Re: Recommendation of Molly Wertz for the DCYF Oversight and Advisory Committee

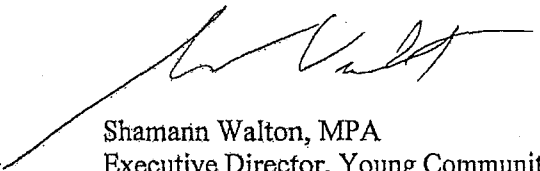

Supervisors Avalos, Cohen and Tang,

Please accept my strong recommendation for Molly Wertz as a candidate for the Department of Children Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee. I've known Molly Wertz for four years, beginning with our participation in the LeaderSpring fellowship— a two year executive leadership program for executive directors committed to social justice causes. Over the past 4 years, I've come to know her as a committed, thoughtful, and smart community servant.

Molly currently leads Raising A Reader, a rapidly growing organization providing programs for underserved young children and their families in San Francisco, Alameda and Contra Costa counties. She has built this organization specifically to serve the children and families most in need of support, as early as possible to ensure positive educational and life outcomes. Molly's awareness of the issues affecting both families living in poverty and the systems of education and support that are in place to serve them has informed her approach to community work to be broadly inclusive, fair minded and transparent. Molly's background also includes work as an educator in elementary and secondary schools (as a district administrator in both youth and adult workforce development), juvenile justice and family economic security. Consequently her understanding of the full spectrum of government and social services that can be leveraged to reach a more equitable society makes her an ideal candidate for the DCYF Oversight and Advisory Committee.

As a former employee of DCYF, I know that Molly's broad background, comprehensive understanding of the issues of equity and commitment to improving access to and the quality of services for children, youth and families will be a great asset to the Oversight and Advisory Committee. As a professional partner and friend I feel confident that she will represent all of San Francisco's children and families with the utmost respect. If you have any questions please feel free to contact me at 415-822-3491 or via email at swalton@ycdjobs.org.

Sincerely,

Shamann Walton, MPA

Supervisor Malia Cohen

Dear Select Committee Members,

I am writing this letter of recommendation for or Molly Wertz as a candidate for the Department of Children Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee. I've known Molly Wertz for over a decade, having hired her as Vice President of Education and Programs at United Way in 2004.

Molly joined United Way having previously served as a national consultant to communities who sought to knit their resources and align their efforts for youth across education, workforce, youth development and economic development. This work afforded her the opportunity to work with communities overcoming barriers between systems to put outcomes for children and youth at the center of the conversation. She brought great value to our work in San Francisco and around the Bay Area, as she was able to bring her understanding of multiple issue areas, and creative approaches to all her work.

Her background as a teacher, school district administrator, funder and now executive director of Raising A Reader, an organization which serves our community's youngest children and their families makes her an ideal candidate for the Committee. Her commitment to increasing access to and quality of programs and services in pursuit of equity is deep and unwavering. She is analytical, financially savvy, future oriented, and tenacious in her pursuit of solutions.

In her role at United Way, Molly provided leadership and oversight for all of our Children and Youth programs. She was instrumental in resurrecting Jobs for Youth (now MatchBridge), which had once been a vital program in San Francisco, but had fallen away over the years. She supported the growth and development of Honoring Emancipated Youth (HEY) – which laid some of the groundwork for TAY-SF, and she provided executive leadership for the Girls Justice Initiative, Working for Quality Childcare, and Raising A Reader. She managed a grant portfolio of $7.5 million, and led the organization's strategic planning efforts. She is able to think broadly and act with clear focus and intention.

Molly is a native San Franciscan, with a strong connection and commitment to its continuing diversity and opportunity for success for all its children and families. She will be a fine Committee member, bringing a broad view and focused commitment to bear in ensuring equitable access and opportunity for all of San

To Mayor Edwin Lee
Board of Supervisors

The San Francisco Child Care Planning and Advisory Council (CPAC) is the State mandated policy and planning body appointed by the Board of Supervisors and the Board of Education to advise the City on early care and education issues. CPAC's members come from a diverse background and include representation from public agencies, providers, support and resource organizations that serve children and families with infant, toddler, preschool, and school age children.

The passage of Proposition C in November provided for the establishment of a new body, the Oversight and Advisory Committee for the Department of Children, Youth, and Their Families. This body will have a tremendous impact on the city's planning and investments in children and youth in San Francisco for years to come.

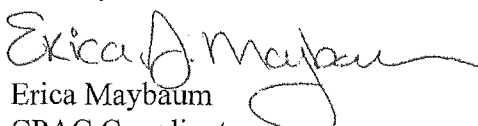

Thirty-eight percent of the child population (0-17) in San Francisco are under the age of 5. The tremendous unmet needs of this population was a strong rationale for the increase in the Children and Youth Fund approved by voters in November. For this reason, it is critical that an equitable number of members on the DCYF OAC have expertise, knowledge and experience of the needs and services required by our city's youngest children. Having at least 1/3 of the members on the OAC that represent 0-5 interests will be vital to informing DCYF planning of the Community Needs Assessment and the allocation process for the Children and Youth Fund, and for providing critical input for informing best practices and ensured transparency.

The following applicants for the OAC bring demonstrated experience, expertise and a perspective representing the early care and education community. CPAC recommends that their applications be strongly considered, along with others who are able to bring similar expertise and experience to the Committee.

Gretchen Ames
Anwar Mojammel
Alyson Suzuki
Patty Siegel
Margaret (Molly) Wertz

CPAC is confident that at least 1/3 of the membership of the DCYF OAC having an early care and education framework would fulfill the intent of the legislation that the Children and Youth Fund will be administered in a manner that is equitable and accountable to the community. If you have any questions regarding CPAC's recommendations please feel free to contact me at (415)236-2722.

Thank you,

Erica Maybaum

Re: Children & Youth Fund Community Coalition Recommendations for DCYF Oversight and Advisory Committee

Dear Supervisor Avalos, Chair
Supervisor Cohen
Supervisor Tang

The Children and Youth Fund Community Coalition (Coalition) represents a dedicated network of service providers and advocates that work daily to ensure that all children, all youth and all families get the supports they need to thrive in our great city. We are committed to:

- Ensuring equity, and giving priority to children and youth with the highest need;
- Empowering parents, youth and community stakeholders by giving us all a voice in the implementation of the Fund's vision; and
- Building public trust through advocating for transparency and accountability in meeting the needs of children, youth and families.

The Coalition began meeting in the summer of 2012 with the purpose of renewing and strengthening the Children's Amendment. Last November 2014, San Francisco voters approved an increase in the Children's Fund to address many unmet needs in the community including early childhood programs, and services for transition age youth.

An important addition to the Children's Amendment was the creation of a Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee to review the governance and policies of the Department of Children, Youth and Their Families; and to take steps to ensure that the Children and Youth Fund is administered in a manner accountable to the community.

The Children's Funding Community Coalition has through its networks solicited qualified candidates with the interest, experience and eligibility to serve on the DCYF Oversight and Advisory Committee. The following candidates are either members of the Coalition noted with an * or nominated by members.

RE: Response pursuant to Charter section 4.101 (a)1

Qualifications

I am pleased to submit my request to serve on the DCYF OAC, Seat 10 or Seat 11, and excited by the opportunity to serve San Francisco's children, youth, and their families in this capacity. Forty-four years ago I organized a group of parents from my Inner Sunset neighborhood and toddler Playgroup to advocate for traffic signals on Lincoln Way at the entrance to the Children's Playground and Fifth Avenue. We told Supervisor Dianne Feinstein and members of her Community Services Committee that trying to cross Lincoln Way with our toddlers, and without a stop signal, was perilous and unsafe. Our voices were heard, and within six months two signals were installed! That small victory was the beginning of my four decades of dedicated service and advocacy for San Francisco's children and families. My three adult children are proud products of the SFUSD, and my four grandchildren are the current beneficiaries of our public schools, pre-k program, and infant/toddler care at City Hall. Their experience as young learners and San Francisco citizens reminds me everyday of how central and critical our coveted DCYF funds are for ensuring that all San Francisco children have access to the resources and programs that give them the opportunity to succeed.

I believe my professional experience and civic leadership at the city/county, state, and national level have prepared me well to serve in either Seat 10 or Seat 11. In 1971, I was the founding leader and director of the Childcare Switchboard/Children's Council, a grassroots parent led effort to help all San Francisco parents access child care services for their young children. Our emerging model of services to parents looking for child care, and training and support for their child care providers became the model for state legislation (AB 3059, Foran) establishing and funding Child Care Resource and Referral Services as a component of Governor Jerry Brown's Alternative Child Care Program, which was implemented in 1976.

As we listened to the diverse, often desperate, needs of parents from across San Francisco we recognized and documented the shortage of available licensed care in specific neighborhoods including Chinatown, the Mission, Hunter's Point, and the Western Addition. We worked hard to secure funding for outreach and training for home based family child care providers in those areas, especially those with limited English, and secured the partnership of San Francisco State's Department of Social Work Education in a successful application to the federal DHEW-Social Rehabilitation Services for a Child Welfare Training grant. Our grant which established neighborhood based recruitment and training for family child care providers in English, Spanish, Mandarin, and Cantonese was the first ever use of these federal funds for training child care providers. As we launched our program we were shocked to learn that in 1974, if you didn't speak English you could not obtain a Family Child Care License from the SF Department of Social Services. We worked with the Employment Law Center(Doe vs Obledo) to challenge this unjust interpretation of state licensing standards, and in 1975 the English speaking requirement in San Francisco was removed, allowing more than 75 newly recruited providers to obtain their licenses. Proudly, some of those original recruits are still providing child care today.

The Childcare Switchboard/Children's Council caught the interest of the Ford Foundation, and in 1975 we were awarded one of two grants to develop a model of child care resource and referral services that could be replicated by other cities and states. I became increasingly active in national efforts to expand child care funding in the wake of Nixon's veto of the Mondale-Brademas bill to establish a national child care program in 1971, and was appointed to the National Advisory Panel for Project Connections. In 1976 I was appointed by Governor Jerry Brown to serve as a member of his Child Development Programs Advisory Committee, a newly created body to oversee child care programs and funding in California. I was elected Chair in 1983. Over my nine years on the Committee, I gained insight and skill in understanding the challenges and complexities of child care across California, and still take pride in the research, advocacy, and outcomes we achieved at the state level for children and families birth-twelve.

Here in San Francisco, we advocated for increased engagement on child care issues from the Board of Supervisors and Mayor's office. I served as an appointed member of the Board of Supervisors Child Care Task force from 1976-1977, and in 1978, shortly before he was assassinated Mayor George Moscone embraced our recommendation to establish a Mayor's Office of Child Care, one of the first in the country. Incoming Mayor Dianne Feinstein upheld his vision for the office, and appointed a volunteer coordinator to work on implementation. In 1981, I was appointed by my then District 11 Supervisor, Ron Pelosi, to serve on the newly formed San Francisco Mayor's Office of Child Care Advisory Committee. I was elected Chair, and served in that capacity until 1985. This civic work would be especially helpful if I am appointed to the DCYF OAC.

In 1980, I left my position as Executive Director of the Children's Council to explore the feasibility of establishing a statewide organization of the now 50 child care resource and referral organizations funded in communities across the state. With a travel-study fellowship from the Ford Foundation, I completed the work, and the California Child Care Resource and Referral Network, a statewide membership organization committed to improving the availability, affordability and quality of child care services throughout California, was established. I was selected as the founding Executive Director in October, 1980 and served in that capacity until 2012.

Throughout my years at the Network, I worked diligently to bring attention to California's growing unmet child care needs, and to develop programs, services, and legislative initiatives at the state and federal level to address the enormous gaps in the accessibility of affordable child care, especially for low-income families.

