EXECUTIVE ORDER EXTENDING RESIDENTIAL EVICTION MORATORIUM

On February 25, 2020, under California Government Code Sections 8550 et seq., San Francisco Charter Section 3.100(14) and Chapter 7 of the San Francisco Administrative Code, I issued a Proclamation (the “Proclamation”) declaring a local emergency to exist in connection with the imminent spread within the City of a novel (new) coronavirus (“COVID-19”). On April 30, 2020, I issued the Twelfth Supplement to the Proclamation. Section 1 of the Twelfth Supplement imposed certain protections for residential tenants, including a temporary moratorium on eviction for non-payment of rent by residential tenants directly impacted by the COVID-19 crisis and a temporary moratorium on attempts to recover possession of residential units if the effective date of a notice a termination of tenancy expires within two months after termination or expiration of the order. The Board of Supervisors concurred in this action on May 12, 2020. This order replaced prior orders concerning residential evictions in the Fifth Supplement to the Emergency Proclamation, issued on March 23, 2020 and extended on April 22, 2020.

The Twelfth Supplement provides that Section 1 will last for an initial period of two months, expiring on June 30, 2020. The Twelfth Supplement further provides that “Mayor may extend this Order by an additional period of one month if conditions at that time warrant extension. The Mayor shall provide notice of the extension through an Executive Order posted on the Mayor’s website and delivered to the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors.”

I find that emergency conditions continue to exist due to the ongoing public health crisis arising from COVID-19 and the economic impacts it has caused, warranting extension of the order. Therefore, I hereby extend Section 1 of the Twelfth Supplement to the Proclamation for an additional month through July 31, 2020.

Subject: New decedent testing order (Health Officer Order No. C19-14)

Hello - please see attached a new decedent testing health order. Some notes about the order below:

The order mandates universal testing of all decedents (people who die) in the City starting today. This order was developed with input from DPH, the Medical Examiner, the City Administrator's Office, and others. There are multiple goals associated with such universal testing, including helping protect the safety of those who work for Funeral-Related Services (funeral homes, mortuaries, crematoriums, entities that transport bodies from the place of death, etc.), helping identify asymptomatic cases to help with contact tracing, helping identify where SARS-CoV-2 plays a role associated with death, and better understanding the prevalence in the City of the virus.

The testing is split into two categories. Either one of the two types of testing needs to have occurred in relation to each dead person in the City before their body is transported out of the City or otherwise prepared for final disposition. The first category is antemortem testing (testing before death). This includes situations where testing occurred up to 14 days before death for positive cases, up to 3 days before death for negative cases, or any time before death if the death is COVID-19 related and an earlier test confirmed the presence of the virus. If antemortem testing was not done before death, the order requires that postmortem testing occur. Postmortem testing is either to be done (1) by a general acute care hospital (like ZSFG) or skilled nursing facility (SNF) (like Laguna Honda) if the death occurs at one or (2) by the Public Health Decedent Testing Unit, which is really a mobile unit of EMS working with the Medical Examiner and DPH/the Public Health Lab to ensure that testing is safely done when a person dies in the City anywhere other than at a hospital or SNF. When the death occurs other than at a hospital/SNF, it is the obligation of the Funeral-Related Service to contact the Public Health Decedent Testing Unit (at 415-487-5046) to arrange for testing before the body is prepared for final disposition. There are different ways that Decedent Testing Unit will help facilitate this testing, for example by coming to the site of death during daytime hours (7am – 9pm), by coming to the place of business where the body is moved for testing prior to final disposition, or by allowing a transport service to bring the body by a testing site at Bill Graham Civic Auditorium during evening hours (9pm – 7am). For situations when the body is being moved outside the City, for example to a funeral home in another County given the lack of cemeteries in SF, the Funeral-Related Service must work with the Public Health Decedent Testing Unit to ensure that the test will occur before the body is prepared for disposition.

Info & Guidance has prepared guidance for families and also for funeral-related services. Hospitals and SNFs indicated they did not need guidance. I&G has already done outreach to the funeral-related services and hospitals/SNFs, and the JIC is also ready with a plan on this order.

ORDER OF THE HEALTH OFFICER No. C19-14

ORDER OF THE HEALTH OFFICER
OF THE CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO REQUIRING SARS-CoV-2
TESTING OF ALL DECEDENTS IN THE CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO

(PUBLIC HEALTH EMERGENCY ORDER)

DATE ORDER ISSUED: June 25, 2020

Please read this Order carefully. Violation of or failure to comply with this Order is a misdemeanor punishable by fine, imprisonment, or both. (California Health and Safety Code § 120295, et seq.; California Penal Code §§ 69, 148(a)(1); San Francisco Administrative Code section 7.17(b).)

Summary: The current pandemic related to SARS-CoV-2, the virus that causes Coronavirus Disease 2019 (“COVID-19”), continues to be a serious public health emergency. New information about the course of the pandemic is discovered all the time. In order for the City and County of San Francisco (the “City”) to continue to address the pandemic, it is important to discover as much information as possible about the virus’s spread within the community. This Order requires testing of all recently-deceased people in the City and County of San Francisco (“the City”) for the presence of the SARS-CoV-2 virus prior to final disposition of the body. This Order fulfills multiple purposes during the current pandemic. It protects the occupational health of postmortem care workers by enabling them to evaluate their risk of exposure to SARS-CoV-2 and to implement infection prevention measures accordingly. It addresses a critical epidemiological need by helping identify sources and rates of infection among the City’s population and the risks of morbidity associated with infection since it is possible that people are dying with an undiagnosed SARS-CoV-2 infection, and that infection may or may not play a role in relation to the person’s death. It also assists the Department of Public Health with contact tracing regarding the SARS-CoV-2 virus and infections, helping determine who may have been in contact with an infected person in the days before they died, including when that person had no symptoms. And it will also serve the public by allowing the City to post accurate information about infection rates on the City’s website, informing policymakers and the public during the pandemic. In the absence of the information obtained through this order, important aspects of the pandemic will remain unclear.

This Order goes into effect at 11:59 p.m. on June 25, 2020, and continues indefinitely until it is repealed, modified, or replaced by the Health Officer of the City and County of San Francisco (the “Health Officer”). Other capitalized terms used in this Order are generally defined in Section 6 below. The Health Officer may revise this Order as the situation evolves, and each General Acute Care Hospital, Skilled Nursing Facility and Funeral-Related Service must stay updated by checking the Department of Public Health (“DPH”) website at www.sfdph.org/healthorders regularly.

City and County of San Francisco

Order Of The Health Officer No. C19-14

This summary is for convenience only and may not be used to interpret this Order; in the event of any inconsistency between the summary and the text of this Order below, the text will control.

