24 California have adopted policies for inclusionary zoning, which requires a certain percentage cities across the country seeking to implement policies to make housing more affordable to lower incomes households; and,

RESOLUTION NO.

1 WHEREAS, In the recent Palmer/Sixth Street Properties v. City of Los Angeles
2 decision, a California Court of Appeal found that the state Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act 3 does not specifically exempt local inclusionary zoning ordinances and local requirements as 4 they relate to affordable rental housing; and,

5 WHEREAS, A clear exemption in state code would strengthen inclusionary housing
6 ordinances across California, including in San Francisco; now, therefore, be it

7 RESOLVED, That to ensure the continued protection of local ordinances that provide 8 for affordable housing across the state and in our City, the Board of Supervisor urges our 9 state legislative delegation to amend the Costa Hawkins Act to make an explicit exemption to 10 exclude local inclusionary zoning ordinances.
