CITY & COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO

Our Yearlong Investigation

- Focused on the highest levels of its governance structure including the Office of the Mayor, the Board of Supervisors, the Office of the Controller and selected departments.
- Does not reflect upon current city officials or staff, but on the processes, structures and constraints of city government.
- Interviews with over 50 current and former city officials and employees as well as nationally recognized government experts and legal scholars.
- Reviewed information from news/media reports; City/County of SF reports; Board of Supervisors' Legislative Research Center, SFPL Government Information Center and History Center.
- Uncovered persistent challenges that have affected San Francisco government for decades.

Our Findings ...

- The city's budget oversight responsibilities need to be reviewed to improve their effectiveness;
- The duties of the City Administrator are ambiguously defined and need more clarity;
- Siloed departmental structures hinder the effective delivery of critical city services;
- The city's incomplete official organization charts make it difficult for residents, businesses and other stakeholders to understand the function and structure of government entities;
- Voter-mandated spending significantly affects the city's ability to effectively manage its budget.

.. and Other Observations

- Charter reforms impact management oversight. Charter revisions In 1991 and 1995 enacted several significant changes including: 1) the prohibition of "deputy mayors", 2) the establishment of salary limits within the Office of the Mayor, and 3) the curtailment of the City Administrator's responsibilities in areas such as budget oversight.
- Despite bureaucratic challenges, City Hall continues to pursue civic innovation partnerships with organizations such as the California Policy Lab, Harvard Kennedy Government Performance Lab, and Bloomberg Philanthropies.
- After years of robust economy, the city faces constrained economic growth. In this challenging environment, San Francisco must carefully manage its labor, health, and pension costs while considering potential service reductions and exploring new revenue sources.

Views on City Administrator Duties

5

- “Ambiguous language around the City Administrator’s role can lead to questions about who is responsible for enforcing city policies and regulations.” BLA report (Oct 2021)
- “The City does agree that there is no formal process for assessing potential financial or policy benefits of legislation.” City Administrator’s response to CJG (Aug. 2024)

San Francisco's Legislative Fetish

- San Francisco places more measures on the ballot than any California city. Between 2013 and 2022, it surpassed its closest peer city by over 100%.
- A February 2024 city joint report by the Controller, the Treasurer, and Office of Economic and Workforce Development raised concerns about the potential negative impact of frequent local legislation on the business environment.

Addressing the Challenges of Silos

8

- Our report highlighted three examples of Silos: Permit Center, Street Teams, JUSTIS and cites three other CGJ reports that comment on City silos.
- A more comprehensive analysis of city resources would likely reveal additional instances of how departmental silos hinder the efficiency of municipal service delivery. The numerous examples identified by the Jury indicate that this issue is not limited to isolated pockets of city government.
- An expanded City Administrator role or the introduction of Deputy Mayors are options that may help increase interdepartmental coordination and improve delivery of services.
- Establishing a centralized, authoritative coordinating body within city government could help break down silos between different departments and agencies.

Mayor's Office Response to the Report

- “We agree with many of the Jury’s findings, particularly regarding the challenges and complexities that come with managing a City budget that has grown considerably over the past decade as well as ...
- ... the need for the Board of Supervisors to more carefully consider the costs and benefits of proposed City legislation and be vigilant in protecting City budget resources against inefficient and unwarranted spending.
- “City departments and services have become siloed over time, and we must continuously look to find opportunities for collaboration and sharing of resources both within and outside of the formal budget process.”

Board of Supervisors Responses to Findings

- BOS agrees with the following findings:
- “As the city’s budget has grown and become more complex, the Office of the Mayor encounters oversight constraints;”
- “The role and responsibilities of the City Administrator need to be more clearly defined;”
- “Departmental objectives and funding incentivize siloing, which impedes the effective delivery of city services.”

Comprehensive Charter Reform

August 20, 2024

“San Francisco’s current charter was adopted by the voters in 1995, nearly 30 years ago. ... While the needs of our residents and businesses have grown significantly since then, our City’s ability to govern has not evolved to effectively meet the challenges of today.”

“The current Charter, with its layers of bureaucracy added over the years, has created inefficiency and diffused accountability across our governance structures.”

“The good news is that we can fix this by stepping back and reconsidering the Charter as a whole. That time is now.”

“The Office of the Mayor, working in partnership with the Board of Supervisors and City Attorney, shall finalize the charter reform measure for the 2026 ballot.”

Views from Prior CJG Reports

13

- “San Franciscans are frustrated. According to credible polls, in recent years a near majority of residents believe the City is headed in the wrong direction. While many areas in the United States (US) feature a large proportion of dissatisfied voters, that San Francisco suffers from such widespread public dismay is remarkable considering that it lies at the heart of the most dynamic regional economy in the nation.” Accelerating SF Government Performance: SFCGJ 2016-2017
- “Prior Civil Grand Juries, various City agencies, and consulting firms paid by the City have issued multiple reports identifying issues with the functioning of technology in the City. These reports repeat remarkably similar recommendations. Time after time after time, the recommendations are ignored. The earliest of these reports is eerily relevant to current issues. Why conduct these assessments if we never learn from them?” Déjà Vu All Over Again: San Francisco’s City Technology Needs a Culture Shock: SFCGJ 2011-2012
- “Many commissions and departments within the City and County of San Francisco claim to identify and follow “best practices,” a term commonly heard in the business world; it is a phrase oft touted by the Office of the Mayor. The Jury found neither “best practices,” nor prudent management in several of the areas investigated. The Office of the Mayor (the “Mayor”) and the Board of Supervisors (the “Board”) do not exercise operational oversight of the performance of commissions and departments in a systematic or effective way ... There doesn’t seem really to have been anyone in charge of the store” Accountability in San Francisco Government: SFCGJ 2007-2008
- “The City’s hiring system is needlessly complex, wasting both time and energy. The extended process required to fill positions impedes the work of City departments in providing necessary services to the general public and frustrates many qualified job candidates, who then decide to look elsewhere for employment ... Nearly twenty years ago, a former Director of City Planning described the City’s hiring system as: ... incredibly cumbersome and did nothing to attract top people.” The Hiring Process in the City and County of San Francisco: SFCGJ 1996-1997
- “The City and County of San Francisco is well positioned to take full advantage of the information age. However, the City and County, in pursuit of conducting the business of government, has been unable to achieve many of its objectives in the area of information technology. These deficiencies are due to the following factors: lack of political leadership; ineffective planning; poor inter-departmental communication; short-term budgeting; inadequate personnel management; and inter-departmental competition for precious technology resources.” Information Technology: SFCGJ 1995-1996

- San Francisco is our home. The city attracts innovators, experimenters, explorers, and dreamers.
- It engages us with its parks and natural beauty, its culinary and cultural scenes, and its sports teams.
- It inspires diverse views, including those of the San Francisco Chronicle's Herb Caen — “One day if I go to heaven ... I'll look around and say “It ain't bad, but it ain't San Francisco” and Jefferson Airplane's Paul Kantner — “San Francisco is 49 square miles surrounded by reality.”