UNDER THE AUTHORITY OF CALIFORNIA HEALTH AND SAFETY CODE SECTIONS 1797.153, 101040, 101085, AND 120175, THE HEALTH OFFICER OF THE CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO ORDERS:

- 1. The intent of this Order is to increase opportunities for detecting SARS-CoV-2 infection hazards to postmortem care workers, grow the epidemiological monitoring capacity of the City in relation to SARS-CoV-2, enhance the tracing of the community spread of SARS-CoV-2 in the City, and enable better public reporting of the prevalence of SARS-CoV-2 infections to support policymaking and public understanding of the pandemic. All provisions of this Order must be interpreted to effectuate this intent. Failure to comply with any of the provisions of this Order constitutes an imminent threat and creates an immediate menace to public health.
- 2. In relation to each person who dies in the City on or after the effective date of this Order, this Order requires either that the person must have been subjected to Antemortem Testing (as that term is defined in Section 6(a) below) or the human remains of that person must undergo Postmortem Testing (as that term is defined in Section 6(b) below) before the remains may be transported out of the City or prepared for final disposition by any Funeral-Related Service (as that term is defined in Section 6(c) below) in the City. Such testing must be done in the manner outlined below depending on the context of the person's death. When the death occurred at a General Acute Care Hospital or Skilled Nursing Facility (as those terms are defined in Sections 6(e) and 6(f) below), testing in those situations is addressed in Section 4 below. For all other deaths in the City, the testing requirements are outlined in Section 3 below.
- 3. Before the removal of any human remains from a place of death in the City, transport of human remains from any location in the City, or preparation of human remains for burial, cremation, or other final disposition, each Funeral-Related Service that is acting or operating in the City must either (i) confirm that Antemortem Testing was performed prior to the person's death or (ii) arrange for Postmortem Testing of the human remains or confirm that such testing occurred. The testing requirement applies to any remains picked up from a long-term care or other congregate-living facility, hospice facility, a decedent's home, or other residential setting, but this Section 3 does not apply when the death occurred at a General Acute Care Hospital or Skilled Nursing Facility because testing in those situations is addressed in Section 4 below.

In relation to the testing required by this Section 3, the Funeral-Related Service's obligation to ensure testing may be satisfied if the Funeral-Related Service contacts

City and County of San Francisco

Order Of The Health Officer No. C19-14

the City's Department of Public Health Decedent Testing Unit at 415-487-5046 and coordinates the performance of Postmortem Testing with the Decedent Testing Unit.

A Funeral-Related Service must not attempt to collect reimbursement of the cost of any Postmortem Testing from a deceased patient's family, next of kin, or estate.

- 4. Before arranging for the removal of a deceased patient's remains by a Funeral-Related Service or Medical Examiner, as that term is defined in Section 6(d) below, or prior to releasing the deceased patient's remains for transit from the facility, each General Acute Care Hospital and each Skilled Nursing Facility in the City must either (i) confirm that Antemortem Testing was performed prior to the person's death or (ii) perform, or cause to be performed, Postmortem Testing of the remains prior to release or transport of the remains. In relation to such testing, the hospital or facility must:
 - (a) Document the occurrence of Antemortem Testing or Postmortem Testing, whether through existing or new documentation, in the deceased patient's medical record;
 - (b) Report to any postmortem care worker from a Funeral-Related Service or Medical Examiner who is responsible for retrieval of the deceased patient's remains the most recent SARS-CoV-2 test result, when known, and if the hospital or facility is awaiting results from the most recent SARS-CoV-2 test at the time that the patient's remains are retrieved, the hospital or facility must later inform the postmortem care worker who retrieves the remains of such results as soon as they are available, making sure to obtain contact information for the postmortem care worker at the time the patient's remains are picked up;
 - (c) Not attempt to collect reimbursement of the cost of any Postmortem Testing from a deceased patient's family, next of kin, or estate; and
 - (d) Report positive SARS-CoV-2 test results as required by law and, within 24 hours, to the Department of Public Health's Communicable Disease Control Unit at 415-554-2830.

In the event that human remains are being picked up by a Funeral-Related Service from a General Acute Care Hospital or Skilled Nursing Facility, it is the obligation of the General Acute Care Hospital or Skilled Nursing Facility to ensure that the testing requirements of this Section 4 are met.

- 5. Except for situations where the City's Office of the Chief Medical Examiner authorizes a patient's physician to sign the certificate of death without the need for an inquiry as authorized by Section 27491(b) of the California Government Code, the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner, in relation to deaths under that office's jurisdiction, will transport the deceased person's remains to its own facility and will either confirm that Antemortem Testing was performed prior to the person's death or ensure that Postmortem Testing is conducted.

6. Definitions.

- (a) The term "Antemortem Testing" means testing for the presence of SARS-CoV-2 prior to the person's death by a method approved by the United States Food and Drug Administration (the "FDA") for that purpose. For purposes of this Order, Antemortem Testing of a person who has died may only be one of the following:
- i. A positive diagnostic test confirming the presence of SARS-CoV-2 in the person where the test was conducted in the fourteen (14) days prior to the person's death;
 - ii. A negative diagnostic test indicating the likely absence of SARS-CoV-2 in the person where the test was conducted in the seventy-two (72) hours prior to the person's death; or
 - iii. A previous diagnosis of COVID-19 that resulted in or contributed to the person's death where there was a previous positive diagnostic test confirming the presence of SARS-CoV-2 in the person.

Note that an indeterminate diagnostic test for SARS-CoV-2 conducted within any of the periods listed in this subsection (a) does not constitute Antemortem Testing, and in such situations Postmortem Testing must be performed.

- (b) The term "Postmortem Testing" means testing for the presence of SARS-CoV-2 following the death of the person by a method approved by the FDA for that purpose. Such testing must conform to guidance from the United States Centers for Disease and Control and Prevention (the "CDC") on the collection and submission for testing of postmortem specimens from deceased persons with known or suspected COVID-19, even if the deceased person is not suspected to have had COVID-19. The CDC guidance is available online at <https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/hcp/guidance-postmortem-specimens.html>.
- (c) The term "Funeral-Related Service" means each of the following:
- i. A "licensed funeral establishment" as defined by Section 7616 of the California Business and Professions Code;

Order Of The Health Officer No. C19-14

- ii. Any person, entity, or business engaged in providing cemetery, crematory, or embalmer services under Chapter 12 of Division 3 of the California Business and Professions Code;
- iii. A “funeral director” as defined by Section 7615 of the California Business and Professions Code and any person acting under the direction of such a funeral director; or
- iv. Any person, entity, or business engaged in the transportation of human remains within the City or from any location in the City to any location outside the City.

But the term Funeral-Related Service does not include personnel of the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner or any other duly authorized public officer. By way of example and without limitation, the term Funeral-Related Service includes those professionals and businesses that regularly seek a permit for disposition of human remains, disposition permit, burial permit, or similar official writing authorizing the burial, cremation, or transit of human remains.