- With the BankAmerica Foundation, I developed an innovative public/private partnership, the California Child Care Initiative Project, focused on building and improving the supply of licensed family child care in communities across California. This partnership was anchored in state legislation in 1987, and became an important and ongoing part of the California Department of Education's quality improvement efforts. The Family Child Care Handbook, a compendium of resources for home based providers, has been reprinted six times and adapted to meet the needs of limited English providers. Training tools and resources have been developed in Spanish, Mandarin, and Vietnamese, helping to build and sustain a supply of quality care in diverse communities, with a special emphasis on infants and toddlers birth to three. What began as an innovative, time limited program is now in its 28th year.
- In 1985, following allegations of child abuse in day care centers in southern California and here in the Presidio, the state Department of Social Services, Community Care Licensing Division selected the Network to develop materials and training on child abuse prevention for all licensed home and center based child care providers in California. The magazine style handbook, Making a Difference, was printed in English, Chinese, and Spanish, and along with two training videos, Out of Harms Way, and Taking Care, were used to support and train more than 25,000 providers throughout the state.
- From 1984-1990, recognizing the need to greatly expand the minimal federal funds invested in child care, I became the Children's Defense Fund California State Child Care Leader for the Alliance for Better Care, an organizing effort that brought together state and national leaders and organizations to develop and support new federal child care legislation. During this effort, and following implementation, I was selected to testify numerous times before Congressional committees. The Child Care and Development Block Grant was finally passed by Congress, signed by President Bush, and implemented in 1990. It brought more than $87 million new federal child care funds to California.
- In 1995 I was approached by staff at the Jenifer Altman Foundation housed at the Commonweal Retreat Center in Bolinas to discuss my assessment of what was missing from the child care arena, and how the foundation could best use the funds she left for child care. My presentation focused on the lack of parent participation and presence in child policy arenas at every level-local, state, and federal. The initial meeting led to a small retreat for local Network staff, and other child care leaders. The idea for a grassroots, parent led organization focused on recruiting and supporting low income parents to become informed, successful advocates for the child care needs of their children birth-twelve emerged; by the end of the year, the Jenifer Altman foundation made six grants to develop local chapters of Parent Voices and coordinated support through the Network. Twenty years later, the eighteen local Parent Voices chapters and their statewide network have become a respected, successful advocacy voice for low income working parents, and a model for other communities and states interested in helping ensure meaningful parent engagement in the policy and budget decisions which profoundly impact their families' economic security and children's futures.

- President Clinton's Welfare Reform program (Temporary Assistance to Needy families) became law in 1996 with profound child care implications for TANF recipients. I was named to Assemblywoman Dion Aroner's Welfare Reform /Child Care working group; we developed an ambitious child care plan which maintained the administration of most TANF child care funds with the local agencies currently serving other low-income families eligible for subsidized child care funds. Our recommendations were adopted and integrated into California's implementing legislation in 1997 which included continuing child care funding (Stage 3) for TANF recipients who had secured employment, were off cash-aid, but who still earning less than 75% of state median income.
- In October 1997, I was honored to be one of ten morning speakers invited to present at President Clinton and Mrs. Clinton's White House Conference on Child Care. I shared vignettes of parents' struggles to find accessible, affordable child care, and was publicly complimented by President Clinton at the end of my remarks.
- In 1998 I was appointed by Speaker Antonio Villaraigosa to serve on the inaugural California Children and Families First State Commission, pursuant to the passage of Proposition 10, the successful ballot initiative to recognize and promote the importance of early childhood education to a young child's success. The State Commission was responsible for allocating 20% of the overall funds, and carrying out specific responsibilities spelled out in the Initiative. I was reappointed by Speaker Robert Hertzberg in 2000. My experience as a State Commissioner during the sometimes tumultuous start up of First Five at the state and county level helped inform me about the intricacies and challenges facing Commissions/committees charged with oversight of programs and responsibility for making funding recommendations.
- In 1999, the Network launched an ambitious research project, The California Child Care Portfolio, a compilation of data about child care supply and demand in California, county by county. This widely disseminated annual publication has brought clarity, focus, and broad attention to our continuing unmet needs for child care for children birth to twelve. It remains a respected, reliable source of information for state, local and national policymakers, business leaders, and philanthropic organizations.
- In 2006, the Network received funding from the Marguerite Casey foundation in Seattle to support the expansion of Parent Voices. Subsequent funding from the Women's Foundation of California, the San Francisco Foundation, and the Peppercorn foundation have helped sustain the growth and effectiveness of Parent Voices. This has been especially important since the dramatic funding reductions to child care in 2008. In 2007, I was named to the Marguerite Casey Foundation's Movement Building Study Group, a leadership council of 20 regional parent/family advocates from five regions in the country including the West.
- One of my last initiatives before retiring in 2012 was the Growing, Learning, Caring Project-a training and support program for Licensed Exempt child care providers. It was funded for nearly four years by the California Department of Education and helped bring training and support to thousands of caregivers previously unrecognized.

Throughout my career I have been dedicated to improving the access, affordability, and quality of child care for all families, especially those with the fewest resources. My work has combined innovative program development, effective fundraising, skilled administration, and tenacious, persistent advocacy. I would be honored to bring these skills to the DCYF OAC, and continue my commitment to San Francisco's children, youth, and families.

The San Francisco Child Care Planning and Advisory Council (CPAC) is the State mandated policy and planning body appointed by the Board of Supervisors and the Board of Education to advise the City on early care and education issues. CPAC's members come from a diverse background and include representation from public agencies, providers, support and resource organizations that serve children and families with infant, toddler, preschool, and school age children.

This letter is a follow up to a previous letter that CPAC submitted regarding appointments to the new Oversight and Advisory Committee for the Department of Children, Youth, and Their Families. As stated in the earlier letter, the tremendous unmet needs of 0-5 year olds was a strong rationale for the increase in the Children and Youth Fund approved by voters in November. For this reason, it is critical that an equitable number of members on the DCYF OAC have expertise, knowledge and experience of the needs and services required by our city's youngest children. Given that thirty-eight percent of the child population (0-17) in San Francisco are under the age of 5, having at least 1/3 of the members on the OAC that represent 0-5 interests would achieve this goal.

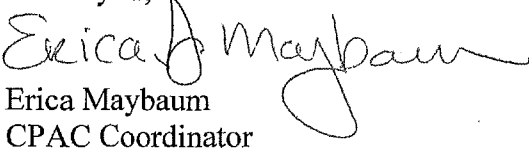

In the initial hearings conducted by the Rules Committee, Alyson Lee-Suzuki was selected for Seat 10, as someone with "expertise in field of children's services in low-income or underserved communities". As chief program officer at Wu Yee Children's Services and a person who grew up in a struggling immigrant family in public housing, Alyson has deep professional expertise and personal perspective regarding the needs and services required by our city's youngest children in need. We were deeply disappointed to learn that Alyson's application was deemed ineligible after her selection. With Seat 10 open again, we urge the Rules Committee to select another candidate who brings deep knowledge of the early care and education and the needs of families with young children to the OAC.

The following applicants for the OAC have this expertise. CPAC again recommends that their applications be strongly considered, along with others who are able to bring similar expertise and experience to the Committee.

"Setting and driving the child care agenda for San Francisco's children and their families"

June 5, 2015

Dear Board of Supervisors:

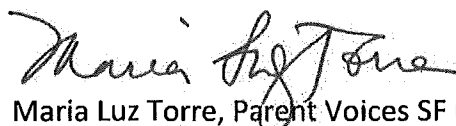

I am writing this letter in support of Patty Siegel's application to the Children Youth and their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee.

Patty Siegel is very well qualified for this position. I have known Patty for 20 years. I was on the Board of the California Child Care Resource and Referral Network for 2 terms when Patty was the Executive Director. Patty's vision created Parent Voices to give parents of young children a voice in policy and decision making that impacts their lives. I am one of the founding organizers of that organization she created. Patty has inspired hundreds of Parent Voices leaders in the last 20 years. Her commitment to the children and families of San Francisco is unquestionable and her trailblazing record in the child care resource and referral paved the way for a national child care resource and referral system.

First as a parent then as a grandparent, she has personally experienced and understands the challenges that San Francisco families go through. As the founder and director of the CA Child Care Resource and Referral Network Patty has a very intense and well-proven commitment to improving the lives of low-income and underserved communities. She is well known as the "oldest living thing in child care" and has used her influence to make positive changes in the field of early care and education in the state of California. We would be so lucky to have Patty with her commitment, vision and wisdom on the Children, Youth and their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee.

I strongly recommend that Patty Siegel be appointed to occupy seat 11 of the aforementioned Oversight and Advisory Committee.

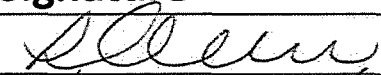

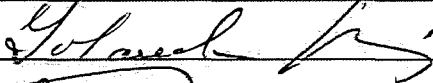

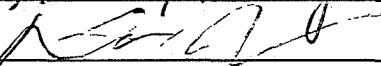

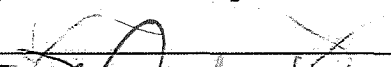

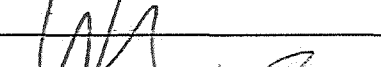

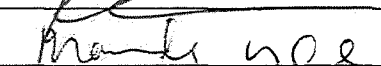

Sincerely,

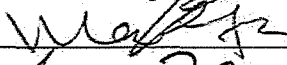

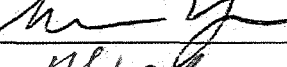

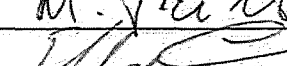

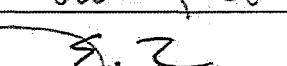

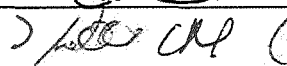

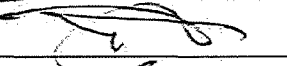

Maria Luz Torre, Parent Voices SF Organizer

Dear Rules Committee:

I am writing this letter in support of Patty Siegal's application to the Children Youth and their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee.

Patty Siegal is hands down the best candidate for the position. I am a part of Parent Voices - SF and her advocacy has had an immediate impact on my ability to responsibly parent my children. Her record speaks for itself.

I urge you to appoint Patty Siegal to seat 11 of the Oversight and Advisory Committee.

Sincerely,

Dear Rules Committee

I am writing this letter in support of Patty Siegel's application to children youth and their families oversight and advisory committee.

Patty is one of the most loving and caring advocate for our families. I first met Patty in 2000. I watched Patty get in and fight for our families like nobody's business. Patty is a well educated and down to earth person.

I truly believe if you choose Patty you will not be sorry. She will be an asset to your company.

truly yours,

Board of Supervisors,

Patricia Siegel is the best candidate for this position on the Children, Youth and their families Oversight & Advisory Committee. She started a very amazing Parent run organization called "Parent Voices". This organization along with Patricia has changed many, many lives of low income working families provide good lives for their children. I don't think there is anyone that could do a better job. She is an advocate, mother, grandmother and amazing woman. I love everything she has done for me & my family and the voice she has given me to advocate for myself & my family.

Thank you,

To Mayor Edwin Lee
Board of Supervisors

The San Francisco Child Care Planning and Advisory Council (CPAC) is the State mandated policy and planning body appointed by the Board of Supervisors and the Board of Education to advise the City on early care and education issues. CPAC's members come from a diverse background and include representation from public agencies, providers, support and resource organizations that serve children and families with infant, toddler, preschool, and school age children.

The passage of Proposition C in November provided for the establishment of a new body, the Oversight and Advisory Committee for the Department of Children, Youth, and Their Families. This body will have a tremendous impact on the city's planning and investments in children and youth in San Francisco for years to come.

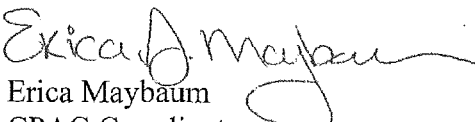

Thirty-eight percent of the child population (0-17) in San Francisco are under the age of 5. The tremendous unmet needs of this population was a strong rationale for the increase in the Children and Youth Fund approved by voters in November. For this reason, it is critical that an equitable number of members on the DCYF OAC have expertise, knowledge and experience of the needs and services required by our city's youngest children. Having at least 1/3 of the members on the OAC that represent 0-5 interests will be vital to informing DCYF planning of the Community Needs Assessment and the allocation process for the Children and Youth Fund, and for providing critical input for informing best practices and ensured transparency.

The following applicants for the OAC bring demonstrated experience, expertise and a perspective representing the early care and education community. CPAC recommends that their applications be strongly considered, along with others who are able to bring similar expertise and experience to the Committee.

Gretchen Ames
Anwar Mojammel
Alyson Suzuki
Patty Siegel
Margaret (Molly) Wertz

CPAC is confident that at least 1/3 of the membership of the DCYF OAC having an early care and education framework would fulfill the intent of the legislation that the Children and Youth Fund will be administered in a manner that is equitable and accountable to the community. If you have any questions regarding CPAC's recommendations please feel free to contact me at (415)236-2722.

Hi John,

I am reaching out in support of Patricia Siegel for the DCYF Oversight Council. Patti has devoted her career to children, youth and families, as founding executive director of the Children's Council of SF and then founding executive director of the California Child Care Resource and Referral Network. She is now retired and we are fortunate that she wants to volunteer her time in service to San Francisco. She is well respected at both the State and Federal level. She is sought out for her expertise even in retirement. She has the unique distinction of truly understanding the complex early care and education system, as well as afterschool. Someone of her caliber can really help to bridge the 0-24 continuum of services in our city and her contacts can help us to leverage at the State and Federal level.

