My name is Akshaya Krishnaswamy and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Akshaya Krishnaswamy

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Sierra Emeis, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Sierra Emeis

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Danielle Haynie, and I am an employee in San Francisco and resident of San Bruno. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Danielle Haynie

To: Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Marcin Wichary, and I have been a resident of San Francisco since 2006.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change to police behaviour, an end to racism, and an immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. I have personally attended two protests last week, and intend to do more this week.

Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. I believe SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the police budget was over $600 million, the majority of which came from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city – since I live in Tenderloin, it's been very visible. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to education, safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. Just this week, 12 officers repeatedly shot a man with rubber bullets blocks from my home and family. Every witness said it was unnecessary force, and a social worker or EMT would have been all that was required.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards fully funding the gap between those schools that are spectacular spaces of learning, and those that are unsafe for children to enter.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Irene Emelife and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

P.S.

Mayor London Breed, as a SF native and black woman you should take command and help try to build our communities up in San Francisco. The police do not need all the funding that they receive, especially because they are showing they abuse their authority. I am doing my part being active in this fight for justice and equality. You should too!

Sincerely,

Irene Emelife

Subject: 2 Black children and 6 Cops - WHY???

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Erica Dixon and I am a resident of San Francisco. I stand with communities around the US demanding meaningful change with regard to police behavior and an end to anti-Blackness

While there are plenty of far graver interactions with SFPD regularly, I feel called to share an interaction I witnessed just yesterday, Sunday June 7. While biking along the Embarcadero I noticed 4 white male cops surrounding a literal child, a young Black boy, who looked to be about 12. They stood around him suited up with their batons and guns, while he sat on the curb looking confused, and just far too young for whatever was transpiring. I stopped to witness and for over an hour I watched different cops come and go. They eventually walked this boy over to another young Black boy who was in handcuffs across the street. We followed, and at one point there were 6 cops all together with these kids. After about an hour from when I started watching they let the boys go. They skipped off, jaded, childish, seemingly unphased by the interaction, by now used to this treatment from the authorities that are supposed to keep them safe. Plenty of fellow San Franciscans walked by too. Some seemed bothered, most didn't look twice at these LITERAL CHILDREN in handcuffs. I wonder if they might have been more phased if they were seeing 12 year white kids in handcuffs.

It is demeaning, racist, and intolerable for this type of behavior to continue from SFPD.

Not only this but it is an incredible waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police, like 7 adult men menacing children in handcuffs.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Maya King, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Maya king

See multiple cities in Arkansas for examples on how to create jobs for homeless by employing them to clean the very streets they live on.

Several sidewalks (ellis and van ness; and octavia between fell and market) have already become unusable by your willfully neglecting anti encampment, littering, and public urination laws.

I'd like to see a minimum 40% reduction of police budget repurposed to street cleaning job creation and encampment removal efforts in the upcoming budget.

Hi – Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Matthew Kawatani and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America.

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund.

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to homelessness, mental health, or the soaring cost of living. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Matthew Kawatani

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Bronwyn Rothman-Hall, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Bronwyn Rothman-Hall

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Camille and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Camille

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Alah Rodriguez, and I am a resident of San Francisco. I am also a City & County of San Francisco employee. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards educating our children. Each year, SFUSD teachers have to use their own money to buy supplies, online educational programs and resources for their students. This year, they have already laid off employees that were valued by the students and parents.

My daughter attends Rooftop Elementary School and there are constant requests for donations to help fund arts and music programs as well other many other needs. In addition, it was unfortunate that K-2 children were not offered laptops and WiFi hotspots during the pandemic distance learning. In a city that is known worldwide as the "technology headquarters", it's an embarrassment that our school district could not provide that for every child who needed it. Those children have and will continue to suffer once the fall semester resumes. Research how South Korea handled distance learning if you'd like an excellent example of prioritizing educational needs during the pandemic.

Lastly, please remove the SFPD from all San Francisco public schools and colleges. Ending the school to prison pipeline is long overdue. The money used to pay SFPD can be directed towards hiring school safety officers which live in the communities of the local schools. Children are less likely to misbehave if they see a familiar face that they know will report their bad behaviors to the child's parent or guardian.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Mayor Breed: I know that you can spearhead this change. I also know you can personally relate to this call for action. I, too, grew up in the Fillmore District and was raised by my grandmother. Not everyone is as strong as you and I to overcome racial, social and economic disparities. Let's be the change we wish to see in the city which can spark a change in the world!

Sincerely,

Alah Rodriguez

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Abby Frazee, and I am a resident of Mill Valley, across the GGB from SF. Although I am not an SF resident, I consider the city a part of my community and have witnessed alongside the rest of the Bay Area the injustice and pain that have unfurled in the city over the years. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Abby Frazee

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

The SFPD has not been an appropriate use of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I would be remiss not to mention that the SFPD is miles ahead of other cities' police departments, and I recognize the positive changes that have already been made. But please reconsider this high budget, and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

Thank you for your consideration.

To Mayor Breed, (my) Supervisor Mar, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Eric Socolofsky, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen commensurate improvements to education, safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use the redirected funds to improve education (from pre-K programs such as PFA through free City College), address homelessness and mental health, and improve affordable housing availability.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Eric Socolofsky

Please consider following suit to the City Council of Minneapolis, who have pledged to dismantle their police force and rebuild it from the ground up. As a city of innovation and diversity, it's so imperative that we be an example in this fight for change.

Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Keenan and I am a resident of beautiful San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action and I'm thrilled to see a unifying call to arms to protest the continuing police brutality many Black Americans face today. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I have personally witnessed strife, homelessness, drug use, mental instability and more and have always desired to call on social services, rather than the SFPD, to respond in these situations. Rather than continuing to fund a police department that is not working for the majority of citizens, let's allocate these resources to services that will directly help the community.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

San Francisco has long been at the forefront for social change and I anticipate and demand continued growth and reform of our policing resources to better meet the needs of all in our community, regardless of skin color.

Sincerely,
Keenan Molner

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Graciela, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Graciela

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Toni Dancsep, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week (and for years many years prior), our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD is not the most productive use of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Spending directly on these actions is a far more humane and effective use of our funds.

I call on you to drastically cut the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans, and mental health. I implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

Mayor, you won my vote because you understand this imperative. You have led the nation in a rightful response to COVID-19, and I am excited for you to lead again as a beacon for other cities to follow. I thank you for your service.

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Jodi Naglie, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness and providing better public mental health resources, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. SF needs to be a place of opportunity and change for everyone.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. I believe in our community and leading with love instead of fear.

Subject: A plea to divert SFPD funds

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Christine, and I am a resident of San Francisco living in SOMA. These past two weeks, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change to end racism and anti-Blackness, police brutality, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

We should strive to be at the forefront of change, and diverting funding from the SFPD to other important facets of community life: education, the arts, mental health resourcing, homeless shelters and rehabilitation is a good first step. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, as we have seen across the US, we have been directly contributing to an institution that does not work for everyone that calls San Francisco home.

I call on you to divert the SFPD budget, and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. I truly believe this city does have the courage, please do not prove this belief wrong.

Sincerely,
Christine Tran

Hi San Francisco Board Mayor Breed, Supervisors, and Elected Officers,

My name is Kevin Wang and I am a resident of San Francisco, California. I am writing to you today asking you to reconsider and reevaluate the amount of funding allocated to the San Francisco Police Department (SFPD).

SFPD should not be receiving the same or more funds as its historically proven, they have consumed an enormous amount of the city's overall funds (nearly $700MM to be exact) without direct results to reduced crime or safety of the community. We must reinvest into initiatives to support the greater and overall community. Initiatives such as youth programs, jobs, restorative justice, mental health services, initiatives to reduce homelessness, and the overall safety of the city and residents.

Our Nation and immediate communities are in pain. We are gripped by protests calling for justice and meaningful change to terminate police brutality, racism, and to change the systemic structures that have failed to serve the people it was sworn to serve. We must obtain reform by defunding. Our city is and has been at the forefront of much of this, we can continue to be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Regards,
Kevin

My name is Stephanie, and I am a resident of San Francisco. I moved back to San Francisco last year after having lived elsewhere for 4 years. San Francisco will always have my heart but man are parts of it dirty, crime ridden and just plain sad. To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Wei, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Wei

My name is Nadia , and I am a former resident of San Francisco (and a Bay Area native - from Saratoga - lived in Oakland and Berkeley too). This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. As a former resident, I deeply care about this city that has been my home,

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police on those citizens who are most at risk.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. While portable showers and all are great, we need to invest in mental health, social work, and education in our community.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers
My name is Celeste Lavelle, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers
My name is Daniel Sherman, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Daniel Sherman

My name is Jessica, and I am a nurse in your community and resident of San Francisco. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, education, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. I currently work as a street nurse providing care to our unhoused on the street and I know how much support they need. Though San Francisco's black community accounts for only 5.2% of the population, a 2019 survey found 37% of unhoused San Franciscans self-identify as black.

Additionally, I implore you to divest funds from the SFPD to invest in education, and work with schools to implement restorative justice programs in place of the current punitive systems of suspension and detentions that lead to the early criminalization of youth of color through the school to prison pipeline.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Brenna Cleveland and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Brenna Cleveland

To my elected SF officials: Mayor Breed, the Board of Supervisors, and more

My name is Sam Weitzman and I live out in the Inner Richmond. I care a lot about the community of San Francisco and the safety of everyone involved. And so does our city as a whole. Protests have voiced our issues with the systemic racism deep within policing as well as highlighted the excessive violence all too often present while policing. Just up in Vallejo, the death of Sean Monterrosa reflects why I'm calling on San Francisco to do better than what we have.

Defunding police and moving resources into other social services and community projects would foster and grow communities, especially our Black and other POC communities.

With a budget of well over $600 million, I hope we can make substantial cuts to the police budget and put those funds to non-violent and growth based community programs.

Sincerely,
Sam Weitzman

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers
My name is Owen Oneal, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Owen Oneal

Dear San Francisco Board of Supervisors,

I am a Bay Area resident and a member of the grassroots animal rights group Direct Action Everywhere.

I am reaching out to ask you to support my friends and colleagues who are facing charges in Sonoma County for exposing factory farm conditions and attempting to give aid to sick and dying animals. It is completely unjust for authorities to ignore animal abuse while punishing those who try to address it. I urge you to stand with the activists on the side of justice by supporting our resolution pending before the Board of Supervisors this Tuesday.

Thank you so much for your consideration!

Sincerely,

Bianca C.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Paulina Zubatov, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Paulina Zubatov

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Nicole Young. I am a resident of the Inner Richmond and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>).)