- (d) The term “Medical Examiner” means any personnel associated with a coroner or medical examiner, including but not limited to the City’s Office of the Chief Medical Examiner.
 - (e) The term “General Acute Care Hospital” means any hospital in the City that is licensed by the California Department of Public Health (“CDPH”) under Section 1250(a) of the California Health and Safety Code.
 - (f) The term “Skilled Nursing Facility” means any health facility in the City that provides skilled nursing and supportive care and is licensed by CDPH under Section 1250(c) of the California Health and Safety Code.
 - (g) The terms General Acute Care Hospital and Skilled Nursing Facility also include the San Francisco VA Health Care System (“VAMC San Francisco”), located at 4150 Clement Street, San Francisco, CA 94121, to the extent that VAMC San Francisco includes general acute care hospital and skilled nursing facility-type care. But in relation solely to the VAMC San Francisco, this Order does not impose any duty on the facility to comply, but it does impose on any Funeral-Related Service the duty to comply with this Order in relation to any human remains picked up at or transported from the VAMC San Francisco. This Order also strongly encourages the VAMC San Francisco to comply with this Order’s requirements.
- 7. This Order is based on evidence of continued occurrence of COVID-19 within the City and throughout the Bay Area, scientific evidence and best practices regarding the most effective approaches to monitor and surveille the transmission of communicable diseases generally and COVID-19 specifically, as well as expert guidance and best practices for workers and employers of workers at increased risk of occupational exposure to SARS-CoV-2. The CDC has issued guidance on the collection and submission of postmortem specimens from deceased persons with known or suspected COVID-19; the California Department of Public Health has issued an All-Facilities Letter (AFL 20-24) providing guidance for procedures and transfer of deceased persons with confirmed or suspected COVID-19; and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration of the United States Department of Labor has issued guidance on COVID-19 control and prevention for postmortem care workers who handle human remains. These guidelines show the importance of following best practices related to the handling of human remains in light of the current pandemic. And there are documented cases of the presence of SARS-CoV-2 in decedents whose immediate cause of death was not attributed to COVID-19.

- 8. Due to the outbreak of SARS-CoV-2 in the general public, there is a public health emergency throughout the City. Making the problem worse, some individuals who contract SARS-CoV-2 have no symptoms (are asymptomatic) or have mild symptoms, which means they may not be aware they carry the virus. The virus is easily transmitted between all of these people, including those who are asymptomatic or those whose symptoms have not yet developed. Although our community is beginning a gradual reopening, there is not yet a proven treatment or cure for COVID-19. It remains essential to slow virus transmission as much as possible to protect the most vulnerable and to prevent the health care system from being overwhelmed. One proven way to slow transmission is to identify sources of infection and isolate or quarantine close contacts of those sources before further outbreak occurs. Testing conducted across broad swaths of society provides greater opportunity to react to positive cases quickly enough to stop uncontrollable transmission. Broad testing also increases the availability of invaluable data used to better understand and combat COVID-19 and the virus that causes it. Decedent testing specifically protects postmortem care workers at increased risk of occupational exposure to SARS-CoV-2 and also helps identify potential carriers of the virus who had recent contact with the deceased person.
- 9. This Order is also issued in light of the existence, as of June 24, 2020, of 3,297 confirmed cases of infection by the COVID-19 virus in the City, including 48 deaths and a significant and increasing number of cases of community transmission. In light of these facts, this Order is necessary to monitor and control the rate of spread of the virus among people in the City and to accurately monitor the prevalence of SARS-CoV-2 in the community, and the Health Officer will continue to assess the quickly evolving situation and may modify this Order, issue Directives related to this Order, or issue additional Orders, related to COVID-19, as changing circumstances dictate.

Order Of The Health Officer No. C19-14

- 10. This Order is also issued in accordance with, and incorporates by reference, the June 11, 2020 Shelter in Place Order (Order No. C19-07e) issued by the Health Officer, the March 4, 2020 Proclamation of a State of Emergency issued by Governor Gavin Newsom, the March 12, 2020 Executive Order (Executive Order N-25-20) issued by Governor Newsom, the February 25, 2020 Proclamation by Mayor London Breed Declaring the Existence of a Local Emergency (as supplemented several times after its issuance), the March 6, 2020 Declaration of Local Health Emergency Regarding Novel Coronavirus 2019 (COVID-19) issued by the Health Officer, other emergency actions by the Health Officer, the City, and California, and guidance issued by the CDPH and the CDC, as each of them have been and may be updated in the future.
- 11. This Order becomes effective at 11:59 p.m. on June 25, 2020, and will continue to be in effect until it is extended, rescinded, superseded, or amended in writing by the Health Officer.
- 12. The City must promptly provide copies of this Order as follows: (1) by posting on the Department of Public Health website at www.sfdph.org/healthorders; (2) by posting at City Hall, located at 1 Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett Pl., San Francisco, CA 94102; and (3) by providing to any member of the public requesting a copy. In addition, the owner, manager, or operator of any facility, business, or entity that is likely to be impacted by this Order is strongly encouraged to post a copy of this Order onsite and must provide a copy to any member of the public asking for a copy.
- 13. If any provision of this Order or its application to any person or circumstance is held to be invalid, then the remainder of the Order, including the application of such part or provision to other people or circumstances, shall not be affected and shall continue in full force and effect. To this end, the provisions of this Order are severable.

Subject: Issued – Public Integrity Review: Preliminary Assessment of San Francisco Public Works Contracting

In parallel with the City Attorney's investigation stemming from alleged wrongdoing by former Public Works Director Mohammed Nuru, the Controller's Office has released its first policy and process assessment to prevent fraud and violations of local law.

This first assessment covers contracting activities at San Francisco Public Works. It focuses on each of the procurement methods Public Works uses to select vendors and award contracts itself or with the assistance of the Office of Contract Administration when applicable.

PUBLIC INTEGRITY REVIEW

San Francisco Public Works Contracting

In parallel with the City Attorney's investigation into alleged wrongdoing of former Public Works Director Mohammed Nuru, the Controller's Office has released its first assessment of the policies and processes designed to prevent violations of local law.

LAPSES IN "TONE AT THE TOP"

No control environment can control all risks created by a bad actor, particularly in a position of leadership. Throughout our review, we found significant lapses in the "tone at the top" created by Mr. Nuru that provided the pressure, rationalization, and ability to carry out unethical and unacceptable acts.

GAPS IN PURCHASING OVERSIGHT

Gaps in citywide monitoring of purchasing activities — given both code-driven decentralization of some contracting methods and lack of effective citywide systems to monitor these activities — need to be addressed.

NEW CONTROLS FOR HIGH-RISK ACTIVITIES

The Interim Director of Public Works has put new procedures in place to better control high-risk activities. Those controls should be continued and, in some cases, promoted citywide.

LOOPHOLES IN GIFT ACCEPTANCE

The City should close loopholes in local law to prevent potential manipulation and unethical gifts from contractors.

366 contracts worth
$1.4 billion

Public Works awarded 366 contracts with a value of $1.4 billion from July 2017 through March 2020.

We found weaknesses in various departmental and citywide procurement approaches, concentrated in several contracting methods, that create risks for abuse and fraud.

15 contracts worth
$25 million

Public Works awarded 15 contracts worth $25 million through a code-permitted contracting process to expedite homeless service purchases.

Seven of these contracts, worth $10 million, were awarded through no discernable selection process and are at the greatest risk of fraud or abuse in the award process.

To reduce fraud risk, the City should:

- ✔ Require transparent selection processes in pre-qualified contractor pools.
- ✔ Require bidding of all grants.
- ✔ Establish clear procedures for bid timelines, staff roles, and other key risk areas.

