups over the last 30 years[6], the environmental impact of easily detachable plastic bottle caps cannot be understated, both due to pollution and microplastic shedding contaminating waterways. These microplastics spread into our water, soil and air[7] before making their way into our food systems, water supply, and even our bodies.

Detachable bottle caps also pose an existential threat to the biodiversity of mammals, sea birds, and other marine life. Due to their frequently bright colors, caps are often attractive to wildlife and mistaken for food. This poses an immediately fatal choking hazard, as well as long-term concerns about the bio-accumulation of hazardous toxins and starvation due to the cap's indigestibility[8]. Plastic caps have also been known to cause 'Bubble Butt' syndrome in sea turtles, plasticosis among fish and other marine life, and fatal indigestion in whale species[9].

Even when detachable bottle caps are disposed of correctly, their size and shape render them nearly impossible to recycle. Because they are too small to be handled by material recovery facility (MRF) machinery and baling equipment, they often end up in MRF residuals, which are sent to landfills or incinerators for final disposal[10]. However, when caps remain attached to the beverage container, they are captured and baled with the container, preventing unnecessary residuals and material loss[11].

Past state legislation on this issue includes AB 925 (Saldana, 2009), AB 319 (Stone, 2018), and AB 2779 (Stone, 2018), which were ultimately unsuccessful but elicited a massive outpouring of public support to improve caps' material recovery and mitigate their effects on marine ecosystems and wildlife.

Successful legislation arose out of the EU in 2018, when they announced a directive to phase out loose plastic bottle caps as a source reduction strategy by the summer of 2024. With the regulation now in effect, public opinion polling and surveys in the EU conducted by Sidel have found that consumers prefer caps that remain attached to their beverage containers for reasons of convenience, cleanliness, environmental benefit, and recyclability.

Despite initial hesitation from beverage companies to acquiesce due to high costs associated with retrofitting bottling machinery, the implementation of the design switch to hinged tops and lasso closures has been relatively seamless in the EU and beyond. Several major beverage brands and manufacturers have already rolled out tethered closure technologies stateside and abroad, including Crystal Geyser, Coca-Cola, Pepsico, Blue Triton (Arrowhead), Keurig-Dr. Pepper, and Nestle. While there is increasing momentum for California cities to pass their own ordinances requiring tethered caps, a statewide approach in regulating their design would be preferred for ensuring clarity and consistency of the law.

THIS BILL

SB 45 would:

- Require plastic beverage containers less than three liters to have an attached bottle cap by 2027;
- Allow Plastic beverage containers with a recycling rate greater than 70 percent in 2022 and 2023 to adopt a tethered bottle cap by 2028.

Tethering bottle caps to the bottle will reduce litter, minimize threats to marine wildlife, enhance material recovery efforts and loss reduction.

RE: SB 45 (Padilla)– Tethered Caps on Plastic Beverage Containers – SUPPORT

Dear Senator Padilla,

[Organization Name] supports your Senate Bill 45, which requires plastic beverage containers have caps that remain attached during use.

Plastic bottle caps rank among the top three most littered items on California's beaches and public lands, as documented by [Seems the 1st order is to site the annual CA beach litter study] the 5 Gyres Institute, Surfrider Foundation, and a litany of other litter cleanup studies. Detached caps frequently escape proper disposal, polluting waterways and ecosystems where they persist for centuries as litter, toxins, and microplastics.

Loose caps pose a threat to marine life due to their small size, bright colors, and buoyancy, which make them easily mistaken for food. This results in choking, intestinal blockages, and bioaccumulation of toxins—often leading to death. These impacts are well-documented across species ranging from seabirds to turtles and whales.

By ensuring caps remain tethered, SB 45 offers a practical solution to reduce litter and protect California's natural landscapes, communities, and ecosystems from the harm caused by plastic waste.

Major beverage manufacturers, including Coca-Cola, PepsiCo, and Nestlé, have already adopted tethered cap designs to comply with EU regulations, proving this solution is both technologically feasible and cost-effective. Aligning California's standards with these global benchmarks ensures consistency and amplifies environmental benefits.

For these reasons, we strongly support your SB 45.

Sincerely,

RE: SFDSA Advocates for Swift Passage of Mayor Lurie's Emergency Bill

Dear Members of the Board of Supervisors and the People of San Francisco,

On behalf of the San Francisco Deputy Sheriffs' Association (SFDSA), we write this open letter, acting as a private association and not on behalf of any public agency, to express our unwavering support for Mayor Daniel Lurie's Emergency Bill, a comprehensive legislative measure aimed at addressing the interconnected crises of fentanyl addiction, homelessness, mental health, and public safety that have gripped our city. As frontline public safety professionals, we witness the devastating impact of these crises daily, and we firmly believe this legislation represents a bold and necessary step toward reclaiming the safety and dignity of San Francisco.

The Urgent Need for Action

San Francisco faces an unprecedented emergency on multiple fronts. The fentanyl crisis has devastated communities, homelessness continues to rise, mental health services remain overburdened, and our public safety infrastructure is stretched beyond capacity. This Emergency Bill provides the critical tools necessary to address these challenges head-on by:

- Streamlining Approval Processes: Allowing department heads to approve contracts, grants, and leases valued between $10 million and $50 million, significantly reducing the nine-month delay associated with traditional competitive bidding.
- Accelerating Public Safety Hiring: Fast-tracking recruitment and onboarding for essential public safety positions, including deputy sheriffs and 911 operators.

- Supporting Private Funding: Enabling the mayor's office to solicit private donations and reallocate surplus funds to address homelessness and behavioral health needs. This open letter reflects the views of the SFDSA and not those of the San Francisco Sheriff's Department or any other government entity.

These measures will empower city leaders to act swiftly and decisively, cutting through bureaucratic delays that hinder progress and ensuring resources are deployed where they are needed most.

Accountability and Oversight

While we recognize the concerns surrounding expedited processes, the Emergency Bill incorporates robust oversight mechanisms to maintain transparency and public trust. Annual reports to the Board of Supervisors on services delivered, funds raised, and outcomes achieved will ensure accountability at every stage of implementation. These safeguards strike an appropriate balance between urgency and due diligence.

Our Recommendation

We strongly urge the Board of Supervisors to approve this legislation without delay. By doing so, you will send a clear message to the people of San Francisco that their safety, health, and well-being are the city's top priorities. This is not merely a piece of legislation; it is a lifeline for thousands of individuals and families who desperately need our help.

As I, President Ken Lomba, stated, "This legislation is the swift and decisive response our city needs to address the intersecting crises of public safety, homelessness, and fentanyl addiction. By empowering leaders to act quickly, we can deliver real results that restore public trust and make San Francisco a safer, healthier place for all."

We invite the public to join us in advocating for this critical legislation. Together, we can create meaningful change for our city.

San Francisco Firefighters Local 798 strongly supports Mayor Lurie's proposed changes to the Administrative Code to better respond to the fentanyl, homelessness, and mental health crises that we continue to see on our streets.

In 2024, there were 633 overdose deaths in the City of San Francisco and thousands of close calls. San Francisco Firefighters and Paramedics are on the front lines of the drug and mental health crises in our city, and we know that things need to change because what we've been doing has not been working.

Mayor Lurie was elected to office with a mandate to shake up the system and no longer allow the bureaucracy to operate business as usual. In fact, the Mayor was recently quoted in a San Francisco Chronicle editorial as saying, "What I'm asking voters to do is let me do what they elected me to do, and that is to treat this fentanyl crisis like the emergency that it is…You can verify whether or not we get results."

San Francisco Firefighters wholeheartedly agree with this sentiment. Our firefighters see the results of disjointed and unaccountable government on our streets every single day. This must change. Give the Mayor the tools he needs to get the job done, then judge him on the results.

Dear Supervisors,

I write to urge your support for Mayor Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

Fentanyl and other devastating drugs have overtaken our streets, making entire neighborhoods dangerous for everyone, and killing hundreds every year through overdoses.

This plan is a first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets. And it is an important step in reducing other crimes ranging from murder to shoplifting, all driven by the illegal narcotics trade.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Emergency short-term powers for faster procurement, contracting and hiring to deal with this crisis.
- Enlisting charitable donors to help finance City programs.
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit

We join Stop Crime SF in supporting this vote for an important step toward creating a safer and more compassionate San Francisco.

Dear Supervisors,

I write to urge your support for Mayor Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

Fentanyl and other devastating drugs have overtaken our streets, making entire neighborhoods dangerous for everyone, and killing hundreds every year through overdoses.

This plan is a first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets. And it is an important step in reducing other crimes ranging from murder to shoplifting, all driven by the illegal narcotics trade.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Emergency short-term powers for faster procurement, contracting and hiring to deal with this crisis.
- Enlisting charitable donors to help finance City programs.
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit

We join Stop Crime SF in supporting this vote for an important step toward creating a safer and more compassionate San Francisco.

Dear Supervisors,

I write to urge your support for Mayor Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

Fentanyl and other devastating drugs have overtaken our streets, making entire neighborhoods dangerous for everyone, and killing hundreds every year through overdoses.

This plan is a first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets. And it is an important step in reducing other crimes ranging from murder to shoplifting, all driven by the illegal narcotics trade.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Emergency short-term powers for faster procurement, contracting and hiring to deal with this crisis.
- Enlisting charitable donors to help finance City programs.
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit

We join Stop Crime SF in supporting this vote for an important step toward creating a safer and more compassionate San Francisco.

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco's public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie's plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Dear Supervisors,

I write to urge your support for Mayor Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

Fentanyl and other devastating drugs have overtaken our streets, making entire neighborhoods dangerous for everyone, and killing hundreds every year through overdoses.

This plan is a first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets. And it is an important step in reducing other crimes ranging from murder to shoplifting, all driven by the illegal narcotics trade.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Emergency short-term powers for faster procurement, contracting and hiring to deal with this crisis.
- Enlisting charitable donors to help finance City programs.
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit

We join Stop Crime SF in supporting this vote for an important step toward creating a safer and more compassionate San Francisco.

I write to urge your support for Mayor Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

Fentanyl and other devastating drugs have overtaken our streets, making entire neighborhoods dangerous for everyone, and killing hundreds every year through overdoses.

This plan is a first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets. And it is an important step in reducing other crimes ranging from murder to shoplifting, all driven by the illegal narcotics trade.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Emergency short-term powers for faster procurement, contracting and hiring to deal with this crisis.
- Enlisting charitable donors to help finance City programs.
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit

We join Stop Crime SF in supporting this vote for an important step toward creating a safer and more compassionate San Francisco.

Supervisors,

We generally support emergency legislation to deal with the fentanyl crisis. This plan is a first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets. And it is an important step in reducing other crimes ranging from murder to shoplifting, all driven by the illegal narcotics trade.

While amendments may be appropriate to deal with some potential problems or timing on issues such as contracts, this overall concept is a good one.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Emergency short-term powers for faster procurement, contracting and hiring of public safety employees to deal with this crisis.
- Enlisting charitable donors to help finance City programs.
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit

We join in supporting this vote for an important step toward creating a safer and more compassionate San Francisco.

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie’s Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

How can we, as human beings, stand by and watch others suffer from this Fentanyl Crisis and do absolutely nothing about it? And I'll tell you, whether something is being done or not.... the perception is that you have collectively done nothing so far. When you walk in and out of your building for work, it's all around you. This is not about an individual's rights to live the way they choose to live. This is about individuals not having the capacity to make safe decisions for themselves. This is the reason for the expansion of the Grave Disability criteria under 5150 W&I, as indicated in SB43.

I was born and raised in this once safe and beautiful City but now SF is being touted by National news outlets as an unsafe and dangerous cesspool of living zombies. It's time to help our fellow human beings. I'd like to remind you that these folks are the children, parents, siblings and spouses of people who truly love them and are desperate for help. No human being should have to live like this.

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie’s Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco’s public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie’s plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination

Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Thank you,

Time long overdue to make San Francisco the great city it once was. I say "once was" as over the years it's become worse than some 3rd world cities albeit with 1st world prices.

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie’s Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco’s public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie’s plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination

Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Thank you,

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie’s Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco’s public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie’s plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination

Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Thank you,

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am 80 years old and have lived in San Francisco for over 50 years. My neighborhood is Corbett Height/upper Castro. I love my city and my heart breaks with the present state it is in. Not only is it a tragedy that Fentanyl overdoses have claimed over 4,000 people here. As a result of the drug epidemic and inadequate mental illness treatment the city is dirty, unhealthy, and becoming more and more dangerous. As an elderly female I am frightened on our streets and on public transportation.

Last evening, at 7:30 pm I was returning home from an early dinner in the NOPA area and took the #24 to the Castro to transfer to the #33. It looked like the night of the living dead. Drug users who were sitting and lying on the sidewalk obstructing pedestrians and drugs were being openly used. Food containers and garbage were tossed everywhere. As I passed the Walgreens at the corner of 18th the door flew open and a security guard was restraining a shoplifter against the door. I turned the corner to get to the bus stop and encountered many more drug users hanging out there (which is a common collection point for these people. The bus wasn't coming for 30 minutes per the sign so I ended up walking home up 18th Street to Clayton as I felt too vulnerable to wait where I was.

I realize that the Tenderloin and 6th Street are the current focus for getting the drug markets/open drug use under control but the Castro is becoming almost as bad. San Francisco definitely needs an "all hands on deck" "disaster response" approach to addressing the problem.

I urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to oppose Mayor Daniel Lurie’s Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco’s addiction health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. It is a product of bad city policies. Less than 0.1% of the SF population are composed of these addicts. These people are not born in San Francisco. They did not grow up or attend School in San Francisco. They are not contributing anything to the economy, social fabric or potential of San Francisco. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life & economy in SF. This has come about from bad policy and lack of legal and social enforcement of laws & reasonable effective policies The city politicians have become part of these addicts problems by becoming enablers. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of understanding and political will.

Mayor Lurie’s plan offers more of the same addiction enabling and profiteering by greedy ineffective non profits taking city funds . A crucial first step toward addressing this self inflicted addiction crisis is by cracking down on drug dealers and providing Mandatory drug sentencing and inpatient treatment. Out patient treatment is a third set in stopping addiction. It is worthless as a first-line treatment & is a complete waste of resources. Only the self-serving nonprofits win using self treatment as a first line abatement method. The Mayor's program will only continue this cruel cycle of ineffective treatment.

Vote no on the Fentanyl State of Emergency.
Establish critical initiatives such as:
- Arrest & Mandatory In Patient medically supervised (not social workers or counselors) drug treatment Centers. Use Proven medical addiction treatment.

Stop support the same old "solutions" that DO NOT work and just enrich the greedy nonprofit cartels. This vile industry that exploits these addicts for their self profit & funding must stop.
Vote NO against Mayor Luries ineffective plan which is just the same thing with a new title. Return San Francisco’s healthy economy, safe & livable streets and neighborhoods. It is common common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all city residents & visitors. Vote NO to join San Francisco’s movement for accountability and real solutions to our city’s addiction & stop enabling this plan for profit from this crisis.

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

Part of wise leadership is stopping the line when the course is harmful, wasteful or not achieving the community's goal… in light of all 3 being true in this particular case… please do your duty and stop the fentanyl line of death and destruction.

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco's public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie's plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Thank you,

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie’s Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco’s public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie’s plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination

Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Thank you,

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Members of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors,

As a San Francisco Police Officer with over 23 years of service, I have witnessed firsthand the devastating toll that fentanyl has taken on our city and its people. I have walked these streets, responded to countless overdose emergencies, and seen entire communities unravel under the weight of this crisis. I urge you to support Mayor Lurie's "Fentanyl State of Emergency Ordinance" as an essential step in saving lives and restoring safety to our neighborhoods.

Fentanyl is not just a public health crisis—it is a public safety emergency. Every day, I encounter vulnerable individuals whose lives are consumed by addiction, as well as the families and businesses impacted by the ripple effects of this epidemic. Delayed action means more lives lost, more families torn apart, and more neighborhoods destabilized. Mayor Lurie's ordinance addresses this urgency by cutting through the procedural delays that too often prevent timely action.

By expediting funding, partnerships, and contracting, this ordinance empowers the city to rapidly scale up essential services like mental health beds, drug treatment programs, and public safety measures. These are the immediate tools we need to combat the crisis on the ground. As someone who has seen the gaps in the current system, I can confidently say that this ordinance provides a much-needed opportunity to respond swiftly and effectively.

Concerns about oversight are valid, but they should not overshadow the dire reality we face. This ordinance is a temporary, six-month measure that balances the urgency of the situation with the need for accountability. It is a pragmatic solution that ensures lifesaving action can begin immediately while maintaining transparency and checks through the legislative process.

In my decades of service, I have seen the cost of inaction: lives lost that could have been saved with timely intervention. Mayor Lurie's ordinance is not a perfect solution, but it is a critical one. I implore you to support it—not for the sake of political expediency, but for the sake of the people we are sworn to protect and serve.

Sincerely,
Officer Carlos Manfredi #4193
Crisis Intervention Team (CIT)

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie’s Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco’s public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie’s plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination

Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie’s Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco’s public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie’s plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination

Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie’s Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco’s public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie’s plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination

Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Thank you,

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie’s Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco’s public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie’s plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination

Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Thank you,

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco's public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie's plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination

Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Thank you,

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express my strong support for Mayor Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency. Fentanyl has affected so many San Franciscans for so long, and Lurie's plan is necessary in order to address the drug overdose crisis and untreated mental health conditions on our streets.

Please vote for the Fentanyl State of Emergency. San Francisco deserves a permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center, an SF Hospitality Zone Task Force, a 24/7 drop-off Crisis Stabilization Unit, and for it to be easier to procure resources, write contracts, issue funding, and hire workers to make San Francisco safer.

Fentanyl is devastating our city and we need this to stop. I urge you to support the legislation so we can get our city back on track.

Thank you!

San Francisco's public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie's plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination

Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

Sand Francisco's public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie's plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Thank you,

Dear Supervisor Sherrill,

I'm a resident of District 2. I am writing to express my strong support for Mayor Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency. Fentanyl has affected so many San Franciscans for so long, and Lurie's plan is necessary in order to address the drug overdose crisis and untreated mental health conditions on our streets.

Please vote for the Fentanyl State of Emergency. San Francisco deserves a permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center, an SF Hospitality Zone Task Force, a 24/7 drop-off Crisis Stabilization Unit, and for it to be easier to procure resources, write contracts, issue funding, and hire workers to make San Francisco safer.

Fentanyl is devastating our city and we need this to stop. I urge you to support the legislation so we can get our city back on track.

San Francisco Resident Living at Eddy & Franklin SF in Regards Fentanyl Dealers.
Hello, I live at 909 Franklin St, (directly above 904 Eddy) since 2010, & there has been a building problem on our street (& Cathedral Hill Neighborhood in general). Since 2024, Our street is nightly flooded with hundreds of Fentanyl/crack/meth zombie-like characters & their drug dealers taking up every entrance to buildings, cars, garages, sidewalks. It is terrifying as many of these are out of their minds. They defecate, urinate, argue, scream obscenities, dump garbage, damage cars trees sidewalks wall electrical cables you name it, they also graffiti & do damage in general, nightly. Daily. We can't open the windows because it is so dense not with fog or air from the sea blowing in, but with bellows of crack smoke, fentanyl, meth, & tainted pot among other chemicals such as spray paint, did I mention all the human feces & urine smells, oh yes & the piles of garbage everywhere.
Please help us, we understand that during the prior Mayor, certain properties in our street became havens for drug dealing, including 900 Franklin,951 Eddy, as well as 939 Eddy.
The city appears to have had the intention of helping homeless transients live here, however they are abusing the trust of the city & destroying the neighborhood and frankly terrorizing all the working -class taxpaying, hardworking individuals that live & try to respect law and order in this community. Please, I beg you to help us reign this problem in, it is ridiculously out of control, daily, nightly.
I am aware some consider it cruel to label them zombies, but im not being cruel or hyperbolic. They are 100% zombies in the sense that they have no agency of their faculties and act as mindless vehicles for the drug as they break into cars & stores to get something to trade for another hit, while their flesh is rotting. These individuals & their drug dealers have zero care or sympathy for us, so I don't understand why we have to accept them destroying us & our safety & our communities & lives, it is unacceptable.
The drug dealers & roaming crime ring gangs are also zombies because their sole concern is getting more people hooked to drugs as well as being able to rob rape steal deface & scam to line their pockets.
We sincerely believe that is in everyone's best interest including the fentanyl zombie people themselves; to have them be removed from running freely terrorizing the streets and themselves with their destructive criminal daily endeavors, drug use is a disease that grows in power like an infection until it painfully kills the host completely. It is cancer & we can't allow it to just fester and destroy everything we hold dear as a city, as a species.

San Francisco Resident Living at Eddy & Franklin SF in Regards Fentanyl Dealers.
Hello, I live at 909 Franklin St, (directly above 904 Eddy) since 2010, & there has been a building problem on our street (& Cathedral Hill Neighborhood in general). Since 2024, Our street is nightly flooded with hundreds of Fentanyl/crack/meth zombie-like characters & their drug dealers taking up every entrance to buildings, cars, garages, sidewalks. It is terrifying as many of these are out of their minds. They defecate, urinate, argue, scream obscenities, dump garbage, damage cars trees sidewalks wall electrical cables you name it, they also graffiti & do damage in general, nightly. Daily. We can't open the windows because it is so dense not with fog or air from the sea blowing in, but with bellows of crack smoke, fentanyl, meth, & tainted pot among other chemicals such as spray paint, did I mention all the human feces & urine smells, oh yes & the piles of garbage everywhere.
Please help us, we understand that during the prior Mayor, certain properties in our street became havens for drug dealing, including 900 Franklin,951 Eddy, as well as 939 Eddy.
The city appears to have had the intention of helping homeless transients live here, however they are abusing the trust of the city & destroying the neighborhood and frankly terrorizing all the working -class taxpaying, hardworking individuals that live & try to respect law and order in this community. Please, I beg you to help us reign this problem in, it is ridiculously out of control, daily, nightly.
I am aware some consider it cruel to label them zombies, but im not being cruel or hyperbolic. They are 100% zombies in the sense that they have no agency of their faculties and act as mindless vehicles for the drug as they break into cars & stores to get something to trade for another hit, while their flesh is rotting. These individuals & their drug dealers have zero care or sympathy for us, so I don't understand why we have to accept them destroying us & our safety & our communities & lives, it is unacceptable.
The drug dealers & roaming crime ring gangs are also zombies because their sole concern is getting more people hooked to drugs as well as being able to rob rape steal deface & scam to line their pockets.
We sincerely believe that is in everyone's best interest including the fentanyl zombie people themselves; to have them be removed from running freely terrorizing the streets and themselves with their destructive criminal daily endeavors, drug use is a disease that grows in power like an infection until it painfully kills the host completely. It is cancer & we can't allow it to just fester and destroy everything we hold dear as a city, as a species.

RE: FILE NO. 250040 - Budget and Legislative Analyst Report (paginated 24; PDF page 27)

Dear Ms. Campbell and Messrs. Menard and Holober:

We take great umbrage with the Budget and Legislative Analyst's characterization of Chapter 14B of the Administrative Code as being one of "certain social requirements" [emphasis added] that "can add to the time and expense of contracting with the City." While the BLA's Legislative Digest attributes this characterization to hearsay "interviews with City staff," its insertion without providing accurate, balanced analysis contributes to a grossly distorted picture of the important role of the Local Business Enterprise (LBE) ordinance in the City's economic sustainability.

The City-certified LBE program is not meant to serve as feel-good social welfare. LBEs, many of whom are utilized by out-of-town and out-of-state prime contractors, provide a vital conduit for the reinvestment of City contracting dollars into the local economy, in the form of high-quality, locally-sourced jobs, tax payments, etc. The economic role of LBEs is multiplied even further when they themselves are utilized as the primes. LBE subcontractors oftentimes finance City projects by not being paid until the City pays the prime. This practice of "paid when paid" is a form of interest-free financing of City work that is rarely taken into account when the true economic value of LBEs is considered.

Please correct your report to remove the insinuation of Chapter 14B as a "social requirement" that drains the City of time and money. It is a sorely underutilized instrument of time- and cost-effective local know-how towards responsible local economic development.

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco's public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie's plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

Please support Mayor Daniel Lurie’s Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

The support and enabling of addiction to fentanyl is ruining lives and our city.

Treatment, yes! Silver foil, straws, and needles that end up on our streets, no! I work near civic center. There is literally feces all over the place along with other garbage. The door of my workplace is often blocked by crumpled, broken bodies and/or feces. The door was rotted away by urine. Windows are often broken. There is no kindness in presiding over this dystopia.

Furthermore, I want fentanyl dealers arrested, prosecuted, and deported if they are here illegally. The silent majority does not support sanctuary for felons.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH

Dear Supervisors,

I write to urge your support for Mayor Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

Fentanyl and other devastating drugs have overtaken our streets, making entire neighborhoods dangerous for everyone, and killing hundreds every year through overdoses.

This plan is a first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets. And it is an important step in reducing other crimes ranging from murder to shoplifting, all driven by the illegal narcotics trade.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Emergency short-term powers for faster procurement, contracting and hiring to deal with this crisis.
- Enlisting charitable donors to help finance City programs.
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit

We join Stop Crime SF in supporting this vote for an important step toward creating a safer and more compassionate San Francisco.

Support Lurie's Fentanyl Emergency Ordinances

Message:

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to support Mayor Daniel Lurie's Fentanyl State of Emergency Legislation.

San Francisco's public health crisis has overtaken our streets, creating unsafe and dangerous environments for residents of all ages. The current conditions are having devastating impacts on every aspect of life in SF. The response-to-date from city leadership demonstrates a total lack of compassion and political will.

Mayor Lurie's plan offers a crucial first step toward addressing this humanitarian crisis by cracking down on drug dealers and providing vital services for those suffering on our streets.

Vote yes on the Fentanyl State of Emergency to establish critical initiatives such as:
- Permanent Drug Market Agency Coordination Center
- S.F. Hospitality Zone Task Force
- Crisis Stabilization Unit
- Emergency powers for procurement, contracting funding and hiring to ensure the on-going success of this initiative. Mayor Lurie promises contracts WITH accountability.

Your YES vote supports a bold and essential move toward creating a safer, cleaner and more compassionate San Francisco, one that voters made clear they wanted. I urge you to take this decisive step to alleviate the many burdens and dangers this crisis has placed on our city for far too long. Return San Francisco's compassion and common sense to ensure the safety and well being of all her residents. Vote yes to join San Francisco's movement for accountability and real solutions to our city's fentanyl crisis.