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Nicole Young

My name is Alana and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to mental health, safety, homelessness, or affordability in our city. It's clear that this is not a 1 to 1 solution - there needs to be more we can do, more programs and policies we can create to address these problems instead of bulking up and militarizing our police force.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources first and foremost towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Calling for peace,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Sean Roberts, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Sean Roberts

I'm calling on you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

Throughout history, San Francisco has always been of the curve in supporting human rights. We've stood as a sanctuary for the most vulnerable populations and we've embraced "radical" love and radical ideas long before they became popular. I know we can again be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

I strong support eliminating or reallocating the SFPD budget to reinvest in our community. Thank you.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Angeera Khadka, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Subject: Defunding SFPD and rethinking public safety (actual letter, not just the template)

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Ben Saunders, and I am a resident of San Francisco. First of all, I want to commend the position of Mayor Breed and all those involved in taking the stance to pull funding from SFPD and direct investment into the Black Community, treating the actual problems, not just the symptoms. I also appreciate the work that has gone into gradually shifting budgets towards more homelessness relief, mental health resources, and other community investment during Mayor Breed's tenure, and recognize that few of the recipients of this message need convincing. I mainly want to say that I, as an SF resident alongside many others, stand with you on defunding SFPD.

I heard you speak last Monday at the Civic Center rally and appreciated your empathy and candidness in speaking. I'm sure you remember Gwen Woods, the mother of Mario Woods, speaking about the pain she's had to live with knowing the officers involved in the fatal shooting of her son haven't faced any consequences, the only acknowledgement being the out of court settlement. Like any other city, SF is not wholly innocent of abuses of power exercised particularly towards communities of color, but I want to be clear that I'm with you on the motivation for defunding not being punitive, rather as a reevaluation of how we think about public safety. Defunding is certainly important to free up resources, but it's also important in allowing that fundamental reframing, and I would be happy to throw my support behind dissolving and recreating a public safety department in a similar fashion to what Camden, New Jersey did in 2013.

But money is money, especially considering the current economic recession on top of our already mounting deficit, so I'll at least touch on what I'm sure you've all been made well aware of by the many of the emails inundating your office. Using the email form generator I borrowed from, last year the SFPD budget was $612M (unfortunately couldn't find the 2019-2020 official budget anywhere online, summary I found reported $1.79B for public safety), the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city.

I was excited to see Prop C make the ballot in 2018 and proud to support it, however as I'm sure you're well aware the accumulation of those funds will be incredibly incremental once they finally start when/if the lawsuits are settled (a quick look at news suggests that there hasn't been much progress on this front). We need change, and we need it now, and the easiest way to free up discretionary spending from the General Fund is to pull from services pulling from it, in this case SFPD.

In addition to improving funding, it's important that we work to make sure we have staff in place that can make the most effective use of that funding. Again I appreciate all the work that's gone on the last few years and, candidly, have an understanding primarily informed off op-eds and no actual municipal finance experience, but it feels like there's more that can be done with our money. As far as purchase of land for affordable housing, we find ourselves in an interesting position where rents are dipping in SF, and we might see the real estate market plunge altogether depending on how the next few months shakes out. This could provide a critical opportunity to maximize the impact of available funding, and it's essential that we have the right people and the right number of them ready to go if that arises.

San Jose's mayor has already rejected defunding SFPD, but we have the opportunity to lead the Bay Area and cities across the country in moving towards true equity and to set an example of what a world in which the response to every problem isn't to just throw cops at it, but to provide the right relief that affects sustainable change and community growth.

Thanks,

Ben Saunders

My name is Charlotte, and I am a resident of San Francisco. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has not used our resources well. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

"Crime" is not random. "Crime" usually happens when someone has been unable to meet their basic needs. More educational opportunities, more arts programs, more community centers, more mental health resources, as well as more of a say in how our own communities function, have proven to be much more effective at promoting community safety than policing. This is a long transition process but change starts with reallocating this funding!

We need to create a space in which more mental health service providers, social workers, victim/survivor advocates, religious leaders, neighbors, and friends - all of the people who really make up our community - can look out for one another. Will you look out for me, and will you look out for us?

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

My name is Jemila, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Jemila

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Julie Ross Godar, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Julie Ross Godar

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Anita Yung, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Anita Yung

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. Thank you.

Subject: We the People ask you: invest in humanity

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Izzie Clark, and I am a resident of San Francisco. Recently, our nation has been shocked by the harsh reality experienced by Black Americans. We need to vastly reform the way we treat Black folks in our schools, workplaces, and streets. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. It has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. I'm writing to ask you to use our taxpayer dollars in ways that will help us, not hurt us.

The budgets of the SFPD and police forces around the country are an abhorrent and paradoxical. The resources gobbled up by guns, tear gas canisters, and riot gear could fund after-school programs for hundreds of at risk kids. It could fund community help centers and rape crisis centers that create networks of support in our community. It could fund feeding programs for our homeless. Moreover, giving money back to the community will prevent crime committed by people who are desperate for basic resources.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We ask you to invest in the future of our society and to leave behind oppressive modes of police control.

Until there is justice, the people will not rest. Please set an example and help our city build a foundation for long lasting justice.

Sincerely,

Izzie Clark

My name is Lucky, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen any improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. Moreover, the COVID-19 pandemic has worsened the homelessness crisis, and many individuals with mental illnesses are neglected.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they deserve. With the COVID-19 pandemic permanently shifting the systems we operate under, we ask that you not just incentivize the tech industry and large businesses with tax breaks, but offer that same kindness and respect to the struggling citizens you neglect every passing day. Everyday I see the police ignore the vulnerable homeless, offering so called "protection" that does not improve the standards of living for every stakeholder in our community.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Justin Chappell, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to Roads, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving Underpaid teachers, Public bathrooms, Free recreation, homelessness which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Justin H. Chappell

I know we always say this but these truly are unprecedented times. Please give the people what they're asking for: Abolish the police. If Minneapolis is up for the task why aren't we? We're supposed to be the progressive leaders of this country! We too can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

You can do this. You can get the ball rolling. Don't let us down. If the people lose hope now, it's gone for good. Either that or we come back 10x as hard when the police kill the next innocent black person. WHEN, not IF. It's inevitable.