Public Integrity Review

Preliminary Assessment: San Francisco Public Works Contracting

CITY & COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO

Office of the Controller

June 29, 2020

Assessment Summary

This preliminary review assesses procurement citywide and focuses on San Francisco Public Works (Public Works). Additional reviews of other internal control processes will be released as our Public Integrity Review progresses. Highlights of our findings and recommendations detailed in this assessment include:

- Public Works awarded 366 contracts worth $1.4 billion during July 2017 through March 2020. Contracts with a value of $1.1 billion were awarded through construction contracting procedures. Although low-bid and other competitive requirements provide protections, some procedures and policies could be strengthened to provide additional safeguards to reduce the risks of fraud and abuse.
- Weaknesses in other allowable procurement approaches at Public Works create undue risk of abuse and should be improved. Of particular note, the department awarded 15 contracts for projects addressing homelessness worth $25 million through legally permitted exceptions to standard procurement processes without adequate safeguards. Public Works has instituted new controls over these procedures, which should be continued and expanded citywide.

- Citywide laws, guidance, requirements, and monitoring processes need improvement to reduce risks of fraud and abuse in the citywide contracting process. These include requiring competitive solicitation of grants, use of further selection methods within prequalified contracting pools, better guidance regarding certain steps in the procurement process, and eliminating gaps in gifts restrictions.
- The City's centralized oversight of procurement practices has significant gaps that should be closed to ensure adequate citywide monitoring of these activities. No entity is charged with full oversight over citywide procurement. We believe the role of the Office of Contract Administration or some other city entity should be expanded to serve this function, and it should be adequately resourced to perform this work.

Background on the Nuru Investigation

The City Attorney's Office (City Attorney) is leading the investigation into alleged wrongdoing by city employees outlined in criminal charges brought by the U.S. Attorney's Office against Mohammed Nuru, former director of Public Works; Nick Bovis, owner of Lefty's Grill and Buffet at Fisherman's Wharf; Sandra Zuniga, former director of the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services; Florence Kong, former member of the Immigrant Rights Commission; Balmore Hernandez, chief executive of engineering firm AzulWorks, Inc., a company with large city contracts, and Wing Lok "Walter" Wong, permit expeditor with numerous entities that do business with the City. The City Attorney has focused its investigation into misconduct by current city employees as well as any remedies for specific decisions or contracts tainted by conflicts of interest or other legal or policy violations.

The Office of the Controller (Controller) will continue to support the City Attorney's investigation by reviewing implicated contracts, purchase orders, and payments.

Background on the Nuru Investigation

Given the overwhelming public interest in this matter, the City Attorney will provide periodic public updates on components of its investigation. However, there are strict limits to what can be disclosed publicly. For instance, a public report disclosing compelled statements made by a city employee as part of an internal investigation could taint any criminal prosecution of that employee. Because a criminal conviction is a prerequisite to forfeiture of a city pension as well as a significant aid in any debarment proceeding of a complicit city contractor, the City has every interest in preserving the integrity of these criminal prosecutions. Also, some disclosures might impair an ongoing internal investigation or be restricted by employee privacy rights.

The City Attorney's priorities continue to be rooting out bad employees, recouping illicit gains, and helping ensure unethical contractors cannot do business with the City.

Investigative Update

As part of this investigation, the City Attorney has:

- Issued 10 subpoenas to companies and nonprofits suspected of being involved in funneling donations through a nonprofit to fund city programs and events, including a Public Works holiday party.
- Issued an additional 14 subpoenas focused on the mixed-use project at 555 Fulton Street and on Walter Wong, a building permit expediter and contractor, and firms associated with him.
- Cancelled the $171,000 portable toilet contract with a company tied to Nick Bovis.
- Contributed to the release of four employees or officials from their city positions and is continuing its employee misconduct investigations.

From February 4 through June 12, 2020, the Controller's Public Integrity Tip Line received 54 tips related to this investigation, which were reviewed and referred to agencies with the appropriate jurisdiction to investigate. From January 1 through June 25, 2020, the City's Whistleblower Program received approximately 284 complaints on this and other topics, including 17 complaints referred from the Public Integrity Tip Line.

Public Integrity Review

While the City Attorney's investigation proceeds, the Controller is conducting related assessments of targeted processes, procedures, and practices within city contracting, with the goal of offering recommendations to improve transparency, reduce the risk of fraud, and safeguard public funds. The results of each of these reviews will be made available to the public, first as a preliminary assessment report and later as a final report.

This preliminary assessment report is on Public Works Contracting and is the first in the series. This assessment is offered for public comment and review and may be revised in the future as our work continues.

Other reviews are underway, one focusing on support of city activities by "friends of" and similar nonprofit organizations, another on ethical standards for commissions' contract approval processes at the Airport and other City commissions, and other topics outlined at the close of this report. Additional review topics may be added as the investigation continues.

Fraud Risks in Contracting

All governments procure goods and services to support their delivery of public services. In any government organization, risk is associated with this activity. The risk increases as the complexity of these services, the volume of agreements, and their value increases.

The City maintains a control environment with internal controls to minimize a host of risks, including fraud. This includes an array of federal, state, and local laws and procedures that create preventive, detective, and corrective controls designed to minimize these risks.

Effective internal controls provide reasonable assurance and increase the likelihood that an organization will achieve its objectives. To achieve objectives, management needs to effectively balance risks and controls. Although ineffective or lax control activities increase organizational risk, too stringent or overly prescriptive control requirements may encourage shortcuts or control overrides.

This preliminary review assesses the adequacy of the internal controls at Public Works over contracting activities, with a focus on each of the procurement methods Public Works uses to select vendors and award contracts itself or with the assistance of the Office of Contract Administration when applicable. These methods include standard, low-bid procurements and others permitted under city code, including use of prequalified pools of eligible vendors, emergency procurements, and other allowed methods.

Background on Public Works

San Francisco Public Works (Public Works) is a department reporting to the city administrator. The Office of Contract Administration, which is responsible for the purchases of non-construction commodities, professional services, and general services under the San Francisco Administrative Code (Administrative Code), Chapter 21, also reports to the city administrator, who in turn reports to the Mayor.

Public Works is charged with a host of responsibilities, including design, construction, cleanliness, and improvement of the City's infrastructure, public right of way, and facilities. The department is organized into several bureaus and divisions to meet these responsibilities, including Building Design and Construction, Infrastructure Design and Construction, Building Repair, Street and Sewer Repair, Street Environmental Services, Street Use and Mapping and Urban Forestry. A central Finance and Administration Division supports these units.

Formal Competitive Solicitation

Formal competitive solicitation is required at certain thresholds, which have different requirements under Chapter 6 and Chapter 21 of the Administrative Code. Chapter 6 governs construction and construction-related professional services, which are generally procured directly by certain departments. Chapter 21 governs general services, professional services, and commodities procured by the Office of Contract Administration, in coordination with the requesting department.

The City's procurement laws require formal solicitation for:

- Most construction contracts and construction-related professional services above $706,000, per Chapter 6.
- Most commodities and professional services above $129,000, and general services above $706,000, per Chapter 21.

Chapter 6 Formal Competitive Solicitation

Public Works is one of six departments with authority over construction procurement under Administrative Code Chapter 6, which grants authority over construction procurement. Other Chapter 6 departments include the Airport Commission, Port Commission (Port of San Francisco), Recreation and Park Department, Municipal Transportation Agency, and Public Utilities Commission. All Chapter 6 departments except Public Works are overseen by a board or commission, which approves the department's contracts in excess of a threshold amount.

In compliance with Chapter 6, in August 2011 Mayor Edwin M. Lee designated Mr. Nuru as the director of Public Works to act on the Mayor's behalf in the approval of various aspects of the contracting process, including to award all public work, professional service, and construction contracts in excess of the threshold amount, which is currently set at $706,000. Mr. Nuru, in turn, designated three deputy directors to serve as contract approvers.

