Section 1. Findings.

(a) CEQA and Land Use Findings.

(1) The Planning Department has determined that the proposed Planning Code amendment is subject to a Categorical Exemption from the California Environmental Quality Act (California Public Resources Code Sections 21000 et seq., "CEQA") pursuant to Section 15308 of the Guidelines for Implementation of the statute for actions by regulatory agencies for protection of the environment (in this case, landmark designation). Said determination is on file with the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors in File No. 181107 and is incorporated herein by reference. The Board of Supervisors affirms this determination.

(2) Pursuant to Planning Code Section 302, the Board of Supervisors finds that the proposed landmark designation of 524 Union Street (aka Paper Doll), Assessor's Parcel Block No. 0103, Lot No. 009 ("Paper Doll"), will serve the public necessity, convenience, and welfare for the reasons set forth in Historic Preservation Commission Resolution No. 995, recommending approval of the proposed designation, which is incorporated herein by reference. Said resolution is on file with the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors in File No. 181107.

(3) The Board of Supervisors further finds that the proposed landmark designation of the Paper Doll is consistent with the San Francisco General Plan and with Planning Code Section 101.1(b) for the reasons set forth in Historic Preservation Commission Resolution No. 995, recommending approval of the proposed designation, which is incorporated herein by reference.

(b) General Findings.

(1) Pursuant to Section 4.135 of the Charter, the Historic Preservation Commission has authority "to recommend approval, disapproval, or modification of landmark designations and historic district designations under the Planning Code to the Board of Supervisors."

(2) The Landmark Designation Fact Sheet was prepared by Planning Department Preservation staff. All preparers meet the Secretary of the Interior's Professional Qualification Standards for historic preservation program staff, as set forth in Code of Federal Regulations Title 36, Part 61, Appendix A. Planning Department Preservation staff reviewed the report for accuracy and conformance with the purposes and standards of Article 10 of the Planning Code.

Historic Preservation Commission BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

(3) The Historic Preservation Commission, at its regular meeting of September 5, 2018, reviewed staff's analysis of the historical significance of the Paper Doll pursuant to Article 10 as part of the Landmark Designation Case Report dated September 5, 2018.

(4) On September 5, 2018, the Historic Preservation Commission passed Resolution No. 971, initiating designation of the Paper Doll as a San Francisco Landmark pursuant to Section 1004.1 of the Planning Code. Said resolution is on file with the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors in File No. 181108 and is incorporated herein by reference.

(5) On October 17, 2018, after holding a public hearing on the proposed designation and having considered the specialized analyses prepared by Planning Department Preservation staff and the Landmark Designation Fact Sheet, the Historic Preservation Commission recommended approval of the proposed landmark designation of the Paper Doll by Resolution No. 995. Said resolution is on file with the Clerk of the Board in File No. 181108.

(6) The Board of Supervisors hereby finds that the Paper Doll has a special character and special historical, architectural, and aesthetic interest and value, and that its designation as a Landmark will further the purposes of and conform to the standards set forth in Article 10 of the Planning Code. In doing so, the Board hereby incorporates by reference the findings of the Landmark Designation Report.

Section 2. Designation.

Pursuant to Section 1004 of the Planning Code, 524 Union Street (aka Paper Doll), Assessor's Parcel Block No. 0103, Lot No. 009, is hereby designated as a San Francisco Landmark under Article 10 of the Planning Code. Appendix A to Article 10 of the Planning Code is hereby amended to include this property.

LEGISLATIVE DIGEST

[Planning Code - Landmark Designation - 524 Union Street (aka Paper Doll)]

Ordinance amending the Planning Code to designate 524 Union Street (aka Paper Doll), Assessor's Parcel Block No. 0103, Lot No. 009, as a Landmark under Article 10 of the Planning Code; affirming the Planning Department's determination under the California Environmental Quality Act; and making public necessity, convenience and welfare findings under Planning Code, Section 302, and findings of consistency with the General Plan, and the eight priority policies of Planning Code, Section 101.1.

Existing Law

Under Article 10, Section 1004 of the Planning Code, the Board of Supervisors may, by ordinance, designate an individual structure that has special character or special historical, architectural, or aesthetic interest or value as a City landmark. Once a structure has been named a landmark, any construction, alteration, removal or demolition for which a City permit is required necessitates a Certificate of Appropriateness from the Historic Preservation Commission ("HPC"). (Planning Code Section 1006; Charter of the City and County of San Francisco, Section 4.135.) Thus, landmark designation affords a high degree of protection to historic and architectural structures of merit in the City. There are currently more than 275 individual landmarks in the City under Article 10, in addition to other structures and districts in the downtown area that are protected under Article 11. (See Appendix A to Article 10.)

524 Union Street is not currently designated as a City landmark under Planning Code Article 10.

Amendments to Current Law

The proposed legislation would amend the Planning Code to designate 524 Union Street (aka Paper Doll) as a City landmark under Article 10 of the Planning Code.

The ordinance finds that the Paper Doll is eligible for designation as a City landmark as it is significant as one of the earliest LGBTQ bars that is associated with the development of LGBTQ communities in San Francisco; and is also significant for its association with owner Dante Benedetti who became one of the people on the front lines in the fight for LBGTQ civil rights in San Francisco in the 1950s.

As required by Section 1004, the ordinance lists the particular exterior and interior features that shall be preserved, or replaced in-kind as determined necessary.

PROPERTY DESCRIPTION & SURROUNDING LAND USE AND DEVELOPMENT

Located in the North Beach neighborhood, 524 Union Street (Paper Doll, subject property) was originally constructed in 1846 and reconstructed following the 1906 earthquake and fire. Alterations to the building were made in 1975-1978, including seismic strengthening, replacing the main corner entrance to the bar located at Union Street and Cadell Place with the current storefront windows, and moving the main entrance to its current location on Cadell Place (the original secondary entrance).

524 Union is a mixed use commercial building. The two-story plus basement, wood framed building is clad in rustic redwood siding and features pilasters with simple capitals that break the facades into bays. It is capped by a dentil cornice and flat roof. The façade facing Union Street is two bays wide. The west bay has a pass-through opening and pedestrian entrance to the second floor. The east bay has fixed; wood sash windows at the basement level topped by wood storefront windows with a transom. The west bay of the second floor features two punched openings with flat wood surrounds filled with double-hung, wood sash windows. The east bay has a wood door with wood balconette. The first story of the Cadell Place façade features three similar storefront windows and a pair of wood doors that lead to the bar/restaurant. The second floor features four similar punched openings with flat wood surrounds filled with double-hung, wood sash windows. The middle portion of the building, likely a very early addition, is also two stories with the second story set back to create a roof deck. This first level of this facade features several windows and two doors that lead to the kitchen and rear dining room. The rear portion of the building, also likely a very early addition, is two stories and is accessed by a wood stair.

North Beach is a mixed commercial and residential neighborhood consisting predominantly of small retail shops and restaurants and flats and medium sized apartment buildings with portions rebuilt after the earthquake and fire. Union Street slopes gently uphill from Stockton Street to Grant Avenue and is defined on both sides by two- to four-story apartment buildings with commercial buildings clustered at Stockton Street and Grant Avenue.

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The case before the Historic Preservation Commission is the consideration of the initiation of a community sponsored landmark designation application for 524 Union Street (Paper Doll) as a San Francisco landmark under Article 10 of the Planning Code, Section 1004.1, and recommending the Board of Supervisors approve such designation.

ENVIRONMENTAL REVIEW STATUS

The Planning Department has determined that actions by regulatory agencies for protection of the environment (specifically in this case, landmark designation) are exempt from environmental review, pursuant to CEQA Guidelines Section 15308 (Class Eight - Categorical).

GENERAL PLAN POLICIES

The Urban Design Element of the San Francisco General Plan contains the following relevant objectives and policies:

OBJECTIVE 2: Conservation of Resources that provide a sense of nature, continuity with the past, and freedom from overcrowding.

POLICY 4: Preserve notable landmarks and areas of historic, architectural or aesthetic value, and promote the preservation of other buildings and features that provide continuity with past development.

Designating significant historic resources as local landmarks will further continuity with the past because the buildings will be preserved for the benefit of future generations. Landmark designation will require that the Planning Department and the Historic Preservation Commission review proposed work that may have an impact on character-defining features. Both entities will utilize the Secretary of Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties in their review to ensure that only appropriate, compatible alterations are made.

SAN FRANCISCO PLANNING CODE SECTION 101.1 – GENERAL PLAN CONSISTENCY AND IMPLEMENTATION

Planning Code Section 101.1 – Eight Priority Policies establishes and requires review of permits for consistency with said policies. On balance, the proposed designation is consistent with the priority policies in that:

a. The proposed designation will further Priority Policy No. 7, that landmarks and historic buildings be preserved. Landmark designation of 524 Union Street (Paper Doll) will help to preserve an important historical resource that is significant as one of the earliest lesbian bars associated with development of LGBTQ communities in San Francisco; and is also significant for its association with owner Dante Benedetti who became one of the people on the front lines in the fight for LBGTQ civil rights in San Francisco in the 1950s.

Case Number 2017-001773DES 524 Union Street (aka Paper Doll)

BACKGROUND / PREVIOUS ACTIONS

524 Union Street (Paper Doll) is currently listed as an A-Historic Resource building. The Citywide Historic Context Statement for LGBTQ History in San Francisco, by Donna Graves and Shayne E. Watson (Context Statement), identified the Paper Doll as potentially significant for its association with the development of LGBTQ communities in San Francisco.

The landmark designation nomination was submitted by the property owner. A final draft of the report was submitted to the Department on June 14, 2018. Department staff conducted site visit on June 28, 2018.

OTHER ACTIONS REQUIRED

If the Historic Preservation Commission adopts a resolution to initiate designation of the subject property as an Article 10 landmark at its September 5, 2018 hearing and directs staff to finalize the landmark designation report, a second Historic Preservation Commission hearing will be scheduled for the Commission's recommendation of approval of the designation. At the second hearing, if the Historic Preservation Commission recommends approval of the designation, its recommendation will be sent by the Department to the Board of Supervisors. The nomination would then be considered at a future Board of Supervisors hearing for formal Article 10 landmark designation.

APPLICABLE PRESERVATION STANDARDS

ARTICLE 10

Section 1004 of the Planning Code authorizes the landmark designation of an individual structure or other feature or an integrated group of structures and features on a single lot or site, having special character or special historical, architectural or aesthetic interest or value, as a landmark. Section 1004.1 also outlines that landmark designation may be initiated by the Board of Supervisors or the Historic Preservation Commission and the initiation shall include findings in support. Section 1004.2 states that once initiated, the proposed designation is referred to the Historic Preservation Commission for a report and recommendation to the Board of Supervisors to approve, disapprove or modify the proposal.

Pursuant to Section 1004.3 of the Planning Code, if the Historic Preservation Commission approves the designation, a copy of the resolution of approval is transmitted to the Board of Supervisors and without referral to the Planning Commission. The Board of Supervisors shall hold a public hearing on the designation and may approve, modify or disapprove the designation.

In the case of the initiation of a historic district, the Historic Preservation Commission shall refer its recommendation to the Planning Commission pursuant to Section 1004.2(c). The Planning Commission shall have 45 days to provide review and comment on the proposed designation and address the consistency of the proposed designation with the General Plan, Section 101.1 priority policies, the City's Regional Housing Needs Allocation, and the Sustainable Communities Strategy for the Bay Area. These comments shall be sent to the Board of Supervisors in the form of a resolution.

Section 1004(b) requires that the designating ordinance approved by the Board of Supervisors shall include the location and boundaries of the landmark site, a description of the characteristics of the landmark which justify its designation, and a description of the particular features that should be preserved.

Section 1004.4 states that if the Historic Preservation Commission disapproves the proposed designation, such action shall be final, except upon the filing of a valid appeal to the Board of Supervisors within 30 days.

ARTICLE 10 LANDMARK CRITERIA

The Historic Preservation Commission on February 4, 2009, by Resolution No. 001, adopted the National Register Criteria as its methodology for recommending landmark designation of historic resources. Under the National Register Criteria, the quality of significance in American history, architecture, archaeology, engineering, and culture is present in districts, sites, buildings, structures, and objects that possess integrity of location, design, setting, feeling, materials, workmanship, and association, and that are associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history; or that are associated with the lives of persons significant in our past; or that embody the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction, or that represent the work of a master, or that possess high artistic values, or represent a significant and distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction; or properties that have yielded, or may likely yield, information important in prehistory or history.

PUBLIC / NEIGHBORHOOD INPUT

There is no known public or neighborhood opposition to designation of 524 Union Street (Paper Doll) as an Article 10 landmark. The Department received one letter of support from the community. The Department will provide any public correspondence received after the submittal of this report in the Historic Preservation Commission's correspondence folder.

PROPERTY OWNER INPUT

Property owner is supportive of landmark designation.

STAFF ANALYSIS

The case report and following analysis was prepared by Department staff. The Department has determined that the subject property meets the requirements for Article 10 eligibility as an individual landmark. The justification for its inclusion is outlined below under the Significance and Integrity sections of this case report.

The subject property appears to meet two the Historic Preservation Commission's priorities for designation which are:

 The designation of underrepresented Landmark property types including landscapes There are currently only three landmark buildings associated with LGBTQ cultural heritage: Castro Camera and Harvey Milk Residence (573 Castro Street, LM #227); Twin Peaks Tavern (401

Castro Street, LM#264); and the Jose Theater/Names Project Building (2362 Market Street, LM #241).

- 2. The designation of buildings of Modern design The subject property is not a Modern style building.
- The designation of buildings located in geographically underrepresented areas There are currently only three individual landmark buildings located in the nearby vicinity: Washington Square (LM #226); Old Spaghetti Factory (478 Green Street, LM #127); and St. Francis of Assisi Church (620 Vallejo Street, LM #5).
- 4. The designation of properties with strong cultural or ethnic associations. The subject property has specific cultural associations with LGBTQ heritage.

SIGNIFICANCE

Significant events

Opened in 1944, the Paper Doll is significant as one of the earliest lesbian bars associated with the development of LGBTQ communities in San Francisco. The Paper Doll is located in North Beach, which became known as San Francisco's first bar-based LGBTQ Community. North Beach had an international, working-class feel, with a thriving Bohemian scene of artists and writers taking advantage of cheap rents. It was described as an exciting, vital neighborhood that was more accepting and tolerant of LGBTQ people. This atmosphere drew more queer men and women to the neighborhood, creating the city's first queer residential enclave and establishing the roots of San Francisco's LGBTQ communities. Bars were an important early gathering place for queer people. Bars in North Beach like the Paper Doll were able to create discrete spaces where LGBTQ people felt safe to congregate in public. The Paper Doll and these other bars provided the protection needed to establish and nurture the LGBTQ community.

The clientele of the Paper Doll were a mix of men and women, but it was mostly frequented by women because it was located away from the touristy Broadway Street. Bars that welcomed lesbians were few in number because most bars catered to white, gay men. The LQBTQ Context Statement notes that, "special consideration should be given to places associated with particularly underrepresented communities including people of color, lesbians, and people who identify as transgender or bisexual."

The Paper Doll was unique because it was one of the first restaurants catering to the queer community in San Francisco – if not the first – and because it provided a public alternative to nightclubs and bars. The Paper Doll operated through 1961. Because it was a restaurant, it was able to avoid policing by agencies such as the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (ABC), because these agencies were more tolerant of bars with restaurants. Therefore it remained open for longer than most queer spaces.

Significant Persons

Dante Benedetti, as the owner of the Paper Doll, became one of the people on the front lines in the fight for LBGTQ civil rights in San Francisco in the late 1950s. Prior to 1955, serving alcohol to 'known homosexuals' was not illegal, although homosexual acts were still banned. Queer people could legally assemble in bars, but touching, nonnormative gender attire, or mannerisms that signified homosexual status could be construed as an illegal act. A number of bars were closed based on charges related to homosexuality. This had a devastating effect on gay and lesbian bar owners.

Benedetti bought the Paper Doll in 1954. On August 20, 1956, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control filed an accusation against Benedetti and the Paper Doll, charging violations of keeping of a disorderly house, alleging disturbance of the neighborhood, injury to the public welfare and morals, and the keeping of a resort for sexual perverts. On May 16, 1957, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control revoked Benedetti's liquor license because it deemed that its continuance would be contrary to public welfare and morals. Although Benedetti would concede during the trial that the Paper Doll had a gay and lesbian cliental, an admission that made headlines in San Francisco newspapers, he claimed that he "never had any idea whatsoever that there was anything wrong with operating a gay bar." Benedetti would explain to anyone who asked, that he never made assumptions about the gender, or sexuality of his clientele at Paper Doll. Benedetti battled the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control between 1956-1961 arguing that gays and lesbians had the right to assemble in bars and restaurants. In 1961, Benedetti sold his license to Don Farber, a journeyman baseball player who spent time with the Pacific Coast League's Oakland Oaks, who renamed the bar Cadell Place.

PERIOD OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Period of Significance is 1947-1961 reflecting the date Mona Sargent took over management of the Paper Doll and turned it into a gay bar and ending with the date Dante Benedetti sold the Paper Doll.

INTEGRITY

As noted in the Context Statement, "very few sites important to LGBTQ history in San Francisco will express their historic associations solely through their physical fabric, so integrity of design, workmanship, and materials are not generally critical when evaluating a property. Instead, the important aspects of integrity for most LGBTQ resources are location, feeling, and association"

524 Union Street (Paper Doll) was altered circa 1975 to 1978. Moulton & Clark, Inc. served as architects of the alterations. The most substantial exterior change that occurred at this time was the corner entrance to the bar (see page 18 of the attached landmark nomination report) was removed and replaced with the current storefront windows. The main entrance to the bar was moved to Cadell Place where the wood double doors are currently located. Commercial entrances and storefronts are commonly reconfigured, so this does not detract from its integrity.

524 Union Street retains integrity of location and setting. The building in which the Paper Doll operated during the period of significance has not been moved and the surrounding neighborhood appears much the same as it did after reconstruction following the 1906 fire.

The interior of 524 Union Street retains integrity of design, materials and feeling. The interior especially relates to the feeling of a bar/restaurant, including the long bar and back bar prominently located on the west side of the front dining room, and the restaurant configuration consisting of a front and rear dining room separated by the kitchen and bathrooms.

Case Number 2017-001773DES 524 Union Street (aka Paper Doll)

524 Union Street retains association as it provides a direct link between Dante Benedetti and his battle with the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control between 1956-1961 arguing that gays and lesbians had the right to assemble in bars and restaurants. The interior of 524 Union is sufficiently intact to convey that relationship.

CHARACTER-DEFINING FEATURES

Whenever a building, site, object, or landscape is under consideration for Article 10 landmark designation, the Historic Preservation Commission is required to identify character-defining features of the property. This is done to enable owners and the public to understand which elements are considered most important to preserve the historical and architectural character of the proposed landmark.

As described in the Landmark Designation Report, the following is a list of exterior character defining features of the Paper Doll:

The character-defining exterior features of the Paper Doll include the overall form, structure, height, massing, materials, and ornamentation of the house, carriage house and garden setting, specifically:

1. Exterior

a. Two story height

b. Low, boxy massing

c. Flat roof

d. Redwood channel rustic horizontal wood siding

e. Regularly spaced punched window openings with simple, flat wood surrounds and wood sills

f. Double-hung, wood sash windows at second floor

g. Prominent corner siting at Union Street and Cadell Place

h. Two entries and stair to second floor located on Cadell Place.