My name is Sarah , and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Sarah

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Sophia. I am a resident of Twin Peaks neighborhood, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>).)

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Sophia Yin

Hello all,

My name is Hailey Todhunter and I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. Let San Francisco be at the forefront of the civil rights movement and on the right side of history. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

Please do better or be voted out.

Sincerely,
Hailey Todhunter

My name is Sara Soofian, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Maureen Petit, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Maureen Petit

I am also aware that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. I work for the SF Department of Public Health. I am being notified of the inevitable budget cuts and layoffs while we are in the middle of a pandemic.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Now is the time to make a statement about what SF truly cares about. Do we fund a police force or do we fund hospitals?

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness and healthcare.

Dear Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Amelia Furlong and I am a resident of San Francisco. It has been a profound and deeply disturbing week, as all across America we have watched police enact acts of brutality against people gathered to protest just that -- police brutality. These protests have taken on an urgency and scale unprecedented in recent history. All across the world, people are turning out in solidarity for Black lives and to protest the brutality of American police.

San Francisco has been on the forefront of this struggle. The Golden Gate Bridge was shut down. Huge protests have swelled the streets of the Mission District. The People are speaking. Your people are speaking! It is not just your duty as lawmakers of this great city to respond to these protests with action, it is your responsibility as human beings who must engage in anti-racism through your appropriation of money. In America, money is power, and your use of the city's money tells us, far more than your rhetoric, what you care about as lawmakers.

San Francisco spends far too much money on the police. Last year's budget for the SFPD was $611,701,869. Nobody thinks this is working! Homelessness has only increased, poverty is widespread and rampant, and mental health services are deteriorating. I encourage you to put this money instead towards ending homelessness in San Francisco, which disproportionately affects our Black residents. There are enough hotel rooms and houses in San Francisco to house every homeless person. I urge you, no I beg you, to use the SFPD budget towards ending homelessness once and for all.

The moment you are seeing right now will not die quietly. These protests will not fizzle out. The People will keep fighting until you, as lawmakers, enact change. I urge you to lead on this issue.

Sincerely,
Amelia Furlong

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Liana O'Brien and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action.

Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Liana O'Brien

I attended law school at UC Hastings right in the Tenderloin and I am familiar with the despair and complete abandonment of human life. In fact, the only time the city paid attention to our most vulnerable and sick brothers and sisters was when SFPD corralled them, screaming at them like cows to "move" with megaphones, forcing them under a freeway overpass for the Super Bowl so that tourists wouldn't see just how much the city has given up on these souls.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Juana Berrío, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Juana Berrío

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Cate Stern, and I am a resident of New York City. I was born and raised in San Francisco and attended Rooftop K-8 and Lowell High School before moving to New York. I have been deeply moved by recent events, including the murder of Sean Monterrosa in Vallejo, whose death has affected my friends and family and the City.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

San Francisco is a leader in so many communities and industries. We should champion these issues and enact change and honor our heritage. I am proud to call this great city my home. I want to continue to be proud and show the world what our city can achieve.

Taking this action can be our first step to ending many systematic issues that is eating away at the very fabric of San Francisco. I urge you to take steps towards progress.

Sincerely,
Cate Stern

Dear Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Hannah Lu, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a shameful waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

Research shows that a living wage, access to holistic health services and treatment, educational opportunity, and stable housing are far more successful at reducing crime than police or prisons (Source: Popular Democracy).

There is not just a need for police reform, but police defunding and abolition, because the entire structure of the police force is inherently corrupt and ineffective. The average police recruit spends 58 hours learning how to shoot and only 8 hours learning how to de-escalate (Source: Campaign Zero). They are not trained or equipped to react to the vast majority of crises. Phillip McHarris (doctoral candidate focusing on race), argues that we must work towards a reality in which healthcare workers and emergency response teams handle substance abuse, domestic violence, homelessness, or mental health cases. Policies to "improve the police" are not enough, as there's no evidence that implicit bias training or community relations initiatives help with reducing the abuses of policing (The Nation). We need to reimagine public safety to prioritize alternatives to conflict rather than defaulting to violence.

We demand the immediate freezing of budget increases to the police force, cancelling of cadet classes, demilitarization of our forces, and reallocation of funds from police to community-led health and safety strategies.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

Please do not be complicit in the disproportionate targeting and continuous oppression of people of color. It is your duty to represent your constituents. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Hannah Lu

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Abby Beck, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to significantly reduce the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

I also will continue to ask you to help renters. Both high income earners and low income are suffering greatly right now due to increased health care bills and job loss. The moratorium on eviction and rent is not enough. Please forgive rent and allow renters to break their lease without penalty during these extreme circumstances. It's clear the economy is only going to get worse and this city doesn't need more homelessness. People will not be able to make up for this loss of income and will only be further in debt. The communities that are being affected most are those who are at higher risk for getting covid, dying from it. This is another example of how the system doesn't support black, indigenous, and people of color.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Abby Beck

My name is Amelia, and I am a resident of San Francisco, and have been for nearly 8 years. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869 — the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. In addition, it's incredibly clear we need more mental health support.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Jenny Siegel

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I ask that we fund community services and organizations of professionals who DO have the training and compassion and understanding to address the issues listed above which have been under the responsibility of police to handle for this long

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. Focus on remedying the addresses problem instead of policing it. Homeless people do not deserve to be punished or killed just because they do not have a home. THE SAME WAY BLACK PEOPLE SHPULD NOT BE TERRORIZED AND KILLED JUST BECAUSE THEY ARE BLACK !

There are many rising organizations within our community and our country which seek to accurately address and handle the many problems our society has been and is suffering from; they are stepping up and speaking out. Please do the same. People are dying, suffering, and continuing to be punished by their local and federal government. You have the power to stop it and it's been time to use that power of yours.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. Just like we did with gay rights !