Let me know if you have any questions or want to discuss further. I believe with the right people, together we can do really great work. Thank you for your continued leadership for the children, youth and families of our city.

RE: Support for Patty Siegel, candidate for seats #10 & #11

Dear Ms. Somera,

My name is Mary Ignatius, I am the statewide organizer for Parent Voices, a parent-led, parent-run grassroots child care advocacy organization. I worked for Patty for 7 years as Parent Voices is a project of the California Child Care Resource and Referral Network where she was the Executive Director for 30 years. She was the visionary of Parent Voices which for nearly 20 years, has successfully organized and engaged low-income families from across CA to be the best advocates for their children. I am writing you to submit my Letter of Support for Patty Siegel, who is running to fill either seat #10 or #11 on the Children, Youth and their Families Commission. These seats require expertise in the field of children services and a commitment to improving access to low-income or underserved communities, both of which Ms. Siegel possesses and is part of every fiber of her being. Ms. Siegel has spent her career devoted to the breaking down the barriers and obstacles that prevent families from reaching their full potential. She has a strong record of effectively and tenaciously advocating on behalf of families and with the creation of Parent Voices, has helped thousands of parents find their own voice.

The Commission has a great responsibility and will need well qualified candidates who bring program expertise and personal expertise. It is my experience that I have seen commissions that include those directly impacted by policies and bring their personal expertise, but are not provided the support and tools to participate fully and have equitable voice at the table. I believe Patty could serve to bridge that gap and be a mentor to the youth and parent representatives and ensure they have what they need to feel empowered and actively engaged in Commission. Patty possesses the true gift to lead and teach, to step back and support, and to encourage and inspire and would be an excellent addition to this Commission.

Although Ms. Siegel retired a few years ago, her advocate self could never retire. Fighting for those with access to the least resources is part of Patty's DNA. This opportunity would also allow her to give back to the City of San Francisco, a city she has lived in for over three decades; a city where she developed the first child care resource and referral program in the country, a city that her late husband, Sandy Siegel devoted his teaching career to in SFUSD schools; a city where her eldest grandson attends public school at Rooftop Elementary; and a city that her daughter-in-law is a preschool teacher at a child care center. For all these reasons and more, you could not find a better candidate than Ms. Patty Siegel!

If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to reach me at 415-420-2349 or email at mignatius@rrnetwork.org.

Warm regards,

Mary Ignatius

Re: Children & Youth Fund Community Coalition Recommendations for DCYF Oversight and Advisory Committee

Dear Supervisor Avalos, Chair
Supervisor Cohen
Supervisor Tang

The Children and Youth Fund Community Coalition (Coalition) represents a dedicated network of service providers and advocates that work daily to ensure that all children, all youth and all families get the supports they need to thrive in our great city. We are committed to:

- Ensuring equity, and giving priority to children and youth with the highest need;
- Empowering parents, youth and community stakeholders by giving us all a voice in the implementation of the Fund's vision; and
- Building public trust through advocating for transparency and accountability in meeting the needs of children, youth and families.

The Coalition began meeting in the summer of 2012 with the purpose of renewing and strengthening the Children's Amendment. Last November 2014, San Francisco voters approved an increase in the Children's Fund to address many unmet needs in the community including early childhood programs, and services for transition age youth.

An important addition to the Children's Amendment was the creation of a Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee to review the governance and policies of the Department of Children, Youth and Their Families; and to take steps to ensure that the Children and Youth Fund is administered in a manner accountable to the community.

The Children's Funding Community Coalition has through its networks solicited qualified candidates with the interest, experience and eligibility to serve on the DCYF Oversight and Advisory Committee. The following candidates are either members of the Coalition noted with an * or nominated by members.

Pursuant to Charter section 4.101 (a)1, please state how your qualifications represent the communities of interest, neighborhoods, and the diversity in ethnicity, race, age, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, types of disabilities, and any other relevant demographic qualities of the City and County of San Francisco:

I strongly represent the early childhood community of interest in San Francisco. As a long-time participant in multiple early childhood education support programs, and as a recent teacher of young children, I am deeply familiar with the current issues facing young children, families and educators from the classroom to the policy level in our city. I have been involved at the classroom/teacher level with both children (predominantly poor and at-risk children) for many years, and am currently teaching adults who work with young children at San Francisco State University. I am also in the process of completing my doctoral work at Mills college, where I will soon be earning my EdD in Educational Leadership with a focus on early childhood. As a result of these multiple roles and experiences, I am very well aware of what the challenges and opportunities associated with developing high quality education programs, both from the perspective of the funders and from the perspective of the educators and administrators in the field.

Business and/or professional experience:

I have been involved in the field of early childhood education for over 20 years, but since moving to San Francisco in 2004, I have held many positions and been involved in planning and policy in a variety of ways. In my role as program officer at the Low Income Investment Fund, I was responsible for managing a grant portfolio as well as developing programs and infrastructure to support high quality educational settings for young children. In this role, I provided leadership and support for grantmaking and provided a great deal of technical assistance to grantees. In my role at Gateway to Quality, I was responsible for creating, overseeing, and implementing all components (from outreach through final evaluation) of customized on-site coaching, technical assistance, and training services to support quality improvement in the licensed child care settings across San Francisco. Additionally, I facilitated, and have been an active participant in, our local Citywide Child Care Planning process, and co-chair of the Quality Subcommittee of the local Childcare Planning and Advisory Council (CPAC), where we examined ways to align systems to better support the early childhood field to help close the achievement gap. In these roles I have worked closely with city and county agencies, other high-level public officials, the Mimi and Peter Haas Fund, the school district as well as City College and San Francisco State University. More recently, I spent a year working as a site supervisor of, and classroom teacher in, a child care center serving low-income families in Western Addition and am now teaching early childhood educators at the college level.

Civic Activities:

Though I have not been a seated member of CPAC, I have been an active participant in the general membership meetings, the Workforce Subcommittee, and helped to create ad-hoc Quality Subcommittee.

To Mayor Edwin Lee
Board of Supervisors

The San Francisco Child Care Planning and Advisory Council (CPAC) is the State mandated policy and planning body appointed by the Board of Supervisors and the Board of Education to advise the City on early care and education issues. CPAC's members come from a diverse background and include representation from public agencies, providers, support and resource organizations that serve children and families with infant, toddler, preschool, and school age children.

The passage of Proposition C in November provided for the establishment of a new body, the Oversight and Advisory Committee for the Department of Children, Youth, and Their Families. This body will have a tremendous impact on the city's planning and investments in children and youth in San Francisco for years to come.

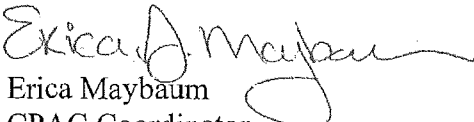

Thirty-eight percent of the child population (0-17) in San Francisco are under the age of 5. The tremendous unmet needs of this population was a strong rationale for the increase in the Children and Youth Fund approved by voters in November. For this reason, it is critical that an equitable number of members on the DCYF OAC have expertise, knowledge and experience of the needs and services required by our city's youngest children. Having at least 1/3 of the members on the OAC that represent 0-5 interests will be vital to informing DCYF planning of the Community Needs Assessment and the allocation process for the Children and Youth Fund, and for providing critical input for informing best practices and ensured transparency.

The following applicants for the OAC bring demonstrated experience, expertise and a perspective representing the early care and education community. CPAC recommends that their applications be strongly considered, along with others who are able to bring similar expertise and experience to the Committee.

Gretchen Ames
Anwar Mojammel
Alyson Suzuki
Patty Siegel
Margaret (Molly) Wertz

CPAC is confident that at least 1/3 of the membership of the DCYF OAC having an early care and education framework would fulfill the intent of the legislation that the Children and Youth Fund will be administered in a manner that is equitable and accountable to the community. If you have any questions regarding CPAC's recommendations please feel free to contact me at (415)236-2722.

Thank you,

Erica Maybaum

Dear Esteemed Panel,

I am writing this letter of recommendation on behalf of Gretchen Ames to nominate her for a seat on the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee. I feel qualified to write this letter since I worked closely with Gretchen for 6 years running San Francisco's early childhood assessment and coaching system through SFSU's, Gateway to Quality as well as one year as an educational coach. Throughout this time, I have witnessed Gretchen's focused leadership build our program into a robust coaching and reliable and valid assessment system as well as literally transforming a struggling center into a high quality preschool serving 100% subsidized children in an at-risk neighborhood in San Francisco.

While working for Gateway to Quality, Gretchen dedicated her time to build from the ground up an assessment and coaching system based on reliable and valid tools, current and past research and best practice. Her motivation made it easy for her to work tirelessly since she understood that the data from assessments are the core of coaching and technical assistance and if the data were flawed, then the professional development would be meaningless and therefore, not help improve children's outcomes. With coaching and technical assistance, she brought experts in the field to train the staff not just on technique, strategies and the "how", but also the "why", while tying it always to social justice and equity. We learned to coach and assess with an equity lens and I believe brought real quality improvement to many programs.

After working to build a strong system with integrity to support at risk children and families of SF, Gretchen decided to go to work as a site supervisor/lead teacher at a struggling center in the Western Addition. Gretchen's leadership was unparalleled since she by no means had an "easy" program to operate. All of the families are on subsidies of multiple sources, experience homelessness, violence, substance abuse and/or poverty. She guided the families and staff with ease and stayed rooted to what's "best for children," giving the kids in her care a solid start in life despite the challenges they face. She has always shown tremendous skill at using logic, reason and paying attention to the greater good when making decisions.

With her staff, she implemented professional development in the form of consistent coaching, relevant training and consistent feedback in order to provide time for reflection and deep conceptual understanding through their own professional learning community. She brought in resources and structure. She also regularly met with various community members to help them understand the needs of San Francisco's children and families. Lastly, she began taking classes towards her EdD at Mills College to take her lessons learned and turn it into useful leadership and advocacy as well as model for her team the importance of reflection and growth.

Along with her strong disposition to manage the day-to-day operations of her program, Gretchen is incredibly visionary. She has many plans, dreams and desires to support the families and children of San Francisco and believes it all begins with strong systems development. She took a program that struggled with high turnover and sub par education and care and in less than 1 year transformed it to a high quality center. As a high functioning center, she has qualified for First 5 and Preschool for All by meeting and maintaining all quality benchmarks and standards, above and beyond. Not satisfied with all that she's accomplished, Gretchen wants to continue to expand to her influence by joining your board. While she vigorously serves all children in SF, her focus is clearly on the underserved, families that populate the city. She strives to give the children what they need so that they can have choices and successes and not be limited by their struggles or color of their skin. Her advocacy and collaborative spirit has helped her develop strong connections, relations and partnerships with many people within San Francisco and those that care about what happens in San Francisco.

I hope I've been able to convey to you Gretchen's spirit. She is indeed such a wise, communicative and decisive person. Gretchen goes above and beyond in everything she does and every interaction she has, showing you her heart of gold but also putting her foot down on behalf of what's best for the children, families and the workforce. She exhibits tremendous insight, intellect and a steady disposition while making decisions that are rooted in her passionate vision to support children furthest from opportunity. She gives everyone a chance and works to help them reach their potential. I am truly in awe of the experienced professional and outstanding advocate she continues to be and everyday felt inspired and grateful to work alongside her. Gretchen demonstrates through her actions and decisions that dreams can come true if you believe in yourself and have someone to champion you. She is by far the champion of the San Francisco community and beyond and because of that, I believe would be a tremendous asset to you on your board.

Sincerely,

Re: Children & Youth Fund Community Coalition Recommendations for DCYF Oversight and Advisory Committee

Dear Supervisor Avalos, Chair
Supervisor Cohen
Supervisor Tang

The Children and Youth Fund Community Coalition (Coalition) represents a dedicated network of service providers and advocates that work daily to ensure that all children, all youth and all families get the supports they need to thrive in our great city. We are committed to:

- Ensuring equity, and giving priority to children and youth with the highest need;
- Empowering parents, youth and community stakeholders by giving us all a voice in the implementation of the Fund's vision; and
- Building public trust through advocating for transparency and accountability in meeting the needs of children, youth and families.

The Coalition began meeting in the summer of 2012 with the purpose of renewing and strengthening the Children's Amendment. Last November 2014, San Francisco voters approved an increase in the Children's Fund to address many unmet needs in the community including early childhood programs, and services for transition age youth.

An important addition to the Children's Amendment was the creation of a Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee to review the governance and policies of the Department of Children, Youth and Their Families; and to take steps to ensure that the Children and Youth Fund is administered in a manner accountable to the community.