2. Interior

a. A front dining room, an L-shaped rear dining room with raised area, and kitchen and bathrooms located between the front and rear dining rooms.

b. Heavy timber support posts running north-south in both front dining room and back dining room c. Bar configuration and back bar with oak wood coolers located at the west wall of the front dining room

d. Fireplace in rear dining room

INTERIOR LANDMARK DESIGNATION

According to Article 10, Section 1004(c) of the Planning Code, only those interiors that were historically publicly accessible are eligible for listing in Article 10. Article 10, Section 1004(c) of the Planning Code states,

(c) The property included in any such designation shall upon designation be subject to the controls and standards set forth in this Article 10. In addition, the said property shall be subject to the following further controls and standards if imposed by the designating ordinance:

(1) For a publicly-owned landmark, review of proposed changes to significant interior architectural features.

PLANNING DEPARTMENT

Case Number 2017-001773DES 524 Union Street (aka Paper Doll)

(2) For a privately-owned landmark, review of proposed changes requiring a permit to significant interior architectural features in those areas of the landmark that are or historically have been accessible to members of the public. The designating ordinance must clearly describe each significant interior architectural feature subject to this restriction.

As a bar and restaurant, the interior of 524 Union Street has been historically accessible to the public.

BOUNDARIES OF THE LANDMARK SITE

The boundaries of the landmark site encompass all of and are limited to Assessor's Parcel Block No. 0103, Lot No. 009.

PLANNING DEPARTMENT RECOMMENDATION

Based on the Department's analysis, 524 Union Street (Paper Doll) is individually eligible for Article 10 Landmark designation as it is associated with significant events and persons. The subject property is significant as one of the earliest lesbian bars associated with the development of LGBTQ communities in San Francisco. It is also significant for Dante Benedetti; as the owner of the Paper Doll he became one of the people on the front lines in the fight for LBGTQ civil rights in San Francisco in the late 1950s. Designation of 524 Union Street (Paper Doll) also appears to meet three of four of the Historic Preservation Commission's priorities for designation. Staff recommends approval of the proposed landmark designation of 524 Union Street (Paper Doll).

The Historic Preservation Commission may recommend approval, disapproval, or approval with modifications of the proposed designation of 524 Union Street (Paper Doll) as a San Francisco landmark under Article 10 of the Planning Code to the Board of Supervisors pursuant to Planning Code Section 1004.1. If the Historic Preservation Commission approves the designation, a copy of the motion of approval is transmitted to the Board of Supervisors, which holds a public hearing on the designation and may approve, modify or disapprove the designation (Section 1004.4). If the Historic Preservation Commission disapproves the proposed designation, such action shall be final, except upon the filing of a valid appeal to the Board of Supervisors within 30 days (Section 1004.5).

Statement of Events: Associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the Significance: broad patterns of our history. According to the Citywide Historic Context Statement for LGBTQ History in San Francisco, the Paper Doll "was one of the earliest spaces in San Francisco that functioned as an informal community center where 'gay, lesbian, and transgendered people could make friends, find lovers, get information, or plan activities."1 The Paper Doll is located in North Beach, which became known as San Francisco's first bar-based LGBTQ Community. North Beach had an international, working-class feel, with a thriving Bohemian scene of artists and writers taking advantage of cheap rents. It was described as an exciting, vital neighborhood that was more accepting and tolerant of LGBTQ people. This atmosphere drew more queer men and women to the neighborhood, "creating the city's first queer residential enclave and establishing the roots of San Francisco's LGBTQ communities."2 Bar owners were able to create discrete spaces where LGBTQ people felt safe to congregate in public. These bars provided the protection needed to establish and nurture the LGBTQ community. Because any display or form of nonnormative sexuality was criminal forcing LGBTQ people to Francisco. In 1962-1980 he served as USF's head baseball coach.

Benedetti bought the Paper Doll in 1954. During his ownership, Benedetti claimed that it was the most popular place in North Beach, serving steaks and roast beef for $1.65 a dinner. The restaurant brought in all kinds of people and was filled with businessmen, artists, and Italians in the neighborhood. Benedetti noted, "I was doing a tremendous food business up there when they closed me down you know, how come there's just men in here? And they started to bring charges against me of what kind of place I was operating."<sup>8</sup>

Prior to 1955, "serving alcohol to 'known homosexuals' was not illegal – although homosexual acts were still banned. Queer people could legally assemble in bars, but touching, nonnormative gender attire, or mannerisms that signified homosexual status could be construed as an illegal act. In 1955 California's alcohol control legislation was changed with the creation of the ABC. In the same year the California Business and Professional code was amended to allow the ABC the authority to investigate "resorts for sexual perverts." The ABC began policing of queer bars, relying on entrapment and scare tactics. Undercover agents seduced patrons and police cars were parked outside bars as a deterrent. Bar owners reported that their bars were consistently harassed and monitored by undercover ABC officers looking for morals violations. A number of bars were closed based on charges related to homosexuality. This had a devastating effect on gay and lesbian bar owners.<sup>9</sup>

On August 20, 1956, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control filed an accusation against Benedetti and the Paper Doll, charging violations of keeping of a disorderly house, alleging disturbance of the neighborhood, injury to the public welfare and morals, and the keeping of a resort for sexual perverts. <sup>10</sup>

At the trial, state investigators testified that "indecent proposals were made to them by patrons of the Paper Doll."<sup>11</sup> On May 16, 1957, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control revoked Benedetti's liquor license because it deemed that its continuance would be contrary to public welfare and morals.

Although Benedetti would concede during the trial that the Paper Doll had a gay and lesbian clientele, an admission that made headlines in San Francisco newspapers, he claimed that he "never had any idea whatsoever that there was anything wrong with operating a gay bar". Adding that "No one ever told me. It cleared the license, and I thought that's all that was necessary." Benedetti would explain to anyone who asked, that he never made assumptions about the gender, or sexuality of his clientele at Paper Doll saying, "Gay people are no different than a human — you know, a person that's normal. You give a little acceptance to a normal person and he reacts to it. You know, and I think gay people did the same thing. That's why they came to San Francisco."<sup>12</sup>

Benedetti battled the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control between 1956-1961 arguing that gays and lesbians had the right to assemble in bars and restaurants. Benedetti describes years in the courts, saying "in those days, they had what you call a – a court within the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. It has nothing to do with the civil court. And I fought it all through those, and then I went into the civil court. And the first civil court I went into, they denied me the right to go ahead and fight it any further than that. [..] It was expensive, but I just thought I was right. I wasn't doing anything wrong."<sup>13</sup>

In 1961, Benedetti sold his license to Don Farber, a journeyman baseball player who spent time with the Pacific Coast League's Oakland Oaks, who renamed the bar Cadell Place.

The Paper Doll at 524 Union Street

Overview

"The City's first Gay restaurant" according to Bay Area Reporter founding publisher, Bob Ross.

The Paper Doll Club was a pre-Castro social institution of profound importance as a center of San Francisco Lesbian and Gay life<sup>1</sup> for over thirty years. With lineage dating back to the Barbary Coast era, 524 Union Street was an anchor for the converging communities of North Beach, a crossroads for those who would go on to become influential catalysts of San Francisco's LGBTQ movements, and Women's post-War cultural movements renowned worldwide. As a Restaurant, Bar, and Jazz venue, 524 Union Street's extraordinary San Francisco history centered around Bohemian culture, civic action, resistance, innovation, feminism and Gay liberation as a location that uniquely bridged generations and movements.

The Paper Doll set the blueprint for greater acceptance of Gays and Lesbians, offering not just a refuge for a marginalized hidden community, but a model where people of all walks of life, and mixed sexuality intermingled; where for the span of a meal or a drink, the imposed closet of the era faded away for a predominantly LGBTQ clientele. The Paper Doll foreshadowed the ideals that personify values of an open San Francisco and functioned as a springboard for Gay and Lesbian entrepreneurs<sup>2</sup>. As Grandmother to many of the most important LGBTQ bars, businesses and newspapers, it was one of the foundational sites where the LGBTQ's key figures unified, built community, met life long friends, lovers, surrogate families, and found political allies, giving roots to political and social liberation movements which followed.

For sale advertisement San Francisco Chronicle, January 1875.

In 1878, a portion of 524 Union Street was leased to house the second location of the groundbreaking Golden Gate Kindergarten Association, inspired by visits from leading Suffragettes and founded by Female philanthropists, the public Hearst Free Kindergartens occupied the property to serve the Barbary Coast<sup>4</sup>.

In 1904-05 as indicated on the the Sanborn Map the property was occupied as a Saloon and Restaurant with a Bocci Ball Court.

Interior Description

The building was renovated and expanded in 1975 to 1978 by Moulton & Clark, Inc., Architecture & Planning. At the end of Cadell Place; a stairway led to the caretakers unit on the second floor; a walking deck with offices was constructed; two subterranean shops were constructed with a exterior public stairway, and the main entry to the restaurant and bar was removed and the secondary entry on Cadell Place became the main entry. In 1978, the restaurant and bar took over the use of the basement, and restored and extended the floor area of the bar over the stairway to the shops, and enclosed with a front window and returned it back to the original floor space with the second stage.

The configuration of the interior restaurant and bar has been preserved with two separate dining rooms, and the original long bar and other details. The windows in the dining room were enhanced during 1975 renovation with Victorian detail windows and stain glass over the front entry and in the back dining room. The back dining room provides the original brick fireplace; updated to gas, and wood paneling reclaimed from the original carriage house. The raised stage in the back dining room still has a trap door from the prohibition era or wine manufacturing. The windows on the second floor offices remain the same size and location.

Neighborhood Context - Bohemian North Beach

As a cultural institution, 524 Union Street was one of the most prominent locations that served North Beach's role as a Bohemian and intellectual nexus. As a mainstay of Queer culture before The Castro, North Beach's cheap attracted artists, the would-be artists, poets, and writers, while catering to the remnants of Barbary Coast bohemians, and the infancy of the Beat generation, prototype Hippies, and other counterculture. An enclave formed alongside working class, waterfront laborers, and neighboring high society, including a Gay high society residing on Telegraph Hill, all within a colony of mostly accepting European Italian and Spanish immigrants. It was a place for outsiders and everyday San Franciscans alike. More importantly playing the role of a cultural stop gap, providing a place to go with a sense of humanity at a time when Lesbians and Gays could not readily identity themselves in public without fear of repercussions.

Historically, San Francisco has been a primary catalyst of change, and tolerance sparking national and worldwide discussions. As a precursor to a recognized community of Gays, Lesbians, Bisexual, Transgender the North Beach bars were the country clubs of the marginalized, where the social codes were created that shaped a cultural and political identity.

Once known as the Latin Quarter, the repeal of Prohibition made the North Beach area a bustling hub of activity and a huge draw for locals and tourists, while retaining the international feel of an old world village. Community historian, and representative of the Family Services Agency, Roberta Bobba said the cheap rents, the weather, and the bohemians, who were always "more accepting," drew her to the neighborhood.<sup>5</sup>

Between 1933 and 1965, over twenty nightclubs, bars, and restaurants catering to gay, lesbian, and transgender people opened in North Beach<sup>6</sup> at the base of Telegraph Hill. more men and women moved to the neighborhood, creating the city's first queer residential enclave and establishing the roots of San Francisco's LGBTQ communities. As North Beach resident Charlotte Coleman said "All the gays lived on Telegraph Hill."<sup>77</sup>

Another community figurehead, Reba Hudson, who arrived in the neighborhood in the 1940s and stayed there for the rest of her life, said North Beach "was the most exciting, vital neighborhood in the City. But there was still the old Italians, the old Spaniards that settled in. Boy, you could smell the wine fermenting in the Spring. It was the absolute first working example of Democracy I've ever seen. It wasn't lip service, everyone was living side by side.... no prejudice, no nothing, and [people] could embrace other people's lifestyles. Truly European. [People] didn't care if you were gay or not ... [People] just gravitated to [North Beach] and were accepted in [North Beach]. It was the only place they were accepted. North Beach has always had that reputation". adding that "It didn't matter if they were gay places or not, we all hung out around the same places. North Beach is just full of outlaws of one stripe or another, and there were just a lot of unconventional people. That's why we all like it here. Everybody is just on their own personal merits", "The bohemians" said Reba Hudson, "were always very tolerant of anyone and everyone."<sup>8</sup> and "It was long before the Beat kids arrived. A lot of intellectuals, not only writers and painters, and poets, just a lot of truly intellectuals. And a lot of the artists, and a lot of the political people. It was an interesting, marvelous neighborhood".

The first Gay bars in San Francisco were found along the Barbary Coast, and Waterfront areas. Numerous famed bars of North Beach followed in that tradition, such as Mona's, The Black Cat, Finnochio's and the Beige Room, gaining notoriety for a scene of LGBT identifying patrons, gender bending performances, eventually hosting early prototypes of Gay Parades with drag artists, and floats, traveling a single block. This was the public manifestation of a subculture for many.

The Paper Doll was one of the earliest Queer spaces in San Francisco that functioned as an informal community center, and social clubs, where Gay, Lesbian, and Transgendered people could make friends, find lovers, get information, or plan activities.<sup>9</sup>

LGBTQ Historical Context and history of The Paper Doll

As a lost Queer space, the Paper Doll Club's forgotten history was brought back to light by historians, principally Author, Nan Alamilla Boyd (Wide Open Town), who described 524 Union Street as "a bit off the beaten path. It was far enough away from the commercial strip that it was much more of a cultural enclave. It was a Queer bar for Queer people first rather than a Queer bar for tourists first. Alongside the tourist culture were these more community based spaces like Paper Doll through which a cultural community evolved and eventually solidified. The Paper Doll was unique because it was one of the first restaurants catering to the Queer community in San Francisco—if not the first—and because it provided a public alternative to night-clubs and bars"<sup>10</sup>.

524 Union Street spanned generations of struggles and pride, offering rare continuity to the Gay Liberation era as it emerged, back to the Barbary Coast influenced era of bars closed long

· 7 1370 before their arrival to San Francisco. Where vital organizations such as Daughters of Bilitis, The Mattachine Society, Imperial Council, The Tavern Guild, and others gathered. Where many of the most important LGBT businesses owners and bar owners of San Francisco got their start. They all came out of the Paper Doll. Before the term Gay, and at a time when Lesbians and Homosexuals were ostracized, associated with mental illness, and getting caught could land you in jail, the Paper Doll existed as a place primarily for camaraderie.

Offering multi-course dinners at egalitarian prices, the Paper Doll encouraged an environment where patronage of mixed sexualities and identities converged, playing a role in acceptance of LGBTQ people through demonstration.

Food with drink allowed the Paper Doll to strip away some of the phobias and stigmas connected to other Gay bars of the time. Even so the Paper Doll also became one of the unintentional front lines in the fight for LGBTQ civil rights, and a site of resistance. Listed on the Federal Bureau of Investigation's 1959 report of establishments patronized "exclusively" by "Homosexuals and sex deviates", and the Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Board's list of forbidden establishments as late as 1968, 524 Union Street was targeted by the State Board of Equalization under the California Department of Alcohol Beverage Control vice squad raids. The effects of the morality crusades by special Police commissions, and vigilantes against the vice, prostitution, and so called deviant behavior of the previous Barbary Coast era also persisted.

San Francisco Chronicle - May 17, 1953

The building itself, high profile on a corner, long and L shaped down Cadell Alley, offered discretion with several entrances. As customary of establishments serving Gays and Lesbians at the time, windows were obscured. The interior was composed of a long bar on the left and booths and tables on the right. There were two banquet rooms at the back that could seat over 100 people, with a dining room converted from an old interior bocce ball court, and the original prohibition trap doors still intact in a raised area used for additional dining, or live performances.

The famed Paper Doll Restaurant and Bar opened in 1944.

The Paper Doll's first manager and owner was Thomas Arbulich, a longtime North Beach and Tenderloin bar owner/restaurateur and family of future San Francisco District 7 Supervisor, Sean Elsbernd. He owned the business until 1956 and acquired the property through an estate transaction, involving a court ordered guardianship sale of the 524 Union Street property.

As a bootlegger at the end of Prohibition, Arbulich acquired bars as a means to care for his family and gravitated towards inventive business opportunities, including a competing "Girl in the Fishbowl" concept contemporary with Bimbo's 365, and the Crystal Nook at the Crystal Palace concession marketplace<sup>11</sup>. Roberta Bobba remembers going to the Paper Doll in 1946 saying it was a sailor bar at first, but was then taken over as a Women's bar. By 1947, the bon vivant Mona Sargent, dubbed "the Queen of Telegraph Hill", known for San Francisco's foundational Lesbian bar Mona's 440 club (440 Broadway) in North Beach, recalled she "got a call from Tom Arbulich asking me to buy or be his partner". Shortly after selling her interest in the original Mona's 440 club, parting ways with partner Charlie Murray, she was recruited to work her magic at 524 Union Street. "I didn't like Charlie and promised myself, 'No more partners,' but I hadn't signed any contract" said Mona about her noncommittal affiliation.<sup>12</sup> "So I made over the Paper Doll on Union and took my name with me".

According to a former patron, "She just sort of turned it on as a gay bar. Everybody liked her." <sup>13</sup> Sargent's first bar, located just a block up the hill, at 451 Union had relocated after only two years, driven out by neighbors, and although Mona's time at the The Paper Doll was equally as short lived, she redesigned the interior, and her clientele followed her. A self-titled bohemian, Mona Sargent said "We're not offended at how the other fellow lives".

"She was straight, but she was really good." remembered former waitress Charlotte Coleman. "If any police came in, she would do anything for you — she would stop them at the door and "You don't touch my women". She was really sweet, but also tough when it came to us. She wouldn't let anybody bother anybody."

Del Martin describes the original Mona's as "really a tourist trap. They used to let us in for free because we were part of the attraction. We were part of the side show. That was about the only way you had of meeting anybody - would be to go to a bar" <sup>14</sup>

Mona's 440 Club, Tourists photo postcard, posing with Mona's female patrons.

Phyllis Lyon recalls the radically important benefits of a place to go, noting the subtle benefits at a time when Women were expected to wear skirts in bars,saying "we got into pants as often as possible", adding that "Because up in North Beach early on, Lesbians were part of the floor show, in a sense. They wanted you to 'look at the Queer". The Paper Doll was one bar that offered sanctuary from the tourism which had grown to include Grayline tour stops, that other establishments were attracting, providing a budding community an alternative where they could eat, talk, and gather.

