RE: File 230986 – Charter amendment Mayoral authority to disapprove certain proposed budget changes for the San Francisco Municipal Transportation Agency (SFMTA).

Dear Ms. Calvillo,

Should the proposed Charter amendment be approved by the voters, in my opinion, it would not affect the cost of government. However, should the proposed Charter amendment be approved, the SFMTA's budget will be dependent on future decisions made by the Mayor through the newly proposed budget process.

The proposed Charter amendment would establish a new role for the Mayor to disapprove of SFMTA proposed increases to transit fares, increases maximum parking meter rates, and expansions of parking meter operating hours and days. Currently, SFMTA has exclusive authority to set fares, meter rates, and hours of operations for meters, although transit fare changes may be rejected by seven out of 11 members of the Board of Supervisors.

The proposed Charter amendment would require SFMTA to submit a proposed budget with any proposed increases to fare rates, increases to parking meter maximum rates, and expansion of parking meter hours of operations for approval on April 15 of each even-numbered year. The proposed charter amendment would allow the Mayor submit disapproval of the proposed increases to by SFMTA by May 15. If the proposed increases to fares, meter rates, and hours of operation is disapproved by the Mayor, the SFMTA would be required to submit an alternative budget by May 31.

In Fiscal Year 2022-2023, SFMTA's estimated revenue from transit fares on Muni buses, trains, and streetcars was $88 million. During that same period, the department's estimated revenue from parking meters was $50 million, when the parking meters were operating across the city from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and Sunday in select locations.

Sincerely,