Thank you,

I'm writing in opposition to SFMTA's installation of neckdowns. The whole idea is preposterous and begs for a head on collision.

Over the last 15 years, San Francisco has attempted to avoid dealing with the 3 biggest problems facing our sewer collection and treatment system:

- Sewage backups caused by undersized sewers downstream leading to raw sewage flooding SF residents
- Raw sewage being dumped into the bay and ocean beaches untreated
- Sewer backups caused by rising sea levels.

With the lack of an adequate plan to address these 3 problems, SF has been backed into corners forcing it to solve these problems individually, in ways that are counterproductive to solving the other 2. This lack of a comprehensive and coherent plan causes other projects from other departments to begin on uncertain ground and end with solutions that are more problematic than simply doing nothing.
SF is being required to address sewage backups into SF residents homes under a 2021 Cleanup and Abatement Order enforced by the Regional Water Quality Control Board, after pressure from the US EPA in 2019. Currently SF is preparing to construct 2 large tunnels to address sewage backups. These 2 tunnels are currently estimated to cost over $700million but once bids are in this will likely rise and with construction cost overruns, the total will likely be over $1bil. Unfortunately, according to SFPUC's estimates, these 2 projects will ultimately make our untreated sewage discharges worse, and likely make any attempt to reduce the impacts of sea level rise on our drainage discharge systems much harder to address. Even after spending nearly a billion dollars, the combined sewage these projects bring to the bay will still be polluted and will have an increasingly hard time getting out of the system due to the failure of SFPUC to maintain the outfalls, the closure of outfalls, and the rising sea levels downstream.

While the 2021 Cleanup and Abatement Order was being negotiated, SFPUC decided to close the Pierce St. outfall off Marina Blvd., which had until that time carried 65% of the combined sewer flows in the Marina area out to the Bay. PUC's reason for closing the outfall was to "reduce pollution into the marina". So far we can find no complaints from boaters nor RecPark staff. Closing the outfall not only caused flooding on Marina Blvd, sending sewage out of the manholes, into the street then into homes but as shown in the image above, increased pollution around Crissy field and possibly Aquatic Park, both areas where swimmers use the bay year round. The image is a water quality modeling graphic showing the improvements inside the marina where there are no water contact sports, but increases at Crissy field, where there is. In this image, the model doesn't consider the increased sewage discharged from Laguna St. outfall which is likely to make it considerably worse towards Aquatic Park. With the closure of the Pierce St. outfall, the Laguna St. sewer outfall, a sewage overflow pipe that dumps raw sewage into Gashouse Cove, now discharges 1-2 times a year. SFPUC is preparing to spend several million to rehabilitate the Laguna St. outfall even though the elevation of the pipe is so high that it is only helpful after flooding has started on Marina Blvd. This outfall discharges into the location where SF RecPark is currently required to spend $180million to clean up PGE manufactured gas plant pollution. RecPark's plan is to avoid cleaning up the PGE pollution in the south end of Gashouse Cove, instead creating a shallow recreational boat center for paddle boards, kayaks and other human powered craft on top of the PGE pollution. These recreation uses will put users in direct contact with raw, untreated sewage, such as we currently see 10-12 times a year at RecPark's kayak hut on Mission Creek. The $180million RecPark project in Gashouse cove could make the sewage pollution worse, and make it harder for SF to adequately address flooding and pollution, especially as the sea levels rise.

SFPUC spent $6million to close the Pierce. St. outfall, causing geysers of raw sewage to inundate the streets, making San Francisco's streets open sewers. At some point, SFPUC will have to return to at least the minimum safety levels from before the closure of the Pierce St. outfall.

SF Port is attempting to get the US Government to agree to supplying 65% of a $14billion program to reduce seismic risk to the seawall under The Embarcadero, as well as help rehab the older wharfs that are increasingly at risk to structural damage from wind driven waves as sea levels rise. This project is likely to be put on hold however, without a clear plan on how SF would deal with the pollution from the raw sewage as well as the upstream sewage backups caused by higher tides. Neither of these could be addressed in the Port's plan due to lack of a clear, city-wide plan to address these problems. Any improvements to the sea wall would make fixing the pollution and sewer backups harder. So far, the only consideration in the SF Port plan for drainage during storms is to take the sewage off the streets and pump it over the new seawall into the bay. Any questions about current drainage problems are glossed over, and any flooding made worse by the inoperation of the gates along The Embarcadero and Mission Creek is ignored. These gates were all built using grants from the US EPA in the 1980s. In only 40 years they have been allowed to decay to the point of non-operation contributing to sewer backups upstream. This lack of attention to the small detail of maintenance and ongoing improvement suggest that any investment by the US Government in San Francisco's facilities will likely also be wasted by decay and only require more federal money to maintain.

SFPUC has attempted to avoid dealing with flooding, saying it isn't their problem and blaming the victims of flooding because they live in "low lying areas". SFPUC has accelerated the impacts of sea level rise by closing the outfalls leading to flooding that should not have been seen for another 40-75 years. SFPUC and David Chiu have spent $10millions on legal consultants to avoid dealing with our pollution. Their approach is to fight for the right to dump raw sewage into the bay instead of working on a plan to address the problem rationally. Even if they "win" their lawsuit, the US EPA will still have plenty of authority to require SF to implement David Chiu's very problematic $10billion plan to address pollution. When (not if) SF is finally forced to reduce the over 1.2billion gallons of raw, untreated sewage we discharge every year, it will be doing it under a court order, which like the Regional Board's Cleanup and Abatement Order, will force SF into a corner to fix that problem with little or no real consideration of sea level rise or flooding. The type of project proposed by David Chiu's consultants is likely to make responding to sea level rise much harder.

With thousands of pages of "studies" San Francisco has discussed climate change and rising sea levels, but when faced with having to actually deal with the impacts of sea levels currently backing up our system San Francisco does the opposite of what would actually help the system. Instead of maintaining and improving our system, they have allowed it to degrade to the point that SF residents today are more impacted by storms occurring at lower tides than they were 20 years ago. Needless to say, the ever rising tides we're seeing are even worse.

SF has been able to avoid adequate enforcement of the Clean Water Act over the last 20 years because of powerful political allies in Sacramento and Washington. With the 2019 US EPA forcing them to address the situation and Baykeeper starting the enforcement of the permit violations has this situation started to change. SF has been able to rely on Federal grants and loans to address its problems in the past, but this situation is also changing. The lack of having a clear plan with projects already starting to address all of its problems in a comprehensive manner is not only costing the SFPUC ratepayers billions of dollars, it is starting to negatively impact the other City Depts. attempting to address their needs.
Solutions Not Sandbags is asking all the City Depts. to work together to require SFPUC to address the problems of sewer backups and raw sewage into the Bay and beaches in a way that addresses both the current and future compounding problem of sea level rise.
Thank you

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be improved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,
Ian

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be improved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

Do not cater to the stall-and-obstruct tactics of a very few opponents; do not further extend this process! The City has made expensive, time-consuming mistakes already on Valencia, ignoring the practical experience of cyclists who opposed the center lane, ignoring the lessons from the pandemic of how valuable people-centered street design & use are.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Valencia street is a core travel path for my car-free family, though we often find ourselves going far out of the way to avoid it. The center-running lane has put us in danger multiple times, and we are very excited for Valencia to finally be a safe street for us.

State law is clear that bike infrastructure is exempted from CEQA challenges. Let's follow the law, improve our streets, and make it less stressful for me and my growing family to shop and eat along Valencia.

Thank you,

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be improved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,
Marc Haumann

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be improved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be improved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Dear Rafael,
As a resident of Noe Valley, I ride Valencia every time I'm heading north by bike. The previous iteration of bike lanes between the parked cars and traffic were terrifying to traverse because cars frequently park in the bike lane and delivery drivers dart around as they're rushing about. I urge you to move the street to a safer configuration that will be safer for those using the space and more lively for the street life.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be improved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Drivers need to share the streets. Recall that, even with today's unsafe bicycle and pedestrian infrastructure, and inadequate Muni service, approximately one-third of San Franciscans do not drive. Please approve safe bicycle lanes on Valencia. Thank you.

I live on 14th & Valencia and it's noticeable how much more enjoyable the curbside bike lane experiences as a biker going north to market compared to the mid center running bike lane that's been piloted for the last year or so. Moreover, a consistent experience is the best one for me as a cyclist, both from a comfort and a safety perspective. I am way more willing to stop and shop at businesses on Valencia thanks to the protected bike lanes and hope this updated plan goes forward.

It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be improved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

Dear Board of Supervisors,

I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the CEQA appeal.

First, legal exemptions and city policy reduced the applicability of CEQA to bike lane projects, allowing the city to prioritize safety and sustainable transportation without delay. The CEQA appeal is frivolous and baseless.

Second, the proposed project is necessary to make Valencia Street safer for all users, cyclists, pedestrians and drivers alike. As a family, we frequently bike or walk on Valencia, and delaying this project puts everyone, especially cyclists and pedestrians, at risk.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and to reject the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,
Trish Gump

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

Hello Board of Supervisors,

I commute to Valencia with my four-year-olds. The proposed changes to Mid-Valencia are the safest thing for my family and will make getting to Valencia less of a worry.

I'm hoping the Board can move quickly to approve these changes without further delay or gamesmanship. This project will genuinely improve the lives of families like mine.

Thanks in advance,
Michael, Maddie, and Evie Critz

This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be improved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It's patently absurd that a few bar owners are filing a CEQA appeal to block a bike lane to protect their precious parking. BAR OWNERS.

Thanks for your attention.

Subject: Support for Safer Streets on Valencia: Approve Item #26
Date: Monday, January 27, 2025 4:16:39 PM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

There ain't much in this world more straightforward than a good idea whose time has come. Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and to kindly dismiss the CEQA appeal that stands against this necessary improvement.

For over six years, the City and SFMTA have labored on a safer, more effective design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets. This curbside bike lane design has garnered strong support from neighbors, businessfolk, and advocates alike and already earned unanimous approval from the SFMTA Board of Directors. It's also backed by the law, being categorically exempt from CEQA under SB 922 as a safety project for bikes and pedestrians.

Now is the time to move forward. Replacing the center bikeway with curbside lanes will make Valencia safer for all, more inviting for business, and a better choice for folks wanting to swap cars for bikes, scooters, or their own two feet. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and let SFMTA get to work on installing these long-awaited improvements.

But let's not stop there. The current curbside bike lane design could be even better. By widening the bike lanes and adding more bike and scooter parking, we can make it the gold standard of safety and convenience. And while we're at it, let's extend those curbside lanes further south to Cesar Chavez Street. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia, with its ample roadway width, has been left in limbo for too long. By reviving the 2020 design and approving funding, you'll connect this critical gap and tie Valencia to existing bike infrastructure on Cesar Chavez and beyond.

Finally, let's take this opportunity to look at upgrading the unprotected paint-only bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and San Jose Avenue to proper curbside protected lanes. These improvements will create a safer, more seamless network for everyone traveling sustainably in our city.

In sum, I urge you to approve Item #26, affirm the CEQA statutory exemption, reject the baseless appeal, and help us move forward toward safer, more sustainable streets.

Yours kindly,

John Hamiga

Dear Board of Supervisors, Alongside Streets Forward,

I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported. While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes. I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

Public comment:

The appeal before you lacks legal merits and the CEQA statuary exemption determination for the Mid-Valencia Curbside Bikeway Project falls squarely within the exemptions established by Senate Bill 922, as it is for "pedestrian and bicycle facilities that improve safety, access, or mobility." I urge you to reject the appeal and affirm the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the Project, so SFMTA can begin construction of the curbside bikeways that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help people shift trips from cars to bikes and other forms of sustainable transportation.

In addition to being categorically exempt from CEQA, this project's design—curbside bikeways—has been proven to increase safety for all people (including car drivers), increase revenues for local businesses, and help people shift trips from cars to sustainable transportation. In short, this new design will our city's economy recover while helping to address our roadway safety crisis and climate crisis as well as reduce noise and air pollution, improving quality of life and public health, especially for the people who live on or near Valencia Street, which is part of an Equity Priority Community. Furthermore, the design has been through exhaustive outreach with merchants and residents—after 6+ years of related work by SFMTA on this one, eight-block section of Valencia Street—and a construction working group convened by SFMTA including numerous merchants and nearby residents agreed on construction starting in early January (which was delayed by this appeal).

This project and its design have gone through an exhaustive process and passed every legal test required to proceed. This appeal fails to make a legitimate case for why this project shouldn't proceed, and I urge you to reject the appeal and affirm the CEQA statutory exemption determination so SFMTA, Valencia merchants, and the people of San Francisco can move forward with a thoughtfully created, proposed, and approved design.

Thank you.

Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

Dear President Mandelman, Supervisor Fielder, and Supervisors,

My name is Matt Hill, and I live in District 9 and use a bicycle as my primary means for transportation, often riding with my children either in my cargo bike or alongside me on their own bikes.

I am writing to urge you to approve Item #26 affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project. This project will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation.

SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years. This curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors.

It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

The curbside bike lane design can also be improved by doing the following:

- widening the bike lanes
- increasing on-street bike/scooter parking
- extending the curbside bike lanes south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets.

Please urge SFMTA to update its design for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes.

Again, I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you for your time,
Matt Hill

Hello Board of Supervisors,

As a concerned Valencia Street resident, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

Also, the use of the current center bike lane has been abused as an emergency vehicle lane with rampant speeding, often by the SFPD, resulting in bicyclists having to be pushed into oncoming traffic to make room for the vehicle. This current setup goes against the city and county's Vision Zero. A change must be made soon.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. Dear Board of Supervisors,

I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation.

SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia.
Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported. While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets.

Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue.

Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes. I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it. Thank you,

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement. We have been through enough trying to make Valencia safer for everyone and trying to accommodate all concerns. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design could be improved by widening the bike lane and extending the curbside bike lanes south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. As a senior bicyclist, it is scary to run out of bike lane. I urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,
Kieran

Dear Board of Supervisors, Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported. While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. I live near the intersection of 22nd Street and Bartlett. Like many of my neighbors, I am dismayed that local business owners are putting their own convenience over the safety of residents like me and my family.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

I'm a Western Addition resident who loves to shop & dine in the Mission and uses the bike lane for my bike commute when I go to Lowe's, Flowercraft, or anything in the Portola or Visitacion Valley or Bernal Heights or Outer Mission neighborhoods. Over the decades, I've commuted from Noe Valley downtown, from the Western Addition to Visitation Valley, from mid-Market to the Mission, all using bikes, and all using this street. I hope to continue using it for decades - and cars are getting bigger and driving is getting worse - please protect everyone from 8 to 80 with comprehensive protected bike lanes.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,
Joel Kin

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. Dear Board of Supervisors,

I didn't love the center running bike lanes when they first went in, but they were and continue to be better than the paint-only lanes that preceded them.

I don't love that we are tearing those out and doing curb side protected lanes. I think that it's going to take a bunch of time and money and Valencia is going to be torn up for half a year (again) while they re-do the bike lanes.

I hate that changing the lane design is a higher priority than extending them down to Cesar Chavez.

But the worst possible solution would be to tear out the middle lane and revert to old/no painted bike lanes. Valencia is a key north-south route and clearly it needs good bike infrastructure. There are a couple of merchants who are trying to sue their way back to the no-bike-lane configuration and clearly they should be ignored.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,
Joaquin

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Valencia is the only street with a bike lane for almost a mile wide of SF by our home. Please give my son and my self one single safe bike lane to avoid expensive polluting car rides. I urge you to be the progressive city you claim to be. Stop forcing families to drive cars everywhere.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

With climate change continuing unabated, the future of our planet demands that you do everything in your power to make getting around in San Francisco with no car easier as much as possible. To that end, San Francisco must approve new protected bike lanes by right, every time a street is resurfaced. Valencia, in particular, is a good example — the center lane bikeways have spectacularly failed as a way for bikers to be safe and to get to their destination easily and predictably, and the Board of Supervisors should wholeheartedly approve the shift to side-running protected bike lanes by approving item #26 on tomorrow's agenda.

Affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement — will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. Dear Board of Supervisors,

I have lived in San Francisco for the last 17 years, all of that within a block of the Valencia Street corridor. I bike, walk, take muni, and drive in the areas around the Valencia Bikeway project. I have two young children who I bike with often, and whose safety is my constant concern.

The Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,
Kaly Trezos

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,
Jules, D4 resident

Dear Board of Supervisors,

I bike down Valencia Street daily, and the removal of any kind of protected bike lanes would make the street unusable for cyclists. Cars double park in the bike lanes all the time without some kind of barrier, resulting in cyclists having to swerve into traffic or come to a sudden stop. Cars have enough places to drive and park on adjacent streets to continue supporting business on Valencia street.

I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. FYI - All I want to add to this letter that I'm signing onto in my personal capacity is that it's shit like this that makes me loathe CEQA more and more with each passing month. It's clear to me that every time this is invoked, it's not for things that are objectively better for the environment, it's purely a stalling and NIMBYism tactic designed to basically replicate the concept of discretionary review with 1000 pages of bullshit "analysis" and let people who file CEQA appeals cosplay as caring about the environment when they clearly don't.

Do better. Pass a resolution next month calling on Governor Newsom and the CA Legislature to reform or entirely repeal CEQA. This law has outlived its usefulness and it's ruining the state of California and inhibiting our ability to actually tackle climate change.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

Richard Frankel

Dear Board of Supervisors,

You have the chance to make a big step towards making our streets for people, not just for cars. Please approve item #26, so the Valencia curbside bike lane can move forward! Bike lanes calm traffic, making streets safer for everyone, and bring demonstrated economic benefits to the corridors they are installed on because they slow down traffic and encourage people to stop in businesses. What's more, we need to lead on encouraging folks to choose modes of transportation other than cars--public transit, bikes, scooters, and walking--if we are to have a hope of reducing the worst impacts of climate change. The fact is that so many people continue to rely on their cars because our built environment does not offer good alternatives. I'm writing today to ask you to make a step toward offering good alternatives.

It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Let's make the city's policy Vision Zero instead of Zero Vision.

Thank you,
Laura Maguire

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

In collaboration with Streets Forward, I strongly urge you to approve Item #26. This resolution affirms the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project. It also rejects the unfounded CEQA appeal to this improvement, which aims to enhance the safety of Valencia Street for all pedestrians and cyclists, foster economic growth, and encourage more people to switch from cars to sustainable modes of transportation.

The SFMTA and the City have been diligently working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years. This curbside bike lane design has garnered overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants. Moreover, it has received unanimous approval from the SFMTA Board of Directors.

Furthermore, this improvement is explicitly exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project under SB 922. It is imperative that the City takes decisive action and initiates the installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been meticulously designed and are widely supported.

I kindly request that you affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow the SFMTA to commence the installation of these much-needed curbside bike lanes.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed, and the appeal rejected, the curbside bike lane design can be approved. Notably, this can be achieved by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking. Additionally, the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, which would close the critical gap between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets.

In your role as the SFCTA Board, please urge the SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for the curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has ample roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes. However, there are only two parklets, both of which existed and were designed for in 2020. Moreover, this stretch connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue, which facilitates access to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue.

Furthermore, I urge the SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

In conclusion, I strongly recommend approving Item #26, which affirms the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejects the unfounded CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,
Nathan Spindel

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Some of you may remember the baseless CEQA appeal by Rob Anderson, which held up any improvement to the city's bike plan for about a decade, if memory serves.

Prevented from moving forward on 34 miles of improvements to San Francisco's bike lanes, cyclists in this city had to make do in dangerous circumstances while the city and the SFMTA used their resources to fight an absolutely absurd abuse of the CEQA process and review.

The objection by the Mission street merchants is this moment, all over again. I hope you reject it.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

Michael Smith

I forgot to mention that I now live in Lower Haight and use Valencia regularly to buy groceries including salmon from Sun Fat Seafood just yesterday. This is a vital corridor for me.

I remember biking home from work and being forced out of the bike lane because a car was parked in the bike lane. I chose to stay in the car lane because up ahead right after the stoplight there was a second car parked in the bike lane. A taxi came up from behind me and passed me on the right by driving half in the bike lane and half in the car lane right next to me. The taxi then crosses in front of me to get into the left hand turning lane and slams his breaks because it's a red light at the intersection. To avoid getting hit I was forced to swerve to the left into the left turning lane and hit the driver side door of the taxi. I have many other stories like this including making a 911 call because a guy got out of his car trying to fight me because I asked him to move out of the bike lane, and another time when a toxic biker spat on a car parked in the bike lane which caused the driver to use his car to shove the bicyclist into a parklet while also endangering my life. I would be happy to meet in person or over the phone to describe these stories in detail. Luke is an excellent advocate and representative of my interests which I copied below.

Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes. I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it. Thank you,

Best,

Will Ashley

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. Dear Board of Supervisors,

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project. This project, which will create protected bike lanes on Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets, has overwhelming support from residents, merchants, and advocates, plus unanimous approval from the SFMTA Board of Directors. The project is categorically exempt from CEQA under SB 922 as a bike and pedestrian safety improvement.

While supporting the current proposal, I also recommend widening the bike lanes, adding more bike/scooter parking, and extending the protected lanes south to Cesar Chavez Street. This extension would help connect cyclists to existing bike infrastructure on Cesar Chavez and San Jose Avenue.

Please approve Item #26 and reject the CEQA appeal so SFMTA can begin installation of these vital safety improvements.

Thank you,
Malone

SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be approved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to the bike lane on Valencia exactly as it is now. Riding in the middle lane feels far safer than the unprotected bike lane and even than the protected bike lane ((the section between 14 - 16 street)

Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. This 3.5-block stretch of Valencia has more than enough roadway width to accommodate curbside bike lanes, only two parklets—both of which existed, and were designed for, in 2020. It also connects people on bikes and scooters to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez and the modal filter at Duncan Street / Tiffany Avenue that helps people get to the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on San Jose Avenue. Please also urge SFMTA to upgrade the paint-only, unprotected bike lanes on Cesar Chavez Street and San Jose Avenue to curbside protected bike lanes.

I urge you to approve Item #26, affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project and rejecting the baseless CEQA appeal against it.

Thank you,

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Alongside Streets Forward, I urge you to approve Item #26—affirming the CEQA statutory exemption determination for the SFMTA Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway Project—and reject the baseless CEQA appeal of this improvement that will make Valencia Street safer for all people, better for business, and help more people shift trips from cars to bikes, scooters, and other modes of sustainable transportation. SFMTA and the City have been working on an effective bike lane design for Valencia Street between 15th and 23rd Streets for over six years, this curbside bike lane design has overwhelming support from residents, advocates, and merchants, and unanimous approval by the SFMTA Board of Directors. Additionally, this improvement is categorically exempt from CEQA as a bike and pedestrian safety project per SB 922. It's time for the City to move forward with replacing the center bikeway with curbside bike lanes on this eight-block stretch of Valencia. Please affirm the statutory exemption determination, reject the appeal, and allow SFMTA to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes that have been designed and are overwhelmingly supported.

While the statutory exemption determination should be affirmed—and the appeal rejected—the curbside bike lane design can be improved, notably by widening the bike lanes and increasing on-street bike/scooter parking, and the curbside bike lanes should be extended south on Valencia to Cesar Chavez Street, closing the critical gap of Valencia between 23rd and Cesar Chavez Streets. Please urge SFMTA to update its design from 2020 for curbside bike lanes between 23rd and Cesar Chavez and approve funding in your role as the SFCTA Board. Dear Members of the Board of Supervisors,

My name is Shiba Bandeeba. I am a Policy Associate at GLIDE in our Center for Social Justice and a member of FreeSF. I wanted to commend this board for their leadership and solidarity in unanimously supporting the Sanctuary City Resolution introduced by Supervisor Jackie Fielder.

Today, I write in solidarity with our undocumented and mixed status community members to urge this board to fully support this resolution and pass it through with positive recommendations.

Under the current presidential administration, our communities of color will be impacted by major decisions around the reframing of our immigration policies and use of fear mongering tactics to destabilize the everyday lives of San Francisco residents.

San Francisco has been a leader and model to other states, cities and localities in creating strong Sanctuary City Ordinances since 1989. Our city is a refuge for all who are seeking immigration protections; we must continue to offer the right to due process within the criminal legal system, as well as secure and strengthen local legal support to protect targeted communities.

We know that aggressive criminal justice initiatives like threats to detain and deport members of our families do not keep our communities safe nor well informed about their constitutional rights. Our city's Sanctuary Ordinance protects local rights of residents and families, ensuring that our local tax dollars are used to promote public safety measures for all San Franciscians.Family separation through mass deportation efforts are traumatic and costly and do not contribute to the safety and economic vitality of our city.

As community members, we call on this board to stand in the values of San Francisco by standing in solidarity with immigrant communities and advocates, upholding our Sanctuary City policies, and ensuring that the rights of our residents are protected.

Thank you.

Dear Supervisors,

My name is Calder Lorenz, I live and work in the Mission District, and I am the Director of Community Engagement for The Gubbio Project. I am writing to voice our strong support for Supervisor Fielder's resolution affirming sanctuary in our City.

The Gubbio Project's mission is to be in community with and to provide a sacred space and sanctuary for unhoused people in need of safe, compassionate respite during the day. Our program is housed at St. John's in the Mission and currently provides critical services to 100 individuals daily through a highly unique and successful model that combines social justice, peer support, and harm reduction. The Gubbio Project calls for a more just, compassionate and non-punitive approach by public agencies and policymakers. Rooted in Franciscan values of justice, interconnectedness, and compassion, The Gubbio Project supports immigrant rights as an expression of our commitment to welcoming the stranger, honoring the interconnectedness of all creation, and advocating for the vulnerable.

Supervisor Fielder's Sanctuary Ordinance upholds our values of inclusivity, equality, and dignity

- Refugees and immigrants, comprising one in every three San Francisco residents, are a vital part of our city's heart and identity.
- San Francisco's historic Sanctuary Ordinance, adopted in 1989 and one of the first in the country, is critical to upholding our values of equality and inclusion, and to building strong, safe communities.
- Immigrants are a vital and inseparable part of our city, our families, communities, workplaces, and neighborhoods.
- We believe in equality and opportunity for all. San Francisco should not use our local resources to deport immigrants and undermine community trust.

Sanctuary laws strengthen community safety

- Our Sanctuary ordinance promotes community safety. This long-standing law helps victims and witnesses, including survivors of domestic violence, come forward to get the help they need without fear of deportation.
- Study after study has confirmed the public safety benefits of Sanctuary policies. Cities and counties with Sanctuary policies have less crime and are more economically prosperous.
- Our Sanctuary Ordinance keeps families together and ensures our local tax dollars are used to promote safety for all San Franciscans, not to separate families through mass deportation.
    - Sanctuary ensures that all San Francisco residents can participate in our communities. Everyone deserves to feel safe bringing their children to school and accessing care and support - such as going to the hospital - without fear of discrimination based on the color of their skin or being subjected to ICE detention and deportation.