Mona advertised the grand opening opening; Designed and Decorated by the Bay Area Artists Group. The project was led by Emmy Lou Packard; also known as Betty Lou Packard (1914– 1998) the Californian post-war artist was known for painting, printmaking and murals, and previously acted in the role of chief assistant to Diego Rivera, and a confidante of Frida Kahlo, during Rivera's Bay Area period creating WPA murals. The Paper Doll interior included a two dimensional window of vinyl cut outs depicting San Francisco landmarks, by utilizing a technique which Packard dubbed "edgelighting" using new colored plastic materials, two  $4 \times 6 \times 1/4$ " sheets and concealed fluorescent tube lighting on the top and bottom, affixed side wall. A candy stripe canopy was suspended above the back bar, and celebrated abstract artist Robert McChesney created murals on the mirrors. Circus themed cut outs, in collage evoked Dadaist imagery, and Balinese shadow puppets. The local North Beach artist colony assisted, painting murals on the interior walls. Community historian Joseph St. Amand recalls the artist Rita Covelick, from the neighborhood's creative colony, also designed "collage window." 15

Unusual for any restaurant, 524 Union Street contained an artist studio where WPA certified mixed media artists worked, right behind The Paper Doll, in close confines; a rare blend of Bohemianism with everyday people. Prior to establishing the famed Vesuvio Cafe, artist agent, and promoter of the Beatnik image, Henri Lenoir, used the Paper Doll as one of his makeshift galleries, capitalizing on a non-traditional curatorial setting to sell works of his Bay Area Artist Group roster. Of Mona's opening party at the Paper Doll, Pat Healy said "Yeah. That was - that was The Big Night. The best food in San Francisco. And I'm sure if you talk to anybody, they would back me up on that. I haven't had a prime rib dinner since — Oh, the old prime rib" <sup>16</sup>. Openly Lesbian actor Pat Bond said "When the Paper Doll was going full blast, they served great meals for about a buck--buck and a half--so you had a lot of straight people coming into the Paper Doll." <sup>17</sup>

"I lived around the corner on Grant and ate there frequently" confirmed Dick Boyd, a North Beach bar owner, and historian that frequented the Lesbian clubs. "The food was excellent. You could get a steak with all the trimmings for $1.65. I could even afford to tip at those prices." <sup>18</sup>

Susan Sontag, the celebrated social critic, activist and writer, recounted formative visits in her diaries; closing out the Paper Doll as a teenager, witnessing bad lounge performances, and "several attractive women who served drinks - all in men's clothes, as at Mona's"<sup>19</sup>.

Mona Sargent set the formula that would make the Paper Doll so renowned, with an identity that would last decades, but she quickly moved on to other projects, saying "These partners couldn't stand that I got all the attention, and I realized it was a big mistake. [...] I stayed [at the Paper Doll] about a year".

Whether initially just a lucrative venture, Bill Elsbernd, the step-grandson of Arbulich, relates a childhood memory indicative of something unintentionally greater at play, saying that when his father tended bar at the Paper Doll "looking like Robert Redford off the farm", having "moving to the big city, religious", he was a draw, noting he "never talked about what they did on the other side of the bar", adding that "dad got on our case if we used the term "Queer", he said don't ever call that name in a nasty way".

The Paper Doll was mentioned in the 1948 version of "Where to Sin in San Francisco" by Lord & Shaw with the less than subtle caption overtly stating that "Stolid Tom Arbulich, pedestrian proprietor of this merry little cesspool, declares it is "a nice place" and, knocking on wood, avers, "We never get any visits from the Shore Patrol". The sensationalist guidebook described the Paper Doll as:

"A rendezvous of the Gay People. You'll see gay women who walk and talk like men, and gay men who walk and talk like girls, and often you'll find it hard to tell whether a gay man is a man or a gay woman is a woman because sometimes a gay woman cuts her hair like a man's and puts on men's clothes and looks more like a gay man than a gay woman, and a gay man sometimes lets his hair grow and plucks his brows and puts on fawn slacks and looks more like a gay woman than a gay man, and maybe they are both so anyway but it is very confusing..."<sup>20</sup>.

The 1955 book "Bohemian San Francisco" mentions "Another Queer place, which can't make up its mind whether it wants to be strictly pansy or strictly Lesbian is the Paper Doll." but contrasted with other bars hyped as "beehives of perversion", the Paper Doll was described as "a very dull joint at best". <sup>21</sup>

Gay author, tattoo artist, and Kinsey Institute collaborator Samuel Steward cruised the Paper Doll noting in his journal, that by the early 1950's it was "so packed they were drinking outside on the steps." <sup>22</sup> Bobba says women went to the Paper Doll for an elegant dinner.<sup>23</sup> Gerald Fabian, who described the Paper Doll as mostly Lesbian, said it was always packed—"one of the places on the circuit that you went to." <sup>24</sup>

Longtime bar owner, and founding Tavern Guild member, Charlotte Coleman called the Paper Doll her "favorite bar forever...the best one ever happened...the number one place that we went every Friday and Saturday night. Many of my years I spent in that bar" saying it was "where we all met and grew up."<sup>25</sup>

"I don't think there was any class division. We didn't even have that many places to go — and everybody went." explained Charlotte Coleman who appreciated the Paper Doll because it was located away from the more touristy Broadway Street, explaining that "Women used to pick bars that were tucked away, quiet little areas and districts and what not, and the Paper Doll, at that time, was"<sup>26</sup>. It was on the steps of the Paper Doll that Coleman struck a friendship with Roberta Bobba that lasted 61 years<sup>27</sup>.

Bobba recalled that gay men sat at the bar and Lesbians squeezed into the large booths:

"The waitress would say, 'Well ... can we seat two more people with you?' So they'd sit down next to you. And then a little while later it'd get real busy and they'd stick in two more. So there you were, every time you went, you met some new people ... you got to know all the ladies in town"<sup>28</sup>.

"It was the typical sort of young white collar kind of people. Fuzzy sweater, plaid jacket" according to Joe "Baron" Nimidoff, "The places that had restaurants seemed to, you know, they had a different atmosphere"<sup>29</sup>.

Reba Hudson reminisced that "it was exciting, we'd sit around shining our shoes, pressing our shirts, waiting for Friday nights. Lots of good times. People were open then". <sup>30</sup>

Dick Boyd offered context observing "the preponderance of bars were Lesbian. Why? Fewer doors were open through normal channels (work, clubs, organizations) for women to meet other women of a like mind." <sup>31</sup>

Radical Lesbian rights activist, Elaine Mikels, the founder of Conard House, San Francisco's first halfway house, recalls in her memoir how the Paper Doll offered her refuge. She connected with an artist colony, found a job, met an older Gay man who took her in with lodging, and portrayed it as the first place she experienced a scene where mature heterosexual Women befriended younger Gay Males:

Elaine Mikels with mentor "Bo" at the Paper Doll, 1951, from memoir

"Settling in San Francisco, Women similar to those I had met in Southern Italy. It was exciting to think that San Francisco would be offering the same colorful experiences that I had enjoyed during my travels. I returned to the Paper Doll dressed in my slacks, turtleneck polo shirt, and corduroy jacket, the Lesbian-identified costume that I had worn when I went to bars in Greenwich Village. Coming into this bar, (Paper Doll) I felt more at ease than I felt the first time at Mona's in the Village two years ago, where I sat in the corner hugging a coke. The group here seem different, evenly divided between Lesbians, and Gay men, all appearing middle class in their dress and manner." [...] " Dressed up in our best slacks and jackets and have dinner at the Paper Doll on Upper Grant Ave. The crowd was quite different from what I had experienced at Mona's; they were middle class Lesbians and Gay men. Eva would order us martinis, a drink I have never had which became my favorite from then on. She would go to the juke box and play our favorite tune, one whose name escapes me but when I hear it now it brings back those lovely candlelight evenings that we spent together at the Paper Doll", 32

North Beach was drawing nationally known top entertainment talent, and as a super club, the Paper Doll Club was beloved by San Franciscans in the know. Nat King Cole spent a week at the Paper Doll before being let go by Tom Arbulich when, as the story goes, he couldn't be heard over the crowds<sup>33</sup>. In 1949, the respected Ragtime revivalist Paul Curtis Lingle, believed to have backed Al Jolson in films "The Singing Fool", and "Mammy", held a residency as the Paper Doll house entertainment, where it's said boasted that he performed for "All three sexes"<sup>34</sup>. In the late Sixties, Ann Weldon, and her sister, recording artist, Maxine Weldon began appearing regularly, to uplift standing room only crowds. Grammy, and NAACP Image Award winner Carmen McRae was also a headliner.

In 1952, the exterior and likeness of the interior of the Paper Doll Club was featured in the film noir cult classic, The Sniper, produced by Stanley Kramer (High Noon, It's a Mad, Mad, World, Guess Who's coming to Dinner).

At any given time, era and incarnation, the usual suspects of the North Beach art and poetry scene, a cross section of San Francisco's life, and someone visiting their first Gay bar. Poet, Artist Weldon Kees might be performing ragtime or dining with shipping magnet and gubernatorial candidate Bill Roth, and his wife Jane Grab Horn, talking about publishing Jane Austen through their imprint Colt Press or the creation of the ACLU, Poet Thom Gunn might be pretending not to recognize closeted students, William Ball, founder of the American Conservatory Theater, might be discovering new talent, and the Ernst Tie Company might be creating their Fall line at a booth across from San Francisco Renaissance poet Jack Spicer.

By 1954, Arbulich began shifting his focus to real estate, and The Paper Doll was sold to one of his tenants, the legendary owner of New Pisa, restaurateur Dante Benedetti, a native son of North Beach born in nearby Jasper Alley. Benedetti, a childhood friend of all the famous San Francisco baseball players, including Joe DiMaggio, was a three sport letterman himself at USF where he went on to coach baseball for $1.00 a year. His life's passion was acting as a philanthropist of youth sports, and today his efforts are recognized by a foundation, and youth baseball tournament in his name. In 2006 after his passing, having touched so many lives, the San Francisco Giants honored him at AT&T Park. <sup>35</sup> His family business was classic family style Italian restaurants.

Dante Benedetti and The Paper Doll's impact on LGBTQ civil rights

Dante Benedetti, the owner of 524 Union Street for over 20 years, was one of the first, if not the first merchant in San Francisco to openly and unapologetically declare he ran a business for homosexuals. Under his ownership, The Paper Doll would find itself on the front lines of a precursory fight for LGBTQ civil rights.

Dante was a veteran of the US Marines, and US Coast Guard during World War II, where experiences witnessing homophobia towards his bunkmate, and comfortable in his own sexuality, standing up for him, would prove formative<sup>36</sup>. Upon returning home, he rejoined the family restaurant business, and began to purchase neighborhood properties. He wasn't a Bohemian, or associated with artist hangouts, but after a quick glance at the Paper Doll books, he took the reigns from Arbulich, his landlord at New Pisa. Steeped in traditional Italian culture and machismo it was a uniquely San Francisco match<sup>37</sup>. Rebba Hudson said "He was a hell of a guy, all the gay people worked for. Treated people very well. He also had a great sense of right or wrong, and his clientele from New Pisa went down there."

"It was the most popular place in North Beach" claimed Benedetti. "There was the Black Cat, and the Paper Doll. [...] And then I made a restaurant and you know, I put food in there, and by the time when they took my license from me, that was a really popular restaurant. You know, serving steaks and roast beef, all for $1.65 dinner, you know. And I brought in all kinds of people. The place was packed all the time".

Dante's daughter Sandra Luna, one of two that went into youth education, explains that "Those were the days when businessmen took three-hour lunches in North Beach. Our Restaurant was filled with those businessmen, artists and Italians in the neighborhood" <sup>38</sup>

Of the interior, Dante recounted that "On the inside there was a big long bar, I'd say about 30 stools as you went into the left. And then on the ride side were tables and booths for food. And then you went through the corridor where there was a lady and men's room in the middle. And then in the back there was another room, like a banquet room. There was two banquet rooms actually. They went on an L shape. It was jammed at the time. All the time." Appellate court records referred to photographs depicting the front bar "raised and the tops of the stools well below the level of the bar"<sup>39</sup>

The campaign of harassment against bars accused of morality and vice crimes resulted in a landmark 1951 ruling in favor of the Black Cat Cafe's defense for serving an increasingly Gay clientele. The courts had previously declared that absent "illegal or immoral conduct," Gays were entitled to gather in public places — the first time this right had been affirmed in California, but the Black Cat Cafe hearings in Stoumen vs. Reilly opened the door to a new set of policing strategies — in particular, the use of undercover police to entrap patrons, and provided language that "immoral" behavior was still grounds for legal action against LGBTQ bars. In 1955 the California State Assembly passed a law authorizing powers to ABC to close any "resort [for] sexual perverts". The legislation was challenged but eventually resulted in the permanent closure of The Black Cat Club and put venues like The Paper Doll at increased risk.

Rikki Streicher, a founding board member of The Tavern Guild, the union formed to avoid such busts, recounted one story: "At the Paper Doll where I lived, I lived above it, [in the caretakers unit] and was a cocktail waitress in it. One night they got word that they were going to raid the place, because they used to raid places at the drop of a hat. So I told everybody, we were going to be raided, so if they wanted to go home and whatnot - Well I was the only one left."

Pat Healy experienced raids at various bars, throughout the 50's saying "Well, ostensibly it was a vagrant check. But it was a way of harassing Gay people. They could hold them for 72 hours, and then they had to turn 'em loose. [...] I don't know what they did with vagrants in those days, run 'em out of town or something, but it was - they had to verify your employment with your employer. Well, that was horrifying, humiliating thing and probably would cost you your job".<sup>41</sup>

Said Dante, "I was doing a tremendous food business up there when they closed me down, you know "How come there's just men in here?". And they started to bring charges against me, of what kind of place I was operating. So, it was very successful when they closed me down". <sup>42</sup>

Keeping a dress code, and a formal Maitre D', Benedetti proudly insisted he ran a clean house, describing "two girls on the door. I had one girl on the door that was good...Her name was Dotty" On Dotty, Reba Hudson said "She was not a real nice person. [...] Boy, I mean she did keep things in control [...] She was real overbearing, she was perfect for her job, She loved her job". Dante adds that "She was about 40 years old and she was married. She was a tough lady [...] And she could spot 'em and she'd keep trouble out before it started". [...] "She knew how to handle people, all different kind of people. She was the best I ever had. And she was the one that kept peace on the floor". Dotty's sister Linda was also a Paper Doll cocktail waitress. <sup>43</sup>

By 1956 Bar raids and harassment resulted in Liquor license suspensions for the Paper Doll Club, alongside the raids that shut down the famed Black Cat Club, including Ethel's, Crossroads, Copper Lantern plus a full license revocation at Miss Smith's Tea Room.<sup>44</sup> Accusations made during undercover stings on August 20, 1956, in a packed house of 175 patrons designated the bars as disorderly houses and hangouts for sexual deviants. There were subsequent hearings on December 3, 1956, April 10 and 11, 1957 and February 15, 1957 and appeals in 1960.

One patron, Vaughn [last name unknown] explained the gossip around the sting at the Paper Doll: "Well, Leo Whitney, Leo was a bartender at the Paper Doll. His wife was the hostess. He was a little guy; he would camp and carry on, and he was pawing someone's arm or something...they arrested him for it".<sup>45</sup> Appeal documents for Benedetti vs. Department of Alcoholic Beverage outline an instance "occurring on May 13, 1956, following the occasion when a patron named John Cowgill invited Agent Johnson to engage in a lewd act. After Johnson left the bar with Cowgill and placed him under arrest, Johnson returned to the bar and asked Police Officer Tregoning to come outside. At this time, the bartender, Rick, warned Tregoning, who was not known to be a police officer, not to go outside with Johnson. The bartender said that several arrests had been made the night before; it would be all right as long as he did not leave the premises".

The Paper Doll Loses Licenso Examiner Capitol Bureau SACRAMENTO, March 16.—The State Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control today closed a longstanding case by notifying a San Francisco liquor licensee that he is out of business. MAR 1 7 1961 Dante Benedetti, owner of the Paper Doll, 524 Union St., was informed his license had been revoked for running a disorderly house, which became a resort for sexual perverts. He had fought the case for five years.

Benedetti claimed he "never had any idea whatsoever that there was anything wrong with operating a Gay bar". Adding that "No one ever told me. It cleared the license, and I thought that's all that was necessary". Benedetti would explain to anyone who asked, that he never made assumptions about gender, or sexuality of his clientele at Paper Doll saying "Gay people are no different than a human you know, a person that's normal. You show a little acceptance to a normal person and he reacts to it. You know, and I think Gay people did the same thing. That's why they came to San Francisco. They never arrested them. They never, you know, beat 'em up" [...] "That means employment, that means a lot of things. You earn a living".<sup>46</sup>

Benedetti, who wasn't very big on accounting, and was known to carry large rolls of cash for paying bills to beer suppliers, and meat purveyors <sup>47</sup>, refused to speculate on the possibility he had inadvertently reneged on agreements made by previous owner Arbulich during the time of the "Gayola" scandals where local authorities were found to be extorting Gay bars. Dante still preferred to believe the shut down had more to do with not following unspoken rules for keeping Gay bars open, perhaps hoping to downplay the prejudices themselves out of embarrassment for having witnessed such intolerance. Mona Sargent's bars were never raided, for example, as she proudly stated the police "knew me. I'd lived on [Telegraph] Hill before that [...] and just knew cops".<sup>48</sup>

In reaction, bars began self policing. One patron, Joe Nimidoff, remembers making a sexual joke that got him bounced from the Paper Doll, and "never allowed in there again", illustrating how tense the climate was. He added that "[they] said there were too many liquor licenses issued in San Francisco, and they were trying to cancel some of them [...] just listening for any kind of information that would give them grounds to revoke a license". <sup>49</sup> As Dante proudly stated: "They had no other evidence whatsoever. It'd be — they had a testimony of an inspector saying that one guy was groping the other guy, but nobody ever made an arrest in the place. There'd never been an arrest in the Paper Doll".<sup>50</sup>

Daughter, Sandra Luna likened it to how the family ran New Pisa where "there was no hanky panky going on. He wouldn't let anyone kiss at the bar. He said he drew the same lines at the Paper Doll. There's nothing going here at the bar, but you can come here and gather". Dante, an amateur boxer and street fighter trained at the San Francisco Boys Club, protected his customers, "he was adamant about whatever patrons he had, they were safe", and was known to grab his fiercely loyal chef, another former Marine, John D'ulio, to go fisticuffs with would be gay bashers, in Cadell alley<sup>51</sup>.

Regarding the Paper Doll losing it's license, Reba Hudson says "They had something like 28 or 29 counts against him, believe it or not. And I say, they came in there with cameras and everything! Well, that was the most openly Gay place." [...] "For Christ sakes, Dante was born and raised in North Beach [...] He's probably the stablest guy in this whole-world. He's also a man of great integrity and of great honor and he didn't think he was doing anything that wrong. And that's why he fought it all the way to the Supreme Court. [...] I really respected him for that...He was as straightest Italian in this Beach. But he's a hell of a guy... He just became a [scape] goat, you know, they needed a goat at the time. And this being, you know, flagrant at that time, or considered so at that time, you know. He became the goat."

After being cited for running a unclean house, with deviant behavior, Benedetti battled the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control between 1956-1961 arguing that Lesbians and Gays had the right to assemble in bars and restaurants.

Pioneering activist Del Martin explained "they were being constantly raided, you never knew when the paddy wagon was going to show up, officers come in and load you all in, and the charges were absurd like visiting a house of ill repute." <sup>53</sup>Martin who had begun to organize and educate around that time remembers "That was the beginning of some knowledge of the rights that we had, and most Gays initially didn't understand it. That it wasn't against the law to be Gay, that certain displays and acts were".<sup>54</sup>

Benedetti spent years and countless expenses battling to find due process, recounting that "in those days, they had what you call a - a court within the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. It has nothing to do with the civil court. And I fought it all through those, and then I went into the civil court. And the first civil court I went into, they denied me the right to go ahead and fight it any further than that". [..] "It was expensive, but I just thought I was right. I wasn't doing anything wrong".

Although Benedetti openly admitted The Paper Doll had a Gay and Lesbian patronage, an admission that made headlines in San Francisco newspapers, Dante proudly stated "Nobody ever made an arrest in the place." [...] "In fact, in my remarks in the transcripts, is "Well, if you're going to take away the Paper Doll, which is run better than the New Pisa", I said "you might as well take New Pisa too", putting his families business opened in 1919, on the line. Ultimately the threat against his family business forced his hand.<sup>55</sup>

Don Farber who eventually took over the business alleviates any ambiguity. "Dante wouldn't pay off" he explained. "He didn't think he was doing anything wrong even though he knew it was a different type of business. Where he had sisters, and ex Baseball players at New Pisa, a big family thing, this was the complete opposite" 56.