Preliminary Finding

- Unlike other Chapter 6 departments, Public Works is not overseen by a board or commission, and the designation authority provided by the Mayor to the director of Public Works to approve contracts over the threshold amount is inconsistent with practices at other Chapter 6 departments. As such, there is no external oversight over Public Works' Chapter 6 procurement.

According to the criminal complaint against Balmore Hernandez filed on June 4, 2020, there is probable cause that Mr. Hernandez bribed Mr. Nuru, allegedly in exchange for details about open or upcoming requests for proposals (RFPs). Mr. Nuru forwarded these details from his personal e-mail account to Mr. Hernandez, giving him an unfair advantage in preparing a response to an RFP and, ultimately, in his attempt to win a city contract.

Preliminary Finding

- A city employee acting in bad faith could circumvent the City's procurement controls and avoid detection. Mr. Nuru allegedly violated Public Works' Statement of Incompatible activities, which states that no officer or employee of the department may knowingly provide selective assistance (i.e., assistance that is not generally available to all competitors) to individuals or entities, including nonprofit entities for whom an officer or employee volunteers, in a manner that confers a competitive advantage on a bidder or proposer who is competing for a city contract.

Gaps Exist in Gifts Restrictions and Enforcement

City officers and designated employees must disclose reportable financial interests, including gifts, by filing the Statement of Economic Interests (Form 700). Elected officials, department heads, board members, and commissioners must file this form annually and electronically, while designated employees must also file it annually but can only file it in paper form.

Despite these requirements, gaps exist in gifts restrictions. San Francisco Campaign and Governmental Conduct Code, Section 3.216 and Ethics Commission regulations state that no officer or employee may solicit or receive any gift from any person or entity that contracts or is seeking to contract with the department of the officer or employee, or any person who knowingly attempted to influence the officer or employee in any legislative or administrative action during the prior 12 months. However, current restrictions apply narrowly and may not restrict gifts to officials or employees when the gift giver is the owner of or employed by a company that could do business with their department, based on the definitions of a person in the Campaign and Governmental Conduct Code, Section 3.216(b), Gifts from Restricted Sources.

Further, the Regulations of the Fair Political Practices Commission, Title 2, Division 6, California Code of Regulations, Section 18942, allow a payment provided to an official by an individual with whom the official has a long-term, close personal friendship unrelated to the official's position with the agency, unless the individual providing the benefit is a person who has, or may reasonably foreseeably have, a contract, license, permit, or other entitlement for use pending before the official's agency . . . if the official makes or participates in making those governmental decisions.

The Ethics Commission may take steps to initiate enforcement of late filers of Form 700 and may conduct random audits of filings submitted. Any person who violates any of the City's governmental ethics laws may be subject to criminal, civil, and administrative penalties (Campaign and Governmental Conduct Code, Section 3.242).

Preliminary Finding

- Loopholes in city and state restrictions in this area create avenues for unethical behavior and manipulation through the giving of gifts that are permitted and are difficult to enforce against.

Chapter 21 Formal Competitive Solicitation

Preliminary Findings

- Formal solicitation requirements for procurement under Chapter 21 and supplemental procedures from the Office of Contract Administration are generally sufficient, but there are opportunities to improve transparency in the solicitation award process.
- The processes used to award the contract that is the subject of the federal complaint against Mohammed Nuru generally complied with Chapter 21 requirements for competitive solicitations. However, these processes would not have identified the behind-the-scenes bid steering that allegedly occurred. The Office of Contract Administration, which managed the solicitation for two ADA-compliant portable restroom trailers on behalf of Public Works, advertised the bidding opportunity longer than the required five days, and the contract was awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, although there was only one bid, so no comparison of bids was possible.

Preliminary Finding

- The Office of Contract Administration invited 22 vendors to the pre-bid conference for portable restroom trailers, including the 8 contacted through outreach and the 14 that were already in the City's bid system as previous bidders or city vendors. Of the 3 vendors that attended the pre-bid conference (2 of whom were from the same entity), only 1 submitted a bid.
- Unlike Chapter 6, which has special requirements for departments to follow when no bid or only one bid is received, no such requirements exist in Chapter 21 or the Office of Contract Administration's policies. The Office of Contract Administration has a guidebook that recommends but does not require contacting vendors on the bidder's list when no or only one bid is received to determine why they did not bid. For this formal competitive solicitation, the Office of Contract Administration deemed the one bid received to be reasonable and did not contact the other vendors on the bidder's list.

Pre-Qualified Contracting Pools

Both Chapter 21 (Section 21.4) and Chapter 6 (Sections 6.62, 6.64) allow city departments to use pre-qualified contracting pools, where departments can prequalify a group of vendors using a competitive solicitation process and then establish a contract with one of the vendors from the pool when the need arises. Once the pool is created, the department can select its preferred vendor instead of going through another solicitation for the specific scope of work.

Preliminary Finding

- The City does not have standard procedures for selecting vendors once they are in a pre-qualified contracting pool. According to Public Works, there have been instances in which the same vendor would be selected repeatedly from a pre-qualified pool, at times by the direction of the department's former director, Mr. Nuru. Although this practice is not prohibited, it presents opportunities for ethical breaches and unethical favors, such as accepting gifts in exchange for bid steering. Additional processes can be implemented to ensure fairness and promote competition and transparency.

- One common practice at other city departments – including in many instances in Public Works – to ensure a fair, competitive process when using pre-qualified vendor pools is to require a relatively limited and quick solicitation process for vendors in the pool, whereby they must bid on the specific scope of work.
- According to Public Works, one practice the department uses to further promote competition within the pool is to rank candidates based on their qualifications, and only admit the top candidates to the pool, rather than admitting all vendors that simply meet the minimum qualifications. However, without a further process to select a vendor, even based on price, it still allows a city official to simply select his or her favorite.
- General as-needed contracts under Chapter 6 only require the department head's written determination that the work is needed and written justification for using this contracting process rather than a formal competitive process. Such contracts made up 90 percent of Public Works Chapter 6 professional services contracts for construction (pre-qualified pool), equivalent to $135.7 million in contract value.

Informal Solicitation

Contracts valued at over $10,000 and under the Threshold Amount ($706,000 for construction and general services) or under the Minimum Competitive Amount ($129,000 for commodities and professional services) may be informally solicited (as opposed to formally solicited) under Chapter 21 and Chapter 6, and per the Contract Monitoring Division's Chapter 14B Rules & Regulations. This means departments must solicit at least three quotes.

Preliminary Finding

- The review did not identify any issues related to contracts under informal solicitation at this time. Public Works' general practice is to competitively bid all contracts over $10,000, and it generally does not use informal solicitation.

No Solicitation Required

There are some instances in which competitive solicitation requirements can be waived, including:

- Sole Source Contracts, where goods or services can only be obtained from a single source. The reason the vendor is the sole source of the good or service must be documented.
- Emergency Authority, where in the event of a declared emergency, departments can procure goods and services in the most expeditious manner without following the City's usual competitive bidding requirements.
- Projects Addressing Homelessness Authority, where certain departments may establish or amend any contract for any construction or professional service without following the usual competitive bidding requirements.