    - Sanctuary policies ensure that local law enforcement does not assist ICE with deportations and have kept thousands and thousands of families together.
- San Francisco was one of the first Sanctuary cities in the country and has led the way for over 350 other jurisdictions to adopt Sanctuary laws.
    - California has a statewide Sanctuary law, SB 54, enacted under Trump's first-term.
    - Counties throughout the Bay Area also have been adopting local policies to not assist with deportations. All nine Bay Area counties, as well as counties with large immigration populations like Los Angeles, have moved toward adopting policies that create a bright line separation from ICE.

Ending the District Attorney's collusion with federal agencies

- Throughout the past year, the San Francisco District Attorney's collusion with federal agencies has set up a two-tiered system of justice that discriminates against and deprives immigrants of due process, fast-tracks people into deportation, and subjects victims of labor trafficking to life-threatening conditions.
- The DA must end this practice because it funnels our communities into Trump's deportation machine, and violates the consensus we have on sanctuary today.
- When Trump has already stoked so much fear in our communities, the collusion between the DA and federal agencies makes it harder for people to show up to their local court hearings for fear of immigration enforcement.
    - This practice has led to traumatic arrests, including that of several young mothers, at the San Francisco courthouse. It singles out and scapegoats the immigrant community for the tragic fentanyl overdose crisis, and violates our consensus on San Francisco's historic Sanctuary law, which is crucial to building strong, safe communities.
- Today, when hateful, anti-immigrant rhetoric is on the rise across the country, we staunchly oppose any efforts to scapegoat our friends, family, and neighbors who are immigrants.

We know that now is the time to support our community through a collective coming together so that we can stand with the most vulnerable in our society and community, leading with love and courage.

In Community, C

Dear Supervisors,
I am writing to urge you in the strongest possible terms to approve Supervisor Fielder's resolution affirming San Francisco's long standing Sanctuary City ordinance. I am a fifty year resident of San Francisco and also a leading member of the California Coalition for Women Prisoners (CCWP) which includes incarcerated and formerly incarcerated members, many of whom are immigrants. I am proud that San Francisco was one of the first cities in the country to adopt a sanctuary ordinance in 1989 which reflects our historic values of equality and inclusion which are fundamental for building strong and safe communities.

As an organization that works to defend and support women and transgender people who have been caught up in the criminal legal system, I want to particularly focus on the harmful, violating role that D.A. Jenkins is playing regarding justice for immigrants which is antithetical to sanctuary values. The District Attorney's collusion with federal agencies has set up a two-tiered system of justice that discriminates against and deprives immigrants of due process, fast-tracks people into deportation, and subjects victims of labor trafficking to life-threatening conditions.
The DA must end this practice because it funnels our communities into Trump's deportation machine, and violates San Francisco's consensus on sanctuary!

When Trump has already stoked so much fear in our communities, the collusion between the DA and federal agencies makes it harder for people to show up to their local court hearings for fear of immigration enforcement.
This practice has led to traumatic arrests, including that of several young mothers, at the San Francisco courthouse. I am unable to attend Tuesday's Board of Supervisor meeting but I sincerely hope that you will listen to my heartfelt comments as well as all those you will hear at the meeting and approve Supervisor Fielder's resolution!

Hello,

I go to school in San Francisco, have family in San Francisco, and we all live and work throughout the Bay Area. I'm comforted by Supervisor Fielder's resolution re-affirming the city's sanctuary policy but I am still frightened and angry about the reasons we have to do this. I urge every city and town in California to follow suit -- to become a sanctuary city, if they're not one already, and to commit to protecting our family, friends, and neighbors. We need to make sure that our resources are not being used to inhumanely displace people.

I'm especially concerned about people who are undocumented and have been incarcerated. These people face double vulnerability. I'm also concerned about children in our public school system. One of my family members is a public school teacher and the teachers are running drills and refreshing themselves on what to do if ICE is on school grounds. It's a shame that they have to do that, but we must stay vigilant. I urge the city to pass this resolution and for our local politicians to continue to voice that we want California to be a SANCTUARY STATE FOR ALL. Movement and migration are human rights. Movement and migration are beautiful.

Thank you,
Grace

Date:	Tuesday, January 28, 2025 5:38:47 PM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

My name is Jennifer “JDub” Waggoner and I am speaking today on behalf of the League of Women Voters of San Francisco in SUPPORT of item #37 the resolution reaffirming Sanctuary.

Thank you to all for unanimously supporting this resolution.

San Francisco made a lot of cuts in the last budget cycle to close a significant deficit. Limiting entanglement with federal immigration enforcement conserves San Francisco's precious resources so that we fund what our City needs most. As a Sanctuary City, San Francisco doesn't spend money and staff time assisting federal immigration officials. That is a direct cost we avoid, freeing up money to use on San Francisco's priorities.

But the indirect costs of collaborating with federal immigration enforcement are just as important to consider.

Collaboration with ICE is associated with housing instability, chronic student absenteeism, low birth weight, negative child well-being, and decreased use of preventive and prenatal care for immigrant communities and their children. Collaboration with federal immigration enforcement makes us less trusting of institutions, like schools, hospitals, & first responders. San Francisco is healthier and more trusting thanks to Sanctuary. How much would the negative impacts of collaborating with ICE increase costs for San Francisco?

One final highlight: San Franciscans want to feel safe. Sanctuary makes us all safer. According to new research released in November 2024 by Eric Baumer of Pennsylvania State University and Min Xie of the University of Maryland, partnerships with ICE only increased risk for violent victimization, especially among Latinos. These same researchers found that Sanctuary policies did not correlate with higher levels of crime. Why would we collaborate with federal immigration enforcement to make San Franciscans less safe?

In closing: Sanctuary is a cost saving, data-driven policy that enhances public safety and community well-being for all.

Dear San Francisco Board of Supervisors,

I write this brief note today as a first generation San Franciscan and as a longtime member of Amnesty International USA local group 30, San Francisco. Amnesty International campaigns for a world where human rights can be enjoyed by everyone, no matter what situation they are in. Amnesty has championed the human rights of refugees, asylum seekers and migrants for decades.

Refugees and immigrants are a vital part of San Francisco's heart, soul and identity, inseparable from our families, communities, workplaces, and neighborhoods. San Francisco's historic Sanctuary Ordinance is one of the first in the country and led the way for over 350 jurisdictions to adopt Sanctuary laws. California's statewide Sanctuary law, SB 54, was enacted under Trump's first-term and all nine Bay Area counties have moved toward adopting policies to protect our families and community members from ICE.

Today, when hateful, anti-immigrant rhetoric is on the rise across the country, and around the world, I staunchly oppose any efforts to scapegoat our friends, colleagues, family, and neighbors. San Francisco should NOT use our local resources to deport people and to undermine community trust. Keeping families together and standing up for human rights FOR ALL must be a top priority for San Francisco, and beyond.

We must continue to stand up for human rights for ALL. Now more than ever.

I strongly support the resolution for San Francisco to remain a sanctuary City.

I am a San Francisco resident, and a parishioner at St Teresa of Avila Catholic Church at 1490 19th Street in San Francisco. Our church became a sanctuary Church in the mid-1980s, and advocated for the city's decision to become a sanctuary city in 1989. Our then pastor, Father Peter Sammon, visited Guatemala with Mayor Art Agnos in 1990. Becoming a sanctuary church and city is an important part of San Francisco history. Sanctuary is also our legacy.

Our status as a sanctuary city is one of the things that distinguishes San Francisco from other big cities around the country, just like the Golden Gate Bridge. We are sanctuary city, we are a diverse city, we are a clean energy city, we are an equal marriage rights city. We are San Francisco.

Immigrants and their families contribute to the vibrancy of our community and of our economy. All four of my grandparents were immigrants with little education. Our families have thrived in San Francisco. All of us will suffer if undocumented immigrants are deported.

Today, the fear of deportation, whether valid or not, is taking its toll on school children. Threats of deportation have become a form of schoolyard bullying. No child should have to live in fear of losing their parents or their homes.

Please be the city where families can stay together.

Sincerely yours

To the Board of Supervisors,

I wanted to provide the following public comment on agenda item #37 for today's meeting.

As a San Francisco resident and life-long resident of the Bay Area, I am writing to express my unwavering support for Supervisor Fielder's resolution affirming our city's status as a sanctuary city. In this political moment where the Trump administration is sowing so much fear and division in our country, San Francisco has a responsibility to remain firm in our status as a sanctuary city. Immigrants are a vital part of our community and this has been true of our city's identity throughout our city's history. Our tax dollars should be spent to promote safety for all San Franciscans so that everyone feels safe at school, work, or even receiving care at the hospital, without fear of detention or deportation by ICE. Our law enforcement has no place assisting with these inhumane acts by ICE. Today, when hateful, anti-immigrant rhetoric is on the rise across the country, we staunchly oppose any efforts to scapegoat our friends, family, and neighbors who are immigrants. Our community is counting on our local elected officials to prioritize every member of our community regardless of their immigration status, and to focus on making our city safer for everyone rather than colluding with the federal government. Thank you to Supervisor Fielder for reaffirming our city's values of inclusivity, equality, and dignity through her resolution.

Best,
Paige Rossi

“Good afternoon President Mandelman, Supervisor Fielder, and Supervisors,

My name is Lawrence Montgomery, and I am a member of the San Francisco Bicycle Coalition. I live in District Nine, a proud Bernal Hill biker!
I am here to ask that you oppose the appeal before you today. The Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway went through a robust public planning process and was unanimously approved by the SFMTA Board of Directors on November 19th last year, and is already fully in line with our City’s climate and sustainable transportation goals.
The Mid-Valencia Bikeway project is long overdue and the bikeway is of vital, immediate concern for serious number commuters in that corridor.

- Valencia Street has been a key north-south corridor for people on bikes and active transportation for decades, because of its direct connection with other key corridors like San Jose Ave, 17th Street, and Market Street.

- It’s the flattest, low-grade street compared to parallel streets like Dolores or Guerrero. The biking community wants to see Valencia businesses thrive, and we want to work with the city to support the corridor’s recovery. This must not be done at the expense of safety for people biking and rolling.

Please oppose the appeal before you today so we can stop delaying life-saving infrastructure from being built and keep the project on its construction timeline. Thank you for your time.”

Hi Board of Supervisors,

I'm emailing to express my support for the Valencia Street center-running bike lane and my disappointment about the plans to remove it. The curbside lane design that was recently approved by the SFMTA board would be a huge step backwards, both for cyclists and for anyone trying to find parking on the corridor. The recent protest against that plan by some Valencia merchants gave me a ray of hope that we could step back from this Solomon's baby compromise.

While I was initially skeptical of the center-running lane, I now believe it's one of the best places to bike in the city. I live near 23rd and Valencia and regularly bike the length of Valencia for my commute. The portion with the center-running lane is the safest I feel biking on any road in San Francisco (aside from the car free part of JFK).

I recently collided with a car when they cut me off to pull into a driveway. This was on the side-running lane on Valencia between 15th and 14th. That would have never occurred on the center running lane, where bikes and cars have wild fields of view to see each other, and don't need to cross paths.

Even before this, I felt less safe in these lanes because pedestrians could pop out at any time and cars could come in or out of driveways. I also hate waiting for the lights at Duboce and 14th - they take forever because bikes and cars are on different signals.
Based on the recent report from the city controller's office (https://www.sf.gov/sites/default/files/2024-06/Valencia%20Economic%20Context%20final.pdf), the lane is not the cause of the corridor's financial difficulties.

Thank you for listening!

-Sandy

I remember how bad biking on Valencia Street was before the new bike lanes were built. It was so bad that volunteers would stand on the edge of the street to prevent cars from running into cyclists.

Since the new lanes on Valencia Street have been added, it's such a nicer street for walking and riding. I'm sad to hear the lane is getting changed to the sides (I really like the center lanes), but I'm terrified that a small group of business owners are trying to turn Valencia Street back into the nightmare it was before. Please do not let that happen.

There are so many areas in our neighborhood where I'm scared to cross the street as a pedestrian, but Valencia Street (between 23rd and 15th) is so much nicer for walking and shopping now. I'm a huge fan of these improvements, and I hope to see SFMTA do more to slow down traffic (especially on the southern part of Valencia Street, which never got updated like the rest). Our city can do so much more for pedestrians, mass transit, cyclists, skateboarders, scooter riders, and everyone else. Making our streets safe for pedestrians will bring back business and bring life back to our city.

I oppose installation of permanent bike lanes on Valencia. The street has been given over to cyclists at the expense of local merchants. I no longer can take my pets to the same vet I have seen for 30 years (Mission Pet Hospital) because the city will take out its only remaining street parking. At age 73, it's prohibitive to walk the mile to my vet's carrying two 15# carriers.

Valencia St has been a mess for several years. Remove the bike lanes, relocate them to So Van Ness or Folsom St, and let the businesses on Valencia thrive.

Before any kind of protection for people on bikes went in on Mid-Valencia, the corridor averaged a bike-involved collision every two weeks. Dear Board of Supervisors,

My name is Rebecca Page and I am a member of the SF Bicycle Coalition. I live in the Mission District and commute by bicycle daily. The members of my family commute to school, work, and our other activities primarily by walking, cycling, riding Muni or driving throughout the Mission and other neighborhoods of the City.

I write to ask that you oppose the appeal before you today. The Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway went through a robust public planning process and was unanimously approved by the SFMTA Board of Directors on November 19 last year, and is already fully in line with our City's climate and sustainable transportation goals.

This appeal does not align with state law. Under SB922, SB288, and more recently SB71, active transportation projects have statutory exemption from environmental review because they improve pedestrian and bicycle safety by constructing safe street infrastructure—which promotes our City's transit-first policy, Vision Zero, and sustainable transportation goals.

Before any kind of protection for people on bikes went in on Mid-Valencia, the corridor averaged a bike-involved collision every two weeks. Before we had the protected center bike lanes, I would bike home from work in the dark on Valencia Street and have to repeatedly change into the car lane to move around illegally double-parked vehicles at the curb -- it was dangerous and frightening. The rate of bike-involved collisions has dropped by 20% with the installation of separated lanes.

Please oppose the appeal before you today and help ensure we stop delaying life-saving infrastructure from being built and keep the Mid-Valencia project on its construction timeline. The Mission community wants to see Valencia businesses thrive, and we want to work with the city to support the corridor's recovery. This must not be done at the expense of safety for people biking and rolling.

Thank you for your time.

I am here to ask that you oppose the appeal before you today. The Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway went through a robust public planning process and was unanimously approved by the SFMTA Board of Directors on November 19th last year, and is already fully in line with our City's climate and sustainable transportation goals.

1. The biking community wants to see Valencia businesses thrive, and we want to work with the city to support the corridor's recovery. This must not be done at the expense of safety for people biking and rolling.
2. All of the work MTA staff did to meet with merchants and stakeholders was presented at the SFMTA Board of Directors hearing on November 19th, 2024 where the board unanimously approved the project.
3. SB922, SB288, and more recently SB71, active transportation projects have statutory exemption from environmental review because they improve pedestrian and bicycle safety by constructing safe street infrastructure—which promotes our City's transit-first policy, Vision Zero, and sustainable transportation goals.

Please oppose the appeal before you today so we can stop delaying life-saving infrastructure from being built and keep the project on its construction timeline. Thank you for your time.

Dear President Mandelman, Supervisor Fielder, and Supervisors,

My name is Katarina, and I am a member of the San Francisco Bicycle Coalition and an e-cyclist. I live in Presidio Heights, work in FIDI, and frequently visit Divis and Valencia corridors to enjoy the dining, entertainment, and retail scenes.

I am writing to ask that you oppose the Valencia Bikeway Project appeal before you tomorrow during the hearing.

As a proud 3rd generation Bay Area resident, there is nothing I want more than to see the city thrive. The biking community wants to see Valencia businesses thrive, and we want to work with the city to support the corridor's recovery. This must not be done at the expense of safety for people biking and rolling. I only started biking in San Francisco in the past two years, and it has unlocked an entirely new connection and appreciation for the city. I have visited businesses throughout the city in areas that I've previously avoided due to difficulty finding convenient transit. Safe streets unlock a whole new way to explore neighborhoods and businesses for many San Franciscans.

The Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway went through a robust public planning process and was unanimously approved by the SFMTA Board of Directors on November 19th last year, and it is already fully in line with our City's climate and sustainable transportation goals. Additionally, SFMTA staff met with nearly every merchant within the project scope multiple times and formed a construction working group made up of merchants and advocates for a smooth roll out of the project. All of this work that MTA staff did to meet with merchants and stakeholders was presented at the SFMTA Board of Directors when the board unanimously approved the project.

Please oppose the appeal before you tomorrow so we can stop delaying life-saving infrastructure from being built and keep the project on its construction timeline. Thank you for your time.

Good afternoon President Mandelman, Supervisor Fielder, and Supervisors,

My name is Ellie Harmon and I am a member of the San Francisco Bicycle Coalition. I live near the intersection of 15th and Market.

I am writing to ask that you oppose the appeal before you today. The Mid-Valencia Curbside Protected Bikeway went through a robust public planning process and was unanimously approved by the SFMTA Board of Directors on November 19th last year, and is already fully in line with our City's climate and sustainable transportation goals.

As a mom who doesn't own a car but does own a box bike, Valencia is a critical pathway for our family to get from our home to south mission, Noe Valley, and Glen Park.

The biking community wants to see Valencia businesses thrive, and we want to work with the city to support the corridor's recovery. Making Valencia a pleasant place to bike and walk will bring the foot traffic that helps local businesses thrive.

Please oppose the appeal before you today so we can stop delaying life-saving infrastructure from being built and keep the project on its construction timeline.

This appeal does not align with state law. Under SB922, SB288, and more recently SB71, active transportation projects have statutory exemption from environmental review because they improve pedestrian and bicycle safety by constructing safe street infrastructure—which promotes our City's transit-first policy, Vision Zero, and sustainable transportation goals.

Moreover it is unacceptable to let a very small group of people circumvent the lengthy and public planning process that has already happened for the Valencia corridor.

Thank you for your time.

- Before any kind of protection for people on bikes went in on Mid-Valencia, the corridor averaged a bike-involved collision every two weeks. That rate has dropped by 20% with the installation of separated lanes.

- The biking community wants to see Valencia businesses thrive, and we want to work with the city to support the corridor's recovery. This must not be done at the expense of safety for people biking and rolling.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

I'm writing to express my support for the CEQA exemption for the Valencia street protected bikeway project. The CEQA appeal of this project is an attempt to stall work that unquestionably has a positive environmental impact. Additionally, SB 922 clearly states that CEQA "exempts from its requirements bicycle transportation plans for an urbanized area", which clearly covers this project.

In addition to the environmental benefits, the project will also make Valencia street much safer and more pleasant for pedestrians and cyclists. It will improve access to local business and build a stronger community along the street. This project has been going on for more than six years at this point and has been through countless cycles of review already, it should not be delayed further.

Please affirm the statutory exemption determination and reject this baseless appeal. SFMTA should be allowed to begin installation of the curbside bike lanes.

Thank you,
Jake Brabec

It's depressing to read that there has been a last minute appeal to the plan to build protected bike lanes along the middle part of Valencia.
I have been riding this street for 25 years, as it is a crucial corridor for cyclists. The idea of moving the bike lane to Guerrero, which I have heard suggested, is ridiculous since Guerrero is a hilly street that has a lot of freeway traffic on it.
I am currently in Europe, admiring bicycle infrastructure in poorer cities than San Francisco. Why does SF lag behind these established best practices and continually stall and backtrack on non-car facilities.
Please vote for the Valencia project to commence without delay.

I respectfully request that the following email correspondence (attached) be entered into the record for the upcoming January 28, 2025 hearing on the Valencia Street Bike Lane CEQA Appeal. In light of City staff's recent response (January 27), I believe the current plan—where the bike lane weaves in and out around curbside parklets—risks serious safety concerns and compromises key local businesses on Valencia Street.

Reasons to Deny the Appeal with Conditions Requiring a Continuous Curbside Lane:

- Safety: A fully uninterrupted curbside bike lane reduces vehicle-bicycle conflict points. Any design that forces cyclists into the travel lane or around floating parklets increases collision potential.
- Business Vitality: Legacy businesses like Mission Pet Hospital rely on safe and convenient curbside loading for customers—especially those transporting sick or injured pets. Relocating or removing defunct or noncompliant parklets (e.g., lacking sponsors or with electrical violations) would free up needed loading zones and foster a more efficient roadway.
- City Authority & Economic Benefits: As outlined in my attached letters from Jan. 16, local codes (SF Admin. Code § 94A, Public Works Code §§ 793 et seq., plus DPW Orders) clearly permit the City to remove or relocate parklets for higher-priority infrastructure. A streamlined curbside bikeway supports pedestrian/bike safety, reduces congestion, and promotes healthy commerce along the corridor.

Thank you for your consideration. Please deny the CEQA appeal with conditions requiring that all curbside parklets be relocated so the bikeway can remain continuous along the curb. Doing so will uphold our shared goals of safety, accessibility, and economic vitality on Valencia Street.

Sincerely,
Michael Turon

I agree with the safety concern about cars crossing the bike lane. Isn't that the point of having the bike lane next to the curb? Can we have the bike lane come in next to the curb in front of Mission Pet Hospital? Then cars pulling into the drop off zone will not be crossing the bike lane.
Please help us. Losing all access to drop off in front of our hospital will be devastating. We are a veterinary hospital that has served this community for 45 years. We employ 40 people. This will affect our service to the community significantly.

Simply bringing the bike lane into the curb and allowing us to have 2 spots in front of our hospital will solve the problem. There is definitely room to bring the bike lane into the curb and preserve 2 parking spots.

I know you want what is best for our community and for the local businesses. Please help us.

Thank you,

Re: CEQA Determination – Valencia Street Bike Lane Project

(Rejecting CEQA Appeal with Conditions)

Dear Honorable Members of the Board of Supervisors:

I. Notes on the Approach

1. Statutory Exemption & Board Authority

This final letter supports the SFMTA's statutory exemption under CEQA but clarifies that the Board retains broad authority to manage the public right-of-way.

2. Imposing Conditions to Ensure Safety

Imposing conditions (such as relocating or removing parklets) does not invalidate the statutory exemption, provided it does not expand the Project's scope to new or substantially different environmental impacts.

3. Local Parklet Removal/Relocation Codes

Local codes (e.g., SF Admin. Code § 94A, Public Works Code §§ 793 et seq.) allow the City to relocate or remove parklets to accommodate higher-priority transportation improvements—here, a continuous curbside bike lane supporting pedestrian and bicyclist safety.

II. Background

The San Francisco Municipal Transportation Agency ("SFMTA") has relied on CEQA Guidelines section 15282(j) (and Public Resources Code §§ 21080.20, 21080.20.5) to claim a statutory exemption for the Valencia Street Bike Lane Project ("Project"). This Project includes side-running protected bike lanes, pedestrian safety enhancements, and parking/loading changes between 15th and 23rd Streets.

Under the 2009 San Francisco Bicycle Plan Environmental Impact Report ("Bicycle Plan EIR"), potential environmental effects of various citywide bicycle improvements (including Valencia Street) were previously analyzed. Therefore, the SFMTA argues that no additional environmental documentation is required, and that the statutory exemption applies.

III. Rejecting the CEQA Appeal with Conditions

1. Statutory Exemption Justification

- The Project appears to meet the criteria for a statutory exemption covering bicycle facilities in urbanized areas. Because this is not a categorical exemption, the "unusual circumstances" exception from Berkeley Hillside Preservation v. City of Berkeley (2015) 60 Cal.4th 1086 does not apply.

[1] bos.legislation@sfgov.org
[2] No. 9589 0710 5270 1120 4804 58

- The prior Bicycle Plan EIR provides substantial evidence that citywide bicycle infrastructure—particularly a protected bike lane on Valencia—does not pose any unmitigated significant environmental impacts.

2. Condition: Relocation of All Parklets for a Continuous Curbside Bike Lane

- Local Authority: San Francisco Administrative Code, Chapter 94A, and Public Works Code §§ 793 et seq. grant the Board, Public Works, and SFMTA broad discretion to manage or revoke parklets if needed for public safety and transportation priorities.

- No Expansion of Scope: Relocating or removing parklets to ensure uninterrupted curbside bike lanes merely refines the existing project design and does not introduce entirely new components.

- Safety & Accessibility Benefits: By streamlining the bike lane along the curbside, the Project further reduces bicycle-vehicle conflicts, enhances pedestrian visibility, and secures clear sightlines at intersections—resulting in a safer streetscape for all users.

IV. Conclusion and Request

For the reasons above, we respectfully recommend that the Board of Supervisors:

1. Reject the CEQA Appeal
   Uphold the SFMTA's statutory exemption determination, confirming that the Project falls within Public Resources Code sections 21080.20–21080.20.5 and CEQA Guidelines section 15282(j).

2. Impose Parklet Relocation Conditions
   Adopt clear conditions directing SFMTA (and/or Public Works) to relocate or remove all parklets along the Valencia corridor to accommodate a continuous curbside bike lane, consistent with the City's administrative codes. This condition does not expand the Project's scope but aligns with local policy favoring multimodal safety.

By doing so, the Board will deny the CEQA appeal yet ensure the final Valencia Street Bike Lane design optimally balances pedestrian, bicyclist, and local business needs.

Thank you for your careful consideration of this matter. Please feel free to contact me at the number below if you have any questions.

Respectfully submitted,

Michael J. Turon
District 9 Resident

Re: Request for Removal of Unpermitted Parklets and Relocation of Proposed Bike-Share Parking to Ensure Compliance with Applicable Laws

SF MTA:

I am a long-time customer of Mission Pet Hospital ("MPH"), a long-standing and reputable veterinary practice located at 720 Valencia Street. I write to formally contest the proposal and any issued permit allowing the installation of a bike-share parking station directly in front of MPH's storefront and to request the removal of defunct, unpermitted parklets formerly associated with the now-closed business Yellow Moto Pizzeria, previously located at 702 Valencia Street.

I. Introduction and Background

MPH has served the community for decades, providing essential veterinary care to residents throughout the Mission District. Historically, MPH's clients have relied upon limited parking spaces along Valencia Street for safe and convenient loading and unloading of their pets—often anxious, elderly, or injured animals. During the COVID-19 pandemic, additional curb space was restricted due to multiple parklets, including those operated by Yellow Moto Pizzeria.

