Fundamental Principles of Evidence-Based Correctional Practice

The primary objective of the Second Chance Act is to reduce recidivism. Based upon reliable research findings, there are six fundamental principles of evidence-based correctional practice that are widely accepted as strategies to reduce future criminal behavior.

- 1) Objectively Assess Criminogenic Risks and Needs: Maintain a comprehensive system to establish risk screening and needs assessment. The actuarial assessment of offenders—in a reliable and valid manner—is essential for the effective supervision and treatment of people returning from prisons, jails, and juvenile facilities (Andrews and Bonta, 1998). The levels of supervision and services for individual offenders must be matched to individual risk and need.
- 2) Enhance Intrinsic Motivation: Staff must be able to relate to offenders in interpersonally sensitive and constructive ways in order to enhance intrinsic motivation in offenders. Research findings suggest that motivational interviewing or other cognitive-behavioral communication techniques can effectively enhance the offender's desire to initiate and maintain behavior changes (Miller and Rollnick, 2002; Miller and Mount, 2001).
- 3) Target Higher-Risk Offenders: Prioritize primary supervision and treatment resources for offenders who are at higher risk to re-offend. Consistent findings from a wide variety of recidivism studies show that supervision and treatment resources focused on lower-risk offenders produce little if any positive effect on the rates of subsequent criminal behavior (McGuire, 2001, 2002) and can at times increase the risk level of low-risk offenders. Maximum benefit is gained only when intervention resources are directed to moderate- and high-risk offenders.
- 4) Address Offenders' Greatest Criminogenic Needs. The greatest emphasis must be placed on addressing those needs which are most closely associated with criminal behavior. When the factors that lead the offender to commit crimes are effectively addressed, that person is less likely to commit crime (Elliot, 2001).
- 5) Use Cognitive-Behavioral Interventions: These strategies are focused on changing the offender's thinking patterns in order to change future behavior. The most effective interventions provide opportunities for participants to practice new behavior patterns and skills with feedback from program staff.
- 6) Determine Dosage and Intensity of Services: Higher-risk offenders require significantly more structure and services than lower-risk offenders. High-risk offenders should receive a minimum of 300 hours of cognitive-based interventions, moderate-risk offenders should receive a minimum of 200 hours, and low-risk offenders should receive a minimum of 100 hours of cognitive-based interventions. Additionally, during the initial 3–9 months post-release, 40–70 percent of high-risk offenders' free time needs to be occupied with delineated routine and appropriate services (Bourgon and Armstrong, 2006; Latessa, 2004; Gendreau and Goggin, 1995).

Important Things to Understand From the Research:

- Correctional staff needs to work with offenders to ensure they have the tools needed for success in the community.
- Correctional and community staff must understand the importance of working with moderate- and high-risk offenders rather than low-risk offenders in order to demonstrate that their program can decrease recidivism.
- The most effective organizational-change strategies involve supervision and coaching of staff to reinforce the expected way of doing business—training alone is not sufficient.

Questions to Ask As You Launch Your Program:

- Who are you targeting for your program?
- Do the risk and needs of your target population match the services and supports you've funded through your Second Chance grant?
- When and how are the risks and needs of your target population assessed?
- Following the risk/need assessment, are the services, supervision, and interventions recommendations developed with the offender?
- Are these interventions based upon a systematic assessment of individual levels of risk and criminogenic needs?
- How are services coordinated for your target population as they move from the institutional phase, to the reentry phase, to the community phase?
- How is programming that is begun in prison linked to the programming that the offender receives in the community?
- How are supervision and treatment resources prioritized for moderate and high risk offenders?
- Are your interventions cognitive-behavioral based?
- What data is collected on individuals?
- Do you collect case-level data on which of your program participants have (1) housing, (2) employment, (3) substance abuse treatment (if necessary), (4) mental health treatment (if necessary), and (5) social support?

Abstract

The San Francisco Sheriff's Department (SFSFSD) proposes to implement the Keys to Freedom (KtF) project, with a request for $599,894 to fund the project for the two-year grant term. SFSFSD has over 25 years of experience in developing and implementing successful education and treatment programs. These include nationally-recognized models such as the SISTER Program and Resolve to Stop the Violence Project (RSVP), a 2004 winner of the Innovations in American Government Award.

The jurisdiction to be served by this proposed program is City and County of San Francisco (SF). Programming will occur both in the community and in the SF County Jails and will serve adult women and adult male-to-female transgenders (TG). Incarcerated women and TG women have very high incidences of childhood and adult trauma and victimization. For many, the path to crime has involved running away from childhood abuse, the use of illegal drugs as a means of coping, and drug selling, prostitution, and other crimes as a way to survive on the streets. As adults, many have experienced intimate partner abuse, sexual assault, and the grief of losing custody of their children. Common mental health concerns will include post-traumatic stress disorder, depression, and anxiety. KtF will serve 145 participants over two years.

San Francisco County has an estimated population of 805,235 according to the 2010 U.S. Census. The Census does not record transgender people separately; 396,773 San Franciscans are female (49%). The population is approximately 48.5% white, 33% Asian, 6.6% "other," 6.1% African American, 0.5% American Indian/Alaskan Native, and 0.4% Native Hawaiian/Pacific Islander. Another 4.7% of the population is identified by two or more races. Among people of all races, 15% are Hispanic or Latino. People over the age of 18 make up 87% of the county's population.

