4 Force.

5 WHEREAS, Research and development land uses, including bioscience industries are 6 relatively new industries that are expected to grow in the Bay Area because of the presence of 7 university-based research facilities, such as at the University of California, and a prevalence 8 of research and development land uses and the availability of substantial venture capital; and

9 WHEREAS, Bioscience industries have several components including laboratory 10 research, academic and technology-based research, development and manufacturing of 11 medicines and medical devices, and supplying of goods, machinery, instruments and other 12 products for bioscience firms; and

13 WHEREAS, Bioscience industries have a range of facility design needs that include 14 industrial, laboratory, laboratory-support and office uses; and

15 WHEREAS, The City's land use categories as set forth in the San Francisco Planning
16 Code use traditional industrial classifications which are not expressly tailored to address 17 newer industries such as the biosciences that are based on science, knowledge and 18 information technologies; and

19 WHEREAS, Over the last several years, the City has approved redevelopment plans in 20 the Mission Bay South Redevelopment Plan Area and the Hunters Point Shipyard
21 Redevelopment Area that create land use classifications for research and development 22 industries and identify with specificity the kinds of research and development activities 23 permitted in those areas; and

24 WHEREAS, The Redevelopment Agency is undertaking a public process to develop 25 amendments to the Hunters Point Redevelopment Plan and that planning process is

1 evaluating areas within the Hunters Point Redevelopment Plan Area that would be desirable

4 Supervisors is currently engaged in a community planning process in the City's Eastern 5 Neighborhoods, including the Mission, South of Market, Showplace Square/Potrero Hill, South

7 WHEREAS, The Eastern Neighborhoods contain all of the City's industrially zoned land 8 and recent rapid economic growth followed by rapid decline has resulted in tremendous 9 change in these areas and intense land use conflicts; and

10 WHEREAS, The community planning process is examining the need for and space 11 requirements of production, distribution and repair industries, as well as housing needs and 12 appropriate locations for mix-use development; and

13 WHEREAS, The community planning process will help inform and shape permanent 14 zoning controls in the Eastern Neighborhoods; and

15 WHEREAS, The community planning process in the Eastern Neighborhoods would 16 benefit from a study of the land use needs of bioscience industries and land use controls 17 appropriate for these industries; and

18 WHEREAS, Given the varied components of biosciences, there may be areas of the 19 City, in addition to those that have traditionally housed industrial uses, where some 20 components of bioscience industries might be appropriate land uses and might provide local 21 job opportunities, now, therefore, be it