Luna describes a fearless, principled man. "He was stubborn, he really was. It wasn't that he didn't have the money, he was just like no, it was wrong. He had so much pride, it was like "I run a clean business", these guys just happen to be Gay. He just said there is nothing wrong happening.<sup>57</sup>

The original Paper Doll remained in operation through 1961. Charlotte Coleman said LGBTQ places such as the Paper Doll stayed open longer than most spaces because they doubled as restaurants, and according to Coleman policing agencies were normally more tolerant of bars with restaurants. <sup>58</sup>

Farber recalled that "Dante had a legion of police officers who he fed in the back room on the meat block. They'd tell him "this guy's coming, be careful", but that one police sergeant in particular targeted the Paper Doll routinely. Farber added, "To keep the business going, Dante tried selling Near Beer, practically giving steaks away. Dante, he gave everything away. He was a kind man". Daughter Luna adds "what was really normal was, if you ran a restaurant, you're opened late, you handle lots of cash, and I know cops might take home some raviolis or steaks, you kind of buttered the bread and make them watch out for you... but with the Paper Doll, that wasn't enough. Dad drew the line, "there are no illicit acts taking place, I refuse to pay you off".

At the same time, The Paper Doll Restaurant advertised dinners in the San Francisco Official Police Association Publications from 1959-63.

"He and my mother spent every cent of their lives fighting that thing. They lost everything" remembers Dante's daughter.

"It was important for me." Dante would say about the Paper Doll episodes. "Not for anything else. Just for my own conscience." he'd say, "I still to this day — I don't think there was anything wrong. No way". <sup>59</sup>

On Dante's passing, some guests at University of San Francisco's memorial service were puzzled because "On one side you had all these old Italians, on the other side, all these "old queens". They were just there", explained daughter Sandra, "Just to honor him. They remembered".<sup>60</sup>

The California Department of Alcohol Beverage Control gave Dante a chance to sell The Paper Doll to Don Farber in 1961. Farber had been a journeyman pro ballplayer with Pacific Coast League teams like the Oakland Oaks, and the Solons in Sacramento where he made a connection with a "remote friend" within the agency who proved helpful. Farber recalled "The only stipulation was I had to change the name" to satisfy the ABC, saying "from the time I took over to the time I left, it was the same people working there. Same cooks, same employees". The Paper Doll remained, renamed as Cadell Place.

"So when my playing days were over, Dante asked me if I wanted to learn the business" Farber explained, "He was tickled to death to get out of there".

"One day I went into work and everything was gone", according to Farber, elaborating on how Dante had "60, 70 counts against him, he had the best attorneys, and got it down to the 1. He had the best attorneys, they got him on just the one count".

"When I first started", said Farber, "it was during a holiday, when Dante was worried the police were coming. I'd never seen anything like it, they were sardines in there." but despite ongoing popularity "Dante distanced himself when things got sticky. After it opened for the day, Dante never spent much time in there."

"When it opened up, it was a straight crowd that came in. Then it was kind of like an Etch o' Sketch to a different crowd", Farber said, adding "Guys would come in Brooks Brothers suits one day, then come back in on Friday in leather".

The Paper Doll was doing 280 dinners a day, and Farber immersed himself in the business, working side hours learning the ropes at other classic San Francisco establishments including Fisherman's Grotto #9. At the Paper Doll, he recalls a Chinese cook teaching him how to butcher meat, and teaching him recipes for the house made salad dressings.

"There was never any trouble" to Farber's memory. "The booths were nothing spectacular, nor the plumping" he said, but for what had become a predominantly Male group that visited the newly named Cadell Place, he recognizes in retrospect "the infancy of it all, before the bathhouses, the parade, there weren't many other places to go". Like Benedetti, Farber was a family man, and in his case, he grew tired of the grind. He turned his focus to another business in South San Francisco's Golden Gate produce terminal, at the site of television production for The Green Grocer. Farber would eventually work in racetrack management services for the DeBartolo family, noted for their high profile ownership of the San Francisco 49'ers NFL football team.

Still essentially the Paper Doll, 524 Union Street was rebranded by chef/operator Bob Ross, and Samuel Hall as The 524.

Now under Gay ownership, at a time when very few Gay and Lesbian owned bars, Ross creatively began to showcase a growingly visible community at The 524 with events seven nights a week. Ross would also help found the Tavern Guild, acting as it's Director, Secretary, and eventual President, and The 524 employed it's activities director.

Ross proudly recounted that during his ownership "People would line up all the way down the block and get in for 15 cent brunch", wait listing for a bare bones breakfast. "The bar would take in between 11:00 and 2:30, almost $2,000. Now in those days, that's a lot of money, because the drinks were all under a dollar" remembered Ross, citing brunches as their most profitable day<sup>61</sup>. Write ups at the time still described a place where you could take out of town guests for abalone and a "quiet dining room that was ideal for a conversation that kept apace for a couple of hours over wine and coffee"<sup>62</sup>.

In 1964-65, patrons like Jim Ivory confirm a more male clientele and remembers learning how to disco "by watching the go-go boys". On special Sundays, the Polk Street Queer boutique Town Squire used The 524 to stage flamboyant fashion shows, featuring "well known young men as models" in skimpy outfits, with rapid fire running commentary hosted by Mike Gerry as the celebrated Drag Queen Michelle. Groundbreaking drag performer Michael Greer graced the stage. The Mattachine Society, one of the first Gay rights organizations, who had previously included The Paper Doll on their bar map, sponsored a Sunday stop for the book promotion of "Mr. Madame" Ken Marlowe's unprecedented tell-all book.

524 Club continued a long tradition at the site, of advertising holiday dinners for Thanksgiving, with free turkey door prizes, and Christmas events highlighted by the Tavern Guild's slide shows narrated by Michelle which provided the community a place to gather amongst other strays and find an adopted family, at a time when many LGBTQ were estranged from their families.

In league with grand Halloween festivities in North Beach at other legendary establishments like The Black Cat, Dick Boyd, author of "Broadway North Beach: The Golden Years", details that "In the late 1950's and early 60's the Paper Doll held Halloween parties over-flowing down Union and up to Grant. There was a contest held for the best costume and drag queens came from as far away as New York to compete for the crown".<sup>63</sup> These were precursors to the formal Halloween Balls, and later parades.

Bob Ross described Halloween spectacles drawing parade buses full of drag queens coordinated by theme.

Bob Ross: "We had an alleyway next to us, Cadell Place, and we used to park cars in there . [...] But on Halloween we parked no cars in there and we'd run a big red carpet down the alleyway and put overhead lights and, you know, spotlights and stuff like that....[...] all these beautifully attired queens would come out of [a big bus] and walk down the alley on the red carpet, into the packed house on the stage. [...] So they were all trying to get the prize money and also to get the biggest crowds. [...] The 524 has a side entrance, and we were able to get them in the side entrance, and they could leave by the back kitchen entrance. So they could sort of pivot down the stage, do their schtick, circle out and go back out and go back out to their buses. And the straight people on the street were just ecstatic". [...] It lasted probably not quite to the 70's when some of the rowdies started coming in and throwing eggs at people and Christian crazies started coming in doing schticks on peoples heads. And at that time, a drag used to have to wear a button that said "I'm a boy" or "I'm a man". That was part of the law too at that time. And if you didn't have that, they'd lay you off to the jail".<sup>64</sup>

The US Military continued to list The 524 Club amongst 23 "off limits" San Francisco destinations in 1968, earning it's inclusion in the San Francisco Examiner's own "sin city" list. <sup>65</sup>

In a later incarnation, Arlene Arbuckle, owner of several watering holes, including nearby upper Grant Avenue bar The Anxious Asp would take over, and restore the Paper Doll name again in 1968 as Arlene Arbuckle's Paper Doll Tavern.

Paper Doll Reborn

If you can't wait until the LOFT ROOM of the SPEAKEASY is ready to serve dinners nightly, perhaps you might dine at San Francisco's oldest bar and restaurant, the PAPER DOLL, serving dinners in a completely redecorated dining room. Second only to the once famous BLACK CAT, and perhaps the forerunner of most every other dinner house in the Bay Area, THE PAPER DOLL has become a tradition and still caters to the discriminating tastes of the Bay Area's select clientele.

Let's Eat

We'd like to tell you about the early days at the PAPER DOLL, when Mona's CANDLE LIGHT, Charlotte's FRONT, and KENO's were packing 'em in nightly, but we're saving that for our book which we hope to finish some day. We can tell you that there was no finer restaurant anywhere, at any price, than the original PAPER DOLL. It was from here that Gordon, enjoying the epitome of success as its first chef, branched out As we were saying before we were so militantly interrupted, dining out in those special restaurants which cater to our own community is still the best bargain around.

We've just returned from the east — New York Oity to be specific — and we were amazed at the high prices in those few restaurants which cater to the gay community. We were further amazed at the poor selection of entrees and the shoddy atmosphere and manner in which food is served.

We realize that it is not fair to compare New York City with San Francisco and we are making no attempt to do so in this article, except to say to our readers: save your money while in New York for their many excellent stage shows, and enjoy dining out while you are in San Francisco where every restaurant competes with every other restaurant to offer the finest menu possible at the most reasonable prices.

We are surprised that there are not worn marks in the streets between the RED LIZARD, THE BLACK CAT, GOR-DON'S, and the famed original PAPER DOLL. On Sunday nights the thick pink slices of luscious Prime rib of roasts drew the crowds like a magnet, sharing them only with GORDON'S. They both competed to win the largest volume of hungry and thirsty customers whom they - Continued on Page 36

By 1972, the Paper Doll transitioned to the short lived Rolando's, this time under the ownership of Leo Rossi, a legendary local boy who owned the butcher at Grant & Union, and then The Godfather. Both maintained the same crowd despite attempts to attracts families, promoting kids meals, before shifting back to a Lesbian focused establishment.

The Paper Doll and subsequent incarnations became the only establishment catering to an LGBTQ crowd to survive the undercover busts and bridge the gap into the post-Stonewall Gay Pride era, offering a sense of continuity.

Legacy of the Paper Doll, notable affiliations and alumni

Bob Ross, a pioneering publisher, and activist, began publishing what would become the longest running Gay newspaper, Bay Area Reporter while at 524 Union Street. The first issue of the publication featured a prominent reference to the Paper Doll's brunches, and gossiping about who slept with who, in the second paragraph of the papers first column<sup>68</sup>.

As an alternative to the gossip sheets found in bars, the groundbreaking publication transformed LBGTQ communities; and publication was integral to the Gay Pride movements, and early AIDS reporting, unifying the idea of a Gay vote. Recognized by future judges, Sheriffs, Mayors, and Supervisors, such as Harvey Milk, who looked to Ross' endorsement. Bob Ross was said to have been at the top of the shortlist as Milk's successor. Ross also was named the 1978-1979 Emperor of San Francisco, by the Imperial Council, a counterpart to the symbolic drag queen title of Empress of San Francisco, and served on the board of trustees for the San Francisco Ballet. The Bob A. Ross Foundation was established to continue philanthropy in his name.

Another Paper Doll bartender<sup>69</sup>, Richard "Sweet Lips" Walters, went on to prominence as Bay Area Reporter's version of Herb Caen. He provided initiated support to Operation Concern-New Leaf, an early LGBTQ social services, mental health organization.

Maud's Study opening party flyer, with catering by Bob Ross of the 524 Club, circa 1966.

Rikki Streicher, a Paper Doll server and resident of the caretaker's unit at 524 Union, would go on to open Maud's Study in the Haight, the longest running Lesbian bar in the City, if not the world, plus Amelia's, which doubled as a community center in a Feminist Consciousness enclave which existed in the Valencia Corridor of the Mission. Streicher, one of the most important activist figureheads within the community, went on to co-found a Women's Softball League, later earning her a park named in her honor, and also co-founded the Gay Games, which would grow into a worldwide, annual event. Opening night at Maud's carried on the lineage of The Paper Doll, advertising the event's food "catered by Bob Ross of the 524 Club".

Gordon Jones, a chef, and William L. Bowman, worked together at the Paper Doll prior to opening Gordon's <sup>70</sup> describe at the time by one Gay guidebook as the "most elegant of San Francisco's gay spots [...] The clientele is mainly a lot of older gentleman in business suits". <sup>71</sup> Jones and Bowman were two of the first Gay men to own a Gay establishment in San Francisco. Gordon's transcended barriers and was highly regarded throughout San Francisco, with good food that borrowed heavily from the Paper Doll approach<sup>72</sup>, thanks to chef Fred Lavre poached from 524 Union, to providing a fine dining setting for all.

The Paper Doll also gave birth to the Copper Lantern (1335 Grant Ave.), one of the bars raided alongside it. Opened by two former waitresses, and a bartender, they faked a heterosexual marriage to gain ABC licensing.

Charlotte Coleman, a former server and patron of The Paper Doll opened The Front (600 Front Street at Jackson), plus an unparalleled list of Queer institutions, including the Golden Cask, and The Mint. Coleman was active in Society of Individual Rights, Operation Concern, The Tavern Guild, and the first financial institution established by an LGBT partnership, Atlas Savings and Loan.

Sam Hall, a partner in The 524, and cook at the Paper Doll, opened the trendsetting Toad Hall in 1971, credited as the introduction of Discos to The Castro, and one of the original Gay bars in the Eureka Valley neighborhood.

Amongst Paper Doll's influential patrons the legendary Lesbian and Women's rights pioneers, Del Martin, and Phyllis Lyon co-founded the "all girls closed club" Daughters of Bilitis in 1955 and later included 524 Union Street as one of their approved convention stops, as "reserved gay - very good food. Sunday Breakfast a must!". Much to the ridicule of San Francisco Chronicle Columnist Herb Caen, the focus of their 1st Convention in 1960, one of the largest LGBT convention of it's kind at that point, was in large part a reaction to the struggles of gathering places like The Paper Doll. Forming relationships with legal representation, knowing their rights, and the technicalities of the bar raids, they staged a debate with an ABC representative. While speaking warmly of their time spent at the Paper Doll, the organization's founders actually sought to provide public gathering alternatives to the dangers of the bar scene that had been so fundamental in the formative years of many Lesbians, but detrimental to others. For many, the smoky world of LGBTQ bars was scary and alienating<sup>73</sup>, and Gay Liberation organizations were at times virulently opposed to the idea of LGBT life centering around alcohol and rowdy bars.

On the 35th anniversary for the Daughters of Bilitis publication The Ladder, their biographer Marcia M. Gallo painted a picture of the times:

"Spring, 1957. San Franco. You're a lesbian in your late twenties and you've lived in the Bay Area for a few years. You work in an insurance office and rent a small apartment in North Beach. It's a Thursday night around 8, and you're feeling lonely.

You decide to take yourself to the Paper Doll for a drink despite your worries about police raids — it's the only place you know of to be around other lesbians. Maybe tonight you'll meet someone new. Sitting at the bar alone, you overhear a couple talking about a new group they've just heard about.... a social club for women. The Daughters of something...

When they get up to leave, you notice the little mimeographed magazine they left face down on the table."<sup>74</sup>

The Paper Doll continued until 1972 with the same mixture of Gays, Lesbians, friends; and allies, still known for their great food, and entertainment. Despite numerous owners and name changes, the much storied location remained a Queer space at least until 1975, and continued to garner listings in LGBTQ guide books long after.

Former Paper Doll server Reba Hudson reminisced about 524 Union during the 1980's noting "It hasn't changed so much physically, it's always had the same amount of space, and the dining room's in the back, right, and the entrances have changed and this or that" but the spirit remained<sup>75</sup>.

As a cultural monument the Paper Doll space remains configured as it has been for over a Century of use as a bar and restaurant.

The San Carlo Inn (1904-1935)

The San Carlo Inn was a Barbary Coast era Restaurant and Saloon, established preearthquake and existing for thirty four years. Directories show trade and boarding accommodations as well. Little is known other than the destination's land owner and proprietor; was founded by the liquor, and wine merchant, Lorenzo Bacigalupi. The San Carlo operated for another 8 years after his death in 1927, and was in operation before and after Prohibition.

During Prohibition; the Volstead Act allowed families exemptions to produce and purchase 200 gallons of wine annually, but according to Dante Benedetti "they all cheated". Speaking of the adjacent alley to Cadell Place, Benedetti said "they used to call Jasper Alley "Wine Alley" in those days". <sup>76</sup> The San Carlo's prohibition years are a mystery, although during a 1923 Prohibition seizure of Tequila smuggled on a Mexican steamer ship named "Chihuahua", the Cadell Alley was raided.<sup>77</sup> The San Carlo was the subject of other prohibition raids<sup>78</sup> and would close a couple years after the repeal.

Seized on Vessel Two hundred and firty hottley of tequila were found yesterday by outcome inspectors in various parts of the Mexican steamer Chihuahua. The liquor, worth about 36 a bottle, had been concealed in double walls, under lifeboats and other hiding places. The freighter Jeptha contained flys bottles of marcotics. Prohibition raids reported yesterday included: V. Bernardino, 524 Union street; H. A. Madero and Milton Boyd. 18 Larkin street; R. Colegari, 453 Union street; F. J. #### The Adua Cafe (1934-1944)

SF Call Bulletin said "The Adua Cafe is to Telegraph Hill what the St. Francis Hotel is to Union Square"<sup>79</sup>.

Opened shortly after the conclusion of Prohibition, by Italian immigrants from Milano and Genoa; Leo in 1907, and Elise in 1915, the Adua Cafe was described as "a popular meeting place for young newspaper men and women reporters. One goes there for a good Italian dinner and a game of bocce on the only indoor court in North Beach"<sup>50</sup>

By the 1940's Elise Perrone was a one Woman, sole proprietor with her own column in the San Francisco Chronicle, titled "In The Districts", and affectionately known as "Elise Perrone, boss of North Beach, and the Queen"<sup>81</sup>.

As a pioneering civic leader, Perrone founded The Adua Betterment Association, one of the first, if not the first community groups representing a Telegraph Hill/North Beach neighborhood now recognized for a long rich history of thriving influential community organizations. Perrone hosted meetings and events at 524 Union Street. As a celebrated community figurehead she was called to put her stamp of approval on the opening of the North Beach post office, and a brand new bus to Coit Tower which still passes 524 Union Street today. The "famed Adua Cafe" also hosted influential legislators, Civic Clubs and Boys Club events. During the wartime years, it became a meeting place for Government officials, maritime big wigs, and International diplomats acting as a virtual political back room. On the anniversary of US military action during WW2, Adua Cafe was listed as a "patriotic firm" sponsoring wartime Navy recruitment ads in the San Francisco Chronicle.

Manhattan Towers (1972-1975)

Owned by Katherine James, and leaning towards a "Lesbian pick-up place"<sup>82</sup>, Manhattan Towers advertised Italian food, live entertainment, and New York style pizza, a rarity for San Francisco in that period.

Russo's, Cadell Place (1975-1981)

Lovingly restored back to it's pre-Victorian and Victorian glory in 1975, by brothers Steve Russo and Dennis Russo, with a West Coast Craft interior utilizing on site salvaged reclaimed carriage house wood, since copied by many other San Francisco establishments. The corner entryway was moved at request of the city, to accommodate earthquake retrofitting, and sprinklers. Basement retail was added.