KtF will target medium to high-risk women and transgender women incarcerated in San Francisco Jail. Both in-reach and community-based services will provide a range of services that address co-occurring disorders and reentry needs. Services planning (including reentry transition planning) will be based, in part, on the COMPAS, an objective assessment of criminogenic risks and needs. The program will utilize evidence-based cognitive-behavioral therapy approaches, including Seeking Safety and other skills based curricula, that address symptom management and criminal thinking. The community-based milieu provides the opportunity to offer more intensive services to higher risk offenders post-release, and Motivational Interviewing and contingency management strategies will encourage program participation and retention.

The project will utilize the Correctional Offender Management Profiling for Alternative Sanctions (COMPAS) tool, which is a research validated risk and needs assessment instrument implemented by the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation in 2007, and chosen by the San Francisco Adult Probation Department because it allows for the effective management of client needs from the pre-screening process through post-release. The COMPAS, designed by Northpointe Institute for Public Management, Inc., is a statistics-based assessment, designed to evaluate key areas of risks and needs in criminal justice populations, which can be used to determine which services and supports will best help an offender during community reentry.

SFSD will partner with Haight Ashbury Free Clinics – Walden House (HAFC-WH) to ensure coordinated reentry services. HAFC-WH is a recently merged non-profit 501(c)3 organization that combines the legacy of the nation's first free medical clinic (founded in San Francisco, 1967) and the expertise of a leading behavioral health organization, Walden House (founded in San Francisco, 1969). HAFC-WH has over two decades of contractor experience for a long list of criminal justice agencies, including: numerous contracts with the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) and its Office of Offender Services (OS) since 1995; Jail Psychiatric Services in San Francisco County Jails since 1973; residential and outpatient contracts with the Federal Probation Court of Northern California and the Federal Bureau of Prisons; and extensive experience working with Parole Agencies throughout the state. The agency is a long-time partner of SFSD, having provided services to detainees within the San Francisco jail system since 1993, when SFSD and Walden House partnered to implement a jail-based substance abuse treatment demonstration program for women, funded by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration. Additionally, HAFC-WH has offered specialized TG treatment programming since 2001, featuring the integration of substance abuse treatment, mental health services, close linkage to medical and legal services, and staff teams that include TG individuals and clinicians with population-specific training and experience.

HAFC-WH was selected as the service-delivery subcontractor for this project because of its extensive experience providing evidence-based services to female offenders both in custody and during re-entry, and because of its expertise and capacity to implement and administer sizable service contracts with sophisticated data collection and reporting requirements. HAFC-WH is also a prominent service provider funded by the San Francisco Department of Public Health, and maintains a rich array of mutual referral partnerships with other licensed and certified organizations in good standing within the SF public health system, which Keys to Freedom participants will be eligible to access upon referral by their case managers.

This application addresses three of the stated Priority Considerations: it targets medium-to high-risk offenders, as identified through use of a validated risk and needs assessment instrument, who have been dually diagnosed with serious mental health disorders and drug dependence; it targets female offenders; and it provides a baseline recidivism rate for the proposed target population including documentation to support the development of the rate.

The San Francisco Sheriff's Department hereby grants permission to the Bureau of Justice Assistance to share this abstract, as well as the contact information for this application's Authorized Representative and Point of Contact, with potentially interested private foundations that may wish to contact SFSD about private funding for this project.

In October 2011, California's Public Safety Realignment Act, also known as AB 109, took effect and shifted the responsibility of non-serious, non-violent, non-sexual offenders from the state to the counties. These offenders are released to community supervision (probation rather than parole), and newly convicted offenders now serve sentences in county jails instead of state prisons. Many of them offenders have convictions for drug-related crimes (eg., possession, sales), or for other crimes such as burglary, theft or prostitution, which are often committed to support their chemical dependence. The rate of co-occurring substance abuse and mental health disorders (COD) among the AB 109 population has not yet been measured, but is expected to be significant, as prevalence of COD within jail populations is known to be substantially higher than among the population at large (National GAINS Center 2001). The implementation of AB 109 means greater strain on already over-burdened county resources. It also increases the demand for specialized reentry services for adults with co-occurring disorders, both while in custody and upon release, in order for the criminal justice and social services communities to support successful reentry for this influx of offenders with behavioral health needs.

To address these emerging needs, the San Francisco Sheriff's Department (SFSD) now proposes the Keys to Freedom program (KtF). The jurisdiction to be served, is San Francisco (SF) City and County. Programming will occur both in the community and in the SF County Jail's downtown facilities, where adult women and transgender (TG) individuals are housed. TG inmates are housed separately, for their safety. Most women are housed in either general population (up to 88 women), the SISTER program (up to 56 women), or the Keys to Change program (up to 56 women). Those with the most severe and persistent mental health needs are referred to Jail Psychiatric Services, Behavioral Health Court, and/or the Sheltered Psychiatric Living Unit where they gain skills to prepare them for community life.

While SFSD offers some programming for women and transgenders with less acute mental health needs, they are insufficient for the vast numbers with COD. KtF will serve: male-to-female transgenders: women in the SISTER program (substance abuse treatment) or the Keys to Change Program (an educational program); and women who are housed in Administrative Segregation, a group which experiences high levels of behavioral ⁴⁸dysregulation and have limited access to programmatic services in the jail. KtF will serve 145 participants over two years.

KtF staff will identify women and TG women who have COD who have not been selected for existing mental health services. This group is traditionally under-served because their charges have made their substance abuse visible, but their mental health disorders have remained undiagnosed; and/or their symptoms and level of behavioral problems have not been classified as presenting an imminent, high risk; and/or their substance abuse, mental health problems, and trauma histories have not at all been identified at the time of incarceration.

Currently, inmates are screened at the time of booking. Anyone without a high school diploma is referred to Keys to Change, where they can focus on their education. Women with substance abuse histories may request or be referred to SISTSER. People who won't or can't participate in programs are assigned to general population housing.