Sole Source

Sole source contracts are those where goods or services can only be obtained from a single source, such as the inventor of a new vaccine or the only regional provider of integrated pest management.

Under Chapter 21, sole source requires approval by the Office of Contract Administration and the Contract Monitoring Division. Chapter 6 departments require their commission's or the Mayor's approval. Because Public Works is the only Chapter 6 department that does not have a commission, it needs the approval of the Mayor or mayoral designee for a sole source waiver.

During the review period, Public Works had two sole source contracts with total contract value of $214,080.

Preliminary Finding

- The review did not identify issues related to sole source contracts at this time.

Projects Addressing Homelessness

According to Public Works, it awarded 15 contracts with a value of $24.6 million related to projects addressing homelessness under Chapter 21B and Section 6.76,* which became effective in 2019. However, the practice to award such contracts started two years earlier, in 2017, under an uncoded ordinance.

The Administrative Code defines “Projects Addressing Homelessness” as projects designed to prevent homelessness through housing subsidies or services, and projects to provide shelter, housing, food, and/or social services. The code states that competitive procurement requirements may be waived for such contracts, grants, and procurement processes. Within one year, departments must report to the Board of Supervisors on the use of this authority.

In response to the federal complaint, the acting director of Public Works issued new policies and procedures requiring solicitation for all projects addressing homelessness, regardless of their value. According to Public Works, it is now implementing the new procedures.

Preliminary Findings

- Although Chapter 21B and Section 6.76 allow for departments to bypass the standard competitive solicitation process, needed controls over such solicitations were lacking in Public Works. Expected procedures to ensure minimum solicitation requirements, vendor qualifications, and fair selection were not uniformly applied nor required, either by code or by department procedure.
- Although the code allowed Public Works to bypass the competitive solicitation process, Public Works staff conducted some outreach and documented solicitations for projects addressing homelessness, as discussed on the next slides.

According to Public Works, it used the following methods to award 15 contracts totaling $24.6 million for projects addressing homelessness:

- Four contracts totaling $10.7 million resulted from informal solicitations, for which Public Works conducted outreach and documented the multiple quotes it received. These contracts were valued at:
 - $7.8 million
 - $1.6 million
 - $0.8 million
 - $0.5 million

- Seven contracts totaling $10.5 million did not go through solicitation of any kind and were directly awarded by Public Works. These contracts were valued at:
 - $4.7 million
 - $2.7 million
 - $2.0 million
 - $0.9 million
 - $110,595
 - $70,685
 - $4,800
- It is unclear what method was used to award four contracts totaling $3.5 million because no outreach or solicitation documentation exists. These contracts were valued at:
 - $2.9 million
 - $315,000
 - $170,295
 - $130,000

Emergency Purchasing Authority

Public Works awarded 6 contracts with a value of $3.2 million through an emergency procurement process during the review period. Administrative Code Section 6.60 authorizes the Board of Supervisors to declare an emergency and direct any department head to perform repair or other emergency work in a manner the board determines to be in the City's best interest.

The code defines an actual emergency as "a sudden, unforeseeable and unexpected occurrence involving a clear and imminent danger to life, health, property or essential public services." The department head responsible for addressing the emergency may also declare an emergency with immediate notice to the Board of Supervisors, Mayor, Controller, and board or commission with jurisdiction over the area affected by the emergency. The department head may proceed with the required work without additional approvals if the emergency work is estimated to cost $250,000 or less. Emergency work estimated to cost more than $250,000 requires the written approval of the Mayor or board or commission concerned, and the Board of Supervisors.

Grants

For the review period, city departments granted 5,746 awards with a value of $5.4 billion, of which Public Works awarded 19 grants with a value of $23.8 million (0.4% of the total citywide award amount).

Public Works awarded grants for a variety of workforce development, job training, and other services. According to Public Works, its practice is to competitively bid all grants, but it also applies the same process for awarding grants through a pre-qualified pool process.

Preliminary Finding

- City law and rules have historically provided insufficient requirements or guidance on the procurement process for grants awarded to nonprofit organizations. Specifically, the only citywide guidance on this process is a nonbinding agreement that has no force of law to require competitive solicitation. Consequently, practices vary significantly among departments and, in some cases, lack adequate controls.

Grants (continued)

- Before September 2018, there were two instances when guidance was developed to help departments distinguish a grant award from a contract for goods or services. These are summarized by a 1984 City Attorney opinion and a 1997 “Summary of Consensus” reached by the City Attorney, Controller, Department of Human Resources, and the Office of Contract Administration.
- Because some departments raised issues about strict application of the 1997 Consensus, the new factors for the four-prong bright-line test were updated in a 2018 Consensus (underlined sections represent changes made):
 1. The grantee must be either a nonprofit entity that serves the public interest or a government agency;

2. The grantee must be selected through a competitive grant application and award process, unless the grant is to a government agency for programs, activities, or services that can only be practically performed by that particular government agency and cannot be performed by any other party;
3. The agreement must not involve the acquisition of goods or services for the direct benefit or use of the department or commission; and
4. The agreement must not involve the contracting out of, or delegation of the responsibility for, any services that have at any time been performed by employees of the department or commission.

Preliminary Finding

There is no centralized monitoring of citywide grant solicitation or grant spending.

- According to the Office of Contract Administration, “the City has provided very little guidance to city departments regarding the grant development and/or grant writing process. In addition, OCA has no oversight authority on grants.”

Other Topics – Tone at the Top

According to Public Works staff, the “tone at the top” promulgated by the former director of Public Works prioritized low cost and expediency and created a lack of organizational transparency among staff.

Tone at the top refers to the ethical atmosphere that is created in the workplace by the organization's leadership. According to the Institute of Internal Auditors, all organizations are exposed to a degree of fraud risk in any process where human input is required. The degree to which an organization is exposed relates to the fraud risk inherent in the business process, the extent to which effective internal controls are present to either prevent or detect fraud, and the honesty and integrity of those involved in the process.

Although some of the opportunities to commit the schemes alleged in the federal government's complaint were created by the control weaknesses outlined, it was the “tone at the top,” lack of cross-functional sharing of information, and disregard of ethics and gift laws propagated by the former director of Public Works that provided the pressure, rationalization, and ability necessary to carry out these actions.

Other Topics – Oversight

The City's centralized oversight over procurement practices has gaps that should be closed to ensure adequate citywide monitoring. The Charter gives responsibility for city procurement to the city administrator, and Chapter 21 delegates that responsibility, as it relates to non-construction procurement, to the city purchaser. Chapter 6 grants authority over construction procurement to six departments.

Because no one entity has full oversight over procurement, the City lacks centralized monitoring to ensure procedures are performed in accordance with the Administrative Code and any corresponding policies. Further, the City lacks comprehensive citywide procurement regulations, policies, or procedures for departments to refer to throughout the procurement process and lacks a formal process for reviewing policy that should include the collaboration of the City's subject matter experts.

Division of purchasing oversight responsibilities among multiple entities by the municipal code and inadequate resources dedicated to policy development and maintenance have resulted in no entity taking responsibility for coordinating monitoring or centralized policies and procedures for all types of purchases.