Melvin Belli interviewed outside Russo's circa 1976, courtesy Steve Russo

Russo's was a favorite of food critic Patricia Unterman for it's European/California cuisine. It was also a headline Jazz, and Rock venue. By this time, few remnants remained of the LGBTQ enclave in North Beach existed, aside from Steve Silver's Beach Blanket Babylon located nearby. With a return to Lesbian ownership with a silent partner, who happened to be a former nun; and her longtime parter as chef; 524 once again underwent another incarnation as Cadell Place for the second time, with food, drink, and entertainment, launching many careers including Bobby McFerrin's, with a weekly residency.

Silhouette's, The Field of San Francisco, Le Bordeaux (1981-2012)

In subsequent years, 524 Union Street became a popular 50's themed restaurant and retro sock hop dance club with lines around the corner. It's local cultural influence could be seen on KOFY-TV 20's Fifties "Dance Party". The Field, Irish Restaurant and Bar, known for brunches, and a French bistro concept called Le Bordeaux that became a temporary home to the private collection of paintings once housed in the legendary Washington Square Bar & Grill & Moose's. All acted as a destination for private parties in the back room, a polling location for elections, hosted toy drives, wedding parties, holiday parties for SFFD, Telegraph Hill Dweller's Christmas parties, neighborhood meetings, and more special events.

Commercial Offices

Used as a trades quarters, few details are known. The back carriage house space was the original location of the Emily Faithfull Kindergarten established under the inspiration and guidance of Women's rights activist, and Suffragette Emily Faithfull while on a rare visit to the United States, and a temporary site for philanthropist Phoebe A. Hearst's Golden Gate Kindergarten. The site also hosted the Union Street Experimental Kindergarten, The Helping Hand Free Kindergarten No.1 & No. 2, and Kahler Free Kindergarten; all pioneering institutions of the Golden Gate Kindergarten Association<sup>83</sup> founded by San Francisco Suffragette Sarah B. Cooper to serve the Barbary Coast<sup>84</sup>.

John Sweet was tasked to organize "a class of children between five and six years of age, in a vacant room, kept the school running for three months under the entire charge of pupils from the normal class, and finally, with Mrs. Cooper's assistance, succeeded in 1880 in making it a free public school under the name of the "Experimental Class." One year later a second class was opened in connection with Mrs. Cooper's kindergarten school on Union Street."

For many years the back carriage house space in the rear, behind the Restaurant and Bar, contained an interior Bocce Ball court.

Contemporary with LGBT establishments at 524 Union in the early 50's, the ground floor served as studios for WPA Federal Art Project artists and other internationally showcased artists, including:

Sargent Claude Johnson, the first African American artist on the West Coast to achieve a national reputation<sup>85</sup>, considered one of the finest sculptors of the Harlem Renaissance, though he spent most of his life in the Bay Area<sup>86</sup> he has received multiple retrospectives at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art. Notable work includes the exteriorreliefs, and lobby mosaics at the San Francisco Maritime Museum/Aquatic Park Bathhouse building. Later work while at Cadell Place included African masks.

Architectural photographer William Abbenseth, acknowledged for documenting Northern California buildings for the WPA, was a member of photography collective Group f.64, credited for changing the course of art photography, alongside Ansel Adams, Imogen Cunningham and Edward Weston.

Spero Anargyros, a public works sculptor, creator of the bronze bust of George Moscone sitting in City Hall, a 21 ton seal of the City and County of San Francisco; his work sits atop the California State Capitol, amongst other high profile commissions commemorating Hawaii's statehood, Mount Rushmore, Yellowstone National Park, and the Alaska Centennial.

Gurdon Woods, a sculptor and visionary arts educator who would go on to become President of the San Francisco Art Institute (previously known as California School of fine Arts), and founded the art department at UC Santa Cruz. Abstract artist Charles Safford, John P. Waltz and Richard Van Wingerden, an expressionist artist who worked alongside WPA muralists, and for a time, as the Paper Doll janitor.

M. Sherman, known just as Sherman, was an abstract artist described a "the grand Dyke mentor of my youth" by Lydia Millett, the defining architect of second wave Feminism.<sup>87</sup> Sherman's mid 70's art studio was described as "condemned" by Millet, symbolizing an end of an era<sup>88</sup>.

Frederic Hobb's, an experimental b-movie filmmaker with cult acclaim, satirist and madman visual artist considered the father of the modern movement of "art car" parade sculptures now synonymous with Burning Man, purchased and renovated 524 Union, dubbing the building "Hobb's Cottage Industries", to rent short term commercial, artisan and retail, including a delicatessen on the deck level. He was known to let himself in to the former Paper Doll space and help himself and friends to a few rounds, and work of that period reflects collaborations with Ann Weldon, who was synonymous with sell out shows there, and legendary LGBTQ performance art group The Cockettes.

As a hub for small business, and creativity, tenants included Chronicle/Examiner columnist, and Rampart's editor, Warren Hinckle with his Basset Hound, and digs covered in astroturf. Additionally it was the home for the groundbreaking early personal computing microchip manufacturer, the one man tech operation of Micromation; literary agencies, publicists, gaming designers, and a Women run small press publishing house responsible for releasing Del Martin's pioneering work "Battered Wives" and a campaign for greater media exposure outside San Francisco. 524 Union was also where award winning branding/packaging work for Apple, Napa's burgeoning world class Wineries, and countless recognizable household products were created making it central to North Beach's emerging graphic design district.

Additionally, the basement level had two subterranean retail spaces accessible from the street, housing The North Beach Chess Club, and The Enchanted House, an Asian antique store which later relocated to Grant Avenue.

In more recent years, 524 has housed Immigrant Rights legal assistance, a socially conscious green Ad agency, tech strategy companies, web designers, film production development and coworking office space for small business and cottage industry startups.

The Kiosk

One of San Francisco's oldest European style kiosks, the charming space is rumored to have been the original marquee, or ticket window for the Paper Doll. Retail use has included flower stands, bakery, tea shops, chocolates, a locksmith, handmade jewelry, and currently Hole in the Wall Coffee.

Cadell Place Alley (aka Cadell Alley)

One of San Francisco's rare privately owned alleys, 524 Union Street extends most of it's length, sharing the alley with the back bakery doors to the wood burning ovens of the former French Italian Bakery. The Paper Doll and all that came after have at times utilized the outdoor space for holiday events.

On August 20, 1956, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (hereinafter referred to as "department") filed an accusation against one Dante Benedetti, doing business as "Paper Doll," as an on-sale general licensee of the department, charging violations in two counts of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act. Count I was subdivided into two parts. Both charged the keeping of a disorderly house in conjunction with licensed premises, Count I(1) alleging disturbance of the neighborhood, Count I(2) injury to the public welfare and morals ( Bus. & Prof. Code, § 25601). + Count II charged the keeping of a resort for sexual perverts (§ 24200, subd. (e)). The accusation further charged that by reason of the facts therein alleged, the continuance of Benedetti's license would be contrary to public welfare and morals as set forth in section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California. Hearings were conducted, the matter was submitted, and on May 16, 1957, the department adopted the decision of its hearing officer, thereby dismissing the first part of Count I, and revoking Benedetti's on-sale general license on the bases of Counts I(2) and II severally.

+ All section references hereinafter are to be the Business and Professions Code, unless otherwise indicated.

Benedetti then appealed to the department's decision to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (hereinafter referred to as "board") which concluded that each of the counts was supported by substantial evidence. However, although affirming the decision as to Count I(2), the board reversed as to Count II, stating as grounds for said reversal that since the department had elected to revoke the license on the basis of Count I(2) and a violation of section 25601, it could not, on the same evidence, impose the same penalty on the basis of Count II upon the theory that Benedetti was guilty of a second and separate offense. In Vallerga v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1959), 53 Cal.2d 313 [347 P.2d 909], the Supreme Court held section 24200, subdivision (c), to be unconstitutional, and any question as to the correctness of this ruling is now moot.

Benedetti subsequently sought review of the decision by the court below in a petition for writ of mandamus. The court issued an order staying enforcement of the order of revocation, whereupon a hearing occurred and the cause was submitted. The court subsequently filed findings of fact and conclusions of law wherein it upheld the board's decision, and judgment was entered setting aside the alternative writs and denying a peremptory writ of mandate. Benedetti appeals from this judgment.

The board's decision, affirmed by the court below, upheld the department's order of revocation on the sole ground of a violation of section 25601. Appellant contends, first, that in a prosecution under that section, proof of knowledge by the licensee or his agents of proscribed acts is necessary; second, that the evidence is insufficient to establish such knowledge in the instant case.

In Swegle v. State Board of Equalization (1954), 125 Cal.App.2d 432 [270 P.2d 518], appellant made a similar contention with regard to section 58 of the then Alcoholic Beverage Control Act (now § 25601). In finding this proposition to be without merit, the court said ". . . Appellant cites numerous cases from other jurisdictions to the effect that 'permit' means knowledge, consent, acquiescence, willingness, as distinguished from passive sufferance. However, in Dorris v. McKamy, 40 Cal.App. 267, 274 [180 P. 645], it is said that 'as defined by Webster and others, "permit" implies no affirmative acts. It involves no intent. It is mere passivity, abstaining from preventive action.''' (P. 438.)

In Mercurio v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1956), 144 Cal.App.2d 626, 630 [301 P.2d 474], the court interpreted the Swegle case as holding that the permission required by the statute does not have to be a "knowing" one and that "a licensee can be held to have permitted acts constituting a . . [violation] by a showing that the acts themselves took place. Further on in the opinion, the court said "The very fact that rules and laws providing for violations for which disciplinary action may be taken, provide that some violations must be 'knowingly' done [§ 24200.5, subd. (a)] and as to others the word 'knowingly' is omitted, indicates that in the latter cases there is no requirement that the violations be knowing ones. 'Knowingly' not being required in either rule 143 or section 24200, the use of that word in the accusation was immaterial and is not necessary to be found." (Pp. 630-631.) (Brodsky v. California State Board of Pharmacy (1959), 173 Cal.App.2d 680-688 [344 P.2d 68], cited by appellant, is in harmony with this decision.

Cal.App.2d 680-688 [344 P.2d 68], cited by appellant, is in harmony with this decision. In Givens v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1959), 176 Cal.App.2d 529, 534 [1 Cal.Rptr. 446], the appellant argued that inasmuch as the findings of the hearing officer showed that he had made reasonable attempts to control his customers, those findings did not support the determination that he was guilty of a violation of section 25601, "suffixers" means "to permit, allow, or not to forbid activities which constitute the premises a 'disorderly house.' Since an on-sale licensee has an affirmative duty to maintain properly operated premises [citation], and since acquiescence is nonetheless permission or sufferance within the purview of section 25601 [citing Swegle]. Givens failed to perform his statutory duty. The law demands that he in fact so conduct his business that it meets the minimum requirements of decency and morality. If, as in this present case, the overwhelming evidence shows that the tavem is in fact a 'disorderly house,' there can be but one conclusion: that the licensee has permitted or suffered such a condition to exist...."

Since appellant does not contest that the evidence is sufficient to support the judgment, although refusing to concede its accuracy, we deem it unnecessary to summarize the evidence produced before the hearing officer. The rule that although the factual determinations of the department may be set aside upon a showing of a lack of substantial evidence, a court may not reweigh the evidence or assess the credibility of witnesses (Mercurio v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, supra; Brice v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1957), 153 Cal.App.2d 315 [314 P.2d 807]), therefore obviates further discussion in this regard.

In addition, the appellant claims that the hearing officer erred in receiving testimony to the effect that the premises in question have a reputation for being a "hangout for homosexuals," and in this connection, he urges that this was inadmissible hearsay and its receipt in evidence constituted reversible error. It is to be noted that there was no objection to this testimony during the hearing because the now invalid section 24200, subdivision (e), provided that in addition to any other legally competent evidence, the character of the premises as "a resort" for sexual perverts might be proved by general reputation. There is evidence in the record placing appellant's employees in the near proximity of the wrongful acts. There is also evidence which supports an inference that the employees were aware of the continuing misconduct, viz., on the instance occurring on May 13, 1956, following the occasion when a patron named John Cowgill invited Agent Johnson to engage in a lewd act. After Johnson left the bar with Cowgill and placed him under arrest, Johnson returned to the bar and asked

Police Officer Tregoning to come outside. At this time, the bartender, Rick, warned Tregoning, who was not known to be a police officer, not to go outside with Johnson. The bartender said that several arrests had been made the night before; it would be all right as long as he did not leave the premises. Moreover, there was also evidence, unobjected to and clearly admissible in view of the acts alleged in the accusation, that appellant himself had characterized the patrons of the "Paper Doll" as being "gay" (synonymous with homosexual). Appellant also stated that in the "Paper Doll," only he and the cook named Johnny were "straight" or "square." Furthermore, section 11513 of the Government Code makes hearsay admissible in this type of administrative hearing and this applies to evidence of reputation as well as to any other type of hearsay. (Swegle x State Board of Equalization, supra; 19 Cal.Jur.2d, § 383, p. 116; 2 Cal.Jur.2d, § 147, p. 251.) Therefore, no effective objection to its introduction could have been interposed even in lieu of section 24200, subdivision (e). While it is true that section 11513 specifies that whereas hearsay may be used for the purpose of supplementing or explaining any direct evidence, it shall not be sufficient in itself to support a finding unless it would be admissible over objections in civil actions. However, as we have noted above, no contention is made as to the substantiality of the direct evidence herein of such homosexual activities on the premises which has been repeatedly held to be within the purview of section 25601. It is our view that the complained-of hearsay is merely supplementary thereto and nothing more.

Finally, it should be noted that in the department's original decision, it was determined that the continuance of appellant's license would be contrary to public welfare and morals within the meaning of those terms as used in section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California. In Vallerga v, Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, supra, the Supreme Court reversed a judgment denying a writ of mandamus to compel the department to set aside its revocation grounded to a violation of the invalid section 24200, subdivision (e), despite the fact that there was sufficient evidence to sustain a revocation on said constitutional grounds. However, in that case, the trier of fact had made no findings with regard to this evidence and, furthermore, the accusation failed to put the licensees on notice that their license might thereby be revoked. Thus, to have sustained the revocation under the constitutional provision would have violated due process of law. Neither the accusation nor the findings present such an impediment in the instant case. Appellant refrains from contending otherwise, and from charging that the licensee's knowledge of the facts is required under section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California, confining his objection to the argument that because the board sustained the department on a different ground, this court is restricted to a consideration of that ground only. It is our view that no such restriction exists. Judoment is affirmed.

Benedetti then appealed to the department's decision to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (hereinafter referred to as "board") which concluded that each of the counts [187 Cal. App. 2d 215] was supported by substantial evidence. However, although affirming the decision as to Count I(2), the board reversed as to Count II, stating as grounds for said reversal that since the department had elected to revoke the license on the basis of Count I(2) and a violation of section 25601, it could not, on the same evidence, impose the same penalty on the basis of Count II upon the theory that Benedetti was guilty of a second and separate offense. In Vallerga v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1959), 53 Cal. 2d 313 [347 P.2d 909], the Supreme Court held section 24200, subdivision (e), to be unconstitutional, and any question as to the correctness of this ruling is now moot.

Benedetti subsequently sought review of the decision by the court below in a petition for writ of mandamus. The court issued an order staying enforcement of the order of revocation, whereupon a hearing occurred and the cause was submitted. The court subsequently filed findings of fact and conclusions of law wherein it upheld the board's decision, and judgment was entered setting aside the alternative writs and denying a peremptory writ of mandate. The board's decision, affirmed by the court below, upheld the department's order of revocation on the sole ground of a violation of section 25601. [1] Appellant contends, first, that in a prosecution under that section, proof of knowledge by the licensee or his agents of proscribed acts is necessary; second, that the evidence is insufficient to establish such knowledge in the instant case.

that "a licensee can be held to have permitted acts constituting a ... [violation] by a showing that the acts themselves took place. California State Board of Pharmacy (1959), 173 Cal. App. 2d 680-688 [344 P.2d 68], cited by appellant, is in harmony with this decision.

In Givens v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1959), 176 Cal. App. 2d 529, 534 [1 Cal. Rptr. 446], the appellant argued that inasmuch as the findings of the hearing officer showed that he had made reasonable attempts to control his customers, those findings did not support the determination that he was guilty of a violation of section 24200, subdivisions (a) and (b), and section 25601. The court, however, found that as used in the context of section 25601, "suffers" means "to permit, allow, or not to forbid activities which constitute the premises a 'disorderly house.' Since an on-sale licensee has an affirmative duty to maintain properly operated premises [citation], and since acquiescence is nonetheless permission or sufferance within the purview of section 25601 [citing Swegle], Givens failed to perform his statutory duty. The law requires more than that a licensee make some colorable efforts toward the maintenance of lawfully conducted premises. The law demands that he in fact so conduct his business that it meets the minimum requirements of decency and morality. If, as in this present case, the overwhelming evidence shows that the tavern is in fact a 'disorderly house,' there can be but one conclusion: that the licensee has permitted or suffered such a condition to exist. ..."

On August 20, 1956, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (hereinafter referred to as "department") filed an accusation against one Dante Benedetti, doing business as "Paper Doll," as an on-sale general licensee of the department, charging violations in two counts of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act. Count I was subdivided into two parts. Both charged the keeping of a disorderly house in conjunction with licensed premises, Count I(1) alleging disturbance of the neighborhood, Count I(2) injury to the public welfare and morals (Bus. & Prof. Code, 25601).<sup>-[fn.]</sup>. Count II charged the keeping of a resort for sexual perverts (24200, subd. (e)). The accusation further charged that by reason of the facts therein alleged, the continuance of Benedetti's license would be contrary to public welfare and morals as set forth in section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California. Hearings were conducted, the matter was submitted, and on May 16, 1957, the department adopted the decision of its hearing officer, thereby dismissing the first part of Count I, and revoking Benedetti's on-sale general license on the bases of Counts I(2) and II severally.

Benedetti then appealed to the department's decision to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (hereinafter referred to as "board") which concluded that each of the counts *215 was supported by substantial evidence. However, although affirming the decision as to Count I(2), the board reversed as to Count II, stating as grounds for said reversal that since the department had elected to revoke the license on the basis of Count I(2) and a violation of section 25601, it could not, on the same evidence, impose the same penalty on the basis of Count II upon the theory that Benedetti was guilty of a second and separate offense. In Vallerga v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1959), 53 Cal.2d 313 [347 P2d 909], the Supreme Court held section 24200, subdivision (e), to be unconstitutional, and any question as to the correctness of this ruling is now moot.

Benedetti subsequently sought review of the decision by the court below in a petition for writ of mandamus. The court issued an order staying enforcement of the order of revocation, whereupon a hearing occurred and the cause was submitted. The court subsequently filed findings of fact and conclusions of law wherein it upheld the board's decision, and judgment was entered setting aside the alternative writs and denying a peremptory writ of mandate. Benedetti appeals from this judgment.

The board's decision, affirmed by the court below, upheld the department's order of revocation on the sole ground of a violation of section 25601. [1] Appellant contends, first, that in a prosecution under that section, proof of knowledge by the licensee or his agents of proscribed acts is necessary; second, that the evidence is insufficient to establish such knowledge in the instant case.

In Swegle v. State Board of Equalization (1954), 125 Cal.App.2d 432 [270 P.2d 518], appellant made a similar contention with regard to section 58 of the then Alcoholic Beverage Control Act (now 25601). In finding this proposition to be without merit, the court said "... Appellant cites numerous cases from other jurisdictions to the effect that 'permit' means knowledge, consent, acquiescence, willingness, as distinguished from passive sufferance.

However, in Dorris v. McKamy, 40 Cal.App. 267, 274 [180 P. 645], it is said that 'as defined by Webster and others, "permit" implies no affirmative acts. It involves no intent. It is mere passivity, abstaining from preventive action.' " (P. 438.)