Women and TG women in incarcerated settings have very high incidences of Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) related to childhood and adult traumatic experiences and victimization. For many, the path to crime has involved running away from childhood abuse, the use of illegal drugs as a means of coping, and drug selling, prostitution, and other crimes as a way to survive on the streets. As adults, many have experienced domestic violence, intimate partner abuse, sexual assault, and the grief of losing custody of their children. The incidence of physical and sexual abuse among incarcerated women has been reported to be 47% in some studies (Modley, 2010) and are likely to be even higher—up to 83% in a 2010 study conducted among incarcerated women in Illinois (Reichert, 2010).

Sexual and physical abuse is also very common among transgender women. Many who travel to San Francisco to find acceptance and a sense of community develop addictions and enter the commercial sex trade. A 1998 study on prostitution, violence against women, and PTSD surveyed 130 sex workers (12% of the sample were transgender women). Of the 130 participants, 57% reported being sexually assaulted as children. As adults, 82% of the sample reported enduring physical assault, 83% had been threatened with a weapon, and 68% had been raped. Sixty-eight percent met the DSM III-R criteria for PTSD (Gehring & Knudson, 1998).

San Francisco has one of the highest recidivism rates in the state—approximately 78.3 percent of parolees go back to prison within three years of release—according to a report¹ by the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (this is the baseline recidivism rate that will be utilized for project data collection and analysis in the proposed project).

Program Design and Implementation

Keys to Freedom (KtF) is designed to reduce recidivism and increase public safety through the provision of effective jail and community-based services to women and transgender women (priority consideration #2) with co-occurring disorders incarcerated in the San Francisco Jail. The project will utilize the Correctional Offender Management Profiling for Alternative Sanctions (COMPAS) tool, which is a research validated risk and needs assessment instrument (priority consideration #1) implemented by the California Department of Corrections in 2007, and chosen by the San Francisco Adult Probation Department because it allows for the effective management of client needs from the pre-screening process through post-release.

Program design has been influenced by the Keystone Program, a current project funded by the 2011 Second Chance Act Reentry Demonstration Program: Targeting Offenders with Co-Occurring Substance Abuse and Mental Health Disorders, conducted with the same community partner (HAFC-WH, see Section 3) that is proposed for the KtF. KtF will seek to replicate the successes achieved in providing strengths-based case management services to inmates with co-occurring disorders and will seek to improve post-release participant retention by including contingency management strategies in the new program design.

Keys to Freedom services will be gender-responsive and trauma-informed in order to meet the needs of women and transgender women. Staff will be selected for their experience in working with female offenders and will receive additional training in gender specific approaches and Motivational Interviewing. A safe environment will be maintained in the jail and in the community. The program will address trauma issues and provide participants with an environment that fosters healthy relationships and honors the importance of connection to others.

Services will include screening, assessment, co-occurring treatment, case management, and reentry support provided to address criminogenic risk factors (anti-social attitudes; anti-social associates; anti-social behavior; anti-social personality patterns; family/home problems; school/work problems; lack of pro-social leisure activities; and substance abuse) and the specific pathways that lead women and transgender women into crime and the criminal justice system.

KtF will target medium to high-risk women and transgender women incarcerated in San Francisco Jail. Both in-reach and post-release services will address co-occurring disorders and reentry needs. Services planning will be based, in part, on the COMPAS, an objective assessment of criminogenic risks and needs. The program will utilize evidence-based CBT approaches including Seeking Safety and other skills based curriculum that addresses symptom management and criminal thinking. The community-based milieu is ideal for intensive services to higher risk offenders and for Motivational Interviewing. Contingency management strategies will encourage program participation and retention.

Identifying Eligible Participants - Keys to Freedom staff will conduct voluntary initial screenings among the women and transgender women in the county jail. Screenings will be scheduled in a way that considers date of incarceration, anticipated release date, and case disposition information. Jail and community program staff may also refer inmates for priority screening. The screenings will ideally be conducted 60 - 90 days prior to anticipated release and will employ the use of three brief, validated instruments: The Simple Screening instrument for Substance Abuse (SSI-SA); the Mental Health Screening Form-III (MHSF-III); and the PTSD Checklist (PCL). These screenings will identify specific inmates within the target locations and programs who may have significant and unaddressed co-occurring disorders (including PTSD).

A positive screen on any of these instruments will prompt further assessment with the SF MRD 89, a 2-page mental health/substance abuse assessment that yields a five-axis DSM-IV diagnosis. This assessment will be performed by KtF staff who are mental health professionals registered or licensed with the California Board of Behavioral Sciences. Appropriate referrals will be made to Jail Psychiatric Services when symptoms warrant an initial medication evaluation. Information gleaned from the screenings and assessments, along with COMPAS information on criminogenic risk, will help identify those inmates who have significant co-occurring disorders and are at high risk for recidivism. Additionally, the screenings and assessments results will inform the development of a three-phase treatment plan (Jail-based treatment, Transition Plan, Community-based reentry services).

Jail-Based Services - Given the high incidence, among the target population, of PTSD related symptoms of hyper-arousal, re-experiencing traumatic events, and avoidance of things and situations that bring up painful memories, the KtF program will provide the Seeking Safety curriculum to participants. The curriculum is an evidence-based, cognitive-behavioral intervention for treating substance abuse and PTSD; it helps individuals to anticipate triggers and develop coping strategies to manage traumatic reactions. Seeking Safety outcomes include a decrease in substance use and trauma symptoms, improvements in social adjustment, problem solving, depression, suicidal thoughts, general psychiatric symptoms, and quality of life (Najavits, L.M., 2009).