After the City began requiring permits for pandemic-era curbside encroachments, including parklets under the Shared Spaces Program, all operators were required to convert their temporary permissions into duly authorized and permitted Curbside Shared Spaces or restore the right-of-way to its original condition. (See S.F. Administrative Code § 94A.12(b)). A search of the permit records reveals that the parklets at 702 Valencia were never properly converted under this program nor issued valid, ongoing permits. With Yellow Moto Pizzeria having publicly announced its closure effective December 7, 2024, these curbside encroachments have lost their sponsoring entity, rendering them noncompliant with the San Francisco Administrative Code, Public Works Code, and associated directives.

Now, the proposed bike-share parking installation threatens to occupy the last remaining parking space MPH's clients rely upon, creating a substantial hardship and impairing the hospital's ability to serve vulnerable animals safely and efficiently.

II. Unpermitted Parklets and Applicable Municipal Regulations

Under San Francisco Public Works Code (see Article 27 and Public Works Code §§ 793 et seq.) and the San Francisco Administrative Code (see Administrative Code §§ 94A.2, 94A.12), any Curbside Shared Space or former Parklet requires a valid permit. Once a sponsoring business ceases operations, fails to renew its permit, or does not convert a "pandemic" or legacy parklet into a compliant Shared Space Permit, the City has both the authority and the obligation to remove the structure and restore the right-of-way. (Admin. Code § 94A.12(a)-(b)).

The San Francisco Municipal Transportation Agency (SFMTA) and the Department of Public Works (DPW) guidelines, as well as the SFMTA Curb Management Strategy, emphasize the continuous validity and proper maintenance of such curbside installations. Yellow Moto Pizzeria's closure and the absence of any current, valid Shared Spaces Permit means the existing parklets are, at this point, in violation of the San Francisco Municipal Code, Public Works Code, and the Administrative Code provisions governing the Shared Spaces Program. Such noncompliant structures compromise legitimate business activities, impede safe loading for essential services, and fail to meet the City's stated policy goals.

III. Compliance with "California Daylight Law" (AB 413) and Necessity for Repositioning of Bike-Share Parking

California Assembly Bill 413 ("AB 413"), commonly known as the "California Daylight Law," mandates a clear setback—generally 20 feet—at intersections before crosswalks to ensure adequate sightlines and pedestrian visibility. By mitigating line-of-sight obstructions, AB 413 reduces the risk of accidents and supports public safety goals aligned with Vision Zero principles.

The removal of the defunct parklets and relocating the proposed bike-share installation to the northwest corner of Valencia at 18th Street would improve compliance with AB 413, ensuring a proper safety buffer at the intersection. This realignment would also restore the needed loading and parking space for MPH's clients, enabling safe and convenient access for pet drop-offs and pick-ups, and ensuring that City actions uphold both the spirit and letter of California's safety requirements.

IV. Municipal Authority and Precedents for Removal and Relocation

SFMTA and DPW possess well-established authority to regulate, modify, and, where necessary, remove structures or curb uses in the public right-of-way. Pursuant to the Transportation Code, Public Works Code, and the Shared Spaces Program regulations (Admin. Code §§ 94A.2, 94A.12), unpermitted or noncompliant parklets must be removed to ensure the equitable, safe, and legal use of curb space.

The City has previously removed parklets lacking proper permits and repositioned bike-share stations to ensure safety standards and compliance with municipal and state regulations. These precedents align with the SFMTA's Curb Management Strategy, which guides the allocation of curb space to maximize safety, transit reliability, and support for local businesses. Our request aligns precisely with these established authorities, policies, and precedents.

V. Conclusion and Requested Relief

For the reasons set forth above, I respectfully urge the SFMTA and associated regulatory authorities to:

1. Remove the Defunct Parklets: Confirm that the former Yellow Moto Pizzeria parklets lack valid, current permits (see Admin. Code § 94A.12(b)) and order their immediate removal, restoring curbside parking for legitimate business use in compliance with all applicable codes.

2. Relocate the Proposed Bike-Share Parking: Reposition the newly proposed bike-share station from the front of MPH's storefront to the northwest corner of Valencia at 18th Street, ensuring compliance with AB 413's 20-foot setback requirement and improving safety and visibility for all road users.

These actions will preserve essential access for MPH's clients—who transport vulnerable animals—and affirm the City's commitment to legal compliance, pedestrian safety, and equitable use of public space. Thank you for your immediate attention to this matter. I remain available to discuss these issues and assist in achieving a fair and lawful resolution.

Sincerely,

Subject: Bicycle Signals, Two-Way Cycle Tracks (a.k.a. Continuous Curb-Side Bike Lanes), and Driveway Designs — Safety and Economic Benefits

Relevance to San Francisco:
San Francisco's population density (18,630/sq. mi.) is nearly identical to that of Cambridge, Massachusetts (18,512/sq. mi.), making Cambridge's proven treatments for bicycle signals, cycle tracks (Continuous Curb-Side Bike Lanes), and driveway designs highly applicable here[1].

Key Safety & Economic Takeaways from the White Paper[2]

I. Bicycle Signals and Detection
- a. Bicycle-specific signals improve safety and manage conflicts at intersections, particularly when used alongside cycle tracks.
- b. Providing minimum green and clearance times specifically for cyclists reduces crashes and streamlines flow.
- c. Advanced detection (e.g., loop detectors, video, microwave) can reduce rider delay, encourage more bike use, and support local businesses through increased foot (pedal) traffic.

II. Access into and out of Two-Way Cycle Tracks
- a. Pavement markings, colorized pavement, and signage guide cyclists to midblock destinations or roadway connections.
- b. Two-stage turn queue boxes and bicycle boxes enhance visibility, minimizing risk at turns and intersections.
- c. Safe and efficient travel improves cyclists' confidence, often leading to greater commercial activity in adjacent corridors.

III. Cycle Tracks at Driveways
- a. Raised cycle tracks "remain level across driveways," forcing motorists to slow and improving sight lines.
- b. Clear sight triangles and reduced curbside parking near driveways avert sudden collisions, supporting a safer streetscape.
- c. Lower collision risk translates into fewer disruptions, promoting smoother traffic flow and attracting more visitors to local shops.

IV. Economic and Operational Rationale
- a. Enhanced Safety = Increased Ridership & Commerce

[2] "CYCLE TRACKS: A TECHNICAL REVIEW OF SAFETY, DESIGN, AND RESEARCH, City of Cambridge June 2014

i. Well-designed intersections and driveways give cyclists a seamless experience, incentivizing more frequent trips.
ii. Higher bike volumes can translate to greater foot traffic for local businesses and reduced congestion for motorists, supporting stronger economic vitality in commercial corridors.

b. Minimized Vehicle Delays

i. Bicycle detection systems reduce unnecessary redlight cycles, easing traffic backups and improving overall travel times.
ii. Both motorists and transit riders benefit from streamlined movements at intersections, where dedicated signal phases minimize gridlock.

V. Recommendation

Given the similar population density and proven benefits, adopting these bicycle signal, detection, and continuous curb-side bike lanes (cycle track) driveway designs as referenced in Cambridge will likely improve safety for all road users, support local independent businesses, and align with both San Francisco's congestion management goals and SFMTA Curb Management Strategy.

Introduction

What are Cycle Tracks?

Cycle tracks are exclusive bicycle facilities that are physically separated from motor vehicle lanes and sidewalks. Separation is achieved through a variety of treatments, such as vertical grade changes; parking lanes and pavement markings; curbs; or landscaping, all of which can enhance the comfort and safety of bicycling on urban streets. Cycle tracks can create a more low-stress, path-like bicycling experience and are sometimes referred to as protected or separated bicycle lanes.

Why Provide Cycle Tracks?

Cycle tracks are an integral piece of infrastructure proven to increase ridership. Increasing bicycling can improve the overall quality of life in a city: it can enhance the city's economy; increase transportation choices; reduce parking and roadway congestion; and improve personal health. Bicycling is not only the most efficient and cost effective mode of transportation in a city, it is also often the fastest. Replacing vehicle trips with bicycle trips can reduce the number of single-occupancy vehicles, vehicle miles traveled, traffic and associated air pollution, and fuel consumption, all of which help achieve the City of Cambridge's climate goal of 80% reduction in greenhouse gas emissions by 2050.

To achieve these benefits, there is a growing need to provide bicycle facilities that are safe and accessible for people of all ages and abilities. Cambridge already possesses the basic conditions to support high bicycle use, including relatively flat topography, a high density of destinations within close proximity to one another, and a large student population, which together have increased the current bicycling mode share to about 7%.[1] While the City of Cambridge has already achieved high bicycling levels relative to most cities in the US, it has not reached its full potential. Cycle tracks are a proven strategy to attract a larger percentage of the population, and have been linked to increasing overall bicycle mode share. Safe and protected facilities create a more comfortable, low-stress environment for bicycling for people who have an interest in bicycling more regularly but may be in the majority of the population that is "interested but concerned,"[2] about bicycling on city streets. Providing infrastructure such as cycle tracks and secure bicycle parking can help increase bicycling mode share and improve livability.

Cycle Tracks in Cambridge and North American Cities

The City of Cambridge was one of the first cities in the United States to design and construct cycle tracks. In 2004, a raised cycle track was installed on Vassar Street from Main Street to Massachusetts Avenue, with full construction to Audrey Street completed in 2009. A second cycle track was more recently installed on Concord Avenue from Alewife Brook Parkway to Blanchard Road. Cycle tracks are also included in the Western Avenue Reconstruction Project (in construction); Binney Street/Galileo Galilei Way (Second Street – Broadway); Ames Street (Broadway – Main Street); Main Street (Longfellow Bridge – 3rd Street) and Fern Street.

The following North American communities have also installed or are in the process of installing cycle tracks (as of June, 2014)[3]:

Accessible for All: Cycle Tracks Increase Ridership and are Preferred by More People

A review of research, preference surveys, and bicycle data around the world has shown a clear trend: cycle tracks increase overall ridership, and are preferred by more types of potential bicyclists. Below are some of the key findings:

- In Washington, DC, more bicyclists began riding on 15th Street after the one-way cycle track was installed. After the two-way cycle track was installed, there was a 205% increase in bicycle volumes between P Street and Church Street during the p.m. peak hour, and there was a 272% increase in bicyclist volumes between T Street and Swann Street during the p.m. peak hour.[4]
- An evaluation of six cycle tracks in Montreal compared the facilities to parallel streets without bicycle facilities, and found on average that 2.5 times as many riders use the cycle track over the parallel streets[5].
- A study of nine large North American cities show a clear trend in safety in numbers, and "as the levels of cycling increase, injury and fatality rates per trip and per km traveled fall dramatically. Thus, if we can increase cycling, it will almost inevitably be safer."[6]
- A study of 14 large cities shows a clear trend that a higher percentage of female cyclists is correlated with a higher overall bicycle mode share.[7]
- More and better bicycling facilities have dramatically increased bicycle share trips in cities without any tradition of cycling for daily travel.[8]
- The City of Vancouver, BC, conducted counts before and after the installation of a cycle track on Hornby Street. Ridership increased from 10,000 bicyclists per month prior to construction to 55,000 bicyclists per month two years after construction. Bicycling on the sidewalk declined 80% post-installation (for a total of about 1% observed sidewalk riding). The ridership share by women increased by 4%, and children increased from 0.14% to 0.41% one year after construction.[9]
- Before and after counts on the Prospect Park West cycle track in NYC showed a 190% increase and a 125% increase in weekday and weekend ridership respectively.[10]
- The Institute of Transportation Engineers (ITE) states that "research and surveys conducted… suggest there is demand from current and potential bicyclists for separation from motor vehicle traffic." [11]
- A Vancouver preference survey found that "regular" and "frequent" bicycle commuters (who bicycle at least once per month) were more likely to be male (57.6%), while "potential" cyclists (had not biked within the last year) were more likely to be female (54.9%). Respondents reported highest preference for off-street paved paths (85%), and 71% reported they were likely to use cycle tracks, expressing even greater preference for cycle tracks than quiet residential streets (48-65%, depending on street characteristics). Women reported higher preference for separated bike paths and lanes than men.[12]

- A survey of 463 people, roughly half drivers and half cyclists (including drivers who are non-cyclists), found that both drivers and cyclists feel significantly more comfortable with separation between motor vehicles and bicycles. Streets with barrier-separation between moving non-motorized and motorized traffic were unanimously found to be the most comfortable for both cyclists and drivers alike. Potential cyclists in particular are averse to shared space: only 10% would feel comfortable on facilities with shared lane markings, and 3% on a commercial street with no markings. The survey also indicates that the risk of being hit by a car door is a consistent worry for weekly and daily cyclists, many of whom have been hit or almost hit in this situation. [13]
- Copenhagen observed an increase in bicycle ridership of 18 to 20% after construction of cycle tracks compared with a 5 to 7% increase in ridership from bicycle lanes. The research also showed that cycle tracks saw an increase in accidents and injuries of 9 to 10%, while bicycle lanes showed an increase of 5 to 15%. It was noted that additional intersection treatments such as colored pavement, advanced stop lines, and leading bicycle intervals had not been widely used when the study was conducted, and additional safety measures would most likely have improved road safety. Also, cyclists reported feeling most secure on cycle tracks and least secure in mixed traffic.[14]

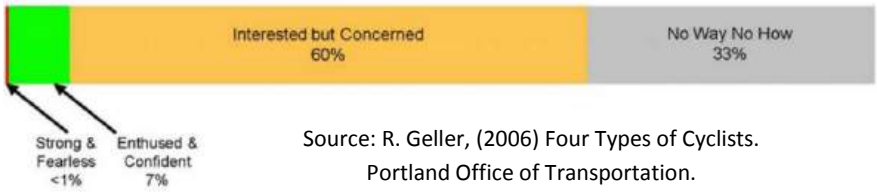
Four Types of Transportation Cyclists in Portland

By Proportion of Population



Source: R. Geller, (2006) Four Types of Cyclists. Portland Office of Transportation.

- Research conducted by Portland State University in 2012 indicated that nearly all of the sampled population (908 adults) studied in Portland, OR fit into one of the four categories in a similar proportion. The research found that 56% of the region's population was categorized as "Interested but Concerned," which is considered to be the target market for increasing bicycling for transportation; this population reported the highest level of comfort on separated paths and quiet residential streets, closely followed by riding in cycle tracks on busy streets (30 to 40 mph), a dramatic improvement over the comfort level reported in striped bicycle lanes or riding in mixed traffic without a facility. The analysis indicated that reducing traffic speeds and increasing separation between bicycles and motor vehicles, such as through cycle tracks, increase levels of comfort and bicycling rates.
- In the same study, women and the elderly were underrepresented among the more confident adults and those who currently cycle for transportation. Additionally, the survey respondents categorized as the "no way no how" typology reported they would feel "comfortable or very comfortable" with a separate bicycle facility.[15] Perhaps an additional typology, "maybe if the conditions are right," should be considered.

Beyond Bicycle Lanes: The Benefits of Cycle Tracks

While bicycle lanes are an important component of the bicycle network and can serve some users well, especially on lower volume and lower speed routes, they are not comfortable for riders of all ages and abilities on streets with higher traffic volumes and speeds. Providing facilities that separate bicyclists from moving vehicles on routes with faster moving traffic that serve popular destinations, residential areas, schools, parks and employment centers will help encourage more bicycling for transportation.

Standard bicycle lanes on busier streets may limit bicycling levels, as bicycle lanes do not serve all types of riders equally. Many people are not comfortable merging and riding with motor vehicle traffic, especially large trucks and buses, which have been involved in some of the most severe recent crashes in the Boston region, and there is a desire to separate bicyclists from large vehicles where possible. Bicycle lanes often require riders to merge into traffic to avoid hazards like motorists driving or parking in bicycle lanes. Where on-street parking is present, bicyclists often do not feel comfortable riding outside of the door zone on busy streets closer to moving motor vehicle traffic, and may not have quick enough reaction times to avoid an opening car door when riding in the door zone. Although less common, passenger side "doorings" in bicycle lanes remain a risk, especially with passengers exiting or boarding taxis. Even the most extensive educational and outreach efforts are not as effective as infrastructure design that eliminates the conflict altogether. Crash data in the City of Cambridge from 2004 to 2009 shows that 20% of all crashes involve bicyclists being "doored" by motorists, 87% of which are from the driver side door opening.

Cycle Track Benefits Summary

The list below summarizes the benefits of cycle tracks in a variety of contexts:

- Cycle tracks provide increased comfort and safety for bicyclists through separation from motor vehicles to create a more path-like experience.
- Cycle tracks are more comfortable and accessible for people of all ages and abilities, children and the elderly alike. They attract new riders at all levels who otherwise may not bicycle, and therefore increase ridership more so than bicycle lanes.
- Cycle tracks reduce crashes, overall injury risk, and fear of collisions with over-taking vehicles at mid-block.
- Cycle tracks remove bicyclists from the door zone, eliminating the risk of "dooring" and potentially being struck by a motor vehicle.
- Cycle tracks can reduce or eliminate potential obstructions that occur commonly in bicycle lanes, such as motorists parking or driving in the lane.
- Providing a dedicated space for bicyclists improves clarity about expected behavior for all modes of travel.
- Cycle tracks can enhance the pedestrian environment by creating a buffer between pedestrians and vehicle traffic adjacent to the sidewalk.
- Narrowing the roadway width, either physically or visually, through the installation of cycle tracks can have a traffic calming benefit and help to create a more human-scale environment.
- Intersection designs can reduce or separate conflicts with motorists.
- Cycle tracks provide a better air quality environment for users than riding in the roadway.
- Cycle tracks provide economic benefits—they attract more bicyclists than standard bike lanes which results in more productive workers and more spending at local businesses.

Safety

An underlying principle of roadway design is maximizing safety for people using all modes of transportation. Cycle tracks have the potential to drastically improve safety for all modes by reducing or eliminating exposure to and conflicts with motor vehicles and pedestrians. Due to concerns generated by earlier bicycle facility safety research, prevailing design guidance and public opinion has developed a misplaced bias in the United States that cycle tracks are unsafe. A reexamination of this research found limitations in these studies, as they did not account for all crash types, the impact of additional safety treatments at intersections, and the increase in ridership associated with cycle tracks. Furthermore in earlier studies, sidewalk riding was evaluated for safety where no real bicycle facility existed, and that data was then falsely associated with cycle track and sidepath safety.

New studies have shown an overall increase in safety associated with well-designed cycle tracks, and a decrease in injury risk as more cyclists are riding. Studies from numerous cities throughout the world show there is safety in numbers: as ridership increases, crashes typically remain at the same level or decrease overall. Literature review has shown that intersection treatment crash modification factors for cycle tracks can decrease crash risk ranging from 10% to as much as 51%.[16]

As more research develops, and cycle track and bicycle facility designs evolve, it is clear that intersection treatments are the key for creating safer facilities for all; intersections are critical no matter what the bicycle facility type as the majority of crashes occur at intersections with and without bicycle facilities. Current intersection conditions do not accommodate bicyclists of all ages and abilities, and overall improvements at all intersections are needed to enhance safety for bicyclists. There are design elements and criteria related specifically to cycle tracks that need to be addressed to improve the overall safety of intersections for all modes. There is considerable guidance and global experience on how to design intersections with cycle tracks, which can provide safer and more comfortable conditions by clearly defining space and expected behaviors for all. For more information on cycle tracks designs at intersections, see Intersection Design Considerations later in this paper.

Cycle Track Research: Safety and Health

Evolutions in cycle track design have created safer facilities by separating conflicts at intersections, improving sight lines, and slowing bicycle and vehicle speeds to create a safer environment for all modes. Below is a high level summary of some of the safety research for cycle tracks:

- An evaluation of six cycle tracks in Montreal compared the streets with cycle tracks to parallel streets without bicycle facilities, and found that the streets with cycle tracks have a 28% lower injury rate over the parallel streets without bicycle facilities.[17]
- Researchers examined crash rates on 19 US cycle tracks physically separated from vehicle traffic by a buffer and distinct from the walking paths compared to reference streets without cycle tracks. The overall crash rate for cycle tracks was 2.3 (95% CI = 1.7, 3.0) crashes per million bicycle kilometers. For vehicle-bicycle crashes on roadways, the overall published crash rates per million bicycle kilometers ranged from 3.75 to 54, and from 46 to 67 in the US and Canada respectively. These "results suggest that, in the United States, bicycling on cycle tracks is safer than bicycling on roads."[18]
- A study of 690 bicycling injuries in Canada across all types of bicycle facilities showed that cycle tracks had the lowest risks, about one-ninth the risk of the reference street: a major street with parked cars and no bicycle infrastructure. Bicycle lanes were found to have about one-half the risk as the reference. Busy streets are associated with higher risks than quiet streets, and bicycle-specific facilities are associated with lower risks.[19]
- The Prospect Park West New York City cycle track case study found that all crashes decreased by 16%, injuries decreased by 63%, and injury risk decreased by 50% post-installation. The study also reported there were no reported injuries between bicyclists and pedestrians.[20]
- Researchers surveyed cyclists in two buffered bicycle lanes and one cycle track in Portland about their perceived safety and route choice (cycle track and buffered lane vs. on-street, all other). About 45% of cyclists agreed that they chose to ride on the cycle track more often. Additionally, women significantly felt safer on the cycle track than men (94% [of women] vs. 64% [of men]).[21]
- Researchers in Portland measured air quality on the driver side and passenger side of a parked car to compare particulate matter found in a typical location of bicycle lane vs. the typical location of a cycle track. Air quality was found to be 8% to 38% better in the cycle track location than the bicycle lane, and researchers also found that the highest differences between the two facilities corresponded with higher traffic volumes, supporting the conclusion that the distance created by a physical barrier between a bicycle facility and moving traffic affects air quality and bicyclists' exposure to ultrafine pollutant particles.[22]

Planning

Bicycle Facility and Cycle Track Implementation in Dense Urban Environments

In urban environments such as Cambridge, streets should provide safe accommodations for all modes and people of all ages and abilities. The City's policy objectives aim to protect and improve the urban fabric; promote cultural advancements and historic preservation; increase environmental, economic, and social sustainability; and improve the quality of life for its residents. All bicycle facility designs require creative and pragmatic solutions to often complex and historic land use characteristics and roadway configurations.

When determining what type of facility is most appropriate and feasible for each location, and how to create a network of connected, protected facilities, general planning level considerations include:

- Balancing the accommodation of all modes
- Density, connectivity, and latent demand
- Context of land uses and street type
- Available right-of-way
- Proximity to or on the desired route to special uses: schools, parks, youth centers, etc.
- Traffic volumes and speeds
- Presence of transit stops
- Driveways and intersections
- Type of project - retrofit vs. reconstruction
- Major routes that serve popular destinations, residential areas, schools, parks and employment centers that are:
    - High volume, high speed roadways
    - Major arterials and connectors
    - Commercial corridors with high parking turnover

It is important to note that cycle tracks may not be appropriate for every street. Other bicycle facilities such as bike lanes are also important components of a bicycle network and can serve some users well, especially on lower volume and lower speed routes. Bicycle boulevards or neighborways, shared streets, or local residential streets may not be appropriate routes for cycle tracks. All facility types should be selected based on engineering judgment and receive feedback from the local community

Types of Bicycle Facilities

Below is a comparison table of the benefits and challenges associated with each type of typical urban bicycle facility:

Shared Travel Lanes: Shared bicycle and motor vehicle travel lanes denoted by pavement markings and signs.
Benefits	Challenges
• Directs bicyclists to the safest place to ride • Alerts motorists of shared space	• Bicyclists must operate as a vehicle in mixed traffic • Narrow right-of-way may not provide enough space to direct bicyclists out of the "door zone" and requires bicyclists to "take the lane" • Not appropriate for roadways with speeds greater than 30 mph • High exposure to motor vehicle pollution
Bicycle Lanes: On-road facilities designated for exclusive use by bicyclists through pavement markings and signs.
Benefits	Challenges
• Designated space for bicyclists • Visually narrows the street to calm traffic	• May require bicyclists to operate as a vehicle in mixed traffic to avoid obstructions • Motor vehicles often drive or park in the bicycle lane • Narrow right-of-way may not provide enough space to direct bicyclists out of the "door zone" • High exposure to motor vehicle pollution
Buffered Bicycle Lanes: A bicycle lane with pavement marking buffers to provide separation from parked motor vehicles.
Benefits	Challenges
• Designated space for bicyclists • Additional buffer space for separation from motor vehicles to avoid "dooring" • Space for passing other bicyclists • Visually narrows the street to calm traffic	• May require bicyclists to operate as a vehicle in mixed traffic to avoid obstructions • Motor vehicles often drive or park in the bicycle lane; this is exacerbated with wider bicycle lanes • High exposure to pollution
Shared-Use Paths: Off-road path physically separated from traffic and designated for shared use by bicyclists and pedestrians.
Benefits	Challenges
• Off-street space physically separated from motor vehicles • Provides regional and inter-city off-street connections • Lower exposure to pollution	• Typically requires more right-of-way space and is generally installed along or in open green spaces, parkland, etc. • Shared with walkers, joggers, roller skaters, skateboards, dog walkers, etc.
Cycle Tracks: Exclusive bicycle facilities physically separated from motor vehicle travel lanes and sidewalks.
Benefits	Challenges
• Exclusive, protected space for bicyclists physically separate from motor vehicles and pedestrians • Prevents driving and parking in facility • Eliminates "dooring" • Helps reduce exposure to pollution • Visually narrows the street to calm traffic	• Typically requires more right-of-way space • Maintaining pedestrian accessibility at intersections and transit stops • Drainage considerations, especially for the type of drainage infrastructure required for raised cycle tracks • Accommodating existing street sweeping and snow clearing equipment • Developing a year-round maintenance plan

Types of Cycle Tracks

Raised vs. Street-level Cycle Tracks

Raised cycle tracks are vertically separated from motor vehicle traffic by installing the facilities at a different grade, whether at the same level of the sidewalk separate from pedestrian travel, or in between the roadway grade and sidewalk grade (e.g., sidewalks are typically six inches above the roadway, so the cycle track could be installed three inches above the roadway and three inches below the sidewalk). Street-level cycle tracks are installed on the roadway but physically separated from motor vehicles through various methods such as on-street parking or plantings. Below is a comparison table of raised and street-level cycle tracks

Raised Cycle Track

Bicycle facilities constructed above the roadway physically separated from motor vehicle and pedestrian traffic through a variety of methods including curbs, furnishings, plantings, etc.