The Children's Funding Community Coalition has through its networks solicited qualified candidates with the interest, experience and eligibility to serve on the DCYF Oversight and Advisory Committee. The following candidates are either members of the Coalition noted with an * or nominated by members.

Seat 7 Mia "Tu Mutch" Satya

Seat 8 Elisa Rodriguez Furey

Seat 9 Anwar Mojammel

Seat 10 Margaret Wertz
 Patricia Siegel
 Rob Gitin *
 Chrissy Anderson-Zavala
 Alyson Lee-Suzuki

 Tracy Brown-Gallardo *

Seat 11 Margaret Wertz
 Patricia Siegel
 Rob Gitin *
 Chrissy Anderson-Zavala
 Alyson Lee-Suzuki
 Gretchen Ames
 Paul Monge-Rodriguez
 Tracy Brown-Gallardo *

We would appreciate your strongest consideration of these candidates for the Oversight and Advisory Committee. Our Coalition is confident that they represent the diversity, experience and commitment to improving the lives of San Francisco's Children, Youth and Families.

Dear Supervisor Avalos:

I am proud to recommend Ms. Gretchen Ames to serve as a member of the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight & Advisory Committee of the City and County of San Francisco. I know Ms. Ames to be a person of integrity, passion, commitment and dedication.

Gretchen Ames brings depth and diversity of experience in early education - both inside and outside the classroom - as a child care teacher, center director, education activist, and early education workforce advocate.

Gretchen's years' of experience in early education practice, workforce policy, and qualitative assessment give her an invaluable perspective on best practices in child development, parent engagement, and workforce supports – with the singular goal to give all of San Francisco's children the very best educational and developmental experiences.

Gretchen believes passionately that to ensure the best future for our children we must dedicate ourselves in the present, and marshal the resources necessary to build that bright future, today. Gretchen understands it is this understanding that makes San Francisco's investments in children, youth, and their families so unique – and so necessary.

I regard Gretchen Ames as a tremendous asset for San Francisco's early education community, and urge the members of the Rules Committee to approve her nomination to serve as a member of the Children, Youth, and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee.

Thank you for your attention.

Respectfully,

Joseph T. Wilson

To: Board of Supervisors/Rules Committee

The San Francisco Child Care Planning and Advisory Council (CPAC) is the State mandated policy and planning body appointed by the Board of Supervisors and the Board of Education to advise the City on early care and education issues. CPAC's members come from a diverse background and include representation from public agencies, providers, support and resource organizations that serve children and families with infant, toddler, preschool, and school age children.

This letter is a follow up to a previous letter that CPAC submitted regarding appointments to the new Oversight and Advisory Committee for the Department of Children, Youth, and Their Families. As stated in the earlier letter, the tremendous unmet needs of 0-5 year olds was a strong rationale for the increase in the Children and Youth Fund approved by voters in November. For this reason, it is critical that an equitable number of members on the DCYF OAC have expertise, knowledge and experience of the needs and services required by our city's youngest children. Given that thirty-eight percent of the child population (0-17) in San Francisco are under the age of 5, having at least 1/3 of the members on the OAC that represent 0-5 interests would achieve this goal.

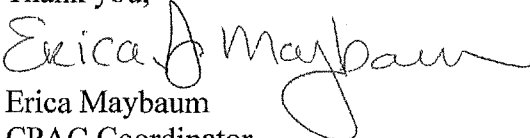

In the initial hearings conducted by the Rules Committee, Alyson Lee-Suzuki was selected for Seat 10, as someone with "expertise in field of children's services in low-income or underserved communities". As chief program officer at Wu Yee Children's Services and a person who grew up in a struggling immigrant family in public housing, Alyson has deep professional expertise and personal perspective regarding the needs and services required by our city's youngest children in need. We were deeply disappointed to learn that Alyson's application was deemed ineligible after her selection. With Seat 10 open again, we urge the Rules Committee to select another candidate who brings deep knowledge of the early care and education and the needs of families with young children to the OAC.

The following applicants for the OAC have this expertise. CPAC again recommends that their applications be strongly considered, along with others who are able to bring similar expertise and experience to the Committee.

Gretchen Ames
Patty Siegel
Margaret (Molly) Wertz

Appointed to Seat #: _____ Term Expires: _____ Date Seat was Vacated: _____

Qualifications:

As you can see my entire job history from the age of 14-47 has been working to serve low income and underserved communities. My first jobs were via the Mayor's Youth employment program working at various non-profits including Good Samaritan, Arriba Juntos and later as the director of the program under Horizons Unlimited. It is important to note that I became a teen parent and quickly became involved with childcare concerns. I served on the SFUSD's SEEDS advisory committee, the SFUSD children's center PAC and the city's lead advisory committee. In my work capacity I served on the Youth Employment Coalition and the Delinquency Prevention Commission. I later moved to work for the YWCA Mission Girls Services where I provided oversight to girls' services citywide. In this position I helped to push the gender parity policy as a member of the Come into the Sun Coalition and the Girls Now collaborative. I then moved on to work at Precita Center where I provided oversight for juvenile probation programming and I established a community GED class. While in this position I worked with Coleman Advocates to create the Juvenile Justice Providers Association (JJPA), which provided community input around the local action plan and juvenile justice reform policy. In this position I was part of establishing the Mission Community Council (later the MiCoCo) and then created the Community Response Network, which later was adopted by the city as the city response to youth violence. I helped to develop the case management protocols and I led the writing of the Community Response Network operation manual under Arriba Juntos. In my position at DCYF I oversaw the community convener project and the safety network. This gave me direct insight to all neighborhood issues around the city and allowed me to network on behalf of the city with our non-profit and neighborhood groups to address service gaps. Finally I moved to take a position with the SFUSD under the Student Improvement Grant (SIG) as a community school coordinator. In this position I was helping to lead the implementation of the community schools model under the New Day for Learning Grant. In addition to my work experience I am a product of the SFUSD. My mother came from Guatemala in 7th grade and attended Everett. I attended Cesar Chavez, Horace Mann and graduated from Mission High School. I am and always will be a teen parent. Starting off with children early did not stop me from being an involved parent. I went to City College and then to New College. I have four children who have attended Family Service Agency, Las Americas Children's Center, Buena Vista, Moscone, Bryant Elementary, Horace Mann, James Lick, O'Connell, CAT academy and Lincoln. My children have been labeled as English Language Learners, Special Education (auditory processing) and SED (anxiety) I have 3 grandchildren 1 who attends Lakeshore and the other two with home care licensed providers. I currently help to co chair the Mission Peace Collaborative with the goal of ensuring community peace by working with various groups in the Mission. We recently spun off the Roadmap to Peace, which is the Mission's 5-year plan to address violence and lack of employment opportunities for high risk and transitional age youth. My position is currently part of the Mission Promise Neighborhood grant in which the city is a partner for school reform. I partner with city departments as well as corporate sponsors of the school.

As you see from my experience I have not only addressed neighborhood issues but have partnered to work with experts city wide to address various youth issues. This experience gives me a unique insight. I am well versed in all areas of children and families from child development, probation youth, to transitional age youth. I promote programs that address the achievement gap by aligning partners with school district goals of African American and English Language Learner achievement. I am familiar with many programs that are working in SFUSD. I have long standing relationships with the provider networks in all arenas.

Business and/or professional experience:

In addition to my work experience I have served on various boards in the past such as the Jamestown Community Center, Coleman's Advocates, Loco Bloco and the Mission Neighborhood Health Center. I have learned about governance and contractual and fiscal oversight of federal, state and local funding.

I am likely one of the only applicants that can state that I have worked on every Children's fund campaign. The first campaign was Prop J when no city official was in favor and we had to collect thousands of signatures. The second campaign was under Prop D and the final recent campaign last November was Prop C. I have attended many meetings and have heard input from every type of provider and user. I am committed to the children, youth and families in SF.

In my role at DCYF it was my job to help with the Needs Assessments in the various communities. I believe that my experience covers communities citywide.

I have observed various schools around the nation including the Harlem Children's Zone and I am familiar with that model and other community school models.

I work to prepare my schools Balanced Score Card as well as provide the Parent Compact and Family engagement plan to be in compliance with the Title 1 funding. I am familiar with the Smarter Balanced Assessment, which is the new state assessments that will be launched this year. My school is a featured community school that the superintendent is very familiar. Everett's progress and growth was recognized by State Secretary Arne Duncan when he selected our school to conduct a site visit to learn how we were able to have our school turnaround be so successful in academic growth and reductions in behavior referrals. I have been to Harlem Children's Zone and I am familiar with that model as well as other models that the SFUSD uses.

As a parent I have participated in countless PTSA leadership roles, sat on School Site Councils, and participated in ELAC. As a SFUSD employee I am familiar with the SFUSD programs and goals. In my previous experience I am experienced in all aspects of operating a non profit. I have overseen, implemented and monitored programs in my career. These experiences qualify me for this appointment.

Dear Supervisors,

I wanted to let you know that I submitted an application for appointment as a member of the Children, Youth Fund Oversight and Advisory committee for Seat 10.

I am hoping that you will support me by calling members of the Rules committee.

As many of you know I am a lifetime SF resident. I have worked actively on every children's fund campaign and I am likely the only candidate that can speak to this experience.

I have attached letters written on my behalf that show diverse support from various neighborhoods and stakeholders across San Francisco. I have worked with many of you on a variety of city issues but as you all know my experience and passion is in children and families. I am a graduate of SFUSD and my four children attended SF Public schools. I have experience as a parent, resident, community volunteer, board member, non profit worker, DCYF employee, and currently a SFUSD employee.

I am a product of San Francisco agencies, schools, and workforce. I hope that you will support me. I am hopeful that you will consider a SF resident for this seat.

Thanks,

My name is Tracy Brown-Gallardo. I was born and raised in the SF Mission district and I have raised my four children in this neighborhood as well. I have worked over 30 years serving low income communities including my own neighborhood. I have spent my entire adult career being an advocate and a service provider. In addition to my professional experience of serving children, youth and their families I am a family in the city who has used many of the city's resources. My children have all attended public schools and have went on to college. I have worked on all three children's fund campaigns and have seen them all succeed. I am a member of several neighborhood groups and communicate with other neighborhood groups to advocate for issues that impact children, youth and families city wide.

As you can see my entire job history from the age of 14-47 has been working to serve low income and underserved communities. My first jobs were via the Mayor's Youth employment program working at various non-profits including Good Samaritan, Arriba Juntos and later as the director of the program under Horizons Unlimited. It is important to note that I became a teen parent and quickly became involved with childcare concerns. I served on the SFUSD's SEEDS advisory committee, the SFUSD children's center PAC and the city's lead advisory committee. In my work capacity I served on the Youth Employment Coalition and the Delinquency Prevention Commission. I later moved to work for the YWCA Mission Girls Services where I provided oversight to girls' services citywide. In this position I helped to push the gender parity policy as a member of the Come into the Sun Coalition and the Girls Now collaborative. I then moved on to work at Precita Center where I provided oversight for juvenile probation programming and I established a community GED class. While in this position I worked with Coleman Advocates to create the Juvenile Justice Providers Association (JJPA), which provided community input around the local action plan and juvenile justice reform policy. In this position I was part of establishing the Mission Community Council (later the MiCoCo) and then created the Community Response Network, which later was adopted by the city as the city response to youth violence. I helped to develop the case management protocols and I led the writing of the Community Response Network operation manual under Arriba Juntos. In my position at DCYF I oversaw the community convener project and the safety network. This gave me direct insight to all neighborhood issues around the city and allowed me to network on behalf of the city with our non-profit and neighborhood groups to address services gaps. Finally I moved to take a position with the SFUSD under the Student Improvement Grant

(SIG) as a community school coordinator. In this position I was helping to lead the implementation of the community schools model under the New Day for Learning Grant. In addition to my work experience I am a product of the SFUSD. My mother came from Guatemala in 7th grade and attended Everett. I attended Cesar Chavez, Horace Mann and graduated from Mission High School. I am and always will be a teen parent. Starting off with children early did not stop me from being an involved parent. I went to City College and then to New College. I have four children who have attended Family Service Agency, Las Americas Children's Center, Buena Vista, Moscone, Bryant Elementary, Horace Mann, James Lick, O'Connell, CAT academy and Lincoln. My children have been labeled as English Language Learners, Special Education (auditory processing) and SED (anxiety) I have 3 grandchildren 1 who attends Lakeshore and the other two with home care licensed providers. I currently help to co chair the Mission Peace Collaborative whose main job is to ensure community peace by working with the various groups in the Mission. We recently spun off the Roadmap to Peace, which is the Mission's 5-year plan to address violence and lack of employment opportunities for high risk and transitional age youth. My position is currently part of the Mission Promise Neighborhood grant in which the city is a partner for school reform.

