MEMORANDUM

- TO: Eric D. Shaw, Director, Mayor's Office of Housing and Community Development Robert Collins, Executive Director, Rent Board
- FROM: Erica Major, Assistant Clerk, Land Use and Transportation Committee
- DATE: August 3, 2021

SUBJECT: LEGISLATION INTRODUCED

The Board of Supervisors' Land Use and Transportation Committee has received the following proposed legislation, introduced by Supervisor Mandelman on July 27, 2021:

File No. 210866

Ordinance amending the Planning Code to provide a density limit exception to permit up to four dwelling units per lot in RH (Residential, House) zoning districts; affirming the Planning Department's determination under the California Environmental Quality Act; and making findings of consistency with the General Plan, and the eight priority policies of Planning Code, Section 101.1, and findings of public necessity, convenience, and welfare under Planning Code, Section 302.

If you have comments or reports to be included with the file, please forward them to me at the Board of Supervisors, City Hall, Room 244, 1 Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett Place, San Francisco, CA 94102 or by email at: erica.major@sfgov.org.

Section 2. Background and Findings.

(a) San Francisco faces a severe crisis of housing affordability and availability, characterized by dramatic increases in rent and home sale prices over recent years and historic underproduction of new housing units across income levels, particularly in the City's western neighborhoods and RH (Residential, House) zoning districts.

(b) According to the Planning Department's 2020 Housing Inventory, the cost of housing in San Francisco has increased dramatically since the Great Recession of 20082009, with the median sale price for a two-bedroom house more than tripling from 2011 to 2021, from $493,000 to $1,580,000. This includes a 9% increase from 2019 to 2020 alone, even in the face of the COVID-19 pandemic. The median rental price for a two-bedroom apartment saw similar although slightly smaller increases, nearly doubling from $2,570 to $4,500 per month, from 2011 to 2019, before declining in 2020 due to the pandemic.

(c) These housing cost trends come after decades of underproduction of housing in San Francisco, with only 600 net new units on average added per year from 1960 to 1990, compared with 37,000 per year in the Bay Area as a whole, and fewer than 1,000 units per year in the 1990s, before increasing to an average of roughly 2,500 net new units per year from 2000 to 2019, according to the Planning Department's 2019 Housing Affordability Strategies Report.

25

3 (d) The City's Chief Economist has estimated that approximately 5,000 new market4 rate housing units per year would be required to keep housing prices constant with inflation
5 generally, rather than greatly exceeding general rates of inflation.

6 (e) Housing opportunities have not kept pace with population growth at the State level
7 either, with a 2016 report by the McKinsey Institute finding that California ranks 49th out of 50
8 states in the number of housing units per person.

9 (f) San Francisco will be challenged to meet increased Regional Housing Needs 10 Allocation ("RHNA") goals in the upcoming 2023-2031 Housing Element cycle, which are 11 expected to be at least 72,000 units over eight years, more than 2.5 times the goal of the 12 previous eight-year cycle. At the same time, relatively new State laws like Senate Bill 35 13 (2017) would limit San Francisco's local zoning control and discretion if the City does not meet 14 these RHNA housing production goals.

(g) San Francisco's new housing production in recent years has been heavily concentrated in the eastern and southeastern parts of the City, with 90% of all new housing produced in just 10 eastside and central neighborhoods, according to the Housing Affordability Strategies Report. These neighborhoods are home to many of the City's most established communities of color and communities most vulnerable to displacement pressures.

(h) The majority, roughly 60%, of San Francisco's developable land area is in the RH zoning districts, with 38% zoned exclusively for single-family homes in the Residential, House, One Family (RH-1) and Residential, House, One Family, Detached Dwellings (RH-1(D)) zoning districts, concentrated almost entirely on the City's west side. In spite of the expansive geographic coverage of these zoning districts throughout the City, only 10% of the total new housing units in 2020 were built in these districts.

25

- (i) Neighborhoods zoned for RH encompass a wide variety of housing and building typologies, with a distinct historic pattern of taller, higher-density buildings routinely located on corner lots throughout residential neighborhoods in the City, which predate RH zoning established in the 1970s.
- 7 (j) The City's COVID-19 Economic Recovery Task Force included a recommendation
 8 in its October 2020 report to support construction of small multifamily buildings in low density 9 areas to support "missing middle" housing opportunities.

- Section 3. Article 2 of the Planning Code is hereby amended by revising Sections 207 and 209.1, to read as follows:
- 13

14 SEC. 207. DWELLING UNIT DENSITY LIMITS.

LEGISLATIVE DIGEST

[Planning Code - Four-Unit Density Exception for Residential Districts]

Ordinance amending the Planning Code to provide a density limit exception to permit up to four dwelling units per lot in RH (Residential, House) zoning districts; affirming the Planning Department's determination under the California Environmental Quality Act; and making findings of consistency with the General Plan, and the eight priority policies of Planning Code, Section 101.1, and findings of public necessity, convenience, and welfare under Planning Code, Section 302.

Existing Law

The Planning Code sets forth different zoning districts throughout the City, where different uses are permitted, conditionally permitted, or prohibited, and where various controls (such as height, bulk, setbacks, etc.) apply. Residential, House (RH) districts are "intended to recognize, protect, conserve and enhance areas characterized by dwellings in the form of houses, usually with one, two or three units with separate entrances, and limited scale in terms of building width and height. Such areas tend to have similarity of building styles and predominantly contain large units suitable for family occupancy, considerable open space, and limited nonresidential uses." (Section 209.1). The RH districts are composed of five separate classes of districts, depending on the number of units permitted in each:

- RH-1(D) Districts: One-Family (Detached Dwellings); RH-1 Districts: One-Family; and RH-1(S) Districts: One-Family with Minor Second Unit, which are generally characterized by single-family houses;
- RH-2 Districts: Two-Family, which generally consist of one-family and two-family houses;
- RH-3 Districts: Three-Family, in which structures with three units are common in addition to one-family and two-family houses.

Amendments to Current Law

This Ordinance would create a density limit exception to permit up to four units per lot in all RH districts, for projects that are not seeking or receiving a density bonus under Planning Code Sections 206.5 or 206.6. These four units would be permitted in addition to any Accessory Dwelling Units permitted under the Code. All building standards that are applicable to RH-3 Districts would be applicable to projects that take advantage of this density limit exception.

Background Information

The Ordinance contains ample findings setting forth the need to promote housing development in San Francisco. It states that the City faces a severe crisis of housing affordability and availability, characterized by dramatic increases in rent and home sale prices over recent years and historic underproduction of new housing units across income levels, particularly in the City's western neighborhoods and RH zoning districts. It further explains that adopting policies that promote construction of small multifamily buildings in low density areas to support "missing middle" housing opportunities was one of the recommendations of the City's COVID-19 Economic Recovery Task Force.
