IV. Purpose of grant (i.e., succinctly what are you trying to accomplish)

Consultants Barbara Bloom, PhD and Barbara Owen, PhD will develop a Blueprint for Women's Services in San Francisco in partnership with the Gender Responsive/Women's Services Working Group, under the direction of Chief Adult Probation Officer Wendy Still and in collaboration with the San Francisco Sheriff's Department and other partners. The consultants will provide expertise to the Working Group and develop a set of departmental policy recommendations based on gender-responsive practice for women under traditional probation supervision, those to be released from the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) for post-release supervision and those who will be sentenced directly to San Francisco community supervision and jail. With an emphasis on appropriate alternatives to incarceration and on gender-responsive case management strategies for women (including transgender women and transgender people in general), this Plan will outline recommendations for a continuum of care for criminal justice-involved women that will intervene in women's pathways to offending. This continuum—delivered through case management services provided by the Probation Department—will address the common pathways to offending, e.g., substance abuse, trauma treatment, domestic violence, parental reunification, education and vocational training and other material supports (including housing, transportation and other identified needs) through women-centered case management. The Plan will suggest how outcome and other tracking measures can be collected as part of documenting the process and measuring success. Additionally, the plan and other knowledge developed through this project will be shared with the Reentry Council of San Francisco (<http://sfreentry.com>) and the Community Corrections Partnership (<http://www.sfgov3.org/index.aspx?page=2912>), which will allow for even broader dissemination and adoption.

V. Activities (i.e., what are you going to do to accomplish your goal(s))

This work will use a collaborative system planning process as developed by the National Institute of Corrections (NIC). This process has eight steps:

focused settings face fewer obstacles to visitation and maintaining family connections. Community-based settings can emphasize treatment, service provision, and community reentry. Addressing the risk and needs of the female offender requires an appropriate assessment. There are multiple instruments that provide assessments, but San Francisco should consider using gender-responsive risk and needs assessment instruments that incorporate women's pathways and recommend gender-appropriate case management, placements, treatment and supervision. In addition, several research studies have found that gender-responsive approaches are more effective in reducing recidivism and improving outcomes for female offenders when implemented according to these principles.

Therefore, to make a significant impact on San Francisco's female offenders, the Adult Probation Department must develop innovative and focused interventions that address these differences and target the specific risks and needs of criminal justice-involved women.