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers
My name is Arezou Akbarpour, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Arezou Akbarpour

We need a psychologist or social worker in that case to deescalate and provide care and resources!

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. What we need instead of police is housing for all in San Francisco, adequate mental health resources and services, and programs for low-income families to thrive.

We have no need for the SFPD and I urge all of you to follow through with complete prison abolition and abolition of the police force, not lackluster police reform.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Alina Celik, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Alina Celik

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I have been tracking the deaths at the hands of SFPD and it is not acceptable! There are far too many! (One is too many!) We see this all over the country right now - it is so important that SF is a LEADER in changing where we put our money - so that our money reflects our values!

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

With gratitude for your bravery in reflecting our city's values IN THE BUDGET,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Paige Sternberg, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Paige Sternberg

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Diana Faustino, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Diana Faustino

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

I'm a resident and voter in D9. When I was a kid, I thought San Francisco was the best city in the world, because it had created a space where progressive values were celebrated and enacted. Now that I'm older, I understand the gap between my childhood vision and the reality we live in. I believe we have an opportunity to bridge that gap, and that is by taking money from SFPD's budget and moving it into creating permanent supportive housing for our unhoused neighbors.

For decades our growing wealth gap has pushed Black residents out of their homes and into the streets. If Black Lives Matter to you, then Black Unhoused Lives should be of more import to you and the budget you are determining for 2021.

Our police budget is much too large, and we can see that playing out in dangerous ways with 311 calls being responded to overwhelmingly with police. Unhoused people shouldn't be treated as if their existence is illegal. Unhoused people should be met with care and material support. That doesn't come from cops.

I urge you to cut SFPD's budget by at least 80% and allocate that funding to creating permanent supportive housing for our unhoused neighbors.

Thanks for your time.

Best,
Marion

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Joseph Rivas and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Joseph Rivas

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Gigi Bolanos and I am an intense case manager for a non profit in San Francisco. I have had the privilege of working with the communities of the tenderloin, Chinatown, and the Mission Districts and have witnessed first hand both the SFPD's brutality and inefficiency with the city's most vulnerable population.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Gigi Bolanos

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is ZOE and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

ZOE

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Angie, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

Dear Mayor and the Board of Supervisors

My name is Andy Jih, and I'm a 9 year resident of SF (~1 year in the Mission and 8 years in the Lower Haight/Western Addition).

It's clear that our city, our country, and our world is at a turning point. We can no longer wait as our community, our neighbors, our friends, and our family are being killed by an institution that we as citizens have continued to fund. It is time to defund and dismantle the police, and rebuild new social programs to help our city. Reform isn't working fast enough.

I have voted in nearly every election (city, state, and national), and expect our city to be the truly progressive city I know we can be.

Thank you,
Andy Jih

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Abby, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Abby

Hi Emma,

Thank you for your email. I think this is a great start but I want to call attention to what communities of color in our City are asking for is not just increased "policing of the police" but a total divestment from policing in our City as we know it. Here in the Bay Area we have organizations that are addressing how this can be done in the practical sense. I encourage you to look into local organizations that have thought deeply about the problem of policing and offer real solutions and alternatives to our current policing system, such as the Bay Area Transformative Justice Collective \(BATJ\). Consider how the City's resources and funds might be funneled towards these types of organizations that have proven track records of addressing violence in our communities WITHOUT police intervention.

I understand that the mayor is committed to investing in community orgs that are getting to the root cause of systemic racism and oppression but I'm asking Mayor London Breed and the City's officials to take this investment further. It may seem like a far fetched radical concept to imagine our City being able to function without a traditional police force but just because it's hard to imagine doesn't mean it's possible. There are people, organizations and communities that if given the amount of money the police department is given annually could work to create sustainable solutions to communities responses to violence that don't involve relying on the police that have the be consistently trained to not shoot black people for being black. I encourage you to read this piece that offers the reasoning behind divestment from policing as we know it.

What the Minneapolis City Council did earlier this week by announcing that they would work to dismantle their current policing structure shows that cities have that power and that there are alternative, less harmful and more sustainable ways of keeping our communities safe. It would obviously be a long-term process that wouldn't happen overnight but taking the step of committing our city to truly invest in the community and dismantle our police force would be so deeply meaningful and significant to the communities in this city that have long suffered at the hands of the police.

Thank you for contacting the Office of Mayor London N. Breed.

Mayor Breed stands in strong solidarity with the communities across the country who are grieving the loss of yet another Black life. Mayor Breed has lived and breathed this grief as members of her community and her family have died at the hands of police officers. As Mayor, London Breed will not tolerate a Police Department that brutalizes San Franciscans. In our City, we need a Police Department which protects residents, victims, and their families and we will not stand for the violence that we've seen perpetrated against Black and Brown communities by police officers across this country.

The San Francisco Police Department is one of the best in the country when it comes to measures to combat use of force, avoid bias in policing, and prioritize police accountability, and has already implemented all of the policies recommended by the “8 Can't Wait” campaign. Despite these achievements, there is more we must do to ensure fair and just policing. Mayor Breed established a policy that requires an investigation every single time an officer discharges their weapon and to present these findings to the Police Commission. In addition, Mayor Breed co-authored the amendment to create the San Francisco Department of Police Accountability which is tasked with investigating all officer-involved shootings and complaints against the Department, making policy recommendations, and conducting audits of the Department. For more details on SFPD policies and protocols, please see this website.