As you see from my experience I have not only addressed neighborhood issues but have partnered to work with experts city wide to address various youth issues. This experience gives me a unique insight. I am well versed in all areas of children from child development, probation youth, to transitional age youth. I have many long standing relationships with the provider networks in all arenas.

#11 Commitment to improving access low income or underserved communities

Business and/or professional experience:

In addition to my work experience I have served on various boards in the past such as the Jamestown Community Center, Coleman's Advocates, Loco Bloco and the Mission Neighborhood Health Center. I have learned about governance and contractual and fiscal oversight of federal, state and local funding.

It is noteworthy that I am probably one of the few applicants that can state that I have worked on every children's fund campaign. The first campaign was Prop J when no city official was in favor and we had to collect thousands of signatures. The second campaign was under Prop D and the final recent campaign last November was Prop C. I have attended many meetings and have heard input from every type of provider and user.

In my role at DCYF it was my job to help with the Needs Assessments in the various communities. I believe that my experience covers communities citywide.

I have observed various schools around the nation. I am trained in the Response to Intervention model used for culture climate (behavior).

I work to prepare my schools Balanced Score Card as well as provide the Parent Compact and Family engagement plan to be in compliance with the Title 1 funding. I am familiar with the Smarter Balanced Assessment, which is the new state assessments that will be launched this year. My school is a featured community school that the superintendent is very familiar. Everett's progress and growth was recognized by State Secretary Arne Duncan when he selected our school to conduct a site visit to learn how we were able to have our school turnaround be so successful in academic growth and reductions in behavior referrals. I have been to Harlem Children's Zone and I am familiar with that model as well as other models that the SFUSD uses.

As a parent I have participated in countless PTSA leadership roles over the years, I have sat on School Site Councils, and participated in ELAC. As a SFUSD employee I am familiar with the SFUSD programs and goals. In my previous experience I am experienced in all aspects of operating a non profit. I have overseen, implemented and monitored programs in my career. I have worked closely with many city departments such as SF public housing, Recreation and Park, Juvenile Probation, and law enforcement entities. I have worked closely on newcomer issues and unaccompanied minor legislation as it relates to the criminal justice system.

RE: Appointment of Tracy Brown to the Children, Youth and Families Council Oversight and Advisory Committee

Dear Rules Committee:

On behalf of the Roadmap to Peace Initiative (RTP), I would like to submit this letter of support on behalf of Tracy Brown for the appointment to the Oversight and Advisory Committee.

The Roadmap to Peace initiative is a 5-year initiative aimed to improve the overall health and safety outcomes of Latina/o youth ages 13-24 who are out of school and at/in-risk of violence because of street activity and/or involved in systems (foster care, juvenile hall, etc.). The initiative is made up of the following non-profit organizations: Instituto Familiar de la Raza, CARECEN, Bay Area Community Resources, Five Key Charter School, Mission Neighborhood Centers, Mission Neighborhood Health Center, Horizons, Inc., Homey and UCSF, SFSU and most importantly community residents.

As a San Francisco native and long-time advocate for low-income, immigrant and Mission district Latina/o children, youth and families and beyond, Ms. Brown has a long list of accomplishments that position her as an excellent candidate to this Council, including her never ending advocacy on behalf of the most vulnerable and the most underserved of San Francisco residents.

Our recommendation for Ms. Tracy Brown's appointment to the Council is based, first and foremost, on her passion and commitment to the residents of San Francisco. Her continuous and tireless engagement needs to be recognized. Additionally, she has been instrumental in the following:

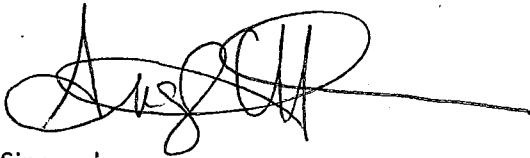

- a) Co-founded the Mission Peace Collaborative, a community grassroots advocacy group;
- b) Co-created the idea of the Community Response Network, a model that has been adopted by the city and now citywide to address street violence in communities;
- c) Actively involved in establishing the Juvenile Justice Providers Association through Coleman Advocates;

- d) Actively served on various city committees, including WiCAC where she facilitated a discussion about the multiple barriers experienced by undocumented workers;

Additionally, Ms. Tracy Brown is versed in multiple areas including: violence prevention, issues impacting low-income residents, underserved populations, education, juvenile justice, gang interventions, unaccompanied minors and transitional age youth.

The Roadmap to Peace has no doubt that Ms. Brown will serve and represent all San Franciscans well, especially those who have been historically marginalized and underserved in the city. Her passion, advocacy and commitment to social justice is uncontested and the Roadmap to Peace Steering Committee unequivocally supports her nomination to this very distinguished Council whose aim to ensure all San Franciscan children, youth and families continue to thrive. She is the perfect candidate to serve in this capacity.

Thank you very much for your time. If you have any further questions, please feel free to contact me at angela.gallegos-castillo@ifrsf.org or (415) 640-4215 at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely,

To Whom It May Concern,

It is with pleasure that I write this letter of support for Tracy Brown, who has applied to sit on the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee. Tracy has a long history working on behalf of children, youth and families in San Francisco; as a parent, service provider and advocate, she has given tirelessly to make sure that the next generation is supported well by our city and schools. She grew up in San Francisco, was educated in SFUSD public schools, and has committed her life to mentoring young people who often end up holding key leadership positions in the city and community.

Tracy served on the Coleman Advocates board during the first Children's Fund campaign, and she has worked on every one of the Children's Fund campaigns providing endless volunteer hours as well as coordinating dozens of other volunteers. Tracy worked closely with former Coleman Advocates Executive Director NTanya Lee to found the Juvenile Justice Providers Association (JJPA), which was instrumental in providing direction for juvenile justice community partnership. The JJPA network still continues to work alongside with the probation department to review juvenile justice strategies and initiatives.

Coleman Advocates recognized her work as a service provider and she was awarded the "Safe Haven award" for providing a safe place for girls. Tracy Brown has been a leader in many other arenas:

- Served on Delinquency Prevention Commission
- Served on SEEDS SFUSD committee—excellence in early childcare
- Served on the Youth Employment Coalition
- Served on the Workforce Investment CAC— employment for hard to reach populations
- Served on the Citywide Community Response Network— youth violence prevention
- Served on the First Beacon Steering Committee— after school community centers
- Served on the Girls Now coalition— for young women
- Served on the Come into the Sun coalition— for incarcerated women and girls
- Co-founded the Juvenile Justice Providers Association
- Led the DCYF convener initiative, a city wide initiative addressing neighborhood issues
- Led the Safety Network, a city wide initiative working with police & community to address safety

As you see, Tracy Brown has a wide range of expertise on issues impacting children, youth and their families, ranging from infants/toddlers and middle school after-school programs, to violence prevention and youth employment. She would contribute so much to the Oversight and Advisory Committee, and I hope that you will consider her appointment.

Please don't hesitate to contact me with any questions.

Board of Supervisors – Rules Committee - City Hall
1 Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett Place, Room 244
San Francisco, Ca 94102-4689

Dear Rules committee,

I am writing this letter as a commissioner of the San Francisco Board of Education, in support of Ms. Tracy Brown for seat 10 or 11 for the Children, Youth and Their families oversight and advisory committee. Tracy is a tremendous advocate for children, youth and their families and I have worked with her in several areas of advocacy for over 7 years.

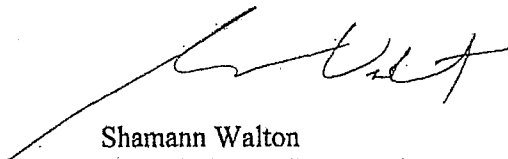

She has experience working with low income families through her city wide work leading the convener project. In this position she was able to meet representatives and community members from all over San Francisco. Tracy listened closely to what their needs were and came back and advocated passionately for what service gaps were identified. In particular, her passion was around working with youth in public housing, unaccompanied youth, and violence prevention.

Tracy has over 25 years of experience working with low-income communities and improving access to services for children and families. Tracy has volunteered endless hours around the city helping with grant writing and capacity building.

In her current position at the SFUSD she works at Everett Middle School. The population is over 55% Latino and 14% African American. I personally worked with her under a Student Improvement Grant and saw her work with the team that brought Everett from the lowest performing school, to the most sought after middle school in the District. Tracy is passionate about creating a college going culture and has done amazing things at Everett. I have personally participated in many of the events including the African American student dinner, Career Day, and College week. Tracy is innovative and creative and works with all to make SF a better place for children, youth and families.

Tracy is likely the only candidate before you that is native to SF and has the experience of working on all Children's Fund campaigns. She served on the board of Coleman Advocates as a mother with 3 children under 6 during the first campaign and then this last campaign served as a mother of 4 with 3 grandchildren. It is important to note that her experience extends from early childcare to transitional age youth. She is a bilingual Spanish speaker and bicultural. She has one special needs child and has served on various parent committees in schools and community agencies.

Re: Children & Youth Fund Community Coalition Recommendations for DCYF Oversight and Advisory Committee

Dear Supervisor Avalos, Chair
Supervisor Cohen
Supervisor Tang

The Children and Youth Fund Community Coalition (Coalition) represents a dedicated network of service providers and advocates that work daily to ensure that all children, all youth and all families get the supports they need to thrive in our great city. We are committed to:

- Ensuring equity, and giving priority to children and youth with the highest need;
- Empowering parents, youth and community stakeholders by giving us all a voice in the implementation of the Fund's vision; and
- Building public trust through advocating for transparency and accountability in meeting the needs of children, youth and families.

The Coalition began meeting in the summer of 2012 with the purpose of renewing and strengthening the Children's Amendment. Last November 2014, San Francisco voters approved an increase in the Children's Fund to address many unmet needs in the community including early childhood programs, and services for transition age youth.

An important addition to the Children's Amendment was the creation of a Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee to review the governance and policies of the Department of Children, Youth and Their Families; and to take steps to ensure that the Children and Youth Fund is administered in a manner accountable to the community.

The Children's Funding Community Coalition has through its networks solicited qualified candidates with the interest, experience and eligibility to serve on the DCYF Oversight and Advisory Committee. The following candidates are either members of the Coalition noted with an * or nominated by members.

Seat 7 Mia "Tu Mutch" Satya

Seat 8 Elisa Rodriguez Furey

Seat 9 Anwar Mojammel

Seat 10 Margaret Wertz

Dear Rules Committee:

On behalf of the San Francisco Family Support Network, I am writing to express our enthusiastic support for Ms. Tracy Brown for seat 10 or 11 for the Children, Youth, and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee. She would be an excellent fit for the committee because of her rich professional experience and long-standing commitment to engaging, supporting, and strengthening children, youth, and families.

During her long tenure in the community, beginning as a parent leader, Ms. Brown has earned a solid positive professional reputation for her effective work. Her previous efforts coordinating the Department of Children, Youth, and their Families' Community Convener Project, which entailed building and strengthening collaborations to coordinate support for children, youth, and families in neighborhood across the City, and working on all of the Children's Fund campaigns are especially notable.

She has demonstrated exceptional skill in her ability to work well with many diverse stakeholders, coordinate complex projects, and promote meaningful systems change that benefits children, youth, and families. Those who have worked with her note that she is highly-motivated, conscientious, collaborative, and deeply understands the issues families face.

We at the San Francisco Family Support Network are deeply grateful for Ms. Brown's contributions to advance the children, youth, and families of our City. We are confident that she would be a significant asset to the Committee.

Sincerely,

RE: Appointment of Tracy Brown to the Children, Youth and Their Families
Oversight and Advisory Committee

Dear Rules Committee;

On behalf of the Mission Peace Collaborative, we submit this letter in support of appointing Tracy Brown to the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee, seat 10 or seat 11.

Tracy Brown is a founding member of the Mission Peace Collaborative and is considered an expert in the area of violence prevention. Among many of her successful program blueprints, Ms. Brown co-founded the Mission Community Response Network (CRN), which was a model that was later adopted by the city and duplicated in high violence neighborhoods. She also co-created the CRN street outreach protocol. Ms. Brown continues to volunteer with the Mission Peace Collaborative to address the issues of violence prevention and crisis response in the various neighborhoods. She currently represents the Mission Peace Collaborative by attending the Children, Youth and Families Community Council (CYFCC).

Ms. Brown, in collaboration with Coleman Advocates, was active in the establishment of the Juvenile Justice Providers Association. During the years as the Youth Services Director at Precita Center she worked on various juvenile justice issues such as gender specific programming, gang intervention, transitional age youth, and unaccompanied youth.

Ms. Brown has served on numerous committees city-wide to address the issues impacting low income communities. She most recently served on the WiCAC committee where she hosted a discussion about employment barriers for undocumented workers.