Benefits	Challenges	Maintenance Considerations
• Provides vertical separation and more protection from motor vehicle traffic; increased separation can be more attractive to a wider range of bicyclists • Prevents motorists from easily entering or obstructing the cycle track • Potentially more visually attractive • Allows for driveway and side street designs that are similar to sidewalks and improves yielding as well as reduces turning motor vehicle speeds	• Potential for conflicts with pedestrians in cycle track accessing transit stops, at intersections, or to access the sidewalk from parked vehicles • Typically more expensive if designs require reconstruction and adjustments to stormwater management unless implemented as part of a planned street reconstruction project	• May require special maintenance equipment or operations • Sweeping and snow plowing may be done with adjacent sidewalk • If wide enough, standard street equipment can be used • Snow storage and de-icing strategies need to be considered

Street Level Cycle Track, also known as a Protected Bike Lane *[23]

Bicycle facilities at street level physically separated from motor vehicle traffic through a variety of methods including parked vehicles, pavement markings, flexposts, bollards, curbs, plantings, etc.

Benefits	Challenges	Maintenance Considerations
• Lower cost of implementation when installed on existing roadway • Typically have minimal effect on storm water management and drainage infrastructure • Typically have minimal impact on pedestrian crossings at intersections	• May be less attractive to inexperienced cyclists depending on type of separation • If used, flexible posts can pose maintenance challenges and may be less visually attractive within streetscape • Without physical separation, enforcement may be needed to restrict motor vehicle access	• Sweeping and snow plowing may need to be done separate from roadway • Locations with flexible posts should consider minimum clearances required for street sweeping and snow plowing equipment • Special equipment, operations, or maintenance agreements may be needed for cycle tracks • Planters require regular maintenance

[23] For greater clarity the term "Protected Bike Lane" is used in Cambridge to describe a street level cycle track.

One-way vs. Two-way Cycle Tracks

Cycle tracks can either be one-directional or two-directional, and can be provided on both sides of two-way streets or on one side of one-way streets. Below is a comparison table of one-way and two-way cycle tracks and the contexts for which they may or may not be more appropriate:

One-Way Cycle Track – Each side of two-way roadway Context: Corridors with more frequent intersections, active edges on both sides of street
Benefits	Challenges
• Provides access to both sides of roadway • Cyclists ride in the same direction as vehicles in adjacent roadway • Simpler treatments at intersections • Can transition to bicycle lanes to match a connecting facility • Generally conforms to standard roadway operating expectations	• Requires more roadway space to accommodate a buffer on two sides of the roadway than a two-way cycle track • Need more width overall to allow for passing, especially where volumes are higher and on hills and longer stretches • Potentially more total parking restrictions for sight lines due to presence on both sides of roadway (depends on number of side streets/driveways) • May make wrong way bicycle riding more appealing • May require changes to signal operations, especially at locations with high volumes of turning traffic
Two-Way Cycle Track – One side of one-way roadway Context: Corridors with few intersecting streets, barrier or edge on one side, trail connections
Benefits	Challenges
• Has a "bike path" feel that is more attractive to less experienced cyclists • Requires less space than two one-way cycle tracks on each side of the roadway • Cyclists may pass in opposing cycle track lane • May improve connectivity for bicyclists when used on one-way streets	• Contrary to standard roadway operating expectations, as cyclists approach motorists from potentially unexpected direction • Pedestrians may not expect contra-flow bicyclists • Can limit access to land uses and activities on non-cycle track side of street • The contra-flow movement will likely be less efficient due to signal progression operation resulting in frustration by the user or violations of traffic controls • Will require changes to signal operations to manage turning conflicts, especially left turning vehicles and contra-flow bicyclists

When choosing which side of the street to install a two-way cycle track, consideration should be given to:

- Available right-of-way
- Number of intersections and driveways
- Width of adjacent sidewalk
- Adjacent land uses
- Transit stops
- Access management
- Presence and type of parking
- Desired turning movements
- Commercial loading and delivery
- Taxi, valet, or temporary loading areas
- Emergency vehicle needs
- Stormwater management

Retrofits vs. Reconstruction

When the curb location is fixed, street-level cycle tracks can often be retrofitted by reallocating existing street space. Cycle tracks can be installed using strategies such as minimizing lane widths or removing travel or parking lanes. A physical buffer between a curbside bicycle lane and adjacent parking and/or travel lanes can be created with pavement markings and flexposts, curbs, planters, and other design elements as space permits. Retrofit projects are usually lower in cost and quicker to implement than reconstruction projects, and can be the first phase of an incremental installation of protected facilities.

Reconstruction projects are excellent opportunities to install raised cycle tracks. During reconstruction projects, all aspects of the available right-of-way should be considered to achieve the best facility possible.

Design

General Design Considerations

Cycle tracks have been designed and built around the world for decades; the most thorough and substantial design guidance widely available comes from the Netherlands and Denmark. The NACTO Urban Bikeway Design Guide provides a summary of design considerations and treatments for cycle tracks based upon European and North American guidance and experience. FWHA (the Federal Highway Administration) officially supports use of the NACTO guide. For this paper, the City of Cambridge has developed cycle track design considerations using best practices from around the world, and lessons learned from local experience with the installation of the Vassar Street and Concord Avenue cycle tracks as well as the designs for Western Avenue, Binney Street, and Main Street.

The planning level considerations for cycle tracks discussed previously help determine what type of facility is best for the project site. This section of the paper will discuss general cycle track design considerations including:

- Determination of cross-section widths
- Separation methods
- Pavement markings and signage
- How to discourage pedestrian use of cycle tracks
- Transit stop accommodations
- Drainage
- Maintenance

Intersection and driveway treatments are discussed later in the Intersection Design Considerations section of this paper.

Cycle Track Cross Section Recommendations

Below is a chart with minimum and preferred cycle track widths, whether raised or at street-level, for one-way and two-way cycle tracks:

Facility Dimensions	One-Way Cycle Track		Two-Way Cycle Track
	Minimum[1]	Preferred[2]	Minimum[1]	Preferred[2]
Cycle Track Width	5’	7’	8’	12’
Separation[3]	1’ to 3’	3’+	1’ to 3’	3’+

[1] The minimum total clear width needed to accommodate existing street sweeping and snow clearing equipment in the City of Cambridge is 10’. Sidewalk plowing equipment can handle narrower widths. Maintenance equipment or maintenance agreements may be required on a case-by-case basis for narrower cycle tracks.

[2] Designs should meet or exceed the preferred widths to the maximum extent feasible to allow for passing.

[3] Separation can be achieved through a variety of methods including vertical grade changes. Separation widths from motor vehicle lanes and sidewalks will vary depending on the context and constraints of each site and require engineering judgment.

Each project should be evaluated using engineering judgment to develop context-sensitive solutions. Cycle track and roadway design guidance is ever evolving, and designs should be piloted and tested to continuously improve conditions for people using all modes of transportation. As more cycle tracks are installed throughout the U.S. and Cambridge, more specific design guidance will be developed for cross section widths. At this time, for the most extensive recommendations on cross section widths please refer to the Dutch “Design Manual for Bicycle Traffic” (CROW) for additional information.

Separation Methods

There are a variety of separation methods for cycle track designs. The overall goal is to provide a physical barrier to reinforce separation between the cycle track and the adjacent parking or travel lane and the pedestrian realm. Generally, pavement marking is an acceptable method for buffering parked vehicles from the cycle track. However, depending on the context and constraints within a project site, and whether a cycle track is raised or at street-level, separation can be achieved through any of the following:

- Parking with pavement marking buffers and/or flexible bollards or flexposts
- Curbs
- Concrete barriers
- Planters, trees, stormwater management features
- Differentiating materials
- Street furniture

For raised cycle tracks without curbside parking, separation methods should consider ways to mitigate larger vehicles mounting the curb and parking partially on the cycle track. The furnishing zone between a raised cycle track and the sidewalk can include street furniture, plantings, trees, and other furnishings to define and separate the pedestrian realm from the raised cycle track.

Pavement Markings and Signage

Pavement markings should be determined by consulting the NACTO Urban Bikeway Design Guide, the latest edition of the MUTCD, and the AASHTO Guide for the Development of Bicycle Facilities. Bicycle lane symbols can be placed to promote the correct direction of travel and discourage wrong-way riding, while indicating to pedestrians the intended use of the facility.

Regulatory, warning, and wayfinding signage specific to cycle tracks can be developed to improve overall safety and expectations for all roadway users. Signs can be placed within the buffer or adjacent to the curb where practical and visible for the intended user. For cycle tracks with parking protection, signs and markings can alert all users to be aware and where to look for potential conflicts, including pedestrians loading and unloading from parked vehicles and at intersection mixing zones. Pavement markings and signage at intersections are discussed in further details in Intersection Design Considerations.

Pedestrians and Cycle Tracks

Because cycle tracks are still relatively new in North America, many people are not yet accustomed to their place and function in the streetscape environment. As in the Netherlands and other countries with an abundance of cycle tracks, people will become accustomed to behaviors; however, at the introductory stage it is valuable to include design elements that will reduce conflicts, educate users, and encourage appropriate behaviors. In particular, people should not walk or jog in cycle tracks, and designs should be intuitive and encourage separation of pedestrian and bicycle traffic. Minimal treatments include differentiating materials and providing signage and pavement markings restricting pedestrian use of the cycle track. More effective treatments include providing a vertical element separating the pedestrian and bicycle space such as a change in grade or the installation of street furniture and/ or street trees. Where adjacent to on-street parking, regular access from the sidewalk to the parking lane should be provided. Pedestrian and bicycle interactions at intersections are discussed later in Intersection Design Considerations section of this report.

Transit Stops

Depending on the configuration of the cycle track, the presence of curbside parking, and the location of the transit stop, a variety of treatments can be used to facilitate accessible pedestrian transit stops. Strategies can include:

- Removing separation at the stop to allow curbside access
- Providing transit stop islands in the buffer space at nearside and farside bus stops
- Raising the cycle track to allow pedestrians access across the cycle track from the sidewalk to the curb; this treatment can include bus stop platform islands in the buffer space or allow buses to access the curb directly adjacent to the cycle track
- Routing the cycle track behind the transit stop where space permits

Stops should include accessible pedestrian landing zones for each bus stop door. Tactile warning strips, pavement markings, colored pavement, and signage can be used to alert bicyclists to yield to pedestrians loading and unloading.

Cycle track designs often involve relocating transit stops to the far-side of the intersection to reduce conflicts. Far-side bus stops can help improve sight lines, reduce transit delay as buses do not have to wait for a green indication after loading passengers, and reduce conflicts between buses and right turning bicyclists and vehicles. Far-side bus stops also encourage pedestrians to cross behind the bus to access the intersection.

Drainage

Cycle tracks can be designed to allow water to drain freely from the street and eliminate standing water whether at the sidewalk or street level. Depending on the type of project, simple changes to drainage infrastructure or complex overhauls during full depth reconstruction projects can accommodate cycle tracks through a variety of methods Drainage and utility structures should be placed along the curb may to maintain a smooth riding surface free from hazardous drainage grates. Catch basin grates must be City standard "cascade" type that have cross bars so as not to catch bike tires.

For raised cycle tracks, the cycle track can be pitched toward the road like typical sidewalks to allow water to drain into existing infrastructure or into the buffer zone (where present) which can contain planters, rain gardens, and other stormwater management features. This area can also be used to store snow in winter. Another option is to install a central drain or stormwater management features between the cycle track and sidewalk to drain and filter stormwater. Permeable pavement can also be used to allow water to drain directly through the pavement, helping to eliminate freezing surface water which can be a safety problem for cyclists. A permeable asphalt cycle track is being constructed on Western Ave. (in construction, 2014).

Maintenance

Street Sweeping and Snow Clearing

To ensure success, cycle tracks must be designed and constructed to facilitate year-round maintenance. Where feasible, cycle track widths 10' or more are most compatible with the City's existing street sweeping and snow clearing equipment so they can be included with normal maintenance operations. Cycle tracks designed with flexposts or bollards should be removable to facilitate snow and ice clearance in the winter.

To accommodate a narrower cycle track, it may be necessary to either purchase specialized maintenance equipment such as tractors with brooms, snow blowers, or pickup trucks, or identify maintenance partners and establish maintenance agreements to clean and plow cycle tracks prior to implementation. Specialized equipment can serve both as snow clearance equipment during the winter and street sweepers throughout the rest of the year.

For winter maintenance it is especially important to have proper drainage to prevent ice formation during freeze/thaw conditions and after plowing. De-icing strategies will depend on the configuration of the cycle track and the type of pavement used. De-icers can be applied prior to snow fall and again while clearing to help prevent ice formation. Salt and deicers are not recommended for permeable pavements to prevent clogging in the void spaces of the pavement. Alternatively, beet juice/brine has been used in some cities as a deicer on streets and bicycle facilities to reduce environmental impacts associated with salt. Stormwater management features can be used in the buffer zones between the street and/or the sidewalk to store, filter, and allow snowmelt to re-enter into the water table.

In the City of Cambridge, sidewalk snow clearance is the responsibility of the abutter. For raised cycle tracks, maintenance agreements with public and private partners will be part of the strategy; for example, MIT clears the cycle tracks along Vassar Street as part of an agreement.

Intersection Design Considerations

Intersections are where most motor vehicle-bicycle crashes occur in urban areas with and without bicycle facilities. Unfortunately there is not enough research or guidance on how to mitigate or redesign standard intersections for all types of bicycle facilities. Existing laws define bicycles as vehicles, and assume that bicyclists operate similarly as motorists do, with some notable exceptions (e.g., being allowed to pass on the right and to ride on sidewalks under certain conditions). However, bicycles and motor vehicles have drastically different operating characteristics, including top speeds and acceleration and deceleration rates. Prevailing laws and design practices do not accommodate bicyclists of all ages and abilities. As motor vehicles, transit vehicles, and pedestrians have specific accommodations at intersections including pavement markings, signage, and signalization, bicyclists likewise need explicit accommodations to reduce conflicts and improve safety and comfort for all. The good news is that there is considerable guidance and global experience on how to design intersections with cycle tracks, which can provide safer and more comfortable conditions by clearly defining space and expected behaviors for all.

Cycle track designs at intersections can manage conflicts with turning vehicles and pedestrians through a variety of treatments. The overall goals of intersection design are to reduce conflicts, speeds, and delay, as well as improve safety and comfort for all modes. This section will cover the following intersection design considerations:

- Sight/stopping distances including parking setbacks
- Geometry, including raised crossings, chicanes, and curb radii
- Intersection pavement markings and signage
- Corner designs for bicycle and pedestrians crossings
- Providing bicyclists opportunities for desired turning movements
- Signalization
- Access into and out of two-way cycle tracks
- Driveways

Sight/Stopping Distances

When designing all types of bicycle facilities, stopping sight distances at intersections and driveways should be reviewed to maximize visibility of bicyclists and reduce conflicts between modes. Sight and stopping distance calculations will vary based on the characteristics and constraints of each project and will be influenced by the configuration of facility types. For street level, parking protected cycle tracks, parking restrictions between 20’ to 40’ minimum may be generally sufficient at the near and far-side of intersections and driveways to allow for proper sight distances, however additional restrictions may be needed based on site specific geometric or operational characteristics, which would result in greater sight distance requirements. Sight distance calculations can be developed for all modes at intersections. Sight and stopping distance calculations for bicycles are found below:

Table 5-4. Minimum Stopping Sight Distance

U.S. Customary			Metric

Intersection Approach Geometry

Based on available sight distance, intersection operations, and physical constraints, there are several ways to design cycle track intersection approach geometry to improve safety and maximize visibility for all users. Solutions may include:

- Continuing the cycle track all the way to intersection and:
    - Restricting parking to provide adequate sight distances and/or space for turn lanes or other desired operational features.
    - Designing chicanes to slow bicyclists speeds to meet sight distance requirements.
- Creating a cycle track and motor vehicle mixing zone where vehicles yield to bicyclists in the cycle track and merge to accommodate turning movements
- Maintaining a raised cycle track across intersections, especially appropriate across driveways and minor side streets.
- Terminating the cycle track and removing separation to provide a standard bicycle lane with bicycle boxes, where appropriate, to improve visibility and raise awareness of the shared space between all users of the intersection.

Chicanes

For parking protected street level cycle tracks where sight distance requirements cannot be achieved by only restricting parking, the geometry of the approach can be altered to slow bicycle traffic to speeds which are compatible with sight distance requirements at potential conflict points. A chicane is a design feature that creates an "S" curve that bicyclists will weave through, effectively reducing speeds, and places bicyclists at a more visible location on the roadway. For a typical roadway, parking should be restricted 20' from the crosswalk; however, further restrictions based on specific speeds and stopping sight distances can improve the visibility of bicyclists at intersections. Chicanes can be designed to help improve visibility as well as maintain bicycle approach speeds between eight and 11 miles per hour. To keep bicycle speeds within this range, a chicane is designed with a reverse curve and an approximate centerline radius of 22' followed by 13'. This combination of radii can result in bicycle speeds of 8 to 11 miles per hour on the approach to the intersection. This will correspond to a bicycle stopping distance of 35' to 65'. For parking protected cycle tracks, presuming motor vehicle turns will be made no faster than 15 mph, motorists will have approximately 80' to 100' of available sight distance to see the bicyclists once they appear, and will require approximately 50' to 80' to stop once they see the bicyclist. This is sufficient for a bicyclist to react prior to the intersection if a vehicle is likely to turn in front of the bicyclist and for a motorist to yield to the straight-traveling bicyclist as legally required.

Washington, D.C.

Cycle Track and Motor Vehicle Mixing Zones

In some situations, cycle tracks can be designed with mixing zones at intersections to accommodate vehicle turning movements. Mixing zones can be used where there are space constraints or as an alternative to bicycle signals. In this design treatment, the cycle track transitions to a shared curb-side bicycle and motor vehicle lane. Cars are angled into the mixing zone, reducing speeds and maximizing visibility of on-coming bicyclists. Yield markings at the approach to the mixing zone accompanied by "Turning vehicles yield to bicycles" R10-15 signs help denote bicycle prioritization and reinforce that motor vehicles must yield to oncoming bicyclists. Mixing zones may not be appropriate at intersections with high volumes of right turning vehicles or higher speeds, and further studies are needed to determine their effectiveness in reducing crashes compared to alternative treatments such as signalization.

Standard Bicycle Lanes

Separation should only be removed in limited circumstances based on engineering judgment. Where there are constraints and separation cannot be accommodated, separation should be removed prior to intersections to provide a standard bicycle lane with bicycle boxes or turn queue boxes where appropriate. Additional treatments such as green colored pavement, warning signs, and/ or separated signal phases should be provided to improve visibility and raise awareness of the shared space between all users of the intersection. Also, removing separation may reduce comfort for some users.

Cycle Track Intersection Pavement Markings and Signage

Cycle track pavement markings through intersections can reduce conflicts by alerting motorists and pedestrians to expect and be aware of bicyclists, and encourage proper tracking by bicyclists through intersections. To alert bicyclists that they are approaching an intersection and to control approach speeds, visual and tactile cues can be incorporated into the design of the cycle track. The application of color to the cycle track can be used to effectively communicate to all modes of upcoming intersections where reduced speeds and increased awareness are required. Colored pavement can be used to increase awareness of bicyclists at:

- Curbside locations where there are conflicts at driveways
- The beginning of the block for a short distance to highlight the cycle track
- Intersections to increase awareness of conflicts areas and increase visibility

Variations of symbols including shared lane marking symbols, standard bicycle symbols, or oversized shared lane marking or bicycle symbols can be used to define intersection space. It is generally recommended to choose a standard symbol for intersection crossings to maintain continuity and clarity throughout the bicycling network. Symbols and/or colored pavement should be supplemented with dashed lines. Many communities have also used temporary educational signage to help users understand where to predict movements by different modes and reduce potential conflicts.

Corner Designs: Bicycle and Pedestrian Crossings at Intersections

Treatments at intersections can help reduce conflicts between pedestrians and bicyclists to improve safety and comfort. Designs can incorporate accessible pedestrian features including high-visibility crosswalks across the cycle track and tactile warning strips on the sidewalk and at medians where applicable. Pavement markings such as yield symbols and transverse stop lines, along with geometric features such as chicanes and signage, can slow and help alert bicyclists to yield to pedestrians. Raised cycle tracks can transition to a shared pedestrian and bicycle area at corners. These treatments all require slow speeds similar to those found on shared streets. Another option is to design intersection crossings to provide bicycle specific pavement markings, signage, and signalization in addition to traditional pedestrian crosswalks.

Providing Opportunities for Turning Movements: Jug Handles and Two-Stage Turn Queue Boxes

Bicyclists turning movements can be accommodated at intersections and major destinations along the cycle track through a variety of treatments, including narrowing the buffer width to provide bicycle turn lanes where space is available, and facilitating "jug handle" or two-stage left turn movements. Jug handle movements are where bicyclists bear right onto a ramp or side street to then continue to turn left. Two-stage left turn movements are common practice in the Netherlands and other European countries, and are typically easier for most bicyclists to execute, and may be more comfortable because it does not require waiting for gaps to merge laterally across multiple lanes of traffic.
Jug handles can be created through geometric changes to sidewalks or by creating queuing areas on adjacent side streets called two-stage turn queue boxes. Two-stage turn queue boxes help bicyclists safely make left or right turns at intersections, driveways, and midblock crossing locations where there is demand. Queue boxes can be placed in multiple locations depending on the configuration and constraints of each site. Two-stage turn queue boxes prevent conflicts by separating turn movements. Bicycle signals can also help facilitate turning movements for bicyclists and reduce conflicts between other modes.

Bicycle Signals and Detection

Providing dedicated signalization for all modes can be used to manage conflicts and improve safety. Bicycle specific traffic signals are a common and effective way of moving bicycles through signalized intersections in conjunction with cycle tracks. Signal timing can allow for bicycles minimum green and clearance times and is often provided concurrently with pedestrian phasing. The MUTCD allows standard traffic signals to be designated for bicyclist use with the application of a regulatory sign. Interim Approval for the optional use of bicycle signal faces was issued by FHWA in December, 2013. The National Committee on Uniform Traffic Control Devices has established a Task Force to develop a proposal to incorporate bicycle signals with a bicycle symbol into the next edition of the MUTCD.

Bicycle signals can be accompanied by bicycle detection to reduce delay. Typically push-buttons for crossing signal activation present a challenge for bicyclists and are not recommended. New advancements in bicycle detection can include in-pavement loop detectors, video detection, or micro-wave detection. Technologies are continuously being developed and will continue to improve the efficiency of cycle track designs.

Access into and out of Two-Way Cycle Tracks

Access into and out of two-way cycle tracks can be achieved through a variety of treatments depending on the roadway configurations, adjacent facilities, and trip generators. Treatments can include pavement markings, colorized pavement, signage, geometric features such as median islands, and signalization. Bicycle boxes and two-stage turn queue boxes can be used at intersections to direct contra-flow bicyclists to the most conspicuous location on the roadway to execute turning movements and to be the most visible for all users; these spaces can also serve as waiting areas to find the best time to enter the normal stream of traffic onto an adjacent facility or roadway. Bicycle signals can also be used to separate conflicts. Jughandles and corner designs can help facilitate desired turning movements onto adjacent facilities.

At midblock locations, access into and out of cycle tracks can be achieved through several methods. Where parking is not present, breaks in the buffer between motor vehicles and the cycle track can allow bicyclists to enter the normal flow of traffic to access popular destinations or connections at midblock locations (note: if raised, these locations can include mountable curbs). Turn lanes, jug-handles, or queuing areas in the buffer space can also be used where appropriate and feasible depending on site characteristics and desired routes.

Cycle Tracks at Driveways

Reducing conflicts at driveways is another key consideration to improving the safety of cycle track designs. Driveways have similar design characteristics to intersections and require improved sight lines, reduced speeds, and prioritization of bicycle movements. The City of Cambridge standards calls for raised cycle tracks and sidewalks to remain level across driveways, so that any crossing vehicle must travel vertically over the cycle track and sidewalk. In this way, bicyclists are more visible and motor vehicle speeds are kept to a minimum. Requiring setback and restricting parking near driveways improves visibility between bicyclists and drivers. Additional treatments to reduce conflicts and improve safety at driveways include pavement markings, signage, and other traffic calming treatments to slow speeds and alert drivers to look for oncoming bicyclists.

INTRODUCTION

The transportation landscape in America's cities has changed dramatically in the last 10 years. Many new modes of personal mobility, like ride-hailing, bike-sharing, electric scooters, and private transit, along with on-demand package and food delivery services, compete with more traditional modes for space on the streets and at curbs.

At the same time, cities have embraced new policies and tools to make sustainable transportation more safe, convenient, and reliable, such as dedicated bus lanes that speed up transit, protected bike lanes that separate bikes from cars, and sidewalk extensions that increase safety for people walking.

With all of these changes, competition for curb space is increasing. That competition results in more congestion and conflict between modes. As more people, services, and companies vie for curbside access, San Francisco needs to reimagine how this valuable space is allocated and managed.

San Francisco's limited curb space has to be more flexible, dynamic, and responsive to the city's changing transportation landscape, its diverse users, and a new era of urban growth and mobility.

As manager of San Francisco's transportation network and the vast majority of the city's curb, the San Francisco Municipal Transportation Agency (SFMTA) has developed a new approach to managing the city's limited curb space to meet the demands of today and tomorrow.

About the SFMTA

The SFMTA is unique in the United States in managing both the City's public transportation network and its streets.

The SFMTA connects San Franciscans with their communities to enhance the economy, environment, and quality of life in the city. However you choose to get around—whether you ride Muni, take a car, walk, ride a bike, ride a scooter, take a taxi, or ride paratransit—the SFMTA seeks to help you get where you need to go as safely as possible.

The agency is governed by a seven-member Board of Directors. Appointed by the Mayor and confirmed by the Board of Supervisors, the SFMTA Board of Directors provides policy oversight in accordance with the San Francisco Charter, its Transit-First Policy and the public interest.

In accordance with state law, the SFMTA has primary responsibility for curb management in San Francisco, including allocation of curb space among different users and managing demand with tools, pricing, and enforcement of parking regulations.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

An Evolving City

San Francisco is a relatively small 47 square miles, but it is the nation's second densest large city after New York City. Each day, more than 300,000 people commute into San Francisco; 49 percent of all jobs are held by people who live outside its boundaries. It serves as a cultural center for the region and attracts visitors from all over the world.

Our transit, street and curb resources are stretched to their limit, and will be stretched even further over the next two decades. By 2040, San Francisco's population is projected to reach 1.1 million (a 24 percent increase) and the Bay Area's population is estimated to swell to 9.3 million (a 29 percent increase).

With more people and jobs, and an abundance of new travel modes and on-demand delivery services, San Francisco has experienced: more traffic congestion, ongoing safety concerns, and more emissions. The new conditions on San Francisco streets have made it clear that we cannot use 20th century tools to manage 21st century pressures at the curb.