Dual Diagnosis support groups will also be offered. These sessions will employ cognitive-behavioral therapy (CBT) based, recovery oriented interventions that support an understanding of how substance abuse and mental health symptoms interact with each other; employ mindfulness and acceptance strategies to manage symptoms and cravings; and use Motivational Interviewing to help support adherence to medications and other wellness practices.

Inmates who participate in assessments and group interventions while still incarcerated will earn contingency management points that will be converted to non-cash incentives once they successfully transition to community-based services. The efficacy of prize-based contingency management strategies to increase program retention and encourage the obtainment of treatment goals has been well demonstrated with various populations including those with co-occurring disorders (Weinstock, J. et.al, 2007; Petry N. et al, 2000; Petry N. & Bohn, M., 2003). These incentives will be capped at $200 per participant and will be funded, in part, by in-kind donations procured by HAFC-WH.

Transition Planning - Once a participant's release date is within 30 days, a transition plan will be created that includes initial goals and interventions that will help her meet the demands of a successful reentry into the community. The plan will be informed by the COMPAS and immediate case management needs such as housing, establishing or reestablishing benefits and entitlements, meeting initial survival needs; obtaining identification; arranging for transportation to the community based Keys to Freedom program site, obtaining pro-social support, and transitioning to community-based resources for primary medical care and co-occurring treatment needs including medication support. Appropriate releases of information will be secured to ensure ongoing communication and case collaboration between the program, the courts, and the Adult Probation Department. This communication will include sharing information about drug testing performed by community supervision partners.

Post-Release Services - Community-based services for KtF will be located at the HAFC-WH facility at 1735 Mission Street in San Francisco and will maintain weekday hours from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. The program will be co-located with the HAFC-WH Bridges project, a state-funded case management program for mentally ill parolees. As was the case for the Keystone demonstration project, the two programs will maintain separate staffing patterns and caseloads, but will share a management structure and day treatment environment made up of CBT-based classes and peer support groups. Program participants will have access to services at the HAFC-WH Day Reporting Center, including Five Keys Charter School high school classes, and at SFSD's Women's Resource Center where community-based partners offer a menu of support services. These include: nutrition and related education (provided by NextCourse), trauma counseling (provided by the SAGE Project and creative arts (provided by Community Works).

Once released, participants will take part in creating a strengths-based case management plan that prioritizes the services and skills needed to refrain from using substances, manage mental health symptoms, change patterns of criminal thinking and behavior, build a pro-social support network, and economically sustain themselves. A strengths-based model of case management focuses on strengths rather than pathology or deficits; emphasizes the importance of the relationship between the client and case manager; selects services and interventions that are determined by client need and preferences; addresses motivation; and maintains hope that an individual's past does not need to define their future (Prendergast, M. et. al., 2011).

Case management and co-occurring treatment intervention will focus on the characteristics that are most strongly linked to criminal behavior in women: economic marginalization; trauma; victimization and abuse; mental health; dysfunctional intimate relationships; self-efficacy; and parental stress. Both sworn and civilian staff assigned to the program will have access to specialized trainings to increase their effectiveness in working with the targeted population.

Post-release services will take place for a period of six months and will focus on key linkages to primary medical care and medication services, mental health services, substance abuse treatment, and permanent housing. Transgender participants will be linked to a network of specialized services in the San Francisco community designed to meet their needs. The Keys to Freedom environment will provide advanced Seeking Safety groups for those participants who were first exposed to the model while incarcerated. Women's groups and a transgender support group will be scheduled, and participants can take part in gender specific CBT-based classes that address criminal thinking and behaviors. In addition to those services that will be available on-site, case managers will link participants to needed services in the San Francisco system of care.

In addition to case management and CBT groups, the post-release treatment environment will also provide a structured and safe place where participants can have two meals a day, take part in socialization activities and recreational events, and obtain recovery support. Once the participant makes a successful connection to community-based services, she will be able to redeem the contingency management points she accrued while in-custody for non-cash incentives, and will continue to be rewarded for program participation and the verified achievement of treatment goals (such as improving parenting skills, making and keeping primary care and psychiatric appointments, participating in 12-step groups and engaging in further educational/vocational opportunities).

Service delivery accountability will be established through scheduled, internal audits of the HAFC-WH Electronic Health Record system (Welligent), and through monitoring performed every month by the HAFC-WH Standards Committee, Mental Health Managers meeting, and the Program Utilization meeting. The Program Director and Clinical Director will further monitor the quality of jail and community-based services, and will submit quarterly reports to the SFSD.

The San Francisco Sheriff's Department (SFSD) is the lead agency for the Keys to Freedom project. SFSD is a public agency whose mission is to be a successful part of the civil and criminal law enforcement efforts of the State of California and the City and County of San Francisco. SFSD fulfills this mission by working to reduce recidivism and promote public safety. SFSD has over 25 years of experience in developing and implementing successful education and treatment programs. These include nationally-recognized models such as the SISTER Program and Resolve to Stop the Violence Project (RSVP), a 2004 winner of the Innovations in American Government Award.

The grant coordinator is Lieutenant John Ramirez, who joined SFSD in 1998 and worked with the Community Programs Division for three years, supervising reentry services funded under two Second Chance grants. Lt. Ramirez will oversee the performance of HAFC-WH, the subcontracted behavioral health treatment agency selected to deliver the project's clinical services, including jail in-reach services, transition planning, and community based case management. KtF will receive support from a part-time SFSD Analyst and in-kind support from both deputized and civilian staff. HAFC-WH will employ one Project Director, one Clinical Director, two Master's-level clinicians in the role of Case Manager III, and one Case Manager I. Position descriptions, and resumes for all key personnel are included as attachments.