Tracy is an experienced convener and can bring stakeholders together to find solutions and address service gaps. Because of her work and volunteer experience she has developed contacts with a variety of city and community entities. If appointed to this role we are confident that she will bring all voices to the table and ensure that service gaps are addressed.

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing this letter as a native San Francisco resident. My name is Tracy Brown and if asked to come in and testify to my statements I will be available. You can also call me on my cell phone at 415-509-7266. I am currently employed at the SFUSD.

About six years ago I worked with Vicente Cruz. I was visiting my mother who resides on 24th and York on March 31, 2015 when I spotted Vicente. I was on York St. and we made eye contact. I waved I was excited to see him and hear how he was doing. I had not seen him for a few years. The last time I saw him I was the director of a youth service agency and he was enrolled in one of my programs.

He walked over to me with a group of friends and a white unmarked car stopped and told him to go ahead and cross. Then all of a sudden the driver and passenger jumped out of the car and grabbed Vicente. It was 2 police officers. This was on York St. It is a small residential street and many people walk from their cars to their homes. In fact my car was double-parked. As the police officers grabbed him I could not believe that they were grabbing him and telling everyone to back away as if he did something wrong. When I got closer his friend who also crossed the street towards me said that he was being arrested for "jay walking". I was shocked and I actually feel really bad because he was coming over to say hi to me at my request.

I called the Mission station and sent them the photos and videos that I took of the incident. They told me that he was let go. I told them that this looked like racial profiling. I decided to trust that the police would be true to their word. A few days ago Vicente came to ask me for the videos along with the photos of the incident. I did not have time to look for it but decided instead to write this letter to urge you to dismiss the ticket. Most people do this in residential neighborhoods. It is a residential block and not a traffic block. During the time of me watching the incident I witnessed 12 people cross the street in front of the police officers. The police officers then took Vicente as if he was being arrested. As a homeowner in the mission many of us watching outside were shocked that this incident occurred.

In all of the years working with youth and living in the mission I have never seen anything like this with the police. I hope that you will read my letter and dismiss this ticket. While I understand the changing demographics of the Mission I believe that what is fair is fair. Vicente was singled out. I have never seen anyone issued a ticket in this manner.

Sincerely,

Tracy Brown, Co Chair Mission Peace Collaborative

Dear Rules Committee,

On behalf of the Everett Middle School PTSA we submit this letter of recommendation and ask that you consider appointing Tracy Brown to the Children, Youth and their Families oversight committee for Seat 11.

Tracy Brown currently works at Everett Middle School and has worked for the SFUSD for the last 5 years. During this time she has been part of a team who came into Everett to help turn the school around. Everett Middle School was considered one of the lowest performing schools in the SFUSD. Today Everett is thriving and has completely turned around to be the most sought out Middle School in the SFUSD.

Tracy has helped to create a strong community school at Everett working with all stakeholders and bringing in parent voice to the decision making process. She works with our various partners to align them to our school goals. Tracy brings over 25 years of experience in children and youth issues. In particular she is familiar with all the SFUSD 21st century goals and leads our college and career culture component at Everett. She works with the families of Everett to connect them to needed support for student success. Everett is a newcomer school and she works closely with these parents on a variety of issues from immigration to providing academic resources and interventions to their children. In addition to her previous experience in juvenile justice, youth employment, youth leadership and after school programming she is a mother of 4 who have been through the SFUSD. Her youngest daughter is special needs and her experience as a native parent in our city will be an invaluable voice on the advisory committee. In her work at Everett she has improved access and the quality of service to our students and our families.

The PTSA of Everett strongly urges you to appoint her to Seat 11.

RE: Appointment of Tracy Brown to the Children, Youth and Their Families
Oversight and Advisory Committee

Dear Rules Committee,

On behalf of CHALK and its parent organization, Bay Area Community Resources, I am submitting this letter of support to request that you appoint Tracy Brown to seat 10 or 11 for the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee.

Tracy Brown has spent over 20 years working to promote jobs for disconnected, in-risk youth. She understands the population of disconnected youth and advocates for programming and monitoring so that services will be relevant and realistic. As the community schools coordinator at Everett, Tracy reached out to employers and job readiness programs to 1) provide job readiness services at the Beacon Center, and 2) to provide high quality internships to high school and transition aged youth in the Mission. Further, Tracy has led many community discussions around the importance of providing comprehensive employment programming and meaningful work experience that prepares some of the most hard to serve youth for the workforce.

Tracy understands that employment and wrap around support services are necessary and effective at eradicating generational poverty and in preventing violence. To this end, Tracy has worked on every children's fund campaign since its inception and has committed countless hours of volunteer time to be sure that our city prioritizes children, youth and families.

I highly recommend Tracy Brown for this appointment. Thank you for your consideration.

Dear Members of the Rules Committee,

As Executive Director of the Bayview Hunters Point Foundation for Community Improvement I am writing to lend my full and enthusiastic support for Ms. Tracy Brown for seat 10 or 11 on the Children, Youth and their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee. In the eight years that I have worked with Ms. Brown I have found her to be a knowledgeable, credible, and compassionate activist, advocate and service provider in her community.

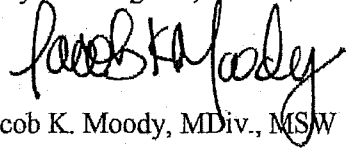

My specific experience with Ms. Brown is our shared concern and work in violence prevention and response with the former Southeast Community Response Network and the Mission Community Response Network. Ms. Brown joined in this work as a representative of the Mission Peace Collaborative and was instrumental in keeping both programs focused on the goals of being Community Driven and Community Led. Her invaluable knowledge of and commitment to Black and Brown people and the need for finding the common ground for collective action and collective impact lifted the entire group to a higher level of inter-ethnic analysis and cooperative functioning.

Ms. Brown is completely dedicated to the healing of the wounds of oppression however they show up in the lives of the children and families she serves at Everett Middle School and helping them lift their sights to the tremendous possibilities that they can achieve.

“To Build a Community that is empowered, clean, safe and healthy.”

I can think of no better candidate to join with the City and County of San Francisco and the Department of Children, Youth and their Families in expanding the opportunities for improved health, educational, and family support than Tracy Brown.

Very Best Regards,

Re: Appointment of Tracy Brown to Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee Seats 10 or 11

Dear Rules Committee,

I am writing this letter to express the full support of the San Francisco Latino Democratic Club for Tracy Brown for a seat 10 or 11 for the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee. Tracy has not only been an effective advocate for youth and their families, but also an important bridge to the Latino community of San Francisco.

Latinos in San Francisco are under extreme duress at this time. Longtime Latino businesses, an important income source for many families without work-permits are facing higher rates of eviction. Latinos are facing higher rates of eviction with 83% of those that manage to remain in their homes paying more than 50% of their income on rent. Students continuing their education in San Francisco become receptacles of their parents' stress as they struggle with a 20.8% unemployment in the Mission. Latino families are becoming increasingly hard to reach. Tracy's experience working with English Language Learners students at Everett Middle School, at Mission Girls on gender and parity issues including statutory rape and gang rape gives her the know-how to necessary to do the job.

There have also been remarkable instances of violence against Latino youth in the last year from the tragic death of unarmed Alex Nieto to the shooting of Amilcar Perez-Lopez as he ran away from Police. Tracy's work at Precita Center on juvenile justice systems give her important context relating law-enforcement with our youth.

Our voice must be heard on the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee. Tracy Brown can help bring access to our community. She has our full-support for seat 10 or 11. If you have any questions or concerns, please contact Gabriel Medina, President, San Francisco Latino Democratic Club and at (415) 690-6992 or gabrielmedina5@gmail.com. Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Board of Supervisors—Rules Committee—City Hall
1 Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett Place, Room 244
San Francisco, CA 94102-4689

Dear Rules Committee,

I am writing this letter as a resident of San Francisco, the parent of a college age son and the Co-Founder and Executive Director of a community based organization in support of Ms. Tracy Brown for seat 10 or 11 for the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee. I have known Tracy for over 10 years and worked closely with her on city-wide advocacy for children, youth and families. Tracy works tirelessly on behalf of those that often have no voice and are left out of the conversation completely.

Tracy has valuable and vast experience serving and empowering low-income families. As a San Francisco native who raised her family and now grandchildren in the city Tracy is an asset with a wealth of knowledge and experience.

Currently Tracy works at Everett Middle School with a population that is over 55% Latino and 14% African American. I have worked with Tracy through the years on multiple projects including the Children's Fund campaigns. She is a die-hard advocate for all children, youth and families in San Francisco.

I strongly support Tracy Brown for a seat on the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee. If you have any questions or concerns feel free to contact me directly.

Sincerely,

Dawn Stueckle
Co-Founder and Executive Director

RE: Appointment of Tracy Brown to the Children, Youth and Their Families
Oversight and Advisory Committee

Dear Rules Committee,

On behalf of the Latino Steering Committee, we are submitting this letter of support to request that you appoint Tracy Brown to seat 10 or 11 for the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee.

Tracy Brown has worked with low income and underserved youth and families for over 25 years. Her distinctive experience includes serving as the Director of Mission Girls Services, a program that offers gender specific services. This program was featured in Latina Magazine for being a place where Latina girls were introduced to and prepared for non-traditional careers. She also created a program to address violence against girls including issues of rape and date rape. This program was recognized and awarded as "Best Program Serving Young Women" and addressing violence by the Commission on the Status of Women.

She later went on to direct the Youth Services Department at Mission Neighborhood Centers, Inc. As the director, she established case management protocols as well as creating a comprehensive street outreach program to serve gang affiliated youth. In this position she was instrumental in the designing of the Community Response Network (CRN) – a street outreach program to address youth violence. She also worked in collaboration with Coleman Advocates to create the Juvenile Justice Providers Association (JJPA). This entity served as the advocacy body for juvenile justice reform and the alignment of services.

Her dedication to children and youth go beyond her work experience and extend into her volunteer commitments. She is a founding member of Loco Bloco, an arts program that brings youth and families together through dance, music and performance. She has also served on several advisory boards and boards, including the Mission Neighborhood Health Center.

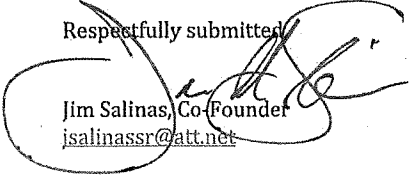

Tracy is an organizer for the community and the city as a whole. Her gender specific projects and juvenile justice advocacy work has served youth city wide. Her earlier years were spent serving on the Delinquency Prevention Commission and on the Youth Employment Coalition. As a parent, she served on the SEEDS Advisory Committee that was formed to evaluate the Children's Centers in SF.

Most importantly, Tracy has worked on every Children's Fund campaign and has helped lead each campaign to victory. She is a "go to" person for children, youth and family issues and continues to advocate for system reform. Her deep understanding comes from her wide-ranging experience in the community, the non-profit field, and as a city and county employee.

Working for the San Francisco Unified School District as a Community School Coordinator, she possesses a clear analysis on the achievement gap and what can be done to help close it. While working in her position at Everett Middle School, she assisted the administration in transforming the school from the bottom performing to the most sought out middle school in the district.

She is a passionate advocate for children, youth, and their families and the Latino Steering Committee cannot think of a better candidate to serve on this advisory committee. We sincerely hope that you select her, one of the best experts our community has to offer.

Respectfully submitted,

Jim Salinas, Co-Founder

Luis Aroche Biography

Luis Aroche is the founding staff for the San Francisco District Attorney's Office, Alternative Sentencing Program, which is the first of its kind in the country. This model fundamentally shifts prosecutorial mandate and approach, moving from the traditional metrics of conviction rates and prison terms to recidivism reduction and community safety. Aroche has worked passionately to design and implement significant reform policies focused on seeking the right amount of intervention to change behavior and improve public safety.

As troubled youth living below the poverty line, Aroche grew up in the Mission District, a community that was once plagued with gang and street violence. Although conscientious of the harm gang members were doing to the community, Aroche found it difficult to escape the web of violence. At the age of 14, Aroche had dropped out of high school and was getting in trouble with the law until he was recruited by a community organizer to become part of the Bay Area's grass roots organizing efforts on violence prevention and youth empowerment. Aroche found his passion and learned the process of building community power by involving key stakeholders in identifying problems they shared and find solutions to those problems.