San Francisco has made substantial progress on police reform in recent years, especially around our use-of-force policies, but we know there are structural inequities in our city that continue to impact our African-American community each and every day. The Mayor's Office has also worked tirelessly to tackle the underlying causes of these issues by investing in programs that equitably support our youth and their development and provide more opportunities to those in need of a second chance. Mayor Breed has announced a plan to prioritize redirection of resources from the SFPD to support the African-American community in the upcoming budget. In tandem with Supervisor Shamann Walton and the Human Rights Commission, Mayor Breed will work to identify programs that can have the biggest impact on our Black communities for funding. The leaders of the City & County of San Francisco will not rest until the Police Department and all branches of government are free of prejudice and all San Franciscans have equal treatment under the law.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Dr. Heather Leutwyler and I'm a registered nurse and nurse practitioner in your community. I have been working with unhoused communities and people with serious mental illness in the Bay Area for more than a decade.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, education, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I urge you to reduce the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. I currently mentor and work as a street nurse providing care to our unhoused on the street and I know how much support they need. Though San Francisco's black community accounts for only 5.2% of the population, a 2019 survey found 37% of unhoused San Franciscans self-identify as black.

Additionally, I implore you to divest funds from the SFPD to invest in education, and work with schools to implement restorative justice programs in place of the current punitive systems of suspension and detentions that lead to the early criminalization of youth of color through the school to prison pipeline.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Alanna Mc Cabe, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Alanna Mc Cabe

My name is Katherine Stamborski, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Since I have lived in this city I have seen police harass people on the streets and in front of the hospital where I work. In 2018 I sat in a room with Jesus Adolfo Delgado Duarte's community and witnessed his on-camera execution. I have supported from a distance as my friends offered medical care Jamaica Hampton, after your police department shot him. Do you think we forget this violence? How could we possibly allow a department responsible for this much harm to continue?

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. I've also learned that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

I believe SFPD has been given a larger share of our resources than is needed. The SFPD budget was $611,701,869 last year, and the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, while we dearly need improvements to housing affordability, homelessness, mental health, and public transportation in our city.

I call on you to reduce the SFPD budget and instead use those resources towards creating housing affordability and solving homelessness, which is felt very strongly by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We lead in so many ways that other cities follow because of SF's great leadership and innovation, can we have the courage to change and lead in this way too?

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Mitchell Fong, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Mitchell Fong

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Ramya Kuppa, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

I believe that too much of our resources have been poured into SFPD to be carrying out tasks that go beyond one entity. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. As these topics continue to be the main talking points every day, now including the topics of the rise of unwarranted police brutality, the answer cannot simply be to continue to raise taxes. With city expenses already as high as they are, rather than pool more funding from the salaries of the civilians has it been considered to allocate tax funds appropriately to the needs of the community? It may seem that a large, over funded police presence is necessary, however that is placing a bandaid over a wound that requires medicine. Rather than police being able to properly help the community or provide public safety we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police that are not only specific to the current protests. SFPD annual reports have shown the number of complaints for misconduct and cases to be handled per complaint. These cases are also being handled by the same tax funds that are being deemed not enough for other pressing matters such as our housing crisis, public health crisis, substance abuse and more. How is Northern California's largest homeless shelter, MSC South turning into a recovery center due to a massive outbreak of Covid amongst the already vulnerable acceptable but allocating a solid amount of money out of a $600 some million dollar increasing police budget is unheard of?

The city is doing it's best to keep Covid numbers at bay and try to prevent a hotspot the way that NY has become. I commend the efforts, however we as a united community could have been more prepared, hospitals more resourced, test centers functionally running faster, and the homeless population wouldn't feel as abandoned if the city had more funds to address more pressing matters. These funds do not need to keep coming from the already hurt pockets of the average San Franciscan who isn't financially inflated from a tech/finance position, but can come from the vast amounts of funds that are given to the police department.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving our real cry for help from the homeless, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. Beyond their temporary stay at hotels only when they've come down with a disease with an unknown vaccine.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Sloan Caldwell

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Maryam Rostami, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past couple of weeks, our nation has been gripped by righteous uprisings calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. That's a tremendous amount of money, and could be used in so many other ways. We have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to severely decrease the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. Housing first! It is a model I know at least some of you are aware of and support.

Now is the time we can make real change. I am asking each of you to be a hero for the people who need it most.

I believe in you, and your courage to change the present for a better future.

Thank you in advance for leaning toward JUSTICE,

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Dan Kneser, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Dan Kneser

Dear Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

As a resident of San Francisco, I am writing to ask that you greatly reduce the 2021 SFPD budget and, instead, use these extraordinary resources towards mental health services, homelessness programs, and education opportunities.

Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending far too much on policing and have not seen meaningful improvements in safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city.

Our nation (and the world) has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change regarding police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and long overdue reform. Just as we led in a swift and informed response to COVID-19, we can also inspire a change in planning, budgeting, and working to dismantle racial injustice.

Sincerely,

Danielle E. Alvarez

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Rosey, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Rosey Oppenheim

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Nick Andino, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Nick Andino

My name is Matty Darragh-Ford, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Matty Darragh-Ford

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Jessica Zou. I am a resident of Cole Valley, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Jessica Zou

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Haley Shewfelt, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. Following the murder of Mario Woods in 2016, the CA DOJ recommended over 200 reforms to SFPD and four years later just 15% have been implemented despite an astonishing budget allocated toward SFPD. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Subject: Requesting further work into defunding and reallocating SFPD budget

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Aaron Weis and I am a resident of San Francisco and SFUSD middle school teacher for the past 12 years, and also a recipient of the mayor's teacher of the year award a couple years ago. I start with this as I want it to be clear that I care deeply about this city and the people in it and trying to work towards empowering young minds is my life everyday. Recent energy and momentum has granted us an incredible opportunity to reimagine what the gigantic SFPD budget could do for the people who live here and who are struggling. It will be hard work, but I'm confident in the end will be worth it. The inequities in this country and city are real and I see and hear the struggles of families and students daily. I have former students who were not given the opportunities in this world they should have and have been stuck in relentless cycles of survival and now are now incarcerated. These students were caring, hopeful and optimistic children whose parents always did what they could for them. I constantly ask myself what more could have been done for them. This should not have happened,

Real solutions take time, commitment and money. In these days of unprecedented economic turmoil, I urge you to make the hard and bold decisions to radically reimagine what we can do in this city to work towards creating a more just world where all residents, especially our young people of color are shown they and their lives truly matter.