As San Francisco faces new challenges, the city also has an opportunity to rethink how it manages its curb to respond to those changes. The SFMTA's Curb Management Strategy is a roadmap for how the SFMTA will manage and allocate the City's limited and valuable curb space in a way that is both responsive to and anticipates current and future demands for curb access.

How the strategy was developed

Work on the Curb Management Strategy began in March 2018. Key elements in the development of the plan include:

1. Review of San Francisco's existing curb management regulations and curb conditions
2. Review of best practices for curb management in other cities, including discussions with planners and engineers from those cities
3. Interviews with SFMTA staff and other city agency staff whose work touches the curb, to better understand their process, key challenges, and needs
4. Data collection on curb usage and design
5. Stakeholder workshops to inform the development of the curb prioritization model (the "framework")
6. Development of a curb framework and associated curb management strategies, policies and tools
7. Internal and external stakeholder outreach to gather feedback on the curb framework and management strategies

THIS STRATEGY DEFINES FIVE KEY CURB FUNCTIONS, AND HOW THOSE FUNCTIONS AND USERS ARE PRIORITIZED IN DIFFERENT LAND USE CONTEXTS, TO REFLECT HOW CURB NEEDS VARY ACROSS THE CITY.

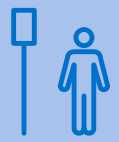
A New Approach

The curb is a valuable and finite resource with many users—some of them competing, and some of them complementary. This strategy defines five key curb functions and how those functions and users are prioritized in different land use contexts to reflect how curb needs vary across the city.

With curb space in high demand, curb functions that provide the highest level of access for a given amount of space along the curb should be prioritized. Throughout the most active and dense parts of San Francisco access for people and access for goods are given top priority while private car parking is lowest priority. By doing so, the curb can facilitate the movement of more people and goods.

After first allocating curb space for the highest priority functions, remaining curb space will be allocated to the lower priority functions. Just because something is a lower priority doesn't mean it won't have any space allocated to it, just that the needs of higher priorities are met first. In fact, because the higher priorities tend to be more space-efficient, there will usually be a significant amount of space remaining for lower priorities.

Curb Functions

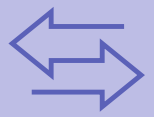


Access for People
Active space that prioritizes transit boardings, and accommodates pick-ups/drop-offs, and shared-mobility services

Access for Goods
Space for deliveries of different types and sizes, used for short periods of time

Public Space and Services
Curb designated for use by people and public services

Storage for Vehicles
Space intended to be occupied by vehicles for extended periods, such that no other users can access the space



Movement
Curb lane is used for the through-movement of motorized and non-motorized means of transportation, such that the curb lane is unavailable for other functions

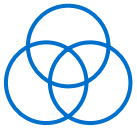
Strategy Recommendations

This document includes a suite of recommended tools, policies, legislative changes, design standards, and process improvements that the SFMTA could undertake.

These strategies support the following six key objectives:



ADVANCE A HOLISTIC PLANNING APPROACH

IMPROVE ACCESS TO UP-TO-DATE DATA

ACCOMMODATE GROWING LOADING NEEDS

RATIONALIZE POLICIES TOWARDS PRIVATE USERS OF CURB SPACE

INCREASE COMPLIANCE WITH PARKING AND LOADING REGULATIONS

PROMOTE EQUITY AND ACCESSIBILITY

ENGAGING THE PUBLIC

The Curb Management Strategy is a policy document that establishes priorities for the management of San Francisco's curb space, as well as recommends policies and tools the SFMTA will consider implementing.

Through the SFMTA's work to allocate and manage the city's curb space, the agency will prioritize community engagement through its planning and legislative processes.

About the SFMTA's Public Outreach and Engagement Team Strategy

As the SFMTA strives to meet the city's current and future transportation needs, it has a responsibility to work with all of San Francisco's diverse communities to understand their needs.

To ensure this obligation is fulfilled, the agency has established a Public Outreach and Engagement Team Strategy (POETS) to ensure communities are engaged as the SFMTA pursues plans and projects that impact them.

The fundamental principle behind the SFMTA's Public Outreach and Engagement Team Strategy is that those who are impacted by the agency's work have a right to be included in the decision-making process.

To ensure the agency fulfills this expectation, it has established Public Outreach & Engagement Requirements, which specifies that all agency projects must have a Public Outreach and Engagement Plan, and the implementation of that plan must be documented.

As the SFMTA moves forward on projects that affect or change curb usage and regulations, which will be guided by this Curb Management Strategy, the agency is committed to public outreach and engagement that embodies the SFMTA's core values: Respect, Inclusivity and Integrity.

THE CURB, IN CONTEXT

At its most basic level, the curb is the border between the roadway and the sidewalk. It is a seemingly mundane space, but it is the setting for an extremely diverse and dynamic set of activities fundamental to a vibrant and well-functioning city. While people and goods can arrive at locations like home driveways or in a building's loading bay, the vast majority of arrivals and departures happen at the city's curb.

The curb serves as the transition space between movement and arrival. It's at this point where the value of transportation is realized, and a trip has served its purpose. It makes sense that the curb is a coveted commodity; it generates tremendous value for San Francisco and its communities.

A History of Auto-centric Design in San Francisco

Before the 19th century, many streets were curb-less. In fact, when curbs were first created, their function was less about transportation and more about sanitation: to funnel wastewater and prevent backflow from the street into buildings.

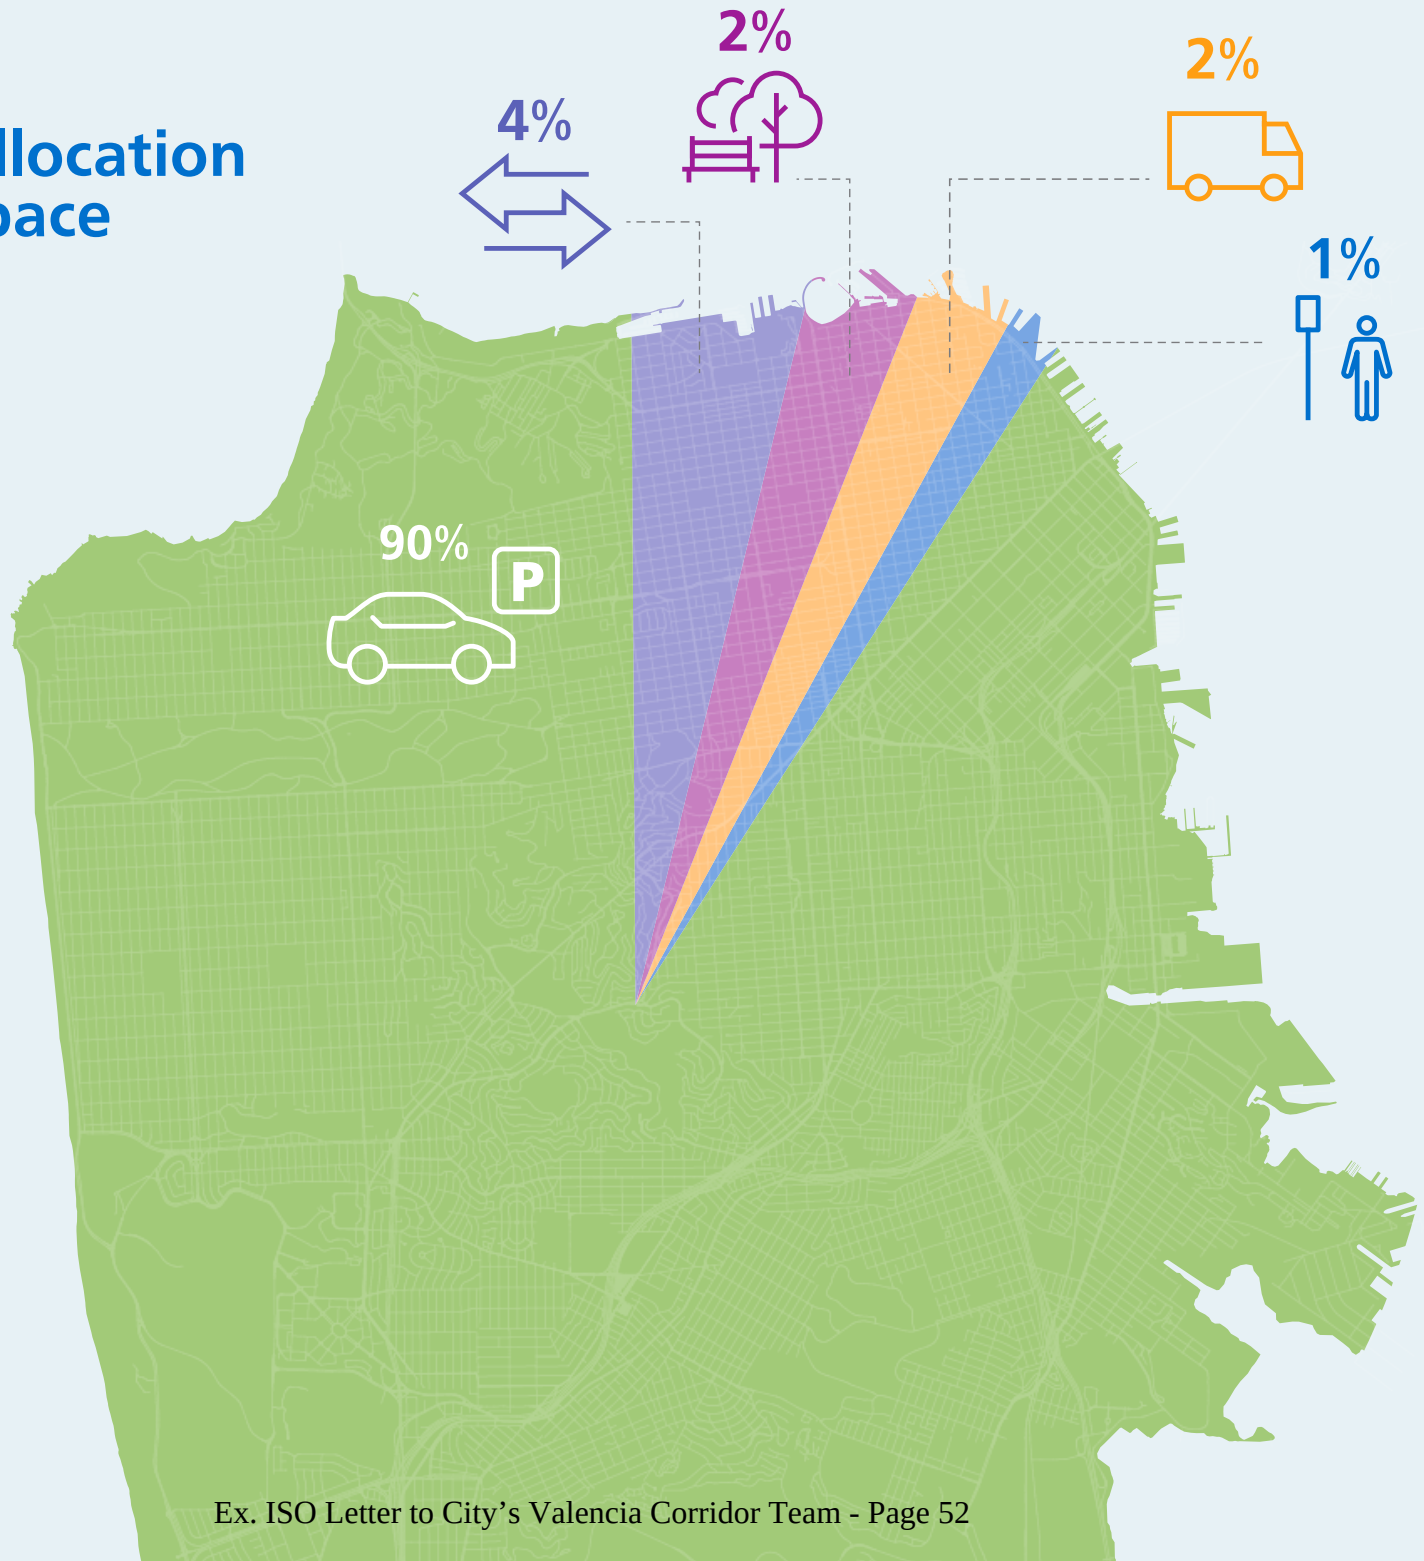
But with the growth of motorization in the 19th century, sidewalks and curbs were built to ease the pressure on mixed-use streets. Where once people and horse-drawn carriages came in close contact, vehicles and people were now colliding. In 1927, San Francisco saw as many as 158 traffic-related fatalities on its streets.

For decades after automobiles first appeared in San Francisco in the late-19th century, there were very few, if any, regulations on where, when and how cars could access the curb. As the number of vehicles skyrocketed throughout the first half of the 20th century, competition for curb space increased and cities nationwide started to look for ways to better manage on-street parking and loading, particularly in downtowns and business districts. Records of loading zones in San Francisco go back to the 1930s, and the first parking meter in San Francisco was installed on Polk Street in 1947.

Today, San Francisco's curbs heavily favor private car storage over any other use. Ninety percent of San Francisco's curb space is allocated exclusively to private vehicle storage.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 51

Current Allocation of Curb Space



THIS OUTDATED CURB ALLOCATION IS INCREASINGLY AT ODDS WITH SAN FRANCISCO'S CURRENT TRANSPORTATION LANDSCAPE.

With so much space allocated to private car parking, the issue of curb access and management has become increasingly important. There are more mobility options now than ever before, so more people and goods are moving around without a private vehicle and without needing long-term on-street storage. This outdated curb allocation is increasingly at odds with San Francisco's current transportation landscape.

San Francisco is changing. Since 2010 we have seen...

Online Purchasing and On-Demand Deliveries

- A shift toward online purchasing has resulted in more overall deliveries
- Online and app-based services like DoorDash, UberEats and Amazon Prime Now are growing rapidly

Ride-Hailing

On an average weekday in 2016 people took 170,000 TNC trips[1], which were:

- 15% of all trips that began and ended in San Francisco
- Twelve times more trips than taxis during the same period

Transit Ridership

- 716,000 daily trips on Muni in 2017
- 40,000 more trips per day than in 2010[2]
- 2,000 trips per day using paratransit[3]

Bike, Moped and Scooter Ridership

- 95,000 trips per day on privately owned bicycles[4]
- 8,300 trips per day on shared bicycles[5]
- 2,059 rides on shared mopeds per day[6]
- 2,300 rides on shared scooters per day[7]

GROWING PRESSURES ON A LIMITED, SHARED RESOURCE

Not since the advent of streetcars and automobiles have cities seen such a tremendous change in the ways people and goods move. Smartphone apps, payment systems, and changing attitudes around car ownership, environmental impacts and health, mobility and convenience have facilitated dozens of new ways of delivering people and goods.

Ride-hailing services like Uber and Lyft, which didn't exist 10 years ago, now make up a substantial portion of the total cars on the streets of San Francisco. They account for approximately 20% of all vehicle miles traveled within San Francisco and are responsible for half of the total increase in congestion since 2010. Commuter shuttles (sometimes known as "Google buses") serve 8,500 riders per day. More people are using San Francisco's bike-sharing, scooter-sharing, electric-moped-sharing, and car-sharing services. On-demand delivery services have become a part of everyday life, from e-commerce package delivery to lunch and dinner.

While these services provide additional mobility options and goods access, they raise concerns about: increased congestion; safety conflicts between pedestrians, cyclists, and car passengers; increases in double-parking, blocking traffic and bike lanes; and inequity, as these services may not be available to individuals of all social and economic levels, or those with mobility impairments needing accessible vehicles.

San Francisco's curbs were not designed for these new uses. For years, the city's curb management approach has been focused on parking, using tools like parking meters and parking permits to address access for private cars.

That approach might have worked decades ago, but it is not working today. Today, there is more competition for access to the curb. That means more congestion and pollution from circling vehicles and double parking, and more stress for people trying to complete their trip or do their job.

COMPLEMENTARY GOALS

By managing our shared curb space thoughtfully, efficiently, and equitably, San Francisco can support its Transit First policy of prioritizing sustainable transportation, its Vision Zero goal of eliminating traffic deaths and serious injuries, and its Climate Action Strategy goal of 80 percent of trips made by sustainable modes.

To achieve these goals, San Francisco must align its policies with these aspirations. That means taking a new approach to how we manage our curb space, with the following goals in mind:

Improve traffic safety and support Vision Zero

With rational and cohesive curb management and allocating curb space proactively, we increase the likelihood that vehicles are able to load and unload safely, minimizing unsafe behaviors like double-parking and blocking bicycle lanes.

Speed up public transit and support the Transit First Policy

Effective curb management can provide space for all street users to access the curb, reducing the number of vehicles blocking the travel lane or stopping in bus zones which causes increased congestion and slower transit service.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 59

Reduce greenhouse gas emissions

By allocating safe and convenient space to more sustainable modes of travel, curb management can help shift trips from single-occupancy vehicles to more sustainable modes, reducing vehicle miles traveled (VMT) and resultant greenhouse gas emissions. Effective curb management also minimizes circling for parking or loading space, reducing VMT and greenhouse gas emissions.

Increase public transparency

Deciding how the curb is used can often lead to fierce community debates. By clearly communicating the SFMTA's curb management approach, the agency can be more transparent to the public about the city's efforts, its decision-making processes, and how the public will be involved. Making curb regulations easier to understand, more consistent, and predictable reduces confusion and enables greater compliance.

Increase equity and access for all modes

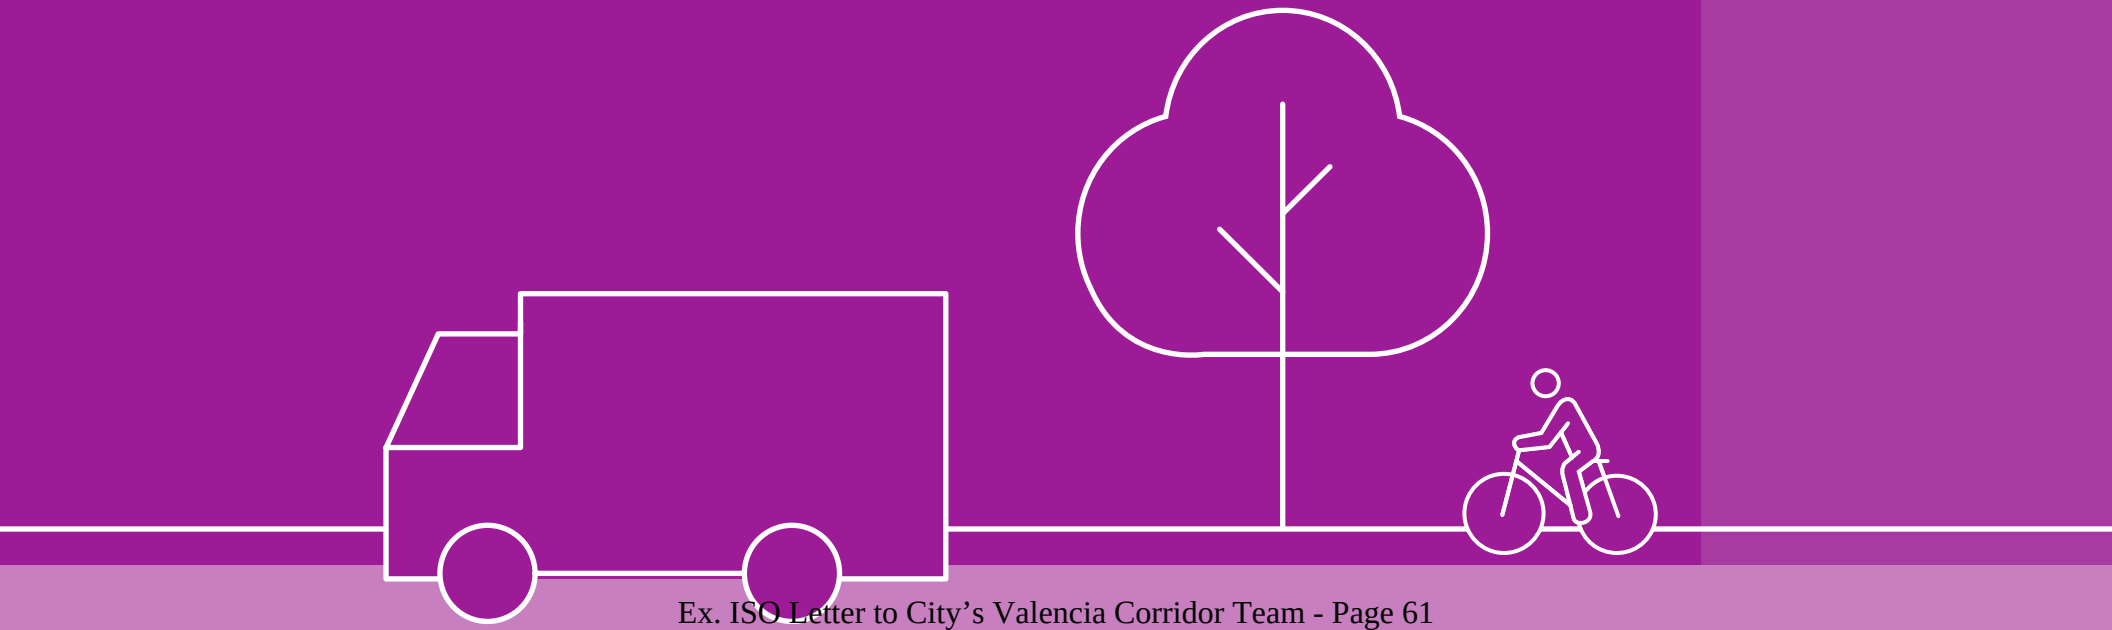
Curb management can help ensure that curb space is allocated more equitably, providing access to this limited resource to all street users, including our most vulnerable.

Integrate land use and transportation

As land uses change, demand for curb space among different users shifts. Proactive curb management can ensure the curb is allocated in a way that reflects adjacent land uses and prevailing transportation choices.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 60

CURB MANAGEMENT FRAMEWORK

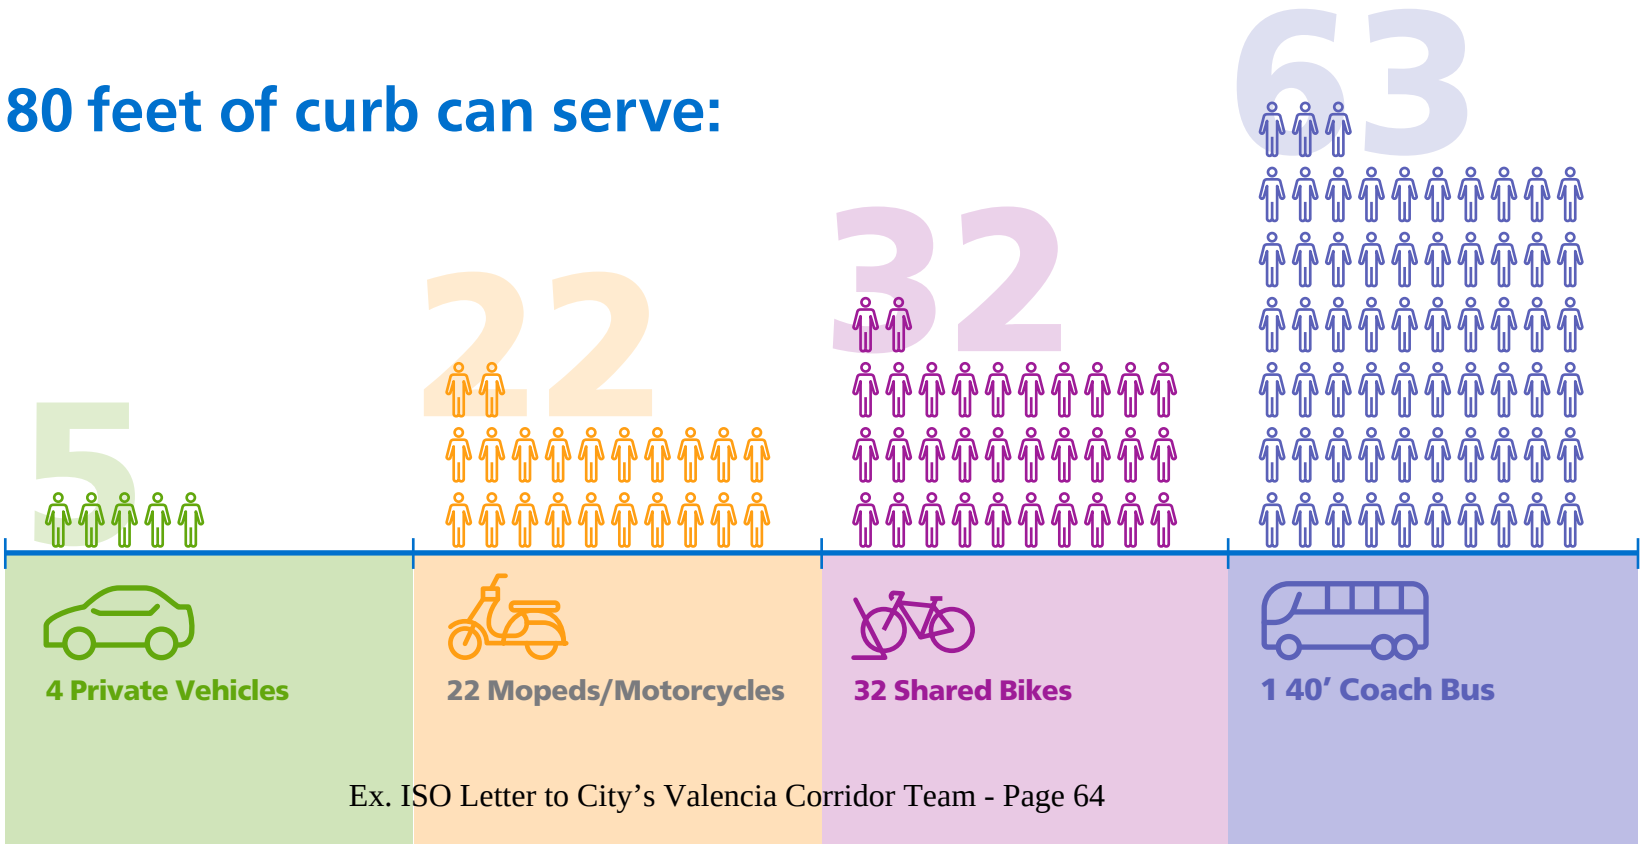


THE FOUNDATION OF THE CURB MANAGEMENT STRATEGY IS THE HIERARCHY OF CURB FUNCTIONS AND THE PRIORITIZATION OF CURB FUNCTIONS THAT PROVIDE THE HIGHEST LEVEL OF ACCESS FOR A GIVEN AMOUNT OF SPACE ALONG THE CURB.