Prior to joining the San Francisco District Attorney's Office, Aroche led the creation of the San Mateo County Violence Prevention Network in collaboration with elected officials, law enforcement professionals and non-profit agencies. As the Manager of the Violence Prevention Programs, Aroche led a strategic countywide effort aimed at strengthening distressed neighborhoods by providing leadership training and opportunities for residents on how to effectively improve the quality of life in their communities. The flagship program, Strengthening Neighborhood, helps address and reduce gang activity, builds healthy relationships with law enforcement and reinstalls the sense of community pride. The program has been replicated in several cities across San Mateo County.

Luis Aroche's remarkable work and achievements has gained him recognition from the Los Angeles Times, NBC Latino, and San Francisco Chronicle. He has served on numerous boards of directors and has received awards for his efforts including the 2012 San Francisco Latino Heritage "Community Service" award and the California Legislature Assembly "Violence Prevention" award.

Aroche holds a Bachelor of Arts in Interdisciplinary Studies with a concentration in Counseling Psychology from California Institute of Integral Studies and is currently pursuing a Master's Degree in Public Administration from the University of San Francisco.

From gang member to team player

Luis Aroche's rough youth prepared him for an unusual career: The 'alternative sentencing planner' helps the San Francisco D.A. decide who needs lockup and who deserves another chance.

January 07, 2013 | By Maria L. La Ganga, Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — Luis Aroche learned about violence at Leonard R. Flynn Elementary School, across from the projects where his friend Carl lived.

He remembers sitting down at his desk and seeing his teacher, Mrs. Foster, in tears. His class had just finished the Pledge of Allegiance.

"Carl was playing on the swings and got shot," Aroche said. "And died. Kindergarten. He got found laying in a pool of blood in the park," Aroche paused. Swallowed. Started up again. "He was my desk buddy. He would go with me to the bathroom. And now, Carl wasn't there.

"That was my first experience of loss. And I didn't understand it. To this day, I don't understand it."

Aroche since has become something of an expert on violence — as victim, perpetrator and now as part of a hoped-for solution. Last year, San Francisco Dist. Atty. George Gascon hired the former gang member to be his office's first "alternative sentencing planner," part of an effort to keep offenders from ending up back behind bars.

The position, criminal justice experts say, has no equivalent in any prosecutor's office in the country.

And Aroche is as singular as his job. An Aztec skull tattoo stretches down his right forearm to his hand, its grimace partly wiped away by laser removal. The day his juvenile record was sealed, he says, was the happiest of his life.

Today, he helps prosecutors figure out who among San Francisco's low-level offenders deserves a jail cell and who deserves a second chance.

He knows a lot about both.

If you were Aroche, 12 years old and living in the Mission District in 1990 — when gangs and crack cocaine meant funerals were as commonplace as quinceañeras — you got a tattoo, cut school and drank beer. You thought a stint in Pelican Bay State Prison was like going off to "Stanford or Yale." You practiced how to sit and talk and smoke like the toughest prisoners.

"We would learn how to iron our clothes using a comb, 'cause that's how you iron your pants in prison," Aroche said. "You iron it with the teeth of the comb ... and then you put it underneath the mattress."

Aroche's first tattoo was a small cross on his left hand, in the soft web between thumb and forefinger. He got it in an alleyway not far from the studio apartment where he slept on the floor with his five brothers, three sisters, the occasional niece or nephew. His parents got the bed in the corner.

His Salvadoran mother was a chambermaid at a Fisherman's Wharf motel, his Puerto Rican father a security guard in the Navy shipyards.

And his older brothers? They would disappear for years. Aroche didn't know why until his father took him to visit San Quentin State Prison. They were "main men" in a notorious Northern California prison gang. When they were out, they were "the mayors of the Mission."

By the time Aroche was 15, he was drinking so much and incarcerated so often that he gave himself a test every night before he went to sleep. If he put out his hand and felt warm, smooth drywall, he knew he was home. If he felt cold, slick concrete, he was in custody.

One night he ended up in the hospital. He'd been drunk, hanging out in Lucky Alley, when a car drove up and the doors flew open. Aroche saw his friend get sliced with a machete. Gunshots rang out.

"And I remember some guy grabbing me and hitting me with a crowbar and stabbing me in my stomach," he said. "And I could feel the pierce of my stomach, just ripping me open.... And I thought, this is it. This is it. This is my life."

At the computer in his spartan office at the Hall of Justice, Aroche is poring over the official tale of another life in the balance: a 28-year-old woman on a downward spiral.

The alcoholic, meth-addicted prostitute had lost custody of her toddler son, habitually robbed her aging parents, been in and out of rehab. She also suffered from postpartum depression.

The first time she accosted her father, her parents decided not to press charges. When she was arrested after breaking into their home last year, they refused a second time. Then in August, high on meth, she was in again.

"The mom was just, 'I'm tired of this.... I'm going to prosecute. I want my daughter to get the help, and I think she needs a stern hand,'" Aroche said.

The young woman was charged with two counts of felony first-degree residential burglary, with enhancements including elder abuse.

"The prosecution is like, 'This woman can easily see prison time,'" Aroche said as he scrolled through her case. "She burglarizes, is verbally abusive with her parents when she's under the influence. And she's always under the influence. But the prosecution also wondered, 'Will state prison rehabilitate her?'"

That a district attorney's office would even consider the question is "just amazing," said Daniel Macallair, executive director of the Center on Juvenile and Criminal Justice. And what Aroche does on a daily basis is "just so far outside the box of California district attorneys. You'd have a hard time finding it in a public defender's office."

Gascon, the D.A., views Aroche's position — along with a new local sentencing commission — as "a work in progress" and says he hopes his department will become a national model "in how to be smart in dealing with the criminal justice system."

For the woman whose fate Aroche was weighing, not just any rehab would do. Between 2009 and 2011, she'd dropped out of voluntary programs half a dozen times.

His prescription? Let the woman stay in jail and detox. Then, as a condition of her probation, she should be placed into a strict, 24-hour-a-day residential facility called Grace Center for two years. In addition, she should receive case management services from a program called SAGE, for women who have been sexually exploited.

And if she backslides? State prison is still a possibility.

Even Aroche finds himself asking: "You wonder, can probation really save this woman?"

It saved Aroche.

At age 16, tanked on a fruity "bum wine," Aroche was hanging out near the Army Street projects around 26th Street and Folsom when he decided to steal a bike.

But the owner was still on it.

"He turned out to be the wrong guy to mess with," Aroche said. "He started whupping on me.... The cops came."

The Juvenile Court judge sentenced him to 18 months at a facility for young offenders called Log Cabin Ranch, south of San Francisco. Bad behavior kept him there for two years.

But at Log Cabin, he read the two things that began to change his life. One was the first book he'd ever finished, "Down These Mean Streets," the memoir of a Puerto Rican street fighter in New York City who went to prison for shooting a cop and, somehow, turned his life around.

The other was a letter from one of his older brothers.

Two years before Aroche landed at Log Cabin, this brother had taken part in an ordered hit on a fellow gang member named Frederico Arevalo. A second man was killed in the attack. Aroche's brother was sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole.

"Hey, Bro," the letter began. "How you doing? Everything's good. How you behaving inside? Don't catch more time. Hey, you wanted to know that my case was over. I'm not coming out."

After reading that, Aroche said, "I sat in my bunk, tripping. Oh, my God. So that means 30, 40, 50, 60, 70, if God allows him, 80, 90 years, he's gonna sit in that cell. And that woke me up."

Aroche was set to be released from Log Cabin in 1996, when he was 18. His prosecutor and probation officer told him they could give him a job or one day lock him up again. They asked him, "What'll it be?"

"They saw something in me that was different and wanted to give me a second chance," Aroche recalled, still sounding a little mystified 16 years later, sitting in a coffee shop across the street from the Hall of Justice. "I said, 'I want a job.'"

He cleaned pools at Garfield Park. He scooped ice cream at Mitchell's. He got a warehouse stint at MacFrugal's discount outlet. The CalWorks program that taught him to be an ironworker didn't work out (he caught his overalls on fire). But the job counseling at-risk kids at Paul Revere Elementary School did.

He enrolled in City College, then went on to San Francisco State, where he ended up on the honor roll and graduated with a degree in social work. He started working with Project Rebound, a program for ex-offenders. And he got some therapy.

"I had to accept who I was, an ex-offender," Aroche said. "I had to admit that I had PTSD ... that it wasn't normal seeing my friends being shot."

There is still a tinge of "pinch me; am I really here?" in Aroche's demeanor, even though he has worn a badge from the D.A.'s office for nearly a year. A photograph of that laminated ID hangs on the wall of his mother's apartment. His father, murdered in 2001, did not live to see it.

From gang member to team player - latimes

Another tattoo, the Japanese characters for "unconditional love," crawls from beneath Aroche's collar to the back of his left ear.

"It has taken me years to reshape who I am now," he said. "Folks can see my hands, my neck, my face, and already put together an understanding of who I am.

"But with my street knowledge and my education, I can see someone and say, 'This person's a bad dude. Based on his rap sheet and history, this person's not safe to go back to the community.' I can also know what can give somebody a second chance."

Graduate student Luis Aroche MPA '15 is on the frontlines of the fight to reduce California's overcrowded prisons, now at more than 140 percent of capacity.

In just two years, he's reduced recidivism 19 percent among San Francisco offenders in the volatile 18- to 25-year-old age group, and kept about 90 offenders out of jail or state prison, according to the San Francisco District Attorney's Office.

Aroche, 35, is in a unique position—he directs the city's Alternative Sentencing Program (ASP), the only position of its kind in the country.

He identifies low-level offenders that he believes are the most likely to be successfully rehabilitated and, through in-depth interviews and background checks, tries to gauge how ready they are to reform.

Aroche then works with prosecutors and defense attorneys to create a probationary sentence that avoids jail time but includes at least one mandatory program to help address the root cause of the problem, such as drug rehabilitation, personal and family counseling, or tutoring.

San Francisco District Attorney George Gascón created ASP in 2012 as an alternative to the one-size-fits-all approach to prosecution and sentencing that he says helped create California's overcrowded prisons in the first place.

One success story is a 19-year-old pot smoker who went on a robbery spree with a BB gun in the city's Mission District in 2012. He faced three to five years in prison, but on Aroche's recommendation the young father and high school dropout was ordered to begin drug rehab and take classes in anger management and parenting.

Two years later, he's earned a GED, received custody of his daughter, and works full time.

"Incarcerating him wasn't necessarily going to stop him from smoking or getting a job or schooling," Gascón said.

"I call it smart sentencing," said Aroche, who is an example of successful reform. By age 16, he had been arrested for assault and attempted robbery and spent three years in juvenile detention facilities. While there, he learned that his older brother had been sentenced to life in prison for a double homicide. Two other brothers were incarcerated.

He decided that a life in prison wasn't the road he wanted to take and promised a prosecutor he would change. The prosecutor then helped him land his first job, cleaning swimming pools. Aroche went on to earn a GED and a degree in counseling psychology from the California Institute of Integral Studies.

"I represent the marginalized side of the Latino community. I came from the bottom and know how to go up, and the offenders I see recognize that," said Aroche, who counseled troubled youth before enrolling at USF. "I'm a true believer in the power of a second chance."

Aroche said he applied to USF after learning about its emphasis on ethics, helping others, and community building. "I love every minute of my time at USF. I wouldn't be doing what I'm doing without it," he said.

In the world of criminal justice, Luis Aroche is something of an anomaly. Even though he works for the San Francisco district attorney's office, Aroche fights to keep felons out of prison.

Take, for example, the case of a teenage felon in 2011: an intoxicated 19-year-old Mexican-American, brandishing a BB gun that resembled a semi-automatic weapon, leaped out of a car and set off on a midnight robbing spree in the Mission District of San Francisco.

Few prosecutors would have considered anything less than three years of state prison time for such a crime. But Aroche's responsibility as an alternative sentencing planner—one of only a handful in the nation—is to look past the second-degree robbery charge and delve into the defendant's back story. Aroche recommended anger management sessions and parenting classes, because the 19-year-old perpetrator, whose name he declined to disclose, had no prior crimes, and was about to become a new father.

RELATED: Immigrants are big business for prison companies
(<http://nbclatino.com/2012/08/02/immigrants-are-big-business-for-prison-companies/>)

Aroche is charting out a unique precedent for district attorney's offices in the United States. Traditionally, defense teams conduct the research and ask that a defendant pursue substance abuse treatment or a G.E.D. instead of prison time. But with over 150,000 inmates packed into the state's 33 prisons, Californians on all sides of the court are pushing for more options.

"Incarcerating people is very expensive economically and socially," says San Francisco District Attorney George Gascón (<http://nbclatino.tumblr.com/post/16838163456/sfs-first-hispanic-district-attorney-says-to-pay>). A high-school-dropout who later became the chief of the San Francisco Police Department, Gascón spearheaded the city's alternative sentencing initiative. "If we can reduce the likelihood of re-offending, it's a win-win for everybody."