Other Topics – Centralized Procurement System

City departments do not fully utilize the City's centralized procurement systems. Most departments do not enter contract information into the City's system until a contract has gone through the entire solicitation, vendor selection, and negotiation processes. Only after the City awards a contract and creates a purchase order is certain basic contract information entered into the system.

Greater use of the centralized procurement system would improve the City's ability to monitor pre-award activities, including information on contract planning, solicitation, outreach, and award. This would enable the City to detect red flags, inconsistencies, and noncompliance.

The City's centralized procurement system does not currently meet all department needs. For example, the system does not currently allow departments to fully track the life and details of a construction project, such as when subcontractors are brought on after the notice to proceed has been issued.

Recommendations

Given the findings in this preliminary assessment, we offer the following preliminary recommendations. We will continue to refine these recommendations as our investigation and review continues and will consider the feedback we receive in the review process.

1. Under Chapter 6 of the Administrative Code, the Mayor should delegate final approval for Public Works construction contracts to an official other than the department director. The Mayor and Board should amend Chapter 6 to prohibit delegation to the department head for these contracting activities.
2. The Ethics Commission should examine and close loopholes in the San Francisco Campaign and Governmental Conduct Code to ensure that city law does not create avenues for unethical behavior in acceptance of gifts.

3. The Ethics Commission should expeditiously enable and require that all Statements of Economic Interests (Form 700s) are filed electronically by all required filers, and conduct annual compliance reviews of these filings. The Mayor and Board should prioritize funding and other support necessary to accomplish this goal.
4. The Mayor, Board, and Office of Contract Administration should establish clear guidelines for selecting a vendor or vendors from a pre-qualified pool. Possible methods for such selections include soliciting quotes for a defined item or scope of work from all vendors in the pool.
5. Public Works should adhere to the new procurement procedures implemented by its acting director for projects addressing homelessness and emergency procurement. The City should implement similar procedures for such purchases citywide.

6. The Mayor, Board, and Office of Contract Administration should establish minimum requirements to ensure competitive solicitation of grants, similar to requirements for contracts, and formalize these requirements in code and policy.
7. To promote data-driven decisions and transparency, city departments should be required to use the City's centralized systems throughout the purchasing life cycle, from planning through contract award. To enable this change, these systems should be improved to better meet department needs.
8. The City should close gaps in centralized monitoring of all procurement activities by strengthening and resourcing the Office of Contract Administration or some other city entity to expand its monitoring and oversight to all city procurement activities.

Next Steps

Our Public Integrity Review, performed in consultation with the City Attorney, will continue to conduct assessments of various city procedures and policies to assess their adequacy to prevent abuse and fraud. Future reports and assessments are underway on the following topics:

1. A final report on the topics covered in this preliminary assessment.
2. The use of “friends of” organizations to support city operations.
3. Ethical standards for commissions’ contract approval processes at the Airport and other City commissions.
4. The City’s contractor debarment process.
5. Policies and practices to award permits at the Department of Building Inspection.

Additional reviews and assessments will be determined and performed as the Nuru investigation proceeds.

Hello,

The Energy Efficiency Coordinating Committee (EECC), comprised of members of the San Francisco community representing affordable housing, small business, environmental justice, and energy efficiency organizations, is transmitting its report to the BOS.

Sponsored by former Supervisor Eric Mar, the Committee started its work in 2016-2017 and mostly wrapped up by 2018. Since then, minor revisions have been made to the report, and both SFE and SFPUC have worked with Committee members on recommendations in the report. Additionally, many recommendations of the report have already been implemented (or are underway). And certain recommendations no longer apply because the energy efficiency industry has considerably transformed over the past three years.

Please let the Department of Environment know if you have any questions.

Letter from the Chair

Dear Supervisors,

The Energy Efficiency Coordinating Committee (EECC), comprised of members of the San Francisco community, representing affordable housing, small business, environmental justice and energy efficiency organizations is pleased to present our report to the BOS. We have identified the priorities, best practices and gaps in getting funding and services more effectively to the most disadvantaged consumers in San Francisco.

Sponsored by former Supervisor Eric Mar, the Committee started our work in 2017. In the context of climate change and its increasingly negative impacts on disadvantaged communities, it is clear that the first and biggest priority is achieving energy efficiency in the building sector. Only after investing in and maximizing building energy efficiency, can we realize our ambitious goals around carbon reduction by distributed energy resources, electrification and other decarbonization measures.

For energy efficiency programs and dollars to be more effective, we believe that a one-stop interface for customers to avail of all the incentive and rebates is critical. In the absence of a coordinating entity, we find that rebate programs can be one-off, piecemeal efforts rather than whole-building deep retrofits.

As CleanPowerSF rolls out service to all San Franciscans, it is also incumbent upon our municipal utility providing clean power to us to invest in energy efficiency programs. The Committee highly recommends securing CPUC approval to establish customer-facing energy efficiency programs. Further, the program design should consider existing programs such as the SF Department of Environment's BayREN and EnergyWatch programs that have engaged in community outreach for small business and multifamily affordable housing for years.

We hope that the Board considers our recommendations as we plan for a carbon neutral future.

Sincerely,

Avni Jamdar

Mission

The San Francisco Energy Efficiency Coordinating Committee was created by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors to provide the Board with guidance on the planning and decision making around energy efficiency projects in San Francisco, and the spending of an allocation of new monies for such purposes.

The Board of Supervisors requested the Committee:

- ✓ Hold hearings and submit recommendations to the Board of Supervisors, the Mayor, and other City officers and departments on the equitable spending and allocation of energy efficiency funds.
- ✓ Compile a list of energy efficiency programs operated by the City.
- ✓ Identify policy and programmatic gaps in San Francisco's energy efficiency programs and make recommendations to address them.

Executive Summary

The Energy Efficiency Coordinating Committee (“the Committee”) submits our findings from our year-long appointment to advise the Board of Supervisors.

The Committee strongly recommends that the City of San Francisco prioritize funding and programs for energy efficiency (EE) combined with other Distributed Energy Resources (DER). DERs, which are defined as distribution-connected distributed generation resources, energy efficiency, energy storage, electric vehicles, and demand response technologies, are supported by a wide-ranging suite of California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) policies.¹ California State Senate Bill 3502 sets ambitious 2030 targets for EE and renewable electricity, among other actions aimed at reducing greenhouse gas emissions. This report lays out recommendations and strategies for San Francisco to meet the mandates of SB350 and to be a leader in EE policy, programs, and outcomes.

Between February 2016 and February 2017, the Committee invited all the current providers of EE services in San Francisco to share their programmatic details, successes and constraints. After mapping the programs serving the various building sectors, including large commercial, market rate and affordable multi-family housing, single-family housing, and municipal/institutional buildings, the Committee sought to focus on programs that serve and impact low-income communities in San Francisco (e.g., affordable multi-family housing and small commercial sectors). Low-income residents spend a disproportionate percentage of their incomes on utility bills, and often are tenants with fewer options to improve their rental units for optimizing energy use and indoor air quality. Small business owners, including corner-stores, small grocery stores, and other service-oriented businesses face similar challenges of growing energy costs.

We heard from program implementers and industry experts who presented to the Committee. They shared concerns about programmatic constraints, knowledge of funding pathways, incentive and rebate dissemination best practices, and challenges in reaching smaller, hard-to-reach utility customers. The Committee focused on both demand-side programs that provide EE services, as well as some supply-side programs that prepare the workforce for these types of jobs.