In Mercurio v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1956), 144 Cal.App.2d 626, 630 [301 P.2d 474]. the court interpreted the Swegle case as holding that the permission required by the statute does not have to be a "knowing" one *216 and that "a licensee can be held to have permitted acts constituting a ... [violation] by a showing that the acts themselves took place. Further on in the opinion, the court said "The very fact that rules and laws providing for violations for which disciplinary action may be taken, provide that some violations must be 'knowingly' done [ 24200.5, subd. (a)] and as to others the word 'knowingly' is omitted, indicates that in the latter cases there is no requirement that the violations be knowing ones. 'Knowingly' not being required in either rule 143 or section 24200, the use of that word in the accusation was immaterial and is not necessary to be found." (Pp. 630-631.) (Brodsky v. California State Board of Pharmacy (1959), 173 Cal.App.2d 680-688 [344 P.2d 68], cited by appellant, is in harmony with this decision."

In Givens v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1959). 176 Cal.App.2d 529, 534 [1 Cal.Rptr. 446], the appellant argued that inasmuch as the findings of the hearing officer showed that he had made reasonable attempts to control his customers, those findings did not support the determination that he was guilty of a violation of section 24200, subdivisions (a) and (b), and section 25601. The court, however, found that as used in the context of section 25601, "suffers" means "to permit, allow, or not to forbid activities which constitute the premises a 'disorderly house.' Since an on-sale licensee has an affirmative duty to maintain properly operated premises [citation], and since acquiescence is nonetheless permission or sufferance within the purview of section 25601 [citing Swegle], Givens failed to perform his statutory duty. If, as in this present case, the overwhelming evidence shows that the tavern is in fact a 'disorderly house,' there can be but one conclusion: that the licensee has permitted or suffered such a condition to exist. ..."

Since appellant does not contest that the evidence is sufficient to support the judgment, although refusing to concede its accuracy, we deem it unnecessary to summarize the evidence produced before the hearing officer. [2] The rule that although the factual determinations of the department may be set aside upon a showing of a lack of substantial evidence, a court may not reweigh the evidence or assess the credibility of witnesses (Mercurio v. Department of Alcoholic *217 Beverage Control, supra; Brice v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1957), 153 Cal.App.2d 315 [314 P.2d 807]), therefore obviates further discussion in this regard.

[3] In addition, the appellant claims that the hearing officer erred in receiving testimony to the effect that the premises in question have a reputation for being a "hangout for homosexuals," and in this connection, he urges that this was inadmissible hearsay and its receipt in evidence constituted reversible error. It is to be noted that there was no objection to this testimony during the hearing because the now invalid section 24200, subdivision (e), provided that in addition to any other legally competent evidence, the character of the premises as "a resort" for sexual perverts might be proved by general reputation. (Swegle v, State Board of Equalization, supra: 19 Cal.Jur.2d, 383, p. 116; 2 Cal.Jur.2d, 147, p. 251.) Therefore, no effective objection to its introduction could have been interposed even in lieu of section 24200, subdivision (e).

While it is true that section 11513 specifies that whereas hearsay may be used for the purpose of supplementing or explaining any direct evidence, it shall not be sufficient in itself to support a finding unless it would be admissible over *218 objections in civil actions. However, as we have noted above, no contention is made as to the substantiality of the direct evidence herein of such homosexual activities on the premises which has been repeatedly held to be within the purview of section 25601. It is our view that the complained-of hearsay is merely supplementary thereto and nothing more.

[4] Finally, it should be noted that in the department's original decision, it was determined that the continuance of appellant's license would be contrary to public welfare and morals within the meaning of those terms as used in section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California. In Vallerga v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, supra, the Supreme Court reversed a judgment denying a writ of mandamus to compel the department to set aside its revocation grounded to a violation of the invalid section 24200, subdivision (e), despite the fact that there was sufficient evidence to sustain a revocation on said constitutional grounds. However, in that case, the trier of fact had made no findings with regard to this evidence and, furthermore, the accusation failed to put the licensees on notice that their license might thereby be revoked. Thus, to have sustained the revocation under the constitutional provision would have violated due process of law.

Neither the accusation nor the findings present such an impediment in the instant case. Appellant refrains from contending otherwise, and from charging that the licensee's knowledge of the facts is required under section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California, confining his objection to the argument that because the board sustained the department on a different ground, this court is restricted to a consideration of that ground only. It is our view that no such restriction exists.

OPINION

On August 20, 1956, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (hereinafter referred to as "department") filed an accusation against one Dante Benedetti, doing business as "Paper Doll," as an on-sale general licensee of the department, charging violations in two counts of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act. Count I was subdivided into two parts. Both charged the keeping of a disorderly house in conjunction with licensed premises, Count I(1) alleging disturbance of the neighborhood, Count I(2) injury to the public welfare and morals ( Bus. & Prof. Code, § 25601). + Count II charged the keeping of a resort for sexual perverts (§ 24200, subd. (e)). The accusation further charged that by reason of the facts therein alleged, the continuance of Benedetti's license would be contrary to public welfare and morals as set forth in section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California. Hearings were conducted, the matter was submitted, and on May 16, 1957, the department adopted the decision of its hearing officer, thereby dismissing the first part of Count I, and revoking Benedetti's on-sale general license on the bases of Counts I(2) and II severally.

+ All section references hereinafter are to be the Business and Professions Code, unless otherwise indicated.

Benedetti then appealed to the department's decision to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (hereinafter referred to as "board") which concluded that each of the counts was supported by substantial evidence. However, although affirming the decision as to Count I(2), the board reversed as to Count II, stating as grounds for said reversal that since the department had elected to revoke the license on the basis of Count I(2) and a violation of section 25601, it could not, on the same evidence, impose the same penalty on the basis of Count II upon the theory that Benedetti was guilty of a second and separate offense. In Vallerga v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1959), 53 Cal.2d 313 [347 P.2d 909], the Supreme Court held section 24200, subdivision (e), to be unconstitutional, and any question as to the correctness of this ruling is now moot.

Benedetti subsequently sought review of the decision by the court below in a petition for writ of mandamus. The court issued an order staying enforcement of the order of revocation, whereupon a hearing occurred and the cause was submitted. The court subsequently filed findings of fact and conclusions of law wherein it upheld the board's decision, and judgment was entered setting aside the alternative writs and denying a peremptory writ of mandate. Benedetti appeals from this judgment.

The board's decision, affirmed by the court below, upheld the department's order of revocation on the sole ground of a violation of section 25601. Appellant contends, first, that in a prosecution under that section, proof of knowledge by the licensee or his agents of proscribed acts is necessary; second, that the evidence is insufficient to establish such knowledge in the instant case.

In Swegle v. State Board of Equalization (1954), 125 Cal.App.2d 432 [270 P.2d 518], appellant made a similar contention with regard to section 58 of the then Alcoholic Beverage Control Act (now § 25601). In finding this proposition to be without merit, the court said ". . . Appellant cites numerous cases from other jurisdic-tions to the effect that 'permit' means knowledge, consent, acquiesmeans knowledge, consent, acquiescence, willingness, as distinguished from passive sufferance. However, in Dorris v. McKamy, 40 Cal.App. 267, 274 [180 P. 645], it is said that 'as defined by Webster and others, "permit" implies no affirmative acts. It involves no intent. Ιt is mere passivity, abstaining from preventive action.'" (P. 438.)

In Mercurio v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1956), 144 Cal.App.2d 626, 630 [301 P.2d 474], the court interpreted the Swegle case as holding that the permission required by the statute does not have to be a "knowing" one and that "a licensee can be held to have permitted acts constituting a . . . [violation] by a showing that the acts themselves took place. Further on in the opinion, the court said "The very fact that rules and laws providing for violations for which disciplinary action may be taken, provide that some viola-tions must be 'knowingly' done [§ 24200.5, subd. (a)] and as to others the word 'knowingly' is omitted, indicates that in the latter cases there is no requirement that the violations be knowing ones. 'Knowingly' not being required in either rule 143 or section 24200, the use of that word in the accusation was immaterial and is not necessary to be found." (Pp. 630-631.) ( Brodsky v. California State of Board Pharmacy (1959), 173 Cal.App.2d 680-688 [344 P.2d 68], cited by appellant, is in harmony with this decision.

In Givens v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1959), 176

Cal.App.2d 529, 534 [1 Cal.Rptr. 446], the appellant argued that inasmuch as the findings of the hearing officer showed that he had made reasonable attempts to control his customers, those findings did not support the determination that he was guilty of a violation of section 24200, subdivisions (a) and (b), and section 25601. The court, however, found that as used in the context of section 25601, "suffers" means "to permit, allow, or not to forbid activities which constitute the premises a 'disorderly house.' Since an on-sale licensee has an affirmative duty to maintain properly [citation], operated premises and since acquiescence is nonetheless permission or sufferance within the pur-view of section 25601 [citing Swegle], Givens failed to perform his statutory duty. The law requires more than that a licensee make some colorable efforts toward the maintenance of lawfully conducted premises. The law demands that he in fact so conduct his business that it meets the minimum re-quirements of decency and morality. If, as in this present case, the overwhelming evidence shows that the tavern is in fact a 'disorderly house,' there can be but one conclusion: that the licensee has permitted or suffered such a condition to exist. . . ."

Since appellant does not contest that the evidence is sufficient to support the judgment, although refusing to concede its accuracy, we deem it unnecessary to summarize the evidence produced before the hearing officer. The rule that although the factual determinations of the department may be set aside upon a showing of a lack of substantial evidence, a court may not reweigh the evidence or assess the credibility of witnesses ( Mercurio v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, supra; Brice v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1957), 153 Cal.App.2d 315 [314 P.2d 807]), therefore obviates further discussion in this regard.

In addition, the appellant claims that the hearing officer erred in receiving testimony to the effect that the premises in question have a reputation for being a "hangout for homosexuals," and in this connection, he urges that this was inadmissible hearsay and its receipt in evidence constituted reversible error. It is to be noted that there was no objection to this testimony during the hearing because the now invalid section 24200, subdivision (e), provided that in addition to any other legally competent evidence, the character of the premises as "a resort" for sexual perverts might be proved by general reputation. There is evidence in the record placing appellant's employees in the near proximity of the wrongful acts. There is also evidence which supports an inference that the employees were aware of the continuing mis-conduct, viz., on the instance occur-ring on May 13, 1956, following the occasion when a patron named John Cowgill invited Agent Johnson to engage in a lewd act. After Johnson left the bar with Cowgill and placed him under arrest, Johnson returned to the bar and asked Police Officer Tregoning to come outside. At this time, the bartender, Rick, warned Tregoning, who was not known to be a police officer, not to go outside with Johnson. The bartender said that several arrests had been made the night before; it would be all right as long as he did not leave the premises. Moreover, there was also evidence, unobjected to and clearly admissible in view of the acts alleged in the accusation, that appellant himself had characterized the patrons of the "Paper Doll" as be-"gay" (synonymous ina with homosexual) Appellant also stated that in the "Paper Doll," only he and the cook named Johnny were "straight" or "square." Furthermore, section 11513 of the Government Code makes hearsay admissible in this type of administrative hearing and this applies to evidence of reputation as well as to any other type of hearsay. (Swegle v. State Board of Equalization, supra; 19 Cal.Jur.2d, § 383, p. 116; 2 Cal.Jur.2d, § 147, p. 251.) Therefore, no effective objection to its introduction could have been interposed even in lieu of section 24200, subdivision (e).

While it is true that section 11513 specifies that whereas hearsay may be used for the purpose of supplementing or explaining any direct evidence, it shall not be sufficient in itself to support a finding unless it would be admissible over objections in civil actions. However, as we have noted above, no contention is made as to the substantiality of the direct evidence herein of such homosexual activities on the premises which has been repeatedly held to be within the purview of section 25601. It is our view that the complained-of hearsay is merely supplementary thereto and nothing more.

Finally, it should be noted that in the department's original decision, it was determined that the continuance of appellant's license would be contrary to public welfare and morals within the meaning of those terms as used in section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California. In Vallerga v, Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, supra, the Supreme Court reversed a judgment denying a writ of mandamus to compel the department to set aside its revocation grounded to a violation of the invalid section 24200, subdivision (e), despite the fact that there was sufficient evidence to sustain a revocation on said constitutional grounds. How-ever, in that case, the trier of fact had made no findings with regard to this evidence and, furthermore, the accusation failed to put the licensees on notice that their license might thereby be revoked. Thus, to have sustained the revocation under the constitutional provision would have violated due process of law.

Neither the accusation nor the findings present such an impediment in the instant case. Appellant refrains from contending otherwise, and from charging that the licensee's knowledge of the facts is required under section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California, confining his objection to the argument that because the board sustained the department on a different ground, this court is restricted to a consideration of that ground only. It is our view that no such restriction exists.

Judgment is affirmed.

petitioner's favor in the original proceedings would negate the wife's right to support and remove the basis for the separate maintenance action, and, conversely, an order in the wife's favor negates the right to the final decree, affrms the basis for the wife's right to support, and affords the ground for a separate maintenance action.

In order to achieve her objective of separate mnintenance; the wife faced the necessity of removing any asserted final dearee. [3] Obviously the final decree "grants the divorce, dissolves the marriage, restores the parties to the status of single persons, and permits each to marry again." (Estate, of Dargie (1912), 162 Chi, 51, 53 [121 P. 320].) [4] Unless the final decree provides for support, the wife after its rendition, can claim none. (Oathour v. Californ (1945), 70 Cal. On the other hand, petitioner's success in consolidation his position on the final decree and in establishing it, would obliterate any claim for support.

In the wife's attempt to set aside the final decree the factor of reconciliation becomes vitul. [5] As is stated in Estate. of Abilo (1948), 32 Uni 21 559; 561 [107 P.2d 10], "When parties become reconciled after an interlocatory decree and live together as husband and wife, the right to a final decree is destroyed. . . . [6] Upon showing a reconciliation and thereby eliminating the final decire. the wife reestablishes her right to support. [7] The right to separate maintenance " rests on the fact that the relation of husband and wife exists and a degree awarding such maintenance contemplates the existence (Chirquin v. Chirquin (1928), 26 Cal.App.24 506, 508-509 [79 B.2d 772].) The integral role played; then, by the issue of reconciliation cogently affects the right to separate maintename. [8] The dispute as to the right to the final decree directly concerns the right to the separate maintenance. Petitioner in asserting the former cannot successfully exclude delense of the latter. Petitioner, laying hold of the marriage relationship and seeking to terminate it by the final decree. ununot coincidentally claim immunity from an action of his. wife which rests upon that relationship and would seek to enforce it.

was supported by substantial avidence. However, although affirming the decision as to Gount I(2), the heard reversed as to Count IT, stating as grounds for said reversal that since the department had elected to revoke the hears, on the basis of Count I(2) and a violation of section 25601, it could not, on the same evidence, impose the same penalty on the basis of Count II upon the theory that Benedetti was guilty of a second and separate offense. In Vallarga v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1959), 53 Cal 2d 313 [1347 P.2d 909], the Supreme Court held section 24200, subdivision (e), to be unconstitutional, and any question as to the correctness of this ruling is now meet.

Benedetti subsequently sought review of the decision by the court below in a perition for writ of mandamus. The court issued an order staving enforcement of the order of revocation, whereupon a hearing occurred and the cause was submitted. The court subsequently filed findings of fact and conclusions of law wherein it upheld the board's decision, and judgment was entered setting aside the alternative writs and denying a peremptory writ of mandate. Benedetti appeals from this judgment.

The board's decision, affirmed by the court helow, upheld the department's order of revocation on the sole ground of a violation of section 25601. [1] Appellant contends, first, that in a prosecution under that section, proof of knowledge by the licensee or his agents of proscribed acts is necessary; second, that the evidence is insufficient to establish such knowledge in the instant case.

In Swegle v. State Board of Equalization (1054), 125 Cal. App.2d 432 [270 P.2d 518], appellant made a similar contention with regard to section 58 of the theo Alcoholic Beverage. Control Aut (now $25601). In finding this proposition to be without merif, the court said '... In Mercuria 7. Department of Alcaholic Beverage Control (1955), 144 Cal App.2d 626, 630 [301 P.2d 474], the court interpreted the Swegle case as holding that the permission required by the statute does not have to be a "knowing" one and that "a themsee can be held to have paralited acts constituting a . [Molnical by a shoring that the dats themselves tools place. Further on in the opinion, the court sold. 'Knowingly' not being required in atthet, rule 14S or section 24200, the use of that word in the necessary to be found." (Pp. 630-631.) i Broashy v. California State Board of Pharmacy (1959), 173 Cal. App.26 680-688 [344 P.26 68], sited by appellant, is in harmony with this decision.

In Givens v. Department of Alealishic Beverage Cuntrol (1059), 176 Cal App. 2d 529, 514 [1 Cal Rote, 446], the appellant argued that inusing it as the fludings of the heaving officer showed that he had made reasonable attempts to control his customers, those findings did not support the determination that he was guilty of a violation of section 24200, subdivisions (a) and (b), and section 25601. The sourt, however, found that as used in the context of section 25601, "suffers" means "to permit, allow, or not to forbid activities which constitute the premises a 'disorderly house.' Since an on-sale licensee has, an affirmative duty to mulatoin properly operated premises [citation]; and since acquiescence is nonetheless permission or sufferance within the purview of section 25601 faiting Sweglel, Givens falled to perform his statutory duty. Since appellant does not context that the wridence is suffivient to support the judgment, although refusing to concede its accuracy, we deem it nuncersary to summarize the evidence produced before the hearing officer. [2] The rulethat although the factual determinations of the department may be set aside upon a showing of a lack of substantial syidence, a court may not reweigh the evidence or assess the credibility of witnesses (Marcurio y, Department of Alcoholic Appellant also stated that in the "Paper Doll." only be and the cook named Johnny were "straight" or "sounce." Furthermore, section 11513 of the Government Code makes hearsay admissible in this type of administrative ligating and this applies to evidence of reputation as well as to any other type of hearsay. (Swegle v. Sinte Board of Equalization, supra ; 19 Cal. Jur. 20, § 383, p. 116; 2 Cal. Jur. 24, § 147. p. 251.) Therefore, no effective objection to its introduction could have been interposed even in lieu of section 24200, subdivision (e);

It is our view that the complained of hearsay is merely supplementary thereto and nothing more.

[4] Finally, it should be noted that in the department's original decision, it was determined that the continuance of appellant's license would be contrary to public welfare and morals within the meaning of those terms as used in section 22. article XX. of the Constitution of California. In Vallerga v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, unpra, the Supreme Court reversed a judgment densing a writ of mandamus to compel the department to set aside its revocation gramided to a violation of the invalid section 24200, subdivision (e), despite the fact that there was sufficient evidence to sustain a revocation on said constitutional grounds. However, in that case. The trior of fact had made no findings with regard to this evidence and, furthermore, the accusation failed to put the licensees on notice that their license might thereby be revolved. Thus, to have sustained the revocation under the constitutional provision would linve violated due process of law.

Neither the accessition not the findings present such an impediment in the instant case. Appellant refrains from contending otherwise, and from charging that the licensee's knowledge of the facts is required under section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California, confining his objection to the araument that because the board sustained the department on a different ground, this court is restricted to a consideration of that ground, this court is restricted to a consideration exists.

2. Between October 11, 1955 and the date hereof, the above-named licensee kept, permitted to be used and suffered to be used, in connection with the above-described licensed premises, a disorderly house or place to which people resorted for purposes contrary to the public welfare and morals in that the said licensee permitted or suffered the following acts to occur in the said premises;

(a) Males kissing and caressing other males.