SFSD has a long history of successfully designing and managing grant-funded programs from the U.S. Department of Justice (including two 2010 Second Chance Act Grants), the U.S. Department of Education and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. SFSD and its partners have also received significant funding for both in-custody and out-of-custody programs from private foundations such as the Open Society Institute, The Richard and Rhoda Goldman Fund and the Zellerbach Family Fund, to name a few.

For over 30 years, SFSD has been recognized as a leader in programs for incarcerated and recently released adults and has received numerous awards for its work. Interim Sheriff Vicki Hennessy provides general leadership and SFSD administrative, finance, program and sworn staff. SFSD's infrastructure will provide key support for the project. The Department will provide classrooms, office space, meeting rooms, training facilities, building management, maintenance, security and innumerable resources for the project. SFSD has extensive experience planning, implementing and evaluating programs for special populations.

SFSD and its partner organization, HAFC-WH, have the demonstrated capacity and capability to implement Keys to Freedom effectively because the partnership is currently delivering similarly structured reentry services under an ongoing Second Chance Act Demonstration Program called Keystone. Because that program is in place, the partnership has already developed the procedures and systems needed to ensure effective service delivery and information gathering/analysis, and to meet accountability and reporting requirements of the grant. Following award of a grant for the proposed Keys to Freedom program, those procedures and systems would be easily adapted to the requirements of the new contract.

HAFC-WH is a recently merged non-profit 501(c)3 organization that combines the legacy of the nation's first free medical clinic (founded in San Francisco, 1967) and the expertise of a leading behavioral health organization, Walden House (founded in San Francisco, 1969) into a comprehensive, integrated Federally Qualified Health Center (FQHC) poised at the leading edge of healthcare reform and human services. In San Francisco, the agency provides full-spectrum behavioral health and primary medical care to low-income, homeless, and/or criminal justice involved adults. HAFC-WH has over two decades of contractor experience for a long list of criminal justice agencies, including: numerous contracts with the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) and its Office of Offender Services (OS) since 1995; Jail Psychiatric Services in San Francisco County Jails since 1973; residential and outpatient contracts with the Federal Probation Court of Northern California and the Federal Bureau of Prisons; and extensive experience working with Parole Agencies throughout the state.

HAFC-WH maintains good standing with all applicable licensing and certifying authorities for delivery of behavioral health treatment services (see Attachment). The agency is a long-time partner of SFSD, having provided services to detainees within the San Francisco jail system since 1993, when SFSD and Walden House partnered to implement a jail-based substance abuse treatment demonstration program for women, funded by the U.S. Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA).

HAFC-WH's experience serving female offenders includes operating numerous prison-based substance abuse treatment programs since 1995; two Female Offender Treatment & Employment Programs (residential programs for state parolees) starting in 1999 and 2000; gender responsive, trauma-informed programs in incarcerated and community settings; and a FY 2009 Second Chance Act program, with the SF Department of Public Health, providing in-reach and re-entry case management for female state prisoners who parole to San Francisco. HAFC-WH has offered specialized TG treatment programming since 2001, featuring the integration of substance abuse treatment, mental health services, close linkage to medical and legal services, and staff teams that include TG individuals and clinicians with population-specific training and experience.

HAFC-WH was selected as the service-delivery subcontractor for this project because of its extensive experience providing evidence-based services to female offenders both in custody and during re-entry, and because of its expertise and capacity to implement and administer sizable service contracts with sophisticated data collection and reporting requirements. Currently, HAFC-WH employs more than 430 people throughout California and has an operating budget of over $62 million. HAFC-WH is also a prominent service provider funded by the San Francisco Department of Public Health's Community Behavioral Health Services division.

Key HAFC-WH staff identified to implement the Keystone project are Larry Nelson and Rachelle (Shelley) Roberts, MFTi. Mr. Nelson has worked at HAFC-WH for over thirty years, and in program management since 1989; he joined the Keystone program as Program Director in 2012. Ms. Roberts has worked in reentry services for COD offenders since 2007, and as a therapist since 2009; she joined the Keystone program as Clinical Manager in 2011.

Both SFSD and HAFC-WH maintain a rich array of mutual referral partnerships with other local organizations serving the targeted populations, which Keys to Freedom participants will be eligible to access upon referral by their case managers. This referral network includes agencies that provide: residential and outpatient substance abuse treatment; mental health treatment; medication management; HIV/AIDS services; housing placement and advocacy; employment placement; domestic violence and anger management classes; disability services; primary and dental health services; and recovery supportive services. SFSD is confident that HAFC-WH is an excellent service provider to fulfill the design, implementation, and goals of this program.

The City and County of San Francisco is a current recipient of funds for Second Chance Act grants, with several scheduled to end at the close of FY 11-12. In the event that any grant is extended, or that the jurisdiction is awarded new BJA funding, the Keys to Freedom program would ensure that appropriate cross-referral and coordination procedures are established, to maximize the effectiveness of treatment and reentry service provision for offenders.

Formal Outcome, Evaluation, and Measurement, and Plan for Collecting the Data

Client-level performance and outcome data collection and reporting will result from interagency collaboration and coordination. Due to the level of interagency cooperation and information sharing, all Keys to Freedom participants will be asked at enrollment to sign a release of information, to ensure compliance with state and federal confidentiality regulations, including CFR 42 Part 2 and HIPAA.

Data regarding participants' new convictions, sentencing, and recidivism will be collected by SFSD personnel, who will run quarterly checks of participant names (active and past participants) through the California Law Enforcement Telecommunications System (CLETS).