But critics say such initiatives could be detrimental. Victims of the serious offenses that come to Aroche's desk may not be pacified by the perception that the defendant has been let off easy.

"San Francisco is breaking new ground if they're saying to victims of robbery, 'He was young. He was drunk. What we really need to do is try and help him,'" says Scott Burns, president of the National District Attorneys Association. "If you think that type of behavior is going to change, that's naive."

Alternative sentencing has a long tradition in prosecution circles, but has gained prevalence in the wake of California Governor Edmund Brown's 2011 Realignment legislation. After federal courts demanded the state shed thousands of inmates, Brown proposed funding to reduce the number of low-level inmates cycling through the state prison system. (<http://www.mcclatchydc.com/2013/01/08/179372/calif-gov-brown-says-job-of-reforming.html>) State prison officials say they gladly welcomed alternative sentencing as a way to address offenses without jail time.

"People are different and so are their motives for committing crimes," says Bill Sessa, spokesman for the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation. "Alternative sentences shows there's no one-size-fits-all solution."

Aroche intimately understands what the youth he helps keep out of prison go through. The youngest in a family of ten, he envied his older brothers for making money in the local gang while his father, a security guard from Puerto Rico (<http://nbclatino.com/tag/puerto-rico>), and his mother, a maid from El Salvador, stressed over the family's finances.

Aroche joined a Latino gang and drank, took drugs and clashed with rival gang members. As he was a skilled boxer who had competed in Golden Gloves, he was often designated to fight for the gang's turf. Once, while drinking in an alleyway with his friends, he was ambushed by a rival gang. "One guy gets out of the car and strikes my friend with a machete and slices him," he says. "I got cornered and beat up with a crowbar and stabbed in the stomach."

The violence shook Aroche up, but also helped him realize the hopelessness of his situation. "You see so much death you become numb to it," he says.

After several run-ins with the police, Aroche was sent to a juvenile detention center where he read his first book: "Down These Mean Streets," a memoir by Puerto Rican and Cuban author Piri Thomas about life in El Barrio in Harlem. (<http://www.amazon.com/Down-These-Mean-Streets-Thomas/dp/0679781420>) The book, as well as the news that his older brother would be spending his life in prison, changed Aroche's outlook. When he was let out, at 18, he told his probation officer he was ready for a job. He went on to attend San Francisco State University and soon found his calling in social work, assisting high-risk juvenile youth.

He says his work immerses him in a part of the Latino community that is largely neglected. "I represent the other side of the Latino community. Not the middle class or those fortunate enough to get a better education, but a Latino who came from the bottom and knows how to go up," he says. "I represent the power of the second chance."

EXTENDED OPPORTUNITY PROGRAMS AND SERVICES

May 26, 2015

To whom it may concern,

This letter serves to support the appointment of Luis M. Aroche to the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee Vacant seat #10. I have known Luis M. Aroche for over two years as he serves on the Advisory Board for City College of San Francisco's Extended Opportunity Programs and Services (EOPS) Program.

EOPS is a state funded program that serves low-income and educationally disadvantaged students to attain a college education; there are 112 programs throughout California Community Colleges. CCSF EOPS serves formerly incarcerated students (FIS) through its Second Chance program. Mr. Aroche serves this population through the District Attorney's Alternative Sentencing program. As a result, I invited Mr. Aroche to serve on EOPS' Advisory Board as his knowledge base will help to bridge individuals to seek a higher education as an alternative to incarceration.

CCSF EOPS has been serving formerly incarcerated student population since 1976 through its Project Scorpio program; Project Scorpio was revamped and revitalized in the 1990s, and is known today as Second Chance. In Spring 2015, EOPS served 68 students who self-identified through our application intake-process as formerly incarcerated and/or in-recovery from drugs and alcohol; these students opted to participate in EOPS' Second Chance program. EOPS provides to all its student participants the following services: case management, academic counseling services, book voucher services, priority registration, access to computer lab and printing services, graduation regalia, summer bridge, and peer mentor support. Through EOPS' Second Chance program, FIS received additional services: enrollment in Second Chance Psychology Courses (Psych 26, Psych 15), one-time school supply grant, several workshops, community luncheon, peer mentors, and a graduation ceremony dinner.

In his role as an advisory board member, Mr. Aroche has been instrumental in providing feedback and advice to CCSF EOPS on how to better serve the community and students. As a native of San Francisco, he is well versed in the needs of the community especially the needs of children, youth and their families. He will provide a perspective on how to improve the lives of San Franciscans with this point of reference.

In conclusion, I fully support the appointment of Luis M. Aroche to the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee Vacant seat #10.

Sincerely,

Ms. Alisa Somera, Assistant Clerk
City Hall - San Francisco Board of Supervisors
1 Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett Place, Room 244
San Francisco, CA 94102

Dear Ms. Somera,

I wholeheartedly recommend Luis Aroche for the Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee, vacant seat 7.

My name is Cristel Tullock, MSW, and I am the division director of the Community Services Division at San Francisco Adult Probation Department. I have been a probation officer for over 15 years, and my specialty is the management of sex offenders. My division consists of 2,000 probationers that are supervised by a total of 26 officers and four unit supervisors.

My association with Luis Aroche, began with his appointment as the Alternative Sentencing Planner (ASP) for the District Attorney's office. In this position, he met regularly with staff in our Transitional Age Youth (TAY) unit to strategize on defining alternative supervision recommendations that focused less on incarceration and more on accountability through community rehabilitation.

It is truly remarkably to witness a person that used his analytical, social, and intellectual skills to engage with criminal behavior, redirect their life, and use those same skills to become an inspiration, role model, and community servant. What sets Luis aside is that his passion for this work is beyond his understanding of the theoretical, biological, philosophical, and legal perspectives of our TAY population. Luis is unique because he brings credibility because, he lived it.

My experience of Luis is that he is direct, thoughtful, extends himself, and he demonstrates integrity, honesty, and responsibility to the interests of others, the community, and to the great City and County of San Francisco. Luis will serve this committee well and the committee will benefit from having such a knowledgeable and passionate member to further the mission of the Children, Youth, and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee.

Should you wish to further discuss the characteristics and qualities of Luis Aroche, please feel free to contact me at (415) 553-1788.

Thank you,

Cristel M. Tullock

As the current Project Director for CYC's Bayview Branch Office, from which I will resign at the end of August 2015, but will continue on as a consultant, I have spent many years working and advocating on behalf of San Francisco's youth and their families. The focus of my past eight years with CYC has been working with and mentoring high need and high-risk Asian immigrant youth, ages 16-24, who were involved in the criminal justice system as a result of gang involvement, violence and criminal activities, due to barriers including limited English proficiency, poor academic achievement, lack of job skills and training, and financial hardship. The opening of the Bayview Branch Office in 2011, was with the purpose of working with the Bayview's residents and communities of color to find solutions to make the neighborhood safer, ease tensions and promote racial harmony. This led to the establishment of the Bayview Youth Advocates, a diverse and multicultural group of high school students (including Asian Pacific Islanders, African Americans and Latinos) who lived or attended school in the Bayview. In a neighborhood where the demographics have changed from a once predominate African American population to now a predominantly Asian population, tensions run high over limited jobs, housing and services, and safety and violence are a main concern. Through working the residents of the Bayview, the youth, families and seniors, we are slowly making progress in creating an environment of understanding, tolerance and acceptance among each other.

Hi Supervisor Avalos,

Hope you are doing very well in summer. I just want to inform you that we strongly support Eddy Zheng for his application to the DCYF Oversight & Advisory Council seat #10. AS you know, Eddy has been working with low income and at risk & high risk Asian and Pacific Islanders youth for the past eight years through CYC. AS he is moving on to his Soro Fellowship journey in September and only being a consultant for our Bayview Project at CYC, he would be a perfect candidate to represent the needs of API Community on the Council. I hope you can consider his application at this upcoming hearing on 7/23 at the Rules Committee. If you have any question, please do not hesitate to contact me at 415-298-2118. Thank you for your considerations!

As a first generation Latina, I grew up in the Mission District of San Francisco, starting as preschooler attending a Head Start program. Since 1986, I have been a long-term resident of the Outer Mission (Crocker Amazon/Excelsior) community where I raised my two daughters as a single-parent. I am now a proud grandmother of two beautiful little girls, one of whom is attending a Spanish/bilingual preschool in the Mission District; and I hope she is able to attend a Spanish-immersion elementary school to continue on a pathway of multilingualism at SFUSD.

Business and/or professional experience:

I am fortunate to oversee San Francisco's universal preschool initiative, Preschool for All. For the past ten years, I have been responsible for building upon the public investments for the birth-to-five system of supports, while developing new resources for our universal preschool system. Along with a small (but mighty) team at First 5, we have developed a robust system of professional development supports, financial incentives to increase access for preschool-aged children with a special focus on African American and Latino children. I am responsible for ensuring that the 150+ preschool sites are aligned to early learning standards and the quality of these sites are on a continuum of improvement. My previous work experience included directing a Head Start program for over a decade in the Mission District, which served over 340 children and their families; continuously seeking opportunities for collaboration within community-based organizations to provide family support, special needs, health, nutrition and mental health services to provide comprehensive and wrap-around services.

Authority:

Administrative Code, Sections 2A.233-2A.234, and Charter, Section 16.108-1 (Ordinance No. 15-15)

Board Qualifications:

The Children, Youth and Their Families Oversight and Advisory Committee (Oversight and Advisory Committee) was established pursuant to Charter, Section 16.108-1. (adopted by the voters as part of Proposition C at the November 2014 election), to review the governance and policies of the Department of Children, Youth and Their Families (DCYF), to monitor and participate in the administration of the Children and Youth Fund, and to take steps to ensure the Fund is administered in a manner accountable to the community.

The Oversight and Advisory Committee shall consist of eleven (11) members, as follows:

Appointed by the Mayor (effective 30 days after transmittal of the "Notice of Appointment" to the Board of Supervisors, who may hold a public hearing but cannot reject the appointment)

> Seat 1: A youth 19 years old or younger at the time of appointment for the term, recommended to the Mayor by the Youth Commission (this member is not subject to the elector requirement since they may be younger than 18 years old).

> Seat 2: A youth 19 years old or younger at the time of appointment for the term, recommended to the Mayor by the Youth Commission (this member is not subject to the elector requirement since they may be younger than 18 years old).

> Seat 3: A parent or guardian of a youth, which youth, at the time of the member's appointment for the term, is under the age of 18 years and enrolled in the San Francisco Unified

School District. This member shall have demonstrated commitment to improving access to the quality of services for children, youth and families.

- > Seat 4: A person with expertise or substantial experience working in services and programs for children ages 5 and younger.
- > Seat 5: A person with expertise or substantial experience working in the field of children and youth services in communities that are low-income or underserved.
- > Seat 6: A person who has demonstrated commitment to improving access and quality of services for children, youth and families in communities that are low-income or underserved.

Appointed by the Board of Supervisors

- > Seat 7: A person who is a disconnected transitional-aged youth, as that term is used in Charter, Section 16.108, 18 through 24 years of age at the time of appointment, and who is familiar with the issues and challenges faced by disconnected transitional-aged youth and with services, programs, and systems for them.
- > Seat 8: A parent or guardian of a child, which child is enrolled in kindergarten through 8th grade at the time of the member's appointment for the term. This member shall be from a low-income community or have expertise or substantial experience working to promote the interests of communities of color and shall have demonstrated a commitment to improving access and quality of services for children, youth and families.
- > Seat 9: A parent or guardian of a child, which child, at the time of the member's appointment for the term, is under the age of 5 years and enrolled in a publicly-subsidized or City-funded program. This member shall have demonstrated a commitment to improving access and quality of services for children, youth and families.
- > Seat 10: A person with expertise or substantial experience working in the field of children and youth services in communities that are low-income or underserved.
- > Seat 11: A person who has demonstrated commitment to improving access to and quality of services for children, youth and families.

Exclusions: Current City employees who are at the department head or deputy department head level of authority, San Francisco Unified School District (SFUSD) employees who are at the Director or Assistant Superintendent level of authority or higher, and current employees or members of the board of directors for organizations where DCYF is the decision-maker for funding may not serve as members of the Oversight and Advisory Committee. A part-time intern with a DCYF-funded organization who is 24 years old or younger shall not be considered an employee of that organization.

The Mayor and Board of Supervisors shall appoint the initial members by July 1, 2015. The terms of the initial appointees shall commence on the first date of the meeting and no later than July 1, 2015. Members may not serve more than two consecutive two-year terms, except that the members initially appointed to seats 1, 3, 5, 7, 9, and 11 shall serve for a first term of three