I urge you to defund SFPD significantly and allocate resources towards services that help and support communities with more access to education, health care, and housing, especially for the black residents of this city. I also encourage calling upon the many organizations in this city serving these communities to be part of these conversations. If there ever was a time for extraordinary actions, that time is now.

Sincerely,

Aaron Weis

Subject: Regarding SFPD and the Safety of San Francisco

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Criss Burki, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Criss Burki

Mayor London Breed and other esteemed members of the board,

This is the SFPD POLICE abusing their power. Mohammed a disabled veteran joined our peaceful "Silence enables Violence" black lives matter protest in his car; from the Marina to Vallejo St. Police Department Sunday, June 7th this incident happened around 3:15pm on Bay St between Leavenworth & Hyde St. The irony of the SFPD abusing their power at a peaceful protest of police abusing power isn't lost in you I hope.

I was in the back for my safety (I am high risk due to battling cancer at the moment) trying to maintain maximum social distance. The moment the majority of the protesters went over the hill towards North Beach. Mohammed was pulled over by SFPD in his car with absolutely no cause.

Once all the eyes were not on them the SFPD were free to do whatever they would like. When I asked an officer why Mohammed was being detained he said "something about the license plate." Does that warrant an arrest?! The police were angry at the protesters and they wanted to release this anger on the first black man they saw. Luckily we were there to record this injustice and to demand Mohammed's justice; to be released. More protesters came back and due to the mounted pressure coming from the crowd. Mohammed was released.

Mohammed who has served our country and was injured doing so, limiting his mobility and making him disabled. Is this what we doing now SFPD detaining disabled veterans for nothing?!?

Our budget for the police department is exorbitant. $611,701,869 to be exact last year. That money could be better served in our community. Tackling our heartbreaking, horrendous homeless problem. Helping disabled veterans like Mohammed. Creating more low income housing. Funding our schools and public works. Dealing with the huge deficit COVID 19 relief deficit we will face. Creating jobs to the thousands of unemployed. Creating gardens and places where people can grow their own food. Covid has opened up all the cracks in our society; it is your job as civil servants to figure out the best solution to fixing them. You are civil servants, you serve the people. You have the power to create a better world for all of us!

EVERY SINGLE BLACK LIFE MATTERS! Defund the police!

Best,
Tamu Boylen

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Emily Rapada, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past couple of weeks, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. Additionally, please allocate these funds towards mental health resources, education initiatives, and other social services that can start to dismantle some of the racial inequity that still exists in SF.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Emily Rapada

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Lauren Puggeda, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. Reallocating funding to homelessness must inherently be paired with reallocating funds to public mental health resources; that is vital and non-negotiable.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Lauren Puggeda

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Cameron Hughes, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

As a primary care provider who cares for veterans within our city (many of whom are POC, unhoused, and/or suffer from substance use problems or mental illness), I fear constantly for their safety. The trauma they experienced protecting our country abroad should never, ever, be repeated or echoed by our actions here. They need social services and support. The people who respond to them in a crisis should not be carrying guns. These veterans have experienced too much trauma already, and I fear they will receive more at the hands of our police (whether intended or unintended).

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Alexa Cortez, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Alexa Cortez

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Nataly and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Nataly Kofman

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

Increasing funds for SFPD and subsequently, their power, presence, and role is not a solution or a step for progress. Unless something is done, the police will continue to enter spaces with weapons, guns, and the ability to brutalize and kill, even when the situation doesn't need any physical interference at all. The fact is that the police don't protect people of color and, for Black people, any call to 911 can be a death sentence.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. My name is Lauren Hammond and I am a resident of San Francisco. As a mental health clinician that works in schools and in the community, it is clear that funding is going in the wrong direction. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. As a mental health practitioner, it is clear to me the city can reallocate many of these funds to mental health and schools and create more positive change. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Mackenzie Le, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers:

My name is Annie McDonough, and I am a resident of San Francisco and a resident physician at UCSF. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

As a physician, I am extremely concerned about the health and safety of my patients--and how those in positions of power are not prioritizing the health and safety of our most marginalized community members. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Annesia Rodriguez, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Annesia Rodriguez

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Bay Kempthorne, and I am a resident of San Francisco.

We can't stand for any more violence from the police. We as a city can't stand for any more systemic oppression and discrimination.

Police need to be peace officers and protect us instead of kill us.

Police should have more empathy and sensitivity training and be from the community and city that they are here to protect and serve. These things would greatly help police officers protect people instead of discriminate and wrongfully accuse people of various offenses. We have seen to many people die at the hands of cops for unjust reasons

This needs to change

So we must change the budget.....

We must train our police better

We need to stand for justice, equality, education and inclusivity over discrimination, systemic racism and classism.