(b) Males engaging in lewd and indecent acts with other males.

(c) Lewd and indecent conversations.

(d) On or about May 13, 1956, John E. Cowgill, a patron, invited Agent James R. Johnson to engage in a lewd act." (C.T. 33:1-15)

After a hearing as required by law the following findings of fact were made by the hearing officer and adopted by the Department:

"(2): It is true that between October 11, 1955 and August 20, 1956, the above-named licensee kept, permitted to be used, and suffered to be used, in connection with the above-described licensed premises, a disorderly house and place to which people resorted for purposes contrary to public welfare and morals in that the said licensee permitted and suffered the following acts to occur in the said premises: (a) Males kissing and caressing other males; (b) Males engaging in lewd and indecent acts with other males; (c) Lewd and indecent conversations; and (d) on or about May 13, 1956, John E. Cowg111, a patron, invited Agent James R. Johnson to engage in a lewd act," (C.T. 34:14-25)

25 On the basis of these findings, the hearing officer 28 made, and the Department adopted, the following determination

HISTORY OF CASE.

Appellant, Dante Benedetti, was, at the time the Accusation was filed herein, the possessor of on-sale General License No. P-5655-C, issued by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control of the State of California.

On August 20, 1956, an Accusation Under Alcoholic Beverage Control Act and State Constitution was filed against appellant, who had been, and still is, doing business as the "Paper Doll" at 524 Union Street, San Francisco, California.

Hearings were held on December 3, 1956; April 10 and 11, 1957; and February 15, 1957.

The Accusation was as follows:

"Count One

1. Between October 11, 1955 and the date hereof, the above named licensee kept, permitted to be used and suffered to be used, in connection with the above designated licensed premises, a disorderly house or place to which people resorted to the disturbance of the neighborhood in that:

(a) Excessive noise was created by patrons in and about the premises during late and unusual hours.

(b) Numerous fights and disturbances occurred in and about the premises.

2. Between October 11, 1955, and the date hereof, the above named licensee kept, permitted to be used and suffered to be used, in connection with the above described licensed premises, a disorderly house or place to which people resorted for purposes contrary to the public welfare and morals in that the said licensee permitted or sufferred the following acts to occur in the said premises:

(a) Males kissing and caressing other males.

(b) Males engaging in lewd and indecent. acts with other males.

(c) Lewd and indecent coversations.

(d) On or about May 13, 1956, John E. Cowgill, a patron, invited agent James B. Johnson, to engage in a lewd act.

Count II

The portion of the above designated licensed premises of the above named licensee upon which the activities permitted by the on-sale General Licensee are conducted has been since October 11, 1955, and is now, a resort for sexual perverts."

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (hereinafter called "the Department") rendered a decision dismissing the Accusation as to Count I (1) and finding the allegations of Count I (2) and Count II to be true.

Appellant's license was revoked twice once for the offense found to be true in Count I (2) and once again for the offense found to be true in Count II.

Appellant appealed to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (hereinafter called "Appeals Board"). That body affirmed the Department as to Count I (2) and reversed the Department as to Count II. Appellant sought review of the decision in a first amended petition for Writ of Mandamus, filed on December 2, 1958.

The Department sought review of the Appeals Board's reversal as to Count II. Both suits were consolidated.

The Superior Court vacated the alternative write and denied peremptory Writs of Mandate

The effect of this judgment was to place all the parties in the position they occupied when the Appeals Board rendered its decision on November 8, 1958.

Appellant herein appealed to the District Court of Appeal and the Department likewise appealed.

On March 16, 1960, the Department's request that its appeal be dismissed was granted.

That action leaves only Benedetti as an appellant.

II

UPON WHAT GROUNDS WAS THE LIGENSE REVORED? The Department adopted the Proposed Decision of the Hearing Officer. In that Decision, in which appellant herein was respondent therein, the following appears:

"Determination of Issues Presented:

Count I (1): Respondent did not violate §25601 of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act.

(2): The above named Respondent and licensee did violate §25601 of the Alcoholic. Beverage Control Act.

Count II: Grounds constituting a basis for the suspension or revocation of the license, held by the above named licensee for the above described premises, under the provisions of $24200 (a) and (e) of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act have been established with a reference to Count II. It is further determined that the continuance of the license of said respondent would be contrary to the public welfare and morals within the meaning of said terms as used in Article XX, §22, of the California Constitution. Grounds for the suspension or revocation of the license of respondent under the provisions of §24200 (a) and (e) of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act have been established with reference to Count I (2)."

Thus, it would seem, the Department found that nppellant had violated Business and Professions Code $25601 and $24200 (a) and (e). As to Count II, appellant had violated Business and Professions Code $24200 (a) and (e) and Article XX, $22 of the California Constitution. In the original Accusation, appellant was informed that "additional grounds" for suspension or revocation existed under Business and Professions Code $24200 (b) but the decision is silent as to any finding under that sub-section.

The Appeals Board, in affirming revocation based upon the allegations contained in Count I and reversing the revocation based upon the allegations of Count II, found that revocation could be based only upon one violation. "The Hearing Officer. Well, the things take place on the licensed premises. The licensee is supposed to be aware of what is going on there either through him personally or through his agents."

The bartenders did not lolter to talk to anyone (T.R. (a) p. 86, line 12). The bartenders were going back and forth tending bar (T.R. (a) p. 89, lines 8-10). There were people in back of these two men (T.R. (a) p. 92, lines 11-13). They used normal conversational tones (T.R. (a) p. 93, lines 23).

(c) Agent Harris testified that on April 4, 1956, he saw two men, one of whom was seated at the bar and another standing, and he observed the "standing male rubbing and fondling the inside of the thighs of the seated male" (T.R. (a) p. 25, lines 7-10). The bar stools were 30-33" in height (T.R. (a) p. 60, line 9). The agent was present for nearly an hour (T.R. (a) p. 57, line 8) and, once again, he saw only one "incident" (T.R. (a) p. 57, lines 16-18). Two bartenders were on duty (T.R. (a) p. 57, lines 14 and 15). At the time of that "incident," the agent did not know where one bartender was (T.R. (a) p. 58. line 21). Wherever that bartender was, it was the oninion of the agent, that that bartender could not have seen this incident (II.R. (a) p. 59, line 3). The other hartender was "looking in all direction" and was six to eight feet away at different times (T.R. (a) p. 59, lines 15-18) and he was busy mixing drinks. The agent was not allowed to give his opinion as to whether or not the other hartender could see the "incident" (T.R. (n) p. 59, lines 4-7).

535 535 Another look at the photographs of the bar will show that it was physically impossible for that bartender to have seen these alleged acts since the front edge of the bar is raised and the tops of the stools are well below the level of the bar.

There is no evidence of the presence of petitioner or any other employee. The agent did not call the attention of any employee to what he saw or take statements from participants. (d) On April 14, 1956, when the licensed premises contained 175 customers (T.R. (a) p. 25, lines 19 and 20), these same agents saw two men standing between the bar and the booths and saw one of them reach over to the other and "fondle and tap the buttocks of the second male" (T.R. (a) p. 26, lines 4-7). Once again, that was the only "observation" made that night. (T.R. (a) p. 26, lines 1-2). There were neople all around these two men (T.R. (a) p. 61, lines 24-25; p. 62, lines 2-4). The people closest to these two were "almost touching them" and were between them and the bar (T.R. (a) p. 62, lines 5-9). In the area between the bar, and the booths there were about 100 people (T.R. (a) p. 64, lines 15-16). There is absolutely no testimony as to the location of the bartenders, the petitioner or any other of his employees.

(c) On May 11, 1956, Mr. Tregoning of the San Francisco Police Department saw one man give a "prolonged lift" lasting 15 to 20 seconds, to the buttocks of another (T.R. (b) p. 41, lines 13-16). There were from 100 to 150 persons upon the licensed premises (T.R. (b) p. 32, lines 17-18). The policeman was there one hour (T.R. (b) p. 33, line 1).

The witness believed there were two bartenders there but he "couldn't say for sure" if they had "fixed stations or moved about" (T.R. (b) p. 41, lines 23-26; p. 42, lines 1-2). There was no testimony as to the presence of any other employees at the time of this "inoident," although the Hearing Officer attempted to elicit such testimony (T.R. (b) p. 42, lines 5-13).

In fact, this "incident" was done in a "sneaky, intimate manner," according to Officer Tregoning (T.R. (b) p. 45, line 23), despite the Attorney General's argument, set forth in his brief to the Superior Court, that "there is no evidence that the acts were "furtively done"." (Department's Brief p. 8, lines 23-24), The Attorney General's definition of "furtive" is an act "done, obtained or characterized by stealth; hence sly; secret; stealthy... and" (Department's Brief p. 8, lines 24-25).

There was no evidence that petitioner or any employee saw or could have seen this "incident."

(f) On May 12, 1955, an employee of the Department allowed a man named Cowgill, who had been drinking (T.R. (b) p. 7, lines 2-26), to rub the privates of the Department employee (T.R. (b) p. 7, lines 2-26).

Mr. Cowgill was standing at the bar and there were "two persons behind the bar but just who they were I don't know," the agent said (T.R. (b) p. 5, lines 16-20). There were some 100 to 150 persons upon the licensed premises (T.R. (b) p. 11, lines 25-26). The agent was sitting at the bar during this "incident" (T.R. (b) p. 7, line 23). There is grave doubt as to whether or not, Mr. Cowgill was a customer of the licensee. There is no evidence that he made a purchase although he seemed to have a drink in his hand. The agent was turned three quarters away from the bar (T.R. (b) p. 20; lines 23-24). There were people sitting by Mr. Cowgill and by the agent at the bar (T.R. (b) p. 21, lines 3-4). Between the bar and the booth there were people standing. People were all around (T.R. (b) p. 21, lines 15-21). People were pretty close to each other (T.R. (b) p. 21, line 19). The agent was "facing away from the bar" (I.R. (b) p. 22, line 6). As Mr. Cowgill made an advance, the agent "moved closer" but that was not done to encourage Mr. Cowgill, the agent claimed (T.R. (b) p. 23, lines 8-14). The agent repeated that he did not encourage Mr. Cowgill (T.R. (b) p. 25, lines 7 and 9). Then he stated that he "knew what the ultimate results of his actions would be" (T.R. (b) p. 25, lines 18-19), but when asked the following questions ha gave these answers (T.R. (b) p. 25, lines 20-23).

"Q. But you didn't move away?

"A. No, sir I didn't move away.

"Q. Why din't you move away?

"A. That's something I can't enswer sir."

The agent, obviously, was not telling the truth. Either this "inoident" didn't happen at all or he entrapped Mr. Cowgill, who pleaded not guilty (Exhibit No. 2), although he was found guilty. The agent did not see the appellant (T.R. (b) p. 28, lines 20-22). There is no evidence at all that any employee saw this incident, if it happened, or could have. Certainly these acts, if they occurred, were furtive.

20

As to conversation, the Appeals Board decision shows the following took place.

"On March 23, 1956, about 9:15 pm. Agent Harris overheard a conversation at the bar wherein a male, seated at the bar, stated to a number of women that 'he knew all the lesbians in town', and further that 'I am married now; I have a husband now' (T.R. (a) 20:24-21:3). The bartender 'Tex' was as close to the speaker as was the agent (T.R. (a) 22:1-3).

"Both Agents Harris and Morrison overheard males addressing one another by way of endearing terms, e.g., 'honey', 'dear', 'dearie' (T.R. (a) 41.22-42:3; 80:18-23).

"Officer Tregoning, on March 11, 1956, at about 10 p.m. had a conversation with a person named 'Phil' who stated that he was living with a 'faggot' (T.R. (b) 37:6-10), who is, apparently, a male who takes the part of the female in homosexual behavior (T.R. (b) 39:18-26). 'Phil' described the 'love act' in which he and his associate engaged, which is set out in full in the transcript but may not be repeated here (T.R. (b) 39:5-17)."

Following is the evidence as to "knowledge" of those conversational incidents:

(a) There were 40 people in the bar area and two bartenders (T.R. (a) p. 20, lines 13-17; p. 35, lines 21

5-6). The agent was four to five feet away (T.R. (a) p. 21, line 21). He did not observe one of the barlenders at the time of the conversation but the other was "in the immediate vicinity. He was as close as I, if not closer" (T.R. (a) p. 22, lines 1-3). The men used a "conversational tone" (T.R. (a) p. 21, line 18). On cross-examination, the agent testified that that bartender could not be seen by the agent at all times "because he was partially hidden from my view by the bar" and that the bartender was preparing drinks and drying glasses (T.R. (a) p. 37, lines 13-15). The bartender was within six feet of the man talking (T.R. (a) p. 38, lines 9-11). The agent thought the juke box was playing but he was not positive (T.R. (a) p. 39, lines 2-7). The agent was trying to hear all conversations (T.R. (a) p. 41, line 11). The juke box was somewhat loud (T.R. (a) p. 46, line 6).

(b) and (c) Evidence as to the location of the bartenders as to these conversations is contained above under B, (b) and (c).

REPUTATION EVIDENCE WAS INADMISSIBLE.

Appellant argues that the testimony by Captain. Charles Borland and Officer John Doherty as to the reputation of the licensed premises was inadmissable hearsay and that its admission into evidence was so prejudicial as to require revocation to be set aside or a new hearing ordered. In that case many witnesses gave their opinion that racetracks create police problems, etc.

24

2. To admit certain evidence under §24200 (e) and then to revoke a license under §25601, under which such reputation evidence would be inadmissible, is prejudicial error. (Objection could not have been made to the testimony of Officer Doherty, (T.R. (a) p. 13, lines 9-14) and Captain Borland (T.R. (a) p. 16, lines 12-16) because it was, at that time, admissible by statute).

3. As to the issue of knowledge of the appellant and his employees, this reputation evidence did not supplement or explain any direct evidence, because reputation evidence could not possibly do so. Therefore, if an objection had been made, it should have been sustained:

ΥI

ADMISSIONS BY BENEDETTI DID NOT SHOW KNOWLEDGE OF ACTS.

The alleged statement made by appellant (but denied by him) to an agent that all of his patrons were "gay" (T.R. (a) p. 71, line 25) and that, as to the employees, only the cook and appellant were "square or straight" (T.R. (a) p. 72, lines 6-7) is an admission only of the presence of persons of homosexual tendencies on the premises, harmless under Stoumen, and not an admission of knowledge of any immoral acts.

VII DONOLUSION

The Department should concede that there is not substantial evidence that appellant or his employees actually knew of any immoral or wrongful act. A more difficilt question is: Should they have known? To answer that in the affirmative, the mere presence of persons of homosexual tendencies on the premises is not enough. There should be evidence that appellant or his employees actually participated in immoral acts, as in Kershaw, where an employee was seen grabbing one of the dancers in the buttocks, or observed them, as in Vallerga, where a waitress asked one woman to go to the restroom if she wanted "to continue such activity".

In Benedetti, there were no males dancing with males, no females dancing with females.

The history of sex pervert cases under the Department and its predecessor, the Board of Equalization, shows that there has been a continuing effort to revoke licenses merely because the licensed premises were a hangout for persons said to be sex perverts. There has been a constant struggle between the Department and the Board of Equalization, on the one hand, and the courts, on the other, on this issue.

It is the law, of course, that licenses may be revoked upon substantial evidence. Brice v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, 153 C.A. 2d 315. 314 P. 2d 807. Appellant argues that this type of case has produced two extremes so far as the factual consideration is concerned. One extreme is demonstrated by the Stoumen case. In that case there were no prohibited acts. At the other extreme are the Kershaw and the Nickola cases. In each of the latter, clearly, there were flagrantly immoral acts observed without question by the licensee or his agents. But the Benedetti case stands in between these extremes. In this case, there is evidence of what the agents have termed "wrongful acts". But the Appeals Board has conceded that neither the appellant nor his employees noticed any objectionable conduct. And there

It would not be difficult to obtain information as to the knowledge of the licensee or his agents concerning immoral conduct. If this revocation is not set aside, appellant urges the District Court of Appeal to refer this case to the Department for further hearing in accordance with appropriate directions.

OPINION

McGOLDRICK, J. pro tem. fn. *

On August 20, 1956, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (hereinafter referred to as "department") filed an accusation against one Dante Benedetti, doing business as "Paper Doll," as an on-sale general licensee of the department, charging violations in two counts of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act. Count I was subdivided into two parts. Both charged the keeping of a disorderly house in conjunction with licensed premises, Count I(1) alleging disturbance of the neighborhood,