SFSD staff will access the participant's Criminal Investigation and Identification (CI&I) record, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) national databank. This will give SFSD staff state and national arrests and convictions dates that occur outside of the City and County of San Francisco. They will also run the names for local warrants. This will produce information about current outstanding cases that may have not been resolved. SFSD staff already performs these kinds of searches daily. They have existing resources and the capacity to perform this data collection, reporting function and analysis.

All other client-level performance and outcome data will be collected by HAFC-WH staff. HAFC-WH has implemented an Electronic Medical Records system, Welligent, that captures client-level demographic, clinical progress, and service delivery/utilization data. This system makes real-time tracking of program operations and performance easy and accurate. The HAFC-WH IT infrastructure has proven reliability for managing and reporting information for up to 13,000 annual participants in over 20 treatment and case management programs funded by agencies at the local, state, and federal levels. Participant data are collected using a variety of forms and tools, and are entered into Welligent and into the agency's proprietary tracking system (a client server application, which utilizes a Visual FoxPro front-end, and pulls data from a Microsoft SQL server database) which can produce standard and customized reports in response to data queries. Data collected by HAFC-WH each quarter will be reported to SFSD to be included in the overall project's quarterly and cumulative data to OJP.

The proposed Keys to Freedom partnership, as a current Second Chance Act Demonstration Project grantee, is already experienced and successful in collecting and reporting data using the BJA Performance Management Tool. The systems and practices currently in place will be evaluated and, if necessary, revised, during the Keys to Freedom program implementation, to ensure that those procedures remain effective for the purposes of data collection and reporting.

Performance of the project will be monitored and evaluated on an ongoing basis through quarterly stakeholder meetings. In these meetings, representatives of SFSD, HAFC-WH, Adult Parole, and invited community-based providers serving Keys to Freedom participants through referral, will gather to review outcome and data reports, to evaluate program performance against key deliverables, to troubleshoot challenges, and to adjust program policies or procedures in response to emerging trends in performance and outcome data. Regular face-to-face stakeholder meetings facilitate smooth communication and collaboration, and ensure that the program's implementation is continually responsive to trends or outcomes identified by data collection.

Stakeholder support and service coordination will be defined as the extent to which the project's stakeholders (SFSD, HAFC-WH, participants, and other community based providers) work together to ensure that the project succeeds. Measurements will include the amount and frequency of stakeholders' participation in quarterly stakeholder meetings, the ratio of participant referrals to successful linkages, and the number of linkages made for each service type.

Demonstrated success, including program outcomes, stakeholder support, service coordination, and decreased burden on other San Francisco departments, can be leveraged to win support from the community and from local departments. SFSD has a history of sustaining successful grant-funded programs through any combination of the following mechanisms: 1) during the life of the project HAFC-WH and SFSD staff will work on ongoing fundraising; 2) SFSD can choose to absorb the costs of services into the Department's annual operating budget; and, 3) SFSD can appeal to the Board of Supervisors to sustain the project through the General Fund of the City and County.

Sheriff Vicki Hennessy
San Francisco Sheriff's Department
City Hall Room 456
1 Carlton B. Goodlett Place
San Francisco, CA 94102

Dear Sheriff Hennessy:

Congratulations on your recent award. In establishing financial assistance programs, Congress linked the receipt of Federal funding to compliance with Federal civil rights laws. The Office for Civil Rights (OCR), Office of Justice Programs (OJP), U.S. Department of Justice is responsible for ensuring that recipients of financial aid from OJP, its component offices and bureaus, the Office on Violence Against Women (OVW), and the Office of Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) comply with applicable Federal civil rights statutes and regulations. We at OCR are available to help you and your organization meet the civil rights requirements that come with Justice Department funding.

Ensuring Access to Federally Assisted Programs

As you know, Federal laws prohibit recipients of financial assistance from discriminating on the basis of race, color, national origin, religion, sex, or disability in funded programs or activities, not only in respect to employment practices but also in the delivery of services or benefits. Federal law also prohibits funded programs or activities from discriminating on the basis of age in the delivery of services or benefits.

Providing Services to Limited English Proficiency (LEP) Individuals

In accordance with Department of Justice Guidance pertaining to Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. § 2000d, recipients of Federal financial assistance must take reasonable steps to provide meaningful access to their programs and activities for persons with limited English proficiency (LEP). For more information on the civil rights responsibilities that recipients have in providing language services to LEP individuals, please see the website at <http://www.lep.gov>.

Ensuring Equal Treatment for Faith-Based Organizations

The Department of Justice has published a regulation specifically pertaining to the funding of faith-based organizations. In general, the regulation, Participation in Justice Department Programs by Religious Organizations; Providing for Equal Treatment of all Justice Department Program Participants, and known as the Equal Treatment Regulation 28 C.F.R. part 38, requires State Administering Agencies to treat these organizations the same as any other applicant or recipient. The regulation prohibits State Administering Agencies from making award or grant administration decisions on the basis of an organization's religious character or affiliation, religious name, or the religious composition of its board of directors.

The regulation also prohibits faith-based organizations from using financial assistance from the Department of Justice to fund inherently religious activities. While faith-based organizations can engage in non-funded inherently religious activities, they must be held separately from the Department of Justice funded program, and customers or beneficiaries cannot be compelled to participate in them. The Equal Treatment Regulation also makes clear that organizations participating in programs funded by the Department of Justice are not permitted to discriminate in the provision of services on the basis of a beneficiary's religion. For more information on the regulation, please see OCR's website at <http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/ocr/etfbo.htm>.