THE SFMTA'S APPROACH: LOOKING AT THE CURB THROUGH A NEW LENS

By first allocating space to those uses that provide the greatest amount of access, the curb can facilitate the movement of more people and goods, more effectively utilizing limited curb space and helping ensure direct access to the curb for individuals with mobility limitations.

80 feet of curb can serve:



THE FIVE FUNCTIONS OF SAN FRANCISCO'S CURB

The curb provides access for a wide range of modes and users, and enables both active space, where the curb is used for short periods of time, and static uses where the curb is occupied by a single user for extended periods of time. This space plays a vital role in making the city function—it's the place where most trips begin and end, and the city's residential and commercial neighborhoods depend on the access that is provided at the curb.

To better understand and prioritize curb uses, the SFMTA has divided curb functions into five categories:

ACCESS FOR PEOPLE

Active space that prioritizes transit boardings, and accommodates pick-ups/drop-offs, and shared-mobility services

ACCESS FOR GOODS

Space for deliveries of different types and sizes, used for short periods of time

PUBLIC SPACE AND SERVICES

Curb designated for use by people and public services

STORAGE FOR VEHICLES

Space intended to be occupied by vehicles for extended periods, such that no other users can access the space

Curb lane is used for the through-movement of motorized and non-motorized means of transportation, such that the curb lane is unavailable for other functions

LAND USE, AS A GUIDE

The concentration and types of curb users varies by neighborhood and corridor, reflecting the surrounding land use context.

A corridor with a high concentration of shops and restaurants will have different curb needs and users than a residential neighborhood with single family homes. Land use types thus dictate what curb functions need to be accommodated.

While every neighborhood is different, and many neighborhoods reflect a mix of uses, six basic land use types prevail in San Francisco.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 68

CURB HIERARCHY

The management of any type of asset requires setting priorities. Effective curb management is made possible by prioritizing curb functions to harmonize them with the surrounding land use.

A curb hierarchy rationalizes how curb space is allocated by land use type and is a critical step in aligning curb management with the city's broader goals, such as reducing congestion, improving safety, supporting small businesses, and providing access to the curb for all.

For example, San Francisco can use its curb to support small businesses on commercial corridors by prioritizing access for people and goods. In a similar vein, a residential neighborhood may not need much of its curb space allocated to access for goods, with residents benefiting more from curb allocated to access for people and the storage of vehicles.

In locations where the curb zone is being used for the through movement of motorized and non-motorized means of transportation such as bicycle or transit lanes, movement takes priority over other curb functions.

After first allocating curb space for the highest priority functions, remaining curb area will be allocated to the lower priority functions. Just because something is a lower priority doesn't mean it won't have any space allocated to it, just that the needs of higher priorities are met first. In fact, because the higher priorities tend to be more space-efficient, there will usually be a significant amount of space remaining for lower priorities. Priorities will also change by time of day and day of week, so space may only be allocated for high priority functions for part of the day or week and will be made available for other functions outside of those times.

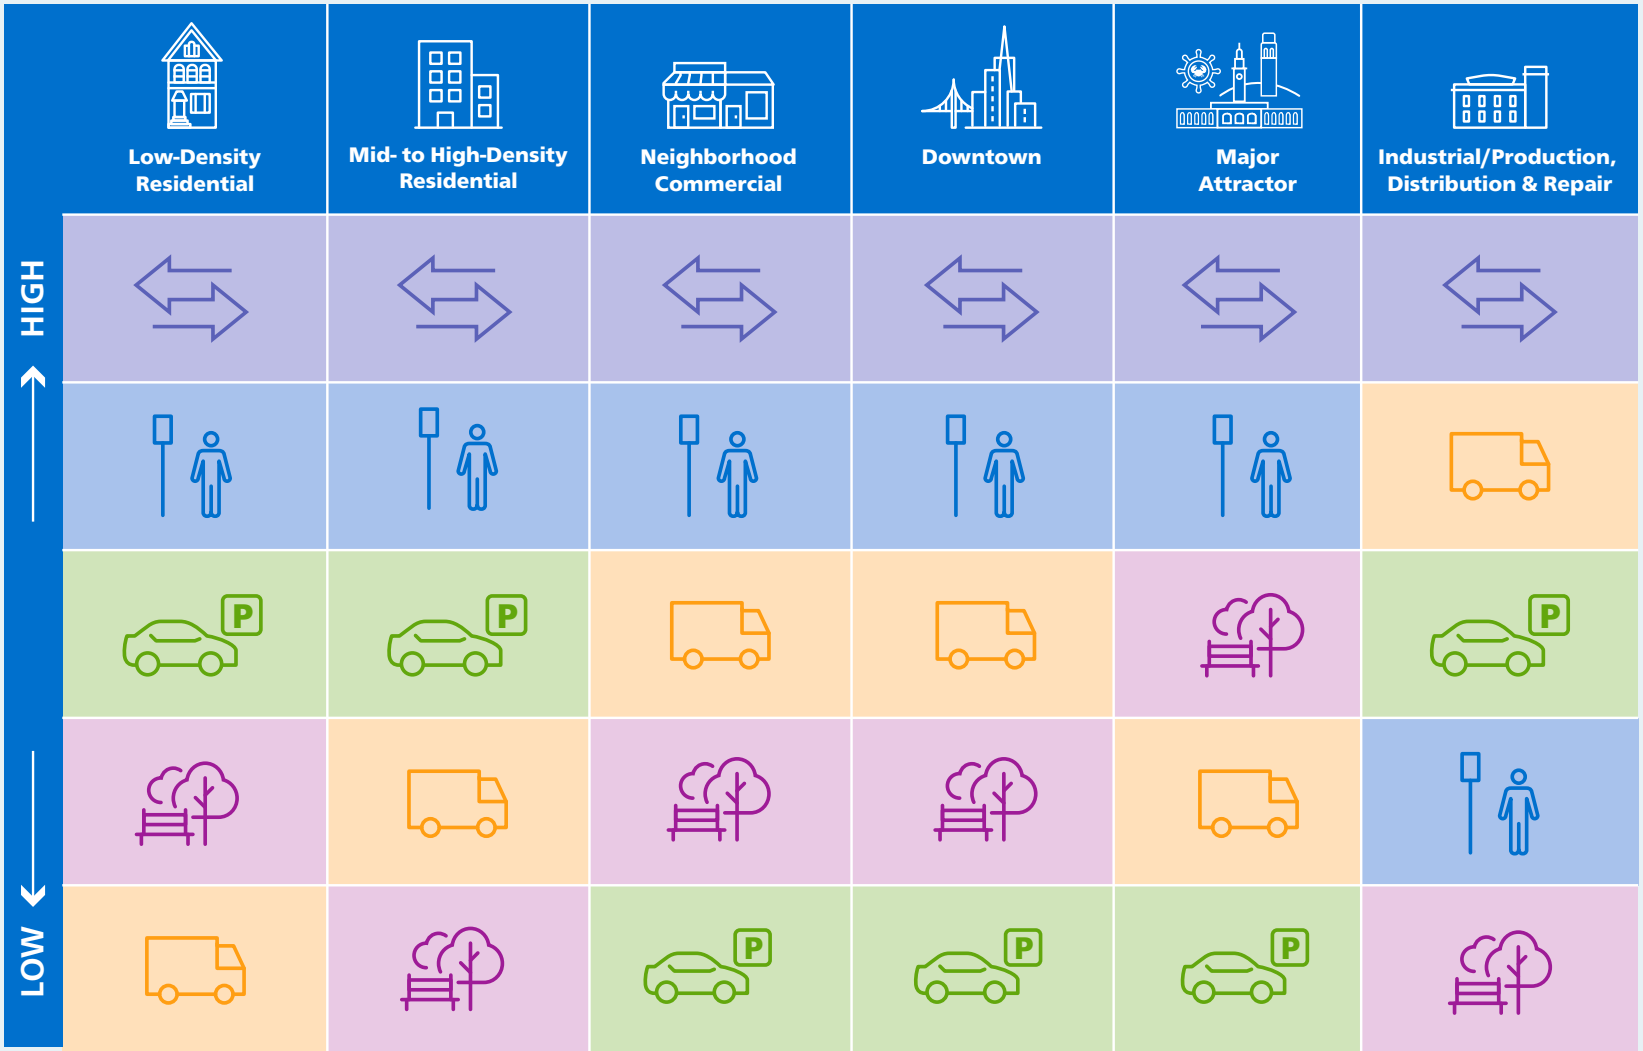
Curb Functions Prioritized by Land Use



STRATEGIES

CURB MANAGEMENT MEANS DEVELOPING NEW TOOLS AND STRATEGIES

To develop this Strategy, the SFMTA Curb Management team conducted an exhaustive existing conditions analysis of San Francisco's current policies and processes related to the allocation of curb space. This included meeting with dozens of staff across SFMTA divisions and other City agencies whose roles interact with the curb, including: Planning Department staff who recommend when loading zones be included in new developments; Public Works staff who issue permits to food trucks; SFMTA transit planners who determine where bus zones should be located; and parking control officers who enforce regulations on the street.

Through these conversations, it became clear that the City and the SFMTA face two primary challenges in curb management:

1. Insufficient tools, policies, and regulations to effectively manage demand at the curb as needs have evolved
2. A planning process that focuses on reactive rather than proactive curb management leading to piecemeal regulations that do not reflect the larger needs of a street or neighborhood.

To make San Francisco's curb space more accessible, efficient, and equitable, this Strategy recommends a set of new tools, policies, legislative changes, design standards, and process improvements. These strategies are intended to be pragmatic and outcome-oriented while still pushing the envelope towards cutting-edge policy. While some recommendations are more aspirational than others, this is not intended to be a conceptual, long-range planning document, and all recommendations are made with implementation in mind.

Under each of the Curb Management Strategy's six objectives are strategies designed to achieve that objective. For each strategy the level of effort necessary to implement it is identified and encompasses both financial requirements as well as human capital needed. The mechanism for implementing each strategy varies; from SFMTA administrative and process changes to regulation and legislative changes that would be approved by the SFMTA Board, San Francisco Board of Supervisor or at the state level, many of which would also include public engagement.

The potential impact that a given strategy could have on achieving the objectives and goals of this strategy is identified as well as a general timeline for implementation.

The estimated timeline divides the strategies into short-, mid-, and long-term priorities. The SFMTA can begin to implement short-term strategies within six months of the adoption of this document, and some may already be in progress. Mid-term strategies can be implemented between six and eighteen months after adoption of the document, while long-term strategies will require more time.

HOW IT WORKS NOW

According to state and local law, white paint on the curb indicates a passenger loading zone, yellow indicates commercial loading, and green indicates short-term parking. Most white, yellow, and green zones in San Francisco are created on an individual application basis through the Color Curb Program. Business and property owners requesting white or green zones pay an application fee, an installation fee, and a biannual renewal fee (the City does not charge for yellow zones), with zone length, hours, and placement generally based on the requestor's needs.

Many areas with high loading demand have an undersupply of loading as no one business has applied for a zone. This leads to double parking, which impacts safety, congestion, and transit reliability. Loading zones are usually placed directly in front of the requesting property, even if there might be a better location nearby. Non-fronting business owners can request a loading zone, but this is not well-publicized. The cost for a zone increases as the length of the zone increases, so applicants have an incentive to request zones that may be too short.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 79

A similar request-based system is in place for on-street bike corrals. This is in large part because street sweepers cannot reach the curb at bike corrals, so businesses that request corrals agree to keep them clean. Taxi stands, which are sometimes implemented upon request, do not have clear guidelines for creation or implementation, and their usage is not closely monitored.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Supplement the Color Curb Program with proactive allocation of loading and short-term parking

- Retain the request-based Color Curb Program, continuing to allow businesses and organizations to apply for loading and short-term parking zones
- Proactively allocate loading and short-term parking when white, yellow, or green zones could help accomplish City goals

2 Supplement individual bike corral requests with proactive bike corral creation

- Proactively create bike corrals based on bike and scooter parking demand
- Maintenance could be funded by scooter and bike sharing company fees or through partnerships with local merchants
- Bike corrals can be located in daylighting red zones where other curb uses would create safety or visibility concerns

3 Encourage non-fronting entities to apply through the Color Curb Program

- Entities other than fronting businesses and property owners, such as business districts, tour buses, and community groups could apply for loading zones in areas where they see a need

4 Develop criteria for evaluating new and existing taxi stands

- Take inventory of existing taxi stand locations and regularly monitor their usage
- Adopt criteria to determine optimal taxi stand placement and identify underperforming taxi stands

HOW IT WORKS NOW

The Color Curb Program, which processes applications for different types of color curb zones and implements them on San Francisco streets, operates on a cost-recovery model by which application, installation, and renewal fees pay for the administration of the program. Business and property owners requesting white or green zones pay an application fee, an installation fee, and a biannual renewal fee (the City does not charge for yellow zones). Application and paint fees are also required for driveway red zones, which provide clearance next to driveway curb cuts.

Some businesses that pay for loading zones feel they own them and try to block them off for their personal use, even though they are open to the public. This is particularly prevalent at white zones with valet stands, where valet operators park cars in the white zone rather than leaving it open for active passenger loading.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 81

The cost-recovery model has presented an impediment to proactive allocation of loading zones. The City has no mechanism to force a business to pay for a loading zone, even if the business depends on significant passenger or commercial loading, so the SFMTA is dependent on the willingness of the fronting business or property owner to pay for a white or green zone. Where no one is willing to pay for the zone, it often does not get created, regardless of how significant the need for it may be.

Effective curb management can be as useful as traffic engineering or transportation planning in creating safe and efficient streets. Just as the agency does not require application and payment of a fee to create a stop sign, a traffic signal, or a bike lane, it should not require an application and payment of a fee to implement curb management tools.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Reduce and eventually eliminate fees for request-based white and green zones

- Initially, reduce the application fee and make it refundable if the zone is not approved
- Eliminate all or almost all fees when alternative funding sources are identified
- Retain fees for driveway red zones as they serve only one property
- Potentially retain fees for some color curb zones that serve only one business

2 Allow SFMTA projects to create color curb zones without fees

- Clarify that SFMTA streetscape projects may create white and green zones without sponsors
- Analyze funding implications for zone repainting

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Loading zones in San Francisco have a wide range of hours and days of enforcement. Yellow zones (for commercial loading) most commonly start in the morning between 7am and 9am and end in the afternoon between 4pm and 6pm, although many end earlier in the afternoon. Days of enforcement are split, with some in effect Monday through Friday while others are in effect on Saturdays as well. Very few yellow zones are in effect after 6pm or on Sundays.

White zone hours vary widely based on needs of the requestor. Some do not have specific hours, and instead are signed as "during posted services," "during performances" or, historically, "during business hours," though the Color Curb program has made a concerted effort to replace these designations with specific hours. In metered areas, meters are placed at white zones unless the white zone is in effect during all metered hours on that block (generally 9am-6pm, Monday-Saturday).

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 83

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Extend loading zone hours when demand warrants to make regulations easier to communicate

- Standardize nearby regulations where feasible, at least on a block level
- Extend loading zone hours when a small change could significantly improve legibility, making zones "At All Times" when possible

2 Avoid minor differences in loading zone hours on different days of the week

- Increase use of 7-day-a-week loading zones when demand warrants
- Avoid different hours on Saturdays and Sundays than on weekdays unless demand is drastically different

3 Specify regular hours in all or nearly all white zones

- Policy already in place for businesses, with "during business hours" phased out
- Many religious institutions and performance venues have predictable hours

HOW IT WORKS NOW

The City vehicle fleet is essential to providing services from homeless outreach and street cleaning to enforcement and transit infrastructure maintenance. While the City fleet enables City employees to provide essential services, City vehicles sometimes have to park in undesignated locations, or remove loading space from active loading uses. On Market Street, City vehicles were found to park in loading zones for a significant portion of the day.

Emergencies are not predictable, but some City services regularly require parking in the same locations. Certain locations already have dedicated City vehicle parking, like near police stations.

All City employees must take an online training in order to drive a City vehicle, but this training does not address how to park legally and safely. City vehicles have a permit allowing them to park at meters without paying, but they must comply with all other parking and traffic regulations unless responding to an emergency.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 85

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Adjust terms of City vehicle parking permit

- Work with City departments to reduce use of official vehicles when other alternatives are available
- Revise City vehicle parking permit privileges near offices
- City vehicles should only park in metered spaces when conducting essential off-site work and in loading zones only during emergencies
- Brings city parking permits in line with contractor and press vehicle permits, which may not be used to park near the office of the permittee

2 Allocate parking to City vehicles in locations with high concentration of services

- Only in areas where City service vehicles consistently need to park
- Prioritize off-street locations when possible

3 Include information on parking and loading in City vehicle training module

RELATED STRATEGIES

- 1.1: Supplement the request-based Color Curb Program with proactive curb space allocation

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Currently, dedicated motorcycle parking in San Francisco is primarily installed based on requests from members of the public. It is sometimes added proactively when a piece of curb, for instance between driveways, is too short to accommodate a full-size vehicle but could fit a few motorcycle spaces. Metered motorcycle parking spaces are priced at a significant discount compared to the standard meter on that block.

Motorcycles are also permitted to park between metered parking spaces if they can fit and the meter is paid. Parking between spaces can sometimes make it more difficult for a full-size vehicle to fit in the remainder of the space and can lead to conflicts. Motorcycles can receive residential parking permit (RPP) stickers for a 25% discount compared to a standard permit.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 87

While motorcycles take up less space and can be a more efficient use of limited curb space, they tend to be loud and have high greenhouse gas emissions. However, electric mopeds have the space advantages of motorcycles while producing little noise and zero emissions.

The Shared Electric Moped permit program allows permitted shared mopeds to park in RPP areas beyond time limits and to park in metered spaces without paying the meter. Permittees pay a fee and agree to abide by a set of terms and conditions.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Establish data-based criteria for allocating motorcycle parking

- Consider motorcycle parking issues as part of streetscape or curb management projects
- Shared electric moped GPS data and observations of motorcycles parking between cars can help identify locations where parking is needed

2 Explore the creation of electric moped-only parking

- Could help encourage low-emission, efficient vehicles
- Signage and enforcement should be carefully considered and planned

3 Further reduce the RPP fee for electric mopeds

- Could be reduced to 20% of the fee for a full-size vehicle, given that mopeds take up approximately one-fifth the space of a typical car
- Encourages adoption of smaller, energy-efficient vehicles that take up less curb space

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Vehicles often block the travel lane next to an open loading zone while loading passengers. In many areas, this is because vehicles pull into a passenger loading zone front-first rather than parallel parking, and a loading zone needs to be longer than the length of the vehicle to ensure that vehicle can pull to the curb front-first. Many commercial loading zones are not long enough for trucks, which need even more space to maneuver, so trucks often end up double-parking near open yellow zones.

Many loading zones throughout the city are not long enough to accommodate demand even when vehicles pull all the way to the curb. Sometimes multiple short loading zones are located near each other but are not connected, reducing their utility and increasing double-parking. Loading zones are frequently located in the middle of the block, but locating them at the far-side of an intersection or other clear space like a driveway can significantly improve function and placing them next to an existing curb ramp can facilitate accessibility.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 89

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Implement loading zone minimum design standards based on data

- Standards include a minimum length, which will vary based on position on the block
- Standards are intended to maximize percentage of vehicles pulling to the curb to load and unload

2 Relocate and combine loading zones to maximize utility

- Nearby single-space loading zones should be combined
- Loading zones located in the middle of the block should be moved to the far-side of an intersection or clear space such as a driveway when feasible or be extended to meet the minimum length standards

3 Consider the needs of surrounding uses when designing loading zones

- Applies to both request-based and proactive loading zone creation
- Perform data collection to measure existing loading activity
- Make loading zones longer if there is already latent demand for loading in the area
- Collect activity data from users like TNCs, on-demand food or goods delivery services, and delivery companies to inform curb allocation

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Currently, the vast majority of parking and loading regulations end in the early evening, generally by 6pm, and very few regulations are in place on Sundays. Nearly all yellow zones revert to free, unlimited parking after 6pm and on Sundays, and many are not in effect on Saturdays, either. Green zones are also generally only in effect 9am to 6pm, Monday through Saturday, as are parking time limits in some parts of the city. White zones are more likely to be in place later into the evening and on Sundays.

However, in many parts of the city, the highest passenger loading demand is in the evening and on weekends. For instance, an analysis of Valencia Street found more than twice as many loading events between 7pm and 9pm as between 9am and 11am, but only 3 percent of curb space is devoted to loading in the evening as opposed to 15 percent during the day. In addition, analyses have shown that Sundays have similar levels of activity to Saturdays.

Enforcement is heavily oriented towards daytime, weekday hours, with most of the limited enforcement resources available at nights and on Sundays dedicated to responding to complaints.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Extend hours at loading zones to nights and weekends where demand warrants

2. Allocate the necessary resources to adjust enforcement hours to increase staffing in evenings and on weekends
   - Allows for proactive enforcement rather than just responding to complaints
   - Necessary to ensure utility of new evening loading zones
   - Requires increased funding to implement without reducing daytime enforcement

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Parking meters support commercial areas by improving parking availability. Meters in most of San Francisco run only between 9am and 6pm, Monday through Saturday. The only exceptions are "special event areas" near Oracle Park and Chase Center, where meters operate 9am to 10pm seven days a week, and in areas under Port jurisdiction. The SFMTA extended meters to Sundays in 2013 but stopped the program in 2014.

In many commercial corridors, demand for parking is highest in the evening, during the dinner rush and nightlife hours. However, parking occupancy in some of these corridors reaches nearly 100% soon after 6pm, with little to no availability or turnover. This makes it harder for customers to get to businesses or appointments in the evening and increases circling and double-parking.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Consider extending parking meter hours into the evening and on Sundays

- Already in place in event areas and Port jurisdiction
- Would reduce circling and double-parking
- Would increase parking turnover and availability, supporting business vitality

2 Evaluate the potential impacts of extending meter hours

- An extension of meter hours will have financial implications from both a revenue and cost perspective

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Yellow zone availability is especially important for business vitality, reducing congestion, and improving safety. Yellow zones are specifically dedicated to commercial loading and businesses rely on them for delivering goods. Blocked yellow zones are likely to lead to double-parked trucks.

Vehicles with contractor permits are exempt from paying meters, including those at yellow zones, but must comply with time limits. However, meter time limits are often enforced based on payment, since meters only allow drivers to pay for up to the time limit. As such, contractors often park in yellow zones for much longer than the 30-minute limit. In addition, vehicles with contractor permits frequently are not engaging in active loading for which yellow zones were designed; instead, contractors often park their vehicles in yellow zones while they visit a job or meeting site. This reduces yellow zone availability and pushes commercial loading into the travel lane.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 93

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Remove the contractor meter payment exemption from yellow meters

- Contractor vehicles could still use yellow zones if they pay and comply with the time limit
- Contractors could still park in regular metered spaces without paying
- Would increase availability of yellow zones for active loading

2 Consider implementing a permit program for parcel delivery services at yellow zone meters

- Parcel delivery vehicles rarely pay at yellow meters, so a permit program and permit fees could make up for lost meter revenue
- These types of services have strong financial and logistical incentives to keep moving, so they would be less likely than contractor vehicles to exceed yellow zone time limits
- Revenues generated could help fund larger curb management efforts

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Green zones are for short-term parking and can be metered or unmetered. They are commonly located outside businesses like laundromats, drugstores, and coffee shops. They also function as loading zones for people loading and unloading goods with non-commercial vehicles. They are particularly useful for people with disabilities who need to park as close as possible to the front door of a business.

Metered green zones in San Francisco have 15- or 30-minute limits, while unmetered green zones have 10-minute limits. In metered areas, green zones are indicated only by a green cap on the meter, not by paint on the curb. They are usually only in effect 9am to 6pm, Monday through Saturday, but demand for food deliveries and take-out is high in many neighborhoods in the evening and on Sundays. People with disabled parking placards are not subject to green zone time limits, which means that placard holders can park for up to 72 hours. This restricts the availability of green zones, particularly for people with disabilities needing short-term parking.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 95

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Pursue state legislation to remove the disabled placard exemption for green zone time limits while allowing a longer time limit for people with disabilities

- Would increase availability and reliability of green zones, including for people with disabilities, by preventing one person from parking at a green zone all day
- Related to but separate from other placard reform efforts
- Partner and engage with other California cities and advocacy organizations

2 Standardize metered green zone time limits at 15 minutes

- A 15-minute limit would increase turnover and better serve quick pick-ups and drop-offs
- Could help address non-commercial vehicle freight loading needs
- Would reduce potential for abuse (feeding the meter every 30 minutes is easier than every 15)

3 Extend meter and time limit hours at green zones to evenings and Sundays in areas where demand warrants

4 Consider painting curbs green and/or installing signage in metered areas

- Study whether curb paint or signs improve compliance compared to the current practice of indicating short-term metered spaces by only green caps on meters
- Add signage so drivers know the time limit before attempting to pay

HOW IT WORKS NOW

The California Vehicle Code provides for two primary types of loading zones: white zones for passenger loading, and yellow zones primarily for commercial loading. However, traditional services like pizza delivery, small business owners, and rapidly growing on-demand delivery services frequently perform goods loading using non-commercial vehicles, which do not fit well into either type of loading zone.

Non-commercial vehicles may not use yellow zones, since they do not have commercial license plates and must leave their vehicle. They can stop in yellow zones for up to three minutes but their vehicle must remain attended. They may not use white zones since these only allow passenger loading and require vehicles to be attended. Non-commercial vehicles can use green zones, which are for short-term parking. However, green zones allow unlimited parking by people with disabled placards, and people with disabled placards frequently park in them all day making them unavailable to other users.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Encourage people who use personal vehicles for goods delivery to register for commercial license plates
   - Work with businesses as part of projects to publicize this option
   - Increases vehicle registration costs but expands parking options
2. Consider removing attended vehicle requirement for non-commercial vehicles in yellow and white zones
   - Would allow drivers to get out of non-commercial vehicles for up to five minutes in a white zone, three minutes in a yellow zone
   - Could reduce availability of yellow and white zones and make enforcement more difficult

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Demand for curb space varies over the course of the day. Often, commercial deliveries take place from the early morning to early afternoon, while passenger loading demand peaks in the evening. The SFMTA has long accommodated this varying demand by creating time-limited loading zones that allow regular parking outside of loading hours.