We need to give more money to positive social programs. More money from the budget towards education, housing and supporting small local businesses.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Subject: Divest from the SFPD

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Zoe D'Angelo. I am a resident of the Lower Haight, and I am emailing today to demand a divestment of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestment is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Zoe D'Angelo

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Fiona Mahoney, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Fiona Mahoney

Subject: I Believe The SFPD Can Rise To Meet This Challenge
Date: Tuesday, June 9, 2020 1:33:06 PM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

A few months ago I was in the Central SFPD station (located at the Northern tip of the City, who names these things?) and I noticed a photo and a plaque on the wall. I just remember that it was a photo of a man, I assume a local business owner, who had passed away some years ago, and the plaque said, I believe, "A Friend Is Never Forgotten."

It really touched me. Such a sincere gesture to honor the relationship between law enforcement and the community. It reminds me of the goodness and decency that the SFPD can be capable of, and that matters to me a great deal.

In the coming weeks, months, and years, the citizens of San Francisco (my hometown) will be a lot more vocal about what we expect from the SFPD. The national effort to "defund the police" is going to proceed, and a lot is going to change about how sworn officers do their jobs in this city.

We know that a good cop is worth more than all the money in the world. Unfortunately, cops who can't meet the basic standards about how to treat people, be they unhoused people, poor people, or people in mental or emotional crisis, can't continue their careers with the SFPD. They disgrace the hard work of the trustworthy and decent officers, and they diminish what it means to be an American.

I implore you not to see the coming changes as evidence of an adversarial relationship between the people and the police. This is perhaps an overdue clarification of what we want from you. Clarifications will be made, and changes will be implemented. I hope you all think of this as an opportunity to do better and to be better, and I look forward to seeing you rise to the challenge.

Take care.

My name is Michelle Svelti, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Michelle Svelti

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers
My name is Nora Romick, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue. SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change. Sincerely, Nora Romick 1391 38th Ave #1 SF CA 94122

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

Hello! My name is Leila Shokat, and I am a resident of the Richmond District in San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Leila Shokat

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Paige Greenwood, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Paige Greenwood

SFPD has been a harmful waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Alejandra Herrera and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Ariana Saldivar, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Ariana Saldivar

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Isabel Saylor. I am a resident of the Sunset District, and I am emailing today to demand a divestment of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>)).

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestment is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Isabel Saylor

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Mathilda Moore and I am a resident of San Francisco. I was there when Mayor Breed addressed our protest at city hall - it was a commitment to do better. This week I celebrated when my district representative held Mayor Breed to that promise - demanding much more progressive appointees to the Police Commission.

This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action.

Now, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

Dearest elected officials, a budget is a moral document. You can directly address these protests and community concerns by passing a drastically reformed budget. Please don't waste this opportunity.

We have already tried the "8 can't wait" reforms and they are not enough. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

Police are called when they are not the tool that's needed. It's wasteful and harmful and it's not working.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards support for our communities. Such as direct action in solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. These efforts will be appreciated by the entire city.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Hailey Warner, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,

Hailey Warner

My name is Troy Anthony Delaney, and I am a resident of San Francisco for over 10 years. I love our city and what it represents to the nation. Me and my community joins the rest of the rational world in protest calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. I have been to several of the rallies and protests and witnessed the desire and the need for a total rethink of our idea of "law force" is at its most urgent. The subject of defunding and redistributing PD budget has come up again and again at these rallies and seems like the most conscious and logical thing to do to lessen the presence of out of control police.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Sarah, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past week, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-blackness, and immediate reform in how black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

Subject: Oppose Supervisor Preston's Ordinance #200375
Date: Sunday, June 7, 2020 7:15:29 PM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Board of Supervisors,

Thank you for your work during this pandemic on behalf of your constituents. During this unprecedented crisis, housing providers as well as tenants are facing tremendous economic pressures. Because of these, we strongly oppose Supervisor Preston's Ordinance #200375 "COVID-19 Tenant Protections" on a number of legal and ethical grounds.

First, #200375 is unconstitutional. It forces courts to interfere with existing private contracts in violation of both the California and U.S. Constitutions. Not even a pandemic should undermine these basic fundamentals that govern our state and country.

Across the board rent forgiveness/permanent eviction moratorium due to COVID-19 could cause many property owners, particularly small "mom-and-pops," to go bankrupt, causing a significant reduction in the amount of available housing inventory in San Francisco and worsening an already bad housing crisis. Many owners are retired and/or barely getting by each month: they have expenses that are not magically going away or being reduced, such as mortgages, property tax, insurance, maintenance costs, etc. This ordinance potentially wipes out all COVID-19 related rent for tenants at the expense of San Francisco housing providers, who are experiencing just as much distress as renters, if not more; many property owners have also lost their jobs. With Mayor Breed's and Governor Newsom's moratoriums forcing housing providers to work out forbearance agreements with renters, the combined effect of this and #200375 will push many housing providers deeper underwater, causing many to drown, financially. Many have spent their entire lives working and saving for their property and could now find themselves in financial ruin by not being able to collect rental income for most of 2020. This loss during their golden years will cause many to be unable to sustain basic needs such as food, medical expenses and, ironically, a roof over their heads.

#200375 encourages tenants without financial distress to decide to stop paying rent just to take advantage of the situation. With multiple government orders in place to stop evictions, nothing can happen to them, even if an unlawful detainer is filed. The devastating combination of reduced rental income combined with steady but most likely increased ownership expenses down the road will cause foreclosures and property owner bankruptcies to skyrocket.

Housing providers are not responsible for this pandemic. Even though we are sympathetic, we are also negatively affected, and, in many cases, barely hanging on as is. We are not all wealthy and many are not strong enough financially to not have any rental income for most of this year; many of us are small "mom and pops" providers who are unable to carry this financial burden. The City should take responsibility for this and follow Los Angeles' lead with their $100M renter relief fund for those facing difficulties paying rent due to COVID-19.