State Administering Agencies and faith-based organizations should also note that the Safe Streets Act, as amended; the Victims of Crime Act, as amended; and the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act, as amended, contain prohibitions against discrimination on the basis of religion in employment. Despite these nondiscrimination provisions, the Justice Department has concluded that the Religious Freedom Restoration Act (RFRA) is reasonably construed, on a case-by-case basis, to require that its funding agencies permit faith-based organizations applying for funding under the applicable program statutes both to receive DOJ funds and to continue considering religion when hiring staff, even if the statute that authorizes the funding program generally forbids considering of religion in employment decisions by grantees.

Questions about the regulation or the application of RFRA to the statutes that prohibit discrimination in employment may be directed to this Office.

Enforcing Civil Rights Laws

All recipients of Federal financial assistance, regardless of the particular funding source, the amount of the grant award, or the number of employees in the workforce, are subject to the prohibitions against unlawful discrimination. Accordingly, OCR investigates recipients that are the subject of discrimination complaints from both individuals and groups. In addition, based on regulatory criteria, OCR selects a number of recipients each year for compliance reviews, audits that require recipients to submit data showing that they are providing services equitably to all segments of their service population and that their employment practices meet equal employment opportunity standards.

Complying with the Safe Streets Act or Program Requirements

In addition to these general prohibitions, an organization which is a recipient of financial assistance subject to the nondiscrimination provisions of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act (Safe Streets Act) of 1968, 42 U.S.C. § 3789d(c), or other Federal grant program requirements, must meet two additional requirements: (1) complying with Federal regulations pertaining to the development of an Equal Employment Opportunity Plan (EEO), 28 C.F.R. § 42.301-308, and (2) submitting to OCR Findings of Discrimination (see 28 C.F.R. §§ 42.205(5) or 31.202(5)).

1) Meeting the EEO Requirement

In accordance with Federal regulations, Assurance No. 6 in the Standard Assurances, COPS Assurance No. 8.B, or certain Federal grant program requirements, your organization must comply with the following EEO reporting requirements:

If your organization has received an award for $500,000 or more and has 50 or more employees (counting both full- and part-time employees but excluding political appointees), then it has to prepare an EEO and submit it to OCR for review within 60 days from the date of this letter. For assistance in developing an EEO, please consult OCR's website at <http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/ocr/eop.htm>. You may also request technical assistance from an EEO specialist at OCR by dialing (202) 616-3208.

If your organization received an award between $25,000 and $500,000 and has 50 or more employees, your organization still has to prepare an EEO, but it does not have to submit the EEO to OCR for review. Instead, your organization has to maintain the EEO on file and make it available for review on request. In addition, your organization has to complete Section B of the Certification Form and return it to OCR. The Certification Form can be found at <http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/ocr/eop.htm>.

If your organization received an award for less than $25,000; or if your organization has less than 50 employees, regardless of the amount of the award; or if your organization is a medical institution, educational institution, nonprofit organization or Indian tribe, then your organization is exempt from the EEO requirement. However, your organization must complete Section A of the Certification Form and return it to OCR. The Certification Form can be found at <http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/ocr/eop.htm>.

2) Submitting Findings of Discrimination

In the event a Federal or State court or Federal or State administrative agency makes an adverse finding of discrimination against your organization after a due process hearing, on the ground of race, color, religion, national origin, or sex, your organization must submit a copy of the finding to OCR for review.

Ensuring the Compliance of Subrecipients

If your organization makes subawards to other agencies, you are responsible for assuring that subrecipients also comply with all of the applicable Federal civil rights laws, including the requirements pertaining to developing and submitting an EEO, reporting Findings of Discrimination, and providing language services to LEP persons. State agencies that make subawards must have in place standard grant assurances and review procedures to demonstrate that they are effectively monitoring the civil rights compliance of subrecipients.

If we can assist you in any way in fulfilling your civil rights responsibilities as a recipient of Federal funding, please call OCR at (202) 307-0690 or visit our website at <http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/ocr/>.

The Second Chance Act of 2007 provides a comprehensive response to the increasing number of people who are released from prison and jail and returning to communities, including resources to address the myriad needs of these offenders to achieve a successful return to their communities. Section 201 of the Second Chance Act authorizes federal awards to states, units of local government, and Indian tribes to improve the provision of treatment to adult offenders in prisons and jails during the period of incarceration and through the completion of parole or other court supervision after release into the community.

The goal of Section 201 of the Second Chance Act is to provide support to eligible applicants for the development and implementation of comprehensive and collaborative strategies that address the challenges posed by reentry to increase public safety and reduce recidivism. The objectives of this program are to provide offenders with co-occurring substance abuse and mental health disorders with appropriate evidence-based services, including addressing individual criminogenic needs based on a reentry plan that relies on a risk and needs assessment that reflects the risk of recidivism for that offender.

The grantee will utilize FY 2012 Second Chance Act funds to implement the Keys to Freedom project that will target incarcerated medium- to high-risk women and transgender women by providing a range of services that address co-occurring disorders and reentry needs.

Sheriff Vicki Hennessy
San Francisco Sheriff's Department
City Hall Room 456
1 Carlton B. Goodlett Place
San Francisco, CA 94102

Dear Sheriff Hennessy:

Congratulations on your recent award. In establishing financial assistance programs, Congress linked the receipt of Federal funding to compliance with Federal civil rights laws. The Office for Civil Rights (OCR), Office of Justice Programs (OJP), U.S. Department of Justice is responsible for ensuring that recipients of financial aid from OJP, its component offices and bureaus, the Office on Violence Against Women (OVW), and the Office of Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) comply with applicable Federal civil rights statutes and regulations. We at OCR are available to help you and your organization meet the civil rights requirements that come with Justice Department funding.

Ensuring Access to Federally Assisted Programs

As you know, Federal laws prohibit recipients of financial assistance from discriminating on the basis of race, color, national origin, religion, sex, or disability in funded programs or activities, not only in respect to employment practices but also in the delivery of services or benefits. Federal law also prohibits funded programs or activities from discriminating on the basis of age in the delivery of services or benefits.