The SFMTA has also created some "dual-use" zones that provide different types of loading at different hours, most commonly commercial loading during the day and passenger loading in the evening. These are usually marked with yellow curb paint but sometimes have white curb paint instead, accompanied by signage.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Create more dual-use zones that vary loading regulations based on time of day

- Many already exist, providing commercial loading at some times and passenger loading at other times
- Other combinations of regulations could also be beneficial in different parts of the city
- Expanding use of dual-use zones would help maximize efficiency of the curb

2 Standardize curb treatment for dual-use zones

- Consider eliminating curb paint at dual-use zones and use signs exclusively to communicate regulations

Event organizers apply to the SFMTA to take street space, with a different process depending on whether they are only using curb space or also closing travel lanes. Organizers are required to replace blue zones on a one-for-one basis. Yellow and green zones are not relocated, while white zones are not relocated unless the white zone sponsor requests relocation. However, demand for loading may remain or even increase when a street is closed for an event.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Require event organizers to replace yellow and white zones when necessary

- The SFMTA could require loading to be replaced through the Interdepartmental Staff Committee on Traffic and Transportation (ISCOTT) process only when necessary, focusing on major events in the Downtown area
- Most events would not be affected

2 Create a standard temporary yellow zone sign template

- 6.1: Prioritize accessibility in curb management

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Parking enforcement is key to successful curb management. Enforcement strategies can ensure that people park and load in legal locations, that loading zones remain available for use, and that accessibility is retained for people with disabilities.

Many loading-related violations are inherently difficult to enforce. When a driver illegally double-parks or stops in a bus zone to drop off a passenger, they may be there for less than a minute, making it unlikely that an enforcement officer will catch them. Since the vehicle is occupied while the violation is taking place, the driver may leave if they see a parking control officer (PCO) approaching, and unpleasant interactions are more likely to occur than for violations when the vehicle is unattended.

Many parking violations have become part of the City's streetscape as the result of policies about how to focus enforcement resources. For instance, sidewalk parking is common in many parts of the city, particularly when parking at the curb is prohibited during street cleaning, but also at other times. Changing this behavior will require a larger policy change by decision-makers and extensive public engagement, in addition to changes in enforcement procedures.

Similarly, many white zone sponsors have for decades parked their personal vehicles in white zones they sponsor rather than leaving those zones open for active passenger loading. The SFMTA primarily cites for white zone violations based on complaints from white zone sponsors, so the sponsors themselves rarely receive citations for illegal parking in those zones. In addition, in many cases enforcement officers allow vehicles to park in white zones for longer than the five-minute limit listed in the Transportation Code.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Prioritize enforcement of most harmful violations

- Base enforcement on City priorities like Vision Zero, Transit First, and accessibility
- Pursue reductions in violations like double-parking, sidewalk parking, blocking intersections, and stopping in bus zones
- Increase enforcement funding to avoid reducing staffing on beats like street sweeping and RPP
- Data-driven and detailed evaluation of revenue implications and impacts on behavior

2 Proactively cite for misuse of loading zones

- Shift from a primarily complaint-based system
- Enforce five-minute limit at all white zones. At childcare centers, hospitals, and schools, allow unattended vehicles within five-minute limit

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Signage at loading zones across the city varies widely. Some color curb zones have no signs, while in metered areas they often have small signs on meter posts near the ground. Although loading signs have become much more standardized in recent years, many different sign designs are still found at different loading zones across the city with the same regulations. Many signs are text heavy and convey the meaning of the zone using a double negative (No Stopping EXCEPT Passenger Loading) rather than a positive (Passenger Loading Only) reducing the legibility of the regulation.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Develop standard designs for common types of loading zones and templates for less common sign types and messages

- Use positive language to make regulations clearer
- Increase usage of Manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices (MUTCD) approved icons, and reduce use of text, to improve legibility
- Particularly important when implementing more complicated regulations like dual-use zones

2 Install pole signage at loading and short-term parking zones in metered and unmetered areas

San Francisco's curb regulations are often confusing and can be particularly inaccessible to people coming from outside the city or state. Many unsafe, illegal behaviors have been commonplace for decades and have been inconsistently enforced.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Develop a public information campaign on parking and loading regulations in San Francisco

- Could highlight safe loading and parking practices and illustrate the negative impacts of behaviors such as double parking
- Could include ads on buses and in bus shelters, social media, and partnerships with companies like TNCs in coordination with other Vision Zero campaigns
- Could publicize little-known rules, such as that yellow zones may be used for brief passenger loading

2 Prioritize communications efforts around changes in policies

The SFMTA Board sets fines for parking and traffic violations under parameters set by the California Vehicle Code (CVC). Most parking fines are between $72 and $110, while disabled parking violations carry a fine of $866. Bus zone violations are the most expensive after those related to disabled parking, at $288. Fines for double parking, parking on the sidewalk, and blocking an intersection, among others, are $110.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Increase fines for the violations that compromise safety and increase congestion, like double parking, parking on sidewalks, blocking crosswalks, blocking intersections, obstructing traffic, blocking bike lanes, and blocking transit lanes

- Requires state legislation to authorize local jurisdictions to increase fines
- Could be increased to the same level as bus zone citations

2 Consider reducing fine for disabled parking-related parking citations

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Generally, a parking control officer (PCO) must personally witness an infraction to issue a citation, but the state legislature can authorize specific exceptions. Since 2007, San Francisco has been able to cite vehicles stopped in transit-only lanes or bus stops adjacent to transit-only lanes using cameras on buses, although PCOs still manually review camera footage before issuing citations. In addition, a number of cities were permitted to enforce street cleaning parking restrictions with cameras on street sweepers, but the authorization for this program has expired.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Explore ways to improve efficiency of the existing transit-only lane enforcement process

- Reduce the amount of time PCOs must spend manually reviewing footage
- Pilot license-plate reader or other similar technology to automate the video-review process

2 Pursue state legislation expanding camera enforcement of parking violations

- Use bus cameras to cite for illegal stopping in any bus zone and for double-parking along any Muni route, not just in or adjacent to transit-only lanes
- Consider cameras at fixed locations in places with particularly egregious problems with illegal stopping (similar to red light cameras, but for parking and loading violations)
- Investigate reviving program to equip street sweepers with enforcement cameras to free up PCOs from street sweeping routes, which take up a large proportion of total enforcement resources

RELATED STRATEGIES

- 2.4: Improve utility of yellow zones
- 3.3: Develop public communications around curb management
- 5.3: Codify procedures for determining if a driveway is abandoned

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Passenger loading is permitted in white zones for up to five minutes and in most yellow zones for up to three minutes. However, under the City Transportation Code, passenger loading is not legal in six-wheel truck zones, which are also painted yellow but have a red cap rather than yellow cap on the meter. There is a general misconception that passenger loading is never legal in yellow zones, but dispelling this is difficult when different types of yellow zones have different rules.

Driveways are common in San Francisco, and in many areas take up long stretches of curb that may not be used by the general public. Driveways are particularly prevalent in residential areas where there are few loading zones. However, many are used only a couple times per day or week while others are not used for car access at all.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 107

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Publicize rule allowing passenger loading in yellow zones

- Emphasize strict 3-minute limit and requirement for vehicle to be attended

2 Remove yellow curb paint from six-wheel truck loading zones

- Would help distinguish between six-wheel and regular yellow commercial loading zones
- Indicate regulations using high-visibility signage instead

3 Encourage loading across driveways when no other alternative is available

- Loading across driveways has a much lower impact on safety and congestion than double-parking or loading in other illegal locations
- Campaign should stress the requirement that the driver stay with the vehicle and move from the driveway when someone attempts to access it

TIMELINE

HOW IT WORKS NOW

According to state law, vehicles may park at an inoperable meter up to a posted time limit. If there is no posted time limit, a local jurisdiction may establish an automatic four-hour time limit, but San Francisco has not adopted such a policy.

Meter vandalism has increased in San Francisco over the last few years, with as many as 20% of meters in the city being inoperable on any given day. In some cases, people may vandalize meters specifically in order to park at them all day for free, often by jamming the coin slot with something other than a coin.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Adopt a local ordinance establishing a default maximum four-hour time limit at broken meters

TIMELINE

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Many transportation permitting functions that used to be administered by San Francisco Police Department (SFPD) have been transitioned to the SFMTA. Valet stands are one of the last remaining transportation-related functions permitted by SFPD. Valet permits need only be issued once and do not require renewal or periodic review.

Businesses applying for valet permit must demonstrate they have an adequate passenger loading zone and off-street space to store cars, but many valet operators park cars in the white zone, forcing loading at the valet zone to take place in the street. The SFMTA has little recourse, as it can cite individual cars, but not the valet operator itself, for violations.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Amend the Police Code and Transportation Code to move responsibility for valets to the SFMTA

- Could be administered as part of Color Curb Program and include biannual renewal
- Would allow the SFMTA to leverage permits to reduce misuse of valet permits
- The SFMTA could deny valet permit requests if the proposed valet zone would harm safety, transit reliability, or congestion
- May require some continuing SFPD involvement in background checks

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Some sections of the Transportation Code related to the curb are vague, unclear, conflict with the California Vehicle Code (CVC), or are outdated. Conflicting interpretations of these sections can lead to inconsistent regulations on the street.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 111

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Remove the definition of "Park" from the Transportation Code or revise it and add a definition of "Stop" to conform with the CVC.
   - The Transportation Code definition of "park" conflicts with the CVC definition

2. Remove specified hours for apartment building white zones from the code, clarifying that effective hours are listed on signage and/or stenciled on the curb.
   - The Code restricts staff's ability to tailor hours to specific circumstances

3. Clarify that religious institutions and performance venues must clearly post hours of services or performances in a format provided by the SFMTA adjacent to the white zone.
   - Religious institution loading zones are in effect "during posted services" while those next to performance venues are sometimes "during performances"
   - There is no standard for posting service and performance times

4. Remove the clause restricting white zone hours to the hours of operation of the adjacent establishment, clarifying that effective hours are listed on signage and/or stenciled on the curb.
   - This regulation conflicts with a white zone serving more than just the fronting business

RELATED STRATEGIES

- 4.2: Establish single inter-agency database for temporary curb use permits
- 4.3: Standardize geofencing notification procedures

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Data on existing curb allocation in San Francisco is voluminous but scattered and incomplete. Different types of curb uses are tracked in different formats and locations that are not aligned with each other. Some curb designations are not stored in an easily accessible or computer-readable format, usually because the curb space was allocated decades before the advent of computers and databases. Some of the most accurate data is stored in CAD meter drawings, but these are not tied to geospatial databases.

A lack of reliable data has real consequences. The City is unable to tell the public where all existing loading zones are, information that could help reduce illegal stopping behavior and improve safety, transit reliability, and traffic congestion. Project managers who do not have complete data on the curb may make decisions that conflict with other curb needs. Staff often must resort to time-consuming field-checking of data.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 113

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Develop and implement a linear-referencing curb data model that can interface with SharedStreets and other industry standards

- While a linear-referencing data model is ideal, point-based data could be used as an interim step
- The curb data model should support internal needs and allow for external data sharing
- Should be connected to the SFMTA's broader effort to digitize all street data
- An API to share the data with the public should be developed in tandem

2 Integrate all SFMTA and City processes and systems that modify curb data to enable an up-to-date single source of truth for curb locations and regulations that is integrated into the curb data model

- Includes sources and processes such as: CAD meter drawings, Salesforce color curb records, ArcGIS spatial database, and Paint Shop work tracking systems
- Should be paired with workflow improvements to the SFMTA's existing legislation and work order tracking systems, so that curb data can be updated in real-time
- Seek funding to build out a unified system and establish workflow processes that integrate with the curb data model

3 Create a standardized, complete inventory of curb space in San Francisco utilizing the curb data model

- Seek funding through grants and other means for a comprehensive curb mapping effort
- Investigate opportunities for working with private industry to populate data and share development and maintenance costs

- 4.3: Standardize geofencing notification procedures

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Event organizers apply to the SFMTA to take street space, with a different process depending on whether they are just using curb space or closing travel lanes. Construction contractors go to the SFMTA to occupy travel lanes but go to Public Works if they are only taking up curb space. There is no single central repository of temporary use of curb space by events or construction.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Connect all divisions and agencies that issue permits to occupy curb space to a single database

- Determine the data format and repository to store temporary curb use/closure information
- Would be a resource-intensive, long-term project, connected to larger curb mapping efforts
- Would enable communication of temporary regulations via an API
- Could ensure one-for-one replacement of loading zones during temporary street or curb closures, as is the current policy for blue zones

RELATED STRATEGIES

- 4.1: Standardize curb data inventory
- 4.2: Establish single inter-agency database for temporary curb use permits

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Transportation Network Companies (TNCs) can choose to direct riders and drivers to specific pick-up and drop-off points in a process known as "geofencing." Riders can be automatically assigned a pick-up or drop-off point, given a menu of options, or prohibited from requesting a pick-up at certain locations. The City has engaged with TNCs on voluntary geofencing in several locations, but on an ad hoc basis. Geofencing without adequate loading zones can exacerbate localized issues with illegal loading. Pairing geofencing with loading zones can help facilitate compliance with traffic laws.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Develop a standard operating procedure for requesting geofencing from TNCs
   - Would involve a standard data format coordinated with the larger street and curb mapping effort
   - Could include designation of pick-up/drop-off points and areas to be covered by the geofence and utilize industry standards as much as possible to communicate with TNCs
2. Seek an agreement with TNCs on geofencing implementation
   - TNCs would agree to geofence automatically upon SFMTA request
   - Should include set criteria for which situations geofencing will be implemented, such as minimum amount of curb space provided and loading activity observed
   - Could explore legislative avenues to require geofencing
3. Explore geofencing for other road users like taxis, Courier Network Services and traditional delivery companies
   - Taxis may require technological upgrades and taxis providing door-to-door paratransit service need to be accommodated
   - Other delivery services would need different types of curb space, such as green zones

HOW IT WORKS NOW

The SFMTA currently prices the curb through the use of parking meters and residential parking permit fees, along with smaller permit programs like the Commuter Shuttle Program. In metered areas, meters are placed at yellow zones, but the rate of payment is low. White zones are not metered.

From a policy standpoint, a curb pricing scheme would need to avoid incentivizing unsafe behavior. A program that charges for use of loading zones but does not have a mechanism to charge for stopping outside of loading zones could further encourage people to double-park or otherwise load in unsafe or unpermitted locations.

On the technical side, GPS technology that is currently being used in conventional vehicles is not precise enough to consistently identify whether someone is using a loading zone at the curb, double-parking, or perhaps just stuck in traffic in the travel lane next to a loading zone. Sensor or camera technology would require widespread adoption and raise serious privacy concerns. Any system of sensors or cameras would require an extremely large capital investment for installation, maintenance, and power.

Finally, enforcement of a pricing scheme would be challenging. Camera-based enforcement would require state authorization and likely, would require a large team of officers to view camera footage. Both camera-based and in-person enforcement would need a mechanism to quickly determine whether a vehicle stopped in a loading zone has paid or not.

Any program to charge for brief loading events would have to address these challenges. Significant further study is needed to determine the feasibility of different types of curb pricing schemes and their potential impacts.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Hire a consultant to examine and develop an in-depth report to examine the feasibility of a curb pricing scheme and other potential revenue sources

- Consider costs, benefits, and impacts
- Look at technological, practical, and legal issues through the lens of equity and privacy concerns
- Consider alternative funding sources that could address vehicles' impacts on the streets and curb without complicated, expensive infrastructure, like a fleet-based vehicle license fee, or a per-trip or per-stop fee
- Coordinate with congestion pricing studies already underway, which could accomplish many of the same goals as the fees described above and evaluate if any of the congestion pricing technologies could be applied to curb pricing

As electric vehicle adoption rates increase, so have discussions about the possibility of on-street electric vehicle charging stations. Some cities have begun installing curbside charging stations and restricting the parking spaces next to them to electric vehicles. San Francisco instituted a limited pilot in 2009, adding charging stations across the street from City Hall for use by City-owned electric vehicles, and the SFMTA has installed charging infrastructure in City-owned garages since the 1990s.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 119

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Focus electric vehicle charging infrastructure off-street

- Encourage conversion of off-street parking spaces to electric vehicle charging stations
- Utilize City-owned garages and lots as well as private off-street parking

2 Consider permitting on-street electric vehicle charging stations, if at all, in limited circumstances after careful evaluation

- On-street changing stations require significant capital investment and lock curb space into a single use, which poses an obstacle to future streetscape changes
- Restricting on-street parking to a small subset of vehicle owners has important equity implications
- Develop robust criteria for evaluating any proposals based on these and other concerns

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Driveways remove parking spaces from public use while providing access to off-street parking to fronting property owners. Property owners or tenants may, in certain circumstances, park on the street in front of their driveway. If a driveway no longer provides access to off-street parking, the SFMTA generally will not tow vehicles parked across the driveway but may still issue a citation.

Public Works may require a property owner to raise the curb at an abandoned driveway, but such notices are often dropped if the Planning Department records show off-street parking there, even if the garage or off-street parking space has changed since the date of those records. Multiple driveways may provide access to the same off-street space, but there is no process to close one of these driveways.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 121

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Codify a process to declare a driveway abandoned

- Should be developed in partnership with Public Works and the Planning Department
- Would take effect regardless of whether the curb is raised or whether records show permitted off-street parking there
- Would involve an appeal process, either at a public hearing or before a hearing officer
- May involve changes to the Transportation Code and other City codes

2 Develop a standard treatment for abandoned driveways in unmetered areas

- In metered areas, meters can indicate that a driveway has been abandoned
- Another treatment, such as signage or paint, is needed to communicate that a driveway is open for parking in unmetered areas

3 Develop a process to revoke a redundant driveway

- Would allow the city to repurpose the space across a driveway if that would not prevent access to the garage or off-street parking area
- May use same appeals process as abandoned driveway

4 Ensure driveways are removed whenever off-street parking is removed

- The Planning Department would take this into account during permit application review
- Would involve new construction and renovations

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Transportation Network Companies (TNCs) like Uber and Lyft are permitted at the state level by the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC). CPUC regulation of TNCs has focused on broad issues such as labor standards and vehicle safety but has focused little on important local issues like loading behavior.

The SFMTA can issue citations to individual TNC drivers for illegal behavior but has little recourse against the companies that direct their drivers to illegal pick-up and drop-off points or to perform illegal maneuvers like mid-block U-turns in commercial areas. As such, TNCs have little incentive to ensure their drivers comply with local parking and traffic laws. Local jurisdictions also do not receive data or permit fees from TNCs despite their impact on City resources.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 123

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Ensure TNC regulations align with local transportation policy priorities, including Vision Zero and Transit First

- Pursue state-level legislation to allow local jurisdictions to regulate aspects of TNC service
- Condition permits on compliance with parking and traffic laws, allowing City to issue fines directly to companies, not just drivers, for violations
- Mandate driver and rider training in San Francisco, including training on safe loading behavior
- Institute fees to pay for curb management and enforcement needs
- Require TNCs to share data with local jurisdictions to help make curb management decisions

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Curb access is critical for many people with disabilities. Getting dropped off in the travel lane may simply not be an option for people in wheelchairs if there is not an ADA-compliant curb ramp to get them from the street up to the sidewalk. The lack of passenger loading zones in many parts of the city makes it harder for people with disabilities to get around.

The SFMTA focuses on blue zones to serve people with disabilities, with strict siting guidelines and a goal that blue zones represent at least four percent of the metered parking supply. However, accessible passenger loading zones are just as, if not more, critical to accessibility, serving paratransit and accessible taxi riders, and able to deliver far more people to a location than a blue zone that might be used by just one person per day. Paratransit needs to get as close as possible to a rider’s destination, but often does not have curb space to do so. The SFMTA has created loading zones restricted to paratransit, but these are not defined in the Code.

Ex. ISO Letter to City’s Valencia Corridor Team - Page 125

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 Maximize accessibility when siting passenger loading zones

- Conform as closely as possible to the proposed Public Rights of Way Access Guidelines (PROWAG), taking into account grade, street furniture on the adjacent sidewalk, presence of curb ramps, and other factors
- Sometimes full adherence to PROWAG isn't feasible due to physical or funding constraints, but this shouldn't prevent creation of passenger loading zones

2 Codify definition of paratransit loading zone and establish zones at top paratransit destinations

- Could allow specific other users like ramp taxis and non-emergency medical transportation services
- Would ensure people with disabilities can safely get to key destinations such as dialysis centers

HOW IT WORKS NOW

Many Muni stops across the city are "flag stops," where the bus or train stops adjacent to parked cars. These are particularly prevalent in residential neighborhoods but exist all over the City. Flag stops force people with disabilities, particularly those who use wheelchairs or other mobility devices, to cross in front of parked cars into the street to access the bus's lift or ramp. Seniors and people with disabilities not in wheelchairs must go around or between parked cars to access the bus, and do not have the benefit of the extra inches of curb when making the step up onto the bus. Few other major transit systems in the United States widely use flag stops.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 127

RECOMMENDATIONS

1 SFMTA Board to adopt a policy to avoid creating new flag stops and gradually replace existing flag stops with bus zones

- Community engagement would still be required for each project converting a flag stop to a bus zone by removing parking
- More efficiently and equitably allocates curb space, as far more people can be served by a bus stop than by parking spaces

2 Develop guidelines (including a ridership threshold) for when a curbside bus zone is required

This document is intended to provide guidance to planners, engineers, and project managers on color curb zone placement and design when zones are implemented proactively as part of SFMTA projects. Standards will differ slightly for request-based zones, as they are tailored to the specific needs of the requesting entity. Staff should consult with the curb management team when developing a data collection plan and proposal for curb changes for additional guidance.

Data Collection

In-person or video observations are the best way to assess parking and loading conditions, but staff resources are often limited. Surveys can help determine commercial loading demand and can be used to extrapolate from limited in-person observations.

MERCHANT SURVEYS

Merchant surveys can be very helpful in determining when and where commercial deliveries take place, and with what types of vehicles. This information can inform placement, effective hours, and days of the week for yellow zones. Merchant surveys can help gauge business attitudes towards other types of curb changes as well, although merchants are most directly familiar with the deliveries that they receive.

IN-PERSON LOADING OBSERVATIONS

In-person or video observations of loading should be conducted for periods of at least two hours. Data collectors should note the time each vehicle arrived and departed, the type of vehicle, where it stopped (i.e. at the curb, in the travel lane, in a bike lane) and other factors as needed (see attached sample data collection sheet).

Optimal times to collect data depend on the location – downtown, the most important times to collect data could be around weekday rush hour, while on neighborhood commercial corridors it could be mid-day and the evening dinner rush. Data should be collected during at least one non-holiday mid-week day (Tues-Thurs) and one Saturday in areas with weekend activity. Data should not be collected in the rain.

PARKING OCCUPANCY AND TURNOVER

Standard parking occupancy observations can be conducted over a wide area, illustrating overall parking availability over the course of the day. Data collectors should count the number of vehicles legally parked on each blockface at regular intervals (along with those parked illegally or in front of driveways), relative to the number of legal parking spaces. This data should be collected across at least eight hours on at least one non-holiday mid-week day (Tues-Thurs) and one Saturday in areas with weekend activity, and should not be collected in the rain.

Parking turnover data collection requires more staff resources and can be targeted to a few representative blocks in the project area. Data collectors should note occupancy of each space, vehicle type, characteristics, and identifying information like a portion of the license plate number and making regular passes throughout the day, with similar timing to occupancy surveys. This data can provide information on average length of stay and variations based on vehicle type at different times of day.

INTERCEPT SURVEYS

Intercept surveys can determine the mode share of visitors to the project area. In addition to mode share data, intercept surveys can ask about customer spending habits, frequency of visits, and opinions on potential traffic and parking changes. Staff should consider conducting surveys at different times of the day and on both weekdays and weekends.

DATA FORMAT AND POST PROJECT EVALUATION

Any data collected should be stored in a format such that other staff can use it for future projects or to analyze change in conditions over time. After curb changes are implemented, project managers should conduct in-person or video data collection again to evaluate the impact of the curb changes and determine whether further adjustments are needed.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 133

Passenger loading

White zones are for passenger loading. White zones have a five-minute limit and require vehicles to be attended at all times (except in front of a childcare center, school, or hospital). Some white zones have special uses like taxi stands and commuter shuttle zones.

White zones should be implemented based on demand, which can be inferred from surrounding land uses, with businesses like entertainment venues, restaurants and bars attracting a high level of loading activity. The best way to determine demand is through in-person or video data collection. White zones serving a specific need should be paid for by adjacent business-owners, while projects may create white zones serving the needs of the wider block without requiring payment.

LENGTH AND POSITION

Below are recommended minimum lengths of passenger loading zones in different positions on the block. Note that far- and near-side zones can be at the far- or near-side of an intersection or of another clear area like a long red zone or driveway. Approximately 20 feet should be added for each additional vehicle expected to need to use the zone at any one time based on data collection.

POSITION	FAR-SIDE	MID-BLOCK	NEAR-SIDE
Minimum length for one car	20 feet	60 feet	40 feet

EFFECTIVE HOURS

New white zones should consider needs of the wider surrounding area, rather than just the fronting business. In areas with restaurants and bars, peak times for passenger loading can extend late into the night, while in office-centric areas, there may be little need for passenger loading nights and weekends.

"At all times" white zones are preferred to simplify the regulations, particularly when the remaining legal parking hours would otherwise be relatively narrow. In areas with little to no passenger loading demand at certain times, hours can be cut back. If a white zone is on a metered block and its hours do not fully cover the standard meter hours of 9am-6pm, Monday through Saturday, meters should be installed at the zone for payment when the white zone is not in effect. School loading zone hours should tailored specifically to pick-up and drop-off times on school days, and religious institution loading zones can be marked "during posted services."

ACCESSIBILITY

Loading zones for projects that entail sidewalk work must be evaluated by the DPW Accessibility Coordinator to ensure compliance with accessibility standards, including construction of new curb ramps behind near-side or mid-block white zones. Projects not making sidewalk changes should place white zones at the far-side of the intersection when possible to provide access to a curb ramp. White zones should be sited in locations without obstructions on the sidewalk like tree wells and bike racks. Separate guidelines are being developed for white zones adjacent to protected bike lanes.

Ex. ISO Letter to City's Valencia Corridor Team - Page 134

SIGNAGE AND PAINT

In addition to white curb paint, white zones should be indicated by overhead pole signage. If meters are present within the white zone, meter pole signage is required.

Commercial loading

Yellow zones are for commercial loading, allowing vehicles with commercial license plates to load up to the posted time limit (usually 30 minutes) and non-commercial vehicles to load for up to three minutes while the driver is attending the vehicle. Yellow zones in metered areas are generally metered.

Some yellow zones are designated for use only by trucks with six or more wheels. These zones do not allow three-minute non-commercial loading. They are indicated by a red cap on the meter in metered areas.