Count I(2) injury to the public welfare and morals (Bus. & Prof. Code, ?25601). fn. ? Count II charged the keeping of a resort for sexual perverts (? 24200, subd. (e)). The accusation further charged that by reason of the facts therein alleged, the continuance of Benedetti's license would be contrary to public welfare and morals as set forth in section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California. Hearings were conducted, the matter was submitted, and on May 16, 1957, the department adopted the decision of its hearing officer, thereby dismissing the first part of Count I, and revoking Benedetti's on-sale general license on the bases of Counts I(2) and II severally. Recent Attorneys Benedetti v. Dept. Alcoholic Bev. Control 187 Cal.App.2d 213 http://www.lawlink.com/ research/caselevel3/36967 Benedetti then appealed to the department's decision to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (hereinafter referred to as "board") which concluded that each of the counts [187 Cal.App.2d 215] was supported by substantial evidence. However, although affirming the decision as to Count I(2), the board reversed as to Count II, stating as grounds for said reversal that since the department had elected to revoke the license on the basis of Count I(2) and a violation of section 25601, it could not, on the same evidence, impose the same penalty on the basis of Count II upon the theory that Benedetti was guilty of a second and separate offense. In Vallerga v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1959), 53 Cal.2d 313 [347 P.2d 909], the Supreme Court held section 24200, subdivision (e), to be unconstitutional, and any question as to the correctness of this ruling is now moot. Benedetti subsequently sought review of the decision by the court below in a petition for writ of mandamus. The court issued an order staying enforcement of the order of revocation, whereupon a hearing occurred and the cause was submitted. The court subsequently filed findings of fact and conclusions of law wherein it upheld the board's decision, and judgment was entered setting aside the alternative writs and denving a peremptory writ of mandate. Benedetti appeals from this judgment. The board's decision, affirmed by the court below, upheld found." (Pp. 630-631.) (Brodsky v. California State Board of Pharmacy (1959), 173 Cal.App.2d 680-688 [344 P.2d 68], cited by appellant, is in harmony with this decision. In Givens v. Department of Alco the department's order of revocation on the sole ground of a violation of section 25601. [1] Appellant contends, first, that in a prosecution under that section, proof of knowledge by the licensee or his agents of proscribed acts is necessary; second, that the evidence is insufficient to establish such knowledge in the instant case. In Swegle v. State Board of Equalization (1954), 125 Cal.App.2d 432 [270 P.2d 518], appellant made a similar contention with regard to section 58 of the then Alcoholic Beverage Control Act (now ? 25601). In finding this proposition to be without merit, the court said "... Appellant cites numerous cases from other jurisdictions to the effect that 'permit' means knowledge, consent, acquiescence, willingness, as distinguished from passive sufferance. However, in Dorris v. McKamy, 40 Cal.App. 267, 274 [180 P. 645], it is said that 'as defined by Webster and others, "permit" implies no affirmative acts. It involves no intent. It is mere passivity, abstaining from preventive action.'" (P. 438.) In Mercurio v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1956), 144 Cal.App.2d 626, 630 [301 P.2d 474], the court interpreted the Swegle case as holding that the permission required by the statute does not have to be a "knowing" one [187 Cal.App.2d 216] and that "a licensee can be held to have permitted acts constituting a ... [violation] by a showing that the acts themselves took place. Further on in the opinion, the court said "The very fact that rules and laws providing for violations for which disciplinary action may be taken, provide that some violations must be 'knowingly' done [? 24200.5, subd. (a)] and as to others the word 'knowingly' is omitted, indicates that in the latter cases there is no requirement that the violations be knowing ones. 'Knowingly' not being required in either rule 143 or section 24200, the use of that word in the accusation was immaterial and is not necessary to be Alcholic Beverage Control (1959), 176 Cal.App.2d 529, 534 [1 Cal.Rptr. 446], the appellant argued that in as much as the findings of the hearing officer showed that he had made reasonable attempts to control his customers, those findings did not support the determination that he was guilty of a violation of section 24200, subdivisions (a) and (b), and section 25601. The court, however, found that as used in the context of section 25601, "suffers" means "to permit, allow, or not to forbid activities which constitute the premises a 'disorderly house.' Since an on-sale licensee has an affirmative duty to maintain properly operated premises [citation], and since acquiescence is nonetheless permission or sufferance within the purview of section 25601 [citing Swegle]. Givens failed to perform his statutory duty. The law requires more than that a licensee make some colorable efforts toward the maintenance of lawfully conducted premises. The law demands that he in fact so conduct his business that it meets the minimum requirements of decency and morality. If, as in this present case, the overwhelming evidence shows that the tavern is in fact a 'disorderly house,' there can be but one conclusion: that the licensee has permitted or suffered such a condition to exist. ..." Since appellant does not contest that the evidence is sufficient to support the judgment, although refusing to concede its accuracy, we deem it unnecessary to summarize the evidence produced before the hearing officer. [2] The rule that although the factual determinations of the department may be set aside upon a showing of a lack of substantial evidence, a court may not reweigh the evidence or assess the credibility of witnesses (Mercurio v. Department of Alcoholic [187 Cal.App.2d 217] Beverage Control. supra; Brice v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1957), 153 Cal.App.2d 315 [314 P.2d 807]), therefore obviates further discussion in this regard. [3] In addition, the appellant claims that the hearing officer erred in receiving testimony to the effect that the premises in question have a reputation for being a "hangout for homosexuals," and in this connection, he urges that this was inadmissible hearsay and its receipt in evidence constituted reversible error. It is to be noted that there was no objection to this testimony during the hearing because the now invalid section 24200, subdivision (e), provided that in addition to any other legally competent evidence, the character of the premises as "a resort" for sexual perverts might be proved by general reputation. There is evidence in the record placing appellant's employees in the near proximity of the wrongful acts. There is also evidence which supports an inference that the employees were aware of the continuing misconduct, viz., on the instance occurring on May 13, 1956, following the occasion when a patron named John Cowgill invited Agent Johnson to engage in a lewd act. After Johnson left the bar with Cowgill and placed him under arrest, Johnson returned to the bar and asked Police Officer Tregoning to come outside. At this time, the bartender, Rick, warned Tregoning, who was not known to be a police officer, not to go outside with Johnson. The bartender said that several arrests had been made the night before; it would be all right as long as he did not leave the premises.

Moreover, there was also evidence, unobjected to and clearly admissible in view of the acts alleged in the accusation, that appellant himself had characterized the patrons of the "Paper Doll" as being "gay" (synonymous with homosexual). Appellant also stated that in the "Paper Doll," only he and the cook named Johnny were "straight" or "square." Furthermore, section 11513 of the Government Code makes hearsay admissible in this type of administrative hearing and this applies to evidence of reputation as well as to any other type of hearsay. (Swegle v. State Board of Equalization, supra; 19 Cal.Jur. 2d, ? 383, p. 116; 2 Cal.Jur.2d, ? 147, p. 251.) Therefore, no effective objection to its introduction could have been interposed even in lieu of section 24200, subdivision (e). Benedetti v. Dept. Alcoholic Bev. Control 187 Cal.App.2d 213

While it is true that section 11513 specifies that whereas hearsay may be used for the purpose of supplementing or explaining any direct evidence, it shall not be sufficient in itself to support a finding unless it would be admissible over [187 Cal.App.2d 218] objections in civil actions. However, as we have noted above, no contention is made as to the substantiality of the direct evidence herein of such homosexual activities on the premises which has been repeatedly held to be within the purview of section 25601. It is our view that the complained-of hearsay is merely supplementary thereto and nothing more. [4] Finally, it should be noted that in the department's original decision, it was determined that the continuance of appellant's license would be contrary to public welfare and morals within the meaning of those terms as used in section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California. In Vallerga v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, supra, the Supreme Court reversed a judgment denying a writ of mandamus to compel the department to set aside its revocation grounded to a violation of the invalid section 24200, subdivision (e), despite the fact that there was sufficient evidence to sustain a revocation on said constitutional grounds. However, in that case, the trier of fact had made no findings with regard to this evidence and, furthermore, the accusation failed to put the licensees on notice that their license might thereby be revoked. Thus, to have sustained the revocation under the constitutional provision would have violated due process of law. Neither the accusation nor the findings present such an impediment in the instant case. Appellant refrains from contending otherwise, and from charging that the licensee's knowledge of the facts is required under section 22, article XX, of the Constitution of California, confining his objection to the argument that because the board sustained the department on a different ground, this court is restricted to a consideration of that ground only. It is our view that no such restriction exists.

Judgment is affirmed.

Historian Nan Alamilla Boyd & the Gay Ghosts of Queer Old North Beach

Posted June 9, 2014 by RADAR in RADAR General Interest 683 0 0

We caught up with Nan Alamilla Boyd, author of Wide Open Town and our resident historian for the June 21 event Step Back: A Walking & Reading Tour of Queer Old North Beach, at the airport as she was heading to DC. She was invited to participate in a convening of 12 historians, hosted by the Department of the Interior and National Parks Service, to talk about the possibility of establishing LGBT landmarks through the National Parks Service. #Exciting! She said that as she's prepared for this meeting, queer old North Beach hasn't been far from her mind:

"Historic queer north beach is a space that has been completely forgotten about. When you think about San Francisco's queer history you think about the Castro, maybe you think about Valencia because of Michelle Tea's book, and maybe if you have a good historical memory you think about Polk Street. But most people have no idea that North Beach has such really vibrant queer history. This tour enables us as a collectivity to think of queer history in a much more complex fashion because North Beach was always understood to be an Italian neighborhood or a tourist neighborhood or the place where the Beat Movement happened but there was quite a bit of queer history there."

Sexuality, vaudeville, tourism & Freud...

"North Beach was a tourist space; it was a space where sexualized entertainment was permissible. It was also a liminal space where queer space evolved – at the border of Chinatown and North Beach, which were both cultural enclaves but also tourist spaces where the notions of what was proper or normal were stretched. And there was a commoditized sexualized tourist culture in both Chinatown and North Beach. So the environment was ripe for the emergence of queer culture and communities. They started with gender transgressive entertainment, like male and female impersonator shows. These were holdouts from late 19th century/early 20th century vaudeville. Vaudeville was a form of popular American entertainment that wasn't really understood to be queer, but in the early 20th century those forms of entertainment were queered by sexology and Freudian theory."

And then came the repeal of Prohibition...

"With the repeal of Prohibition in 1933 there was this opportunity for people to make money from the sale and consumption of alcohol again. One way this happened in North Beach was through staging these queered versions of old Vaudeville female impersonator shows. This male impersonator show at Mona's evolved and caught on and was super popular. It was through this bending – or queering – of a holdout from Vaudeville entertainment style that we had this emergence of a nascent queer culture. From these commoditized tourist spaces more 'authentic' queer spaces began to emerge."

One of the stops on our walking tour is...

"The Paper Doll, super popular in the early 1950s, was a little bit off the beaten path. It was far enough away from the commercial strip that it was much more of a cultural enclave. It was a queer bar for queer people first rather than a queer bar for tourists first. Alongside the tourist culture were these more community based spaces like Paper Doll through which a cultural community evolved and eventually solidified. I argue in my book, Wide Open Town, that in these community spaces there began to evolve a political awareness. It took place inside bars rather than in formal spaces where other movements were convening. That these communities were forming at bars – where everyday people hang out – indicates the populist roots of queer culture, rather than seeing the politicization of queer culture through some elite enterprise. This process was really democratic, cut across class, and was really gender transgressive as well. It wasn't that clean, gender-appropriate movement is in these truly queer and gender transgressive populist spaces, which at that time were the bars of North Beach."

Join RADAR on Saturday, June 21, 2014, 4pm (PROMPTLY) at City Lights Books - 261 Columbus Avenue in San Francisco as we reclaim queer space and salute the gay ghosts of North Beach on a walking tour that explores the neighborhood's queer history. Nan Alamilla Boyd, author of Wide Open Town: A History of Queer San Francisco to 1965, leads the way, revealing the secret histories of today's local businesses and painting a picture of a place once swinging with lesbian and trans nightlife. Featuring special pop-up performances by Lil Miss Hot Mess, Kat Marie Yoas, Maryam Rostami, Mason J, Miss Rahni, Rhiannon Argo and Raquel Gutierrez.

Since the trail passes in front of your property at 524 Union Street, we may wish to install a bronze trail plaque in the sidewalk fronting your building. We are notifying you for two reasons:

First, if you have any concerns or objections to a Barbary Coast Trail plaque being set in the sidewalk fronting your property, please contact Nick Elsner of the Department of Public Works. Mr. Elsner can be reached by phone at 415 554-6199 or by mail at Department of Public Works; Bureau of Street Use and Mapping; 875 Stevenson Street, Room 460; San Francisco, CA 94103. Andrew Wolfram Commission President Historic Preservation Commission 1650 Mission Street, Suite 400 San Francisco, CA 94104

Dear Commissioner Wolfram:

As the fiscal sponsor and partner for the Citywide Historic Context Statement for LGBTQ History in San Francisco, the GLBT Historical Society wholeheartedly endorses the landmarking of the former Paper Doll at 524 Union Street in San Francisco. Not only would this be the first San Francisco Landmark inspired by the LGBTQ HCS, it is a landmark proposed by a property owner who is genuinely committed to honoring her building's LGBTQ history. Truly extraordinary.

LGBTQ historian and scholar Nan Alamilla Boyd was the first to describe the Paper Doll as a "community center" where LGBTQ people could "make friends, find lovers, get information, or plan activities." Public spaces such as the Paper Doll were vital in the formation of San Francisco's LGBTQ communities, especially in the 1940s and 50s when any display of nonnormative sexuality was criminal, and most people viewed nonnormative men and women as pathological. As noted in the LGBTQ HCS, "the concept of public spaces providing the protection needed for establishing and nurturing community is critical to understanding LGBTQ history." The Paper Doll was one of those places.

On a personal note, the Paper Doll has been close to my heart since 2009 when I completed my master's thesis on preserving the history of San Francisco's lesbian community in North Beach. At a time when North Beach was bustling with queer bars and nightclubs, the Paper Doll was unique as the only full-service restaurant catering to these communities. I imagined myself as a lesbian during that period and understood how good it would feel to gather in one of those famous booths for a meal with like-minded women in a place that not only tolerated but welcomed us.

Thank you for your consideration of this landmark!

Sincerely,

Shayne E. Watson Founding Chair GLBT Historical Society Historic Places Working Group

Dear Historic Preservation Commission,

The Tenderloin Museum enthusiastically supports efforts to landmark the Paper Doll site at 524 Union.

As a historical institution with exhibits and programming that shares the history of marginalized groups (that are often ignored in history books), the Tenderloin Museum sees the Paper Doll as having tremendous historical value. Commemorating the Paper Doll promotes LGBTQ history, specifically Lesbian history, which is frequently overlooked in traditional LGBTQ narratives.

The Tenderloin Museum produced a popular play about the Compton's Cafeteria Riots, which ran from Feb-May of this year. The play shared the history of trans women in the Tenderloin neighborhood and a riot that occurred in 1966, three years before the more famous Stonewall riot in New York. Educating the public about this important, little known historical incident highlighted the vital contributions trans women (and many trans women of color) made to the queer civil rights movement. It also highlighted the importance of the Tenderloin, the city of San Francisco, and the vital role our city played in sparking the nationwide queer liberation movement. Compton's directly challenges the narrative that the movement began in New York with Stonewall in 1969.

Granting landmark status to the Paper Doll achieves similar objectives. It shows the vital role San Francisco has played in fostering gay culture and gay civil rights, through the lens of an often overlooked group in the gay community. Mona Sargen, an early manager of the Paper Doll who went on own the first lesbian clubs in the city is a criminally unknown queer civil rights hero. Championing her and the Paper Doll, is incredibly important in telling a more complete story about gay life and gay activism, as well as challenging traditional, incomplete narratives about the movement.

Let me know if I can be of any service in promoting this important history.

Sincerely,

Katie Conry Executive Director Tenderloin Museum September 23, 2018

Andrew Wolfram, Commission President Historic Preservation Commission 1650 Mission Street, Suite 400 San Francisco, CA 94104

Dear Commission President Wolfram and Historic Preservation Commissioners:

It is my pleasure and honor to write this letter in support of granting landmark status to the building located at 524 Union Street.

The years my father, Dante Benedetti, owned the Paper Doll is just one short period of its history, but one that could not be more San Franciscan. Being a native, I remain proud of my heritage and my birthplace. San Francisco has been on the forefront of many cultural shifts through its history, making 524 Union a landmark is one way to call out again how its citizens have stepped up and made the city great.

My father owned the Paper Doll Club/Restaurant located at 524 Union Street from the mid 1950's to the early 1960's. Although most often recognized for the work he did with San Francisco youth for over five decades or saving the baseball program at U.S.F. or being lifelong friends with Joe DiMaggio with whom he grew up, I have been as equally, if not prouder, of the integrity he held in regards to the Paper Doll.

When he bought the Paper Doll that hosted gay clientele in the mid 1950's, he held the same standards he had always held at our family's restaurant, the New Pisa: customers were treated with respect, but they were also expected to comport themselves with respect towards others. A man steeped in his Italian heritage, my father did expect all to maintain a certain decorum in public.

As at the New Pisa, his sense of protecting his customers was just as fervent at the Paper Doll, but it was more tested at 524 Union. Unfortunately, there were often people who did not approve of the LGBTQ community, but who would come into the restaurant to cause problems. My father and his cook would usher them out the door, and often needed to resort to physically removing them from the premises and away from the alley that bordered the Club. Having at one time being an amateur boxer aided the situation.

A common practice for restaurant owners while my grandparents and father owned the New Pisa from the 1920's through the 1970's, was to offer meals to the police officers on the beat, sometimes a flat of raviolis to take home or even a good sized prime rib. However, at the Paper Doll as at other establishments that served the LGTBQ community, police also expected payments each month or, if no payment was made, they would claim indecent acts were taking place. True to form, and holding steadfast to his principles, knowing that the Paper Doll was a legitimate restaurant and bar, and a place where his customers, who happened to be gay, gathered, my father refused to be extorted because he knew his customers were doing nothing wrong. When he refused to pay the police, the Paper Doll was shut down, with my father ultimately losing his liquor license.

My parents spent their entire life savings fighting the case in court, going all the way to the U.S. Court of Appeals, with my father's attorney finally convincing him to give up. With no money left, and with no hope of winning, he decided to stop pursuing his case. Even though my father still owned the building at 524 Union until the early 1970's, he and our family were never able to recover financially from his legal battle for his license with the Paper Doll.

Although I did not know the full story until I was an adult, I do have some memories of the time, knowing the period when we didn't have much money, lucky to have other family who helped. But more importantly, I remain exceptionally proud of the principles and character my father had, even when it meant losing almost everything. As a straight man who stood up for the LGTBQ community and for his principles in the face of opposition from those in power, I will be forever proud.

When my father died in 2005, several gay men attended his memorial, remembering all those years later how he had stood up for them, providing them a safe place to enjoy a meal or share a drink.

My sister and I both chose working with youth in schools as a result of the influence and inspiration we received from watching and knowing our father had served the public and the community. My sister is a retired public school teacher and I am currently the Head of School at Julia Morgan School in Oakland, serving mostly girls coming from public schools, readying them to be strong young women, learning to advocate for themselves and others before they go to high school. I want these young girls and young women to do exactly as my father did, standing up and speaking out for what is right and for those who might not otherwise have a voice.

I applaud the consideration the Commission is affording 524 Union St. and urge you to grant it the landmark status it deserves.

Sincerely, Sandra Luna

Andrew Wolfram, Commission President Historic Preservation Committee 1650 Mission Street San Francisco, CA 94104

Dear Commission President Wolfram,

I am writing in support of the nomination to have the site of the Paper Doll at 524 Union Street declared a San Francisco landmark. I lived in San Francisco from 1959 to 1962. Already in 1959, the Paper Doll was legendary and was recommended to me as a wonderful meeting place for "gay women" (as we called ourselves then).

I had several subsequent occasions to visit the Paper Doll. It was different from the lesbian bars I had frequented in that it was much more upscale—it even served dinners! It gave those of us who were its patrons a much-welcomed feeling (rare in gay and lesbian venues of that day) that here was a decent place in which to meet people and carry on a social life such as the external society wanted to deny us. That feeling was crucial to our well-being, and it would be difficult to exaggerate how rarely it was permitted to us elsewhere.

The Paper Doll has been recognized in recent years in the work of several LGBTQ historians. It surely deserves to be recognized as well by San Francisco's Historic Preservation Committee as being a landmark of San Francisco's LGBTQ history.

Good afternoon Shannon, Dennis Hong here, district 7. Retired, a native and still a resident of San Francisco for 70 plus years. In the past I have not submitted comments on Landmark cases, mostly DEIRs, 311's and that type. This notice just screamed and popped out at me and I had to chime in and in full support of it. I will try to track it and look forward to it's approval. So, I really need everyone's help!

With that said, I did not know who to write to in support of this Landmark Status - recommendation. Wow, it has been way to many years that I came across the word Paper Doll. You see I moved out of District 3 in the mid 70's. I grew up in that little alley, Bannan Place since 1952 +/- right across the street. At one time they even attempted to change it's name, thank god they did not. I may be weird, but I enjoyed the noise Paper Doll created, no problem sleeping either. Always thought of the Paper Doll as unique and a wonderful benefit to North Beach. Lively too.

Growing up in North Beach I missed the smell of the baking of the french bread, the roasting of the coffee, the baking of the pizza, the street fairs, even went to the very first one in the fifties and then some. Oh must not forget that big market Bon Gusto on Green Street, the Green Valley Restaurant, on and on....

Made that big mistake when I moved out of District 3. I still visit North Beach - Chinatown weekly. This land mark status would be a big benefit to North Beach and district 3.

I trust this email works. Could you please share this with the Commission and others at the Oct 17, Meeting?

If anyone has any questions to my usual rambling email, please feel free to reach to me at this email.

Dear Mr. Wolfram,

I am the cofounder of Ready State, the business that currently operates out of 524 Union Street. I am writing to endorse the application for landmark status of this building to the Historic Preservation Commission.

As a content marketing agency, we naturally thought it appropriate to tell the story of this building, and were delighted by what we uncovered. From its origin as The Paper Doll Club, to serving as the studio for Harlem Renaissance sculptor, Sargent Claude Johnson, and housing the editorial team for Ramparts magazine, which was incidentally where Jan Werner interned before founding Rolling Stone magazine, this building is steeped in history and serves as an inspiration for us.

I believe that recognizing this building as a landmark will help preserve the San Francisco history it has housed, especially in this time of rapid change.