Providing Services to Limited English Proficiency (LEP) Individuals

In accordance with Department of Justice Guidance pertaining to Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. § 2000d, recipients of Federal financial assistance must take reasonable steps to provide meaningful access to their programs and activities for persons with limited English proficiency (LEP). For more information on the civil rights responsibilities that recipients have in providing language services to LEP individuals, please see the website at <http://www.lep.gov>.

Ensuring Equal Treatment for Faith-Based Organizations

The Department of Justice has published a regulation specifically pertaining to the funding of faith-based organizations. In general, the regulation, Participation in Justice Department Programs by Religious Organizations; Providing for Equal Treatment of all Justice Department Program Participants, and known as the Equal Treatment Regulation 28 C.F.R. part 38, requires State Administering Agencies to treat these organizations the same as any other applicant or recipient. The regulation prohibits State Administering Agencies from making award or grant administration decisions on the basis of an organization's religious character or affiliation, religious name, or the religious composition of its board of directors.

The regulation also prohibits faith-based organizations from using financial assistance from the Department of Justice to fund inherently religious activities. While faith-based organizations can engage in non-funded inherently religious activities, they must be held separately from the Department of Justice funded program, and customers or beneficiaries cannot be compelled to participate in them. The Equal Treatment Regulation also makes clear that organizations participating in programs funded by the Department of Justice are not permitted to discriminate in the provision of services on the basis of a beneficiary's religion. For more information on the regulation, please see OCR's website at <http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/ocr/etfbo.htm>.

State Administering Agencies and faith-based organizations should also note that the Safe Streets Act, as amended; the Victims of Crime Act, as amended; and the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act, as amended, contain prohibitions against discrimination on the basis of religion in employment. Despite these nondiscrimination provisions, the Justice Department has concluded that the Religious Freedom Restoration Act (RFRA) is reasonably construed, on a case-by-case basis, to require that its funding agencies permit faith-based organizations applying for funding under the applicable program statutes both to receive DOJ funds and to continue considering religion when hiring staff, even if the statute that authorizes the funding program generally forbids considering of religion in employment decisions by grantees.

Questions about the regulation or the application of RFRA to the statutes that prohibit discrimination in employment may be directed to this Office.

Enforcing Civil Rights Laws

All recipients of Federal financial assistance, regardless of the particular funding source, the amount of the grant award, or the number of employees in the workforce, are subject to the prohibitions against unlawful discrimination. Accordingly, OCR investigates recipients that are the subject of discrimination complaints from both individuals and groups. In addition, based on regulatory criteria, OCR selects a number of recipients each year for compliance reviews, audits that require recipients to submit data showing that they are providing services equitably to all segments of their service population and that their employment practices meet equal employment opportunity standards.

Complying with the Safe Streets Act or Program Requirements

In addition to these general prohibitions, an organization which is a recipient of financial assistance subject to the nondiscrimination provisions of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act (Safe Streets Act) of 1968, 42 U.S.C. § 3789d(c), or other Federal grant program requirements, must meet two additional requirements: (1) complying with Federal regulations pertaining to the development of an Equal Employment Opportunity Plan (EEOP), 28 C.F.R. § 42.301-.308, and (2) submitting to OCR Findings of Discrimination (see 28 C.F.R. §§ 42.205(5) or 31.202(5)).

1) Meeting the EEOP Requirement

In accordance with Federal regulations, Assurance No. 6 in the Standard Assurances, COPS Assurance No. 8.B, or certain Federal grant program requirements, your organization must comply with the following EEOP reporting requirements:

If your organization has received an award for $500,000 or more and has 50 or more employees (counting both full- and part-time employees but excluding political appointees), then it has to prepare an EEOP and submit it to OCR for review within 60 days from the date of this letter. For assistance in developing an EEOP, please consult OCR's website at <http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/ocr/eeop.htm>. You may also request technical assistance from an EEOP specialist at OCR by dialing (202) 616-3208.

If your organization received an award between $25,000 and $500,000 and has 50 or more employees, your organization still has to prepare an EEOP, but it does not have to submit the EEOP to OCR for review. Instead, your organization has to maintain the EEOP on file and make it available for review on request. In addition, your organization has to complete Section B of the Certification Form and return it to OCR. The Certification Form can be found at <http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/ocr/eeop.htm>.

If your organization received an award for less than $25,000; or if your organization has less than 50 employees, regardless of the amount of award; or if your organization is a medical institution, educational institution, nonprofit organization or Indian tribe, then your organization is exempt from the EEOP requirement. However, your organization must complete Section A of the Certification Form and return it to OCR. The Certification Form can be found at <http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/ocr/eeop.htm>.

2) Submitting Findings of Discrimination

In the event a Federal or State court or Federal or State administrative agency makes an adverse finding of discrimination against your organization after a due process hearing, on the ground of race, color, religion, national origin, or sex, your organization must submit a copy of the finding to OCR for review.

Ensuring the Compliance of Subrecipients

If your organization makes subawards to other agencies, you are responsible for assuring that subrecipients also comply with all of the applicable Federal civil rights laws, including the requirements pertaining to developing and submitting an EEOP, reporting Findings of Discrimination, and providing language services to LEP persons. State agencies that make subawards must have in place standard grant assurances and review procedures to demonstrate that they are effectively monitoring the civil rights compliance of subrecipients.

If we can assist you in any way in fulfilling your civil rights responsibilities as a recipient of Federal funding, please call OCR at (202) 307-0690 or visit our website at <http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/ocr/>.
