TOBY S. LEVY, FAIA

President

As founding principal of Levy Design Partners in 1979, Toby Levy has overseen and participated in all aspects of the firm's work from programming to design, design production and construction. Her work has been widely recognized, and the American Institute of Architects honored her with the title of Fellow (FAIA) in recognition of her contribution to advancing the standards of architectural practice, education and training. Throughout her years of professional practice, she has regularly taught architecture at schools including the University of California at Berkeley, Columbia University and the California College of Arts and Crafts. As a result of her participation on the University of California at Berkeley Design Review Team and the AIA Design Review Committee, she has developed a broad perspective on the successful resolution of design problems. She incorporates her interest in "non-toxic" building technologies and building with sustainable and renewable resources into projects whenever appropriate. As lead designer at Levy Design Partners, Toby has worked on a range of housing projects for both for-profit and not-for-profit developers. These include Cinnabar Commons, a 245 unit affordable housing project in San Jose; Falletti Plaza, a 119 unit mixed use housing project and the 105 unit Alamo Square Housing in San Francisco. In addition, she is leading the Levy Design Partners team working on the joint venture for the schematic design for 999 Geary Blvd. Senior Housing project for TNDC with Herman & Coliver Architects. Toby has been Principle-in-Charge on many smaller market rate townhouse, apartment and loft projects in the Bay Area. Her work in the public sector has included extensive work for the San Francisco Department of Human Services, Department of Public Works and the San Francisco Unified School District, including the award winning Alice Fong Yu School Middle School addition and modernization project.