We invited and heard from utility-funded and third party implemented programs including the San Francisco Department of the Environment’s (SF Environment) SF Energy Watch program, a partnership with Pacific Gas and Electric Company (PG&E). The Committee also learned from the Association of Bay Area Government’s BayREN Multi Family program, which is also implemented by SF Environment. The Committee also invited affordable-multifamily property owners and advocates to speak with us, including Chinatown Community Development Center and the California Housing Partnership, to offer their perspective on multifamily EE programs.

Staff from PG&E shared the details of their Energy Savings Assistance Program (ESAP), and the San Francisco Public Utility Commission's (SFPUC) provided an overview of municipal EE upgrade programs they offer Hetch Hetchy Enterprise customers, including the San Francisco Unified School District (SFUSD). The Economic Opportunity Council (EOC), which offers low-income residential EE programs through state funding, was also invited to present to the Committee but did not respond to our outreach. On the supply side, the Committee heard from workforce programs run by the SFPUC, including their Contractors Assistance Center, and the San Francisco Office of Economic and Workforce Development's (OEWD) CityBuild Academy.

In anticipating new funding pathways for EE programs, staff from SFPUC's CleanPowerSF program spoke with the Committee about their plan for EE program development working in collaboration with SF Environment. We also heard from another local Community Choice Aggregation (CCA) program administrator, Marin Clean Energy, who shared their challenges as a new CCA with limited EE program development and implementation experience, and best practices to date. The Committee also reviewed the parameters emerging on California's Cap and Trade program funding, and its impacts on San Francisco's low-income neighborhoods.

While not exhaustive, this process provided the Committee with valuable insights into the policy and program gaps/challenges, including ease of customer access, to inform this report. We recommend further surveying of small business owners, tenants and landlords of multifamily housing to gain deeper insight from the customer perspective.

San Francisco is ahead of the curve in EE policy and has historically had access to adequate funding via the State with clear established goals for energy savings. However, like many municipalities, San Francisco faces near term opportunities and challenges due to an ever-changing regulatory environment that will reform the services, and incentives, discrete program providers offer the community. Achieving the goals set forth in SB350 will require deep, comprehensive whole building retrofits supported by a significant uptick in financing options that go beyond rebates/incentives, while providing more flexibility in combining rebates/incentives between different programs and better access to data to inform targeted outreach and decision making.

In 2016, budgets of EE programs offered in San Francisco, each with unique funding pathways, totaled approximately $12M. Appendix A includes a detailed matrix of this funding which helped serve all sectors of the built environment. The Committee seeks to both expand this number, and to increase the impact of these programs in low-income neighborhoods. We submit our findings, and related recommendations in this report.

1. Expand Programs for Low-Income Residents

Recommendation 1.1

CPUC allow local governments to lower the threshold for the Energy Savings and Assistance Program (ESAP).

ESAP is run by PG&E and provides weatherization and energy efficiency improvements to low-income homeowners and renters. Eligibility requirements for the ESAP ($9,000 maximum income per household) are the same statewide using federal poverty thresholds. This means that many low-income San Francisco residents who suffer from the high cost of living may not be eligible for this low threshold.

Implementation 1.1a

Board of Supervisors directs the City Attorney to draft a letter to the CPUC on behalf of the City and County of San Francisco.

Recommendation 1.2

Establish a city-wide, comprehensive approach to DER (including EE) programs for low-income residents which has the potential to create better service, proper oversight and equitable distribution of future dollars from potential funding sources including but not limited to grants and cap-and-trade funding.

DER (including EE) programs in San Francisco for low-income residents are segmented among various third-parties including PG&E and the San Francisco Economic Opportunity Council.

Implementation 1.2a

Ensure that SF Environment and SFPUC, through CleanPowerSF, work together to prioritize this process in the 2017-2019 timeframe.

Implementation 1.2b

Enable SF Environment to perform a feasibility study, supported by funding, on how to coordinate the programs serving low-income communities.

Recommendation 1.3

Support altering program cost-effectiveness evaluations at the CPUC to include non-energy benefits.

Implementation 1.3a

Board of Supervisors directs the City Attorney to Draft a letter to the CPUC on behalf of the City and County of San Francisco.

Issue Spotlight: Climate Change and the Bayview Hunters Point Neighborhood

By: James Bryant, Committee Member

One of the major goals of making San Francisco more energy efficient is to reduce and mitigate the impacts of climate change. As we have seen in San Francisco and throughout the world, the effects of climate change disproportionately impact vulnerable populations and low-income communities. Around the world, climate change is pushing millions of families into poverty.³

With the changing climate, we see an increase in the risks of flooding, and several local neighborhoods in San Francisco are vulnerable to extreme heat waves including the Bayview-Hunters Point community.⁴

Bayview Hunters Point is also recognized as a disadvantaged community burdened by environmental degradation and multiple sources of pollution including industrial facilities, toxic sites and freeways.

Historically, the southeast area of the City had two major power plants operating – one in the Potrero Hill neighborhood and the former PG&E Hunters Point Power Plant. No longer in operation, the Mirant Potrero Power Plant closed and the PG&E Hunters Point Power Plant was decommissioned and demolished. When PG&E's Hunters Point Power Plant operated, it produced over 1,600 tons of pollutant emissions per year.⁵

Challenges

The Bayview-Hunters Point neighborhood has 4% of the City's population and is a diverse, multicultural community experiencing significant redevelopment and demographic changes. There are approximately 35,000 residents who live in Bayview, including 35.1% African-American, 28.9% Asian, 24.8% Hispanic or Latino and 19.5% White.⁶ With 10,500 housing units, an estimated half of the Bayview residents live in owner-occupied homes and half of the residents are renters. Over 40% of Bayview residents are considered poor, living below the federal poverty level (income of $22,300 or less for a family of four) and 12% of Bayview's population are extremely poor, and receive public assistance income.

According to a State Low-Income Barriers Study recently completed by the CEC pursuant to SB 350,⁷ low-income disadvantaged communities, such as Bayview-Hunters Point, face multiple barriers and challenges to realizing the benefits of energy efficiency and renewable energy.

Some structural barriers for low-income families to energy efficiency include:

- Low home ownership rates
- Complex needs, ownership, and financial arrangements for low-income multifamily housing
- Insufficient access to capital
- Building age
- Remote or underserved communities

The SB 350 report on low-income barriers also identified several policy and program barriers which limit access to clean energy for low-income customers. Policy and program barriers to energy efficiency include:

- Market delivery challenges

Effective market delivery can be hampered by differing definitions of low-income or disadvantaged communities, insufficient or poorly calibrated outreach and delivery, high transaction costs imposed on low-income residents with limited time and resources, and slow rebate disbursements. For multifamily building owners, a lack of information about whole-building energy usage, energy upgrade potential, and a lack of program coordination across multiple services can contribute to limited participation.

- Programs are fragmented and not well integrated.

Barriers to program integration, collaboration, and leveraging limit opportunities to streamline services and lock complementary funding sources into silos. Rate-setting and regulatory challenges can create uncertainty and new possibilities. Insecure, inadequate, or inequitable program funding can limit the transformative effect of low-income programs.

- Data limitations.

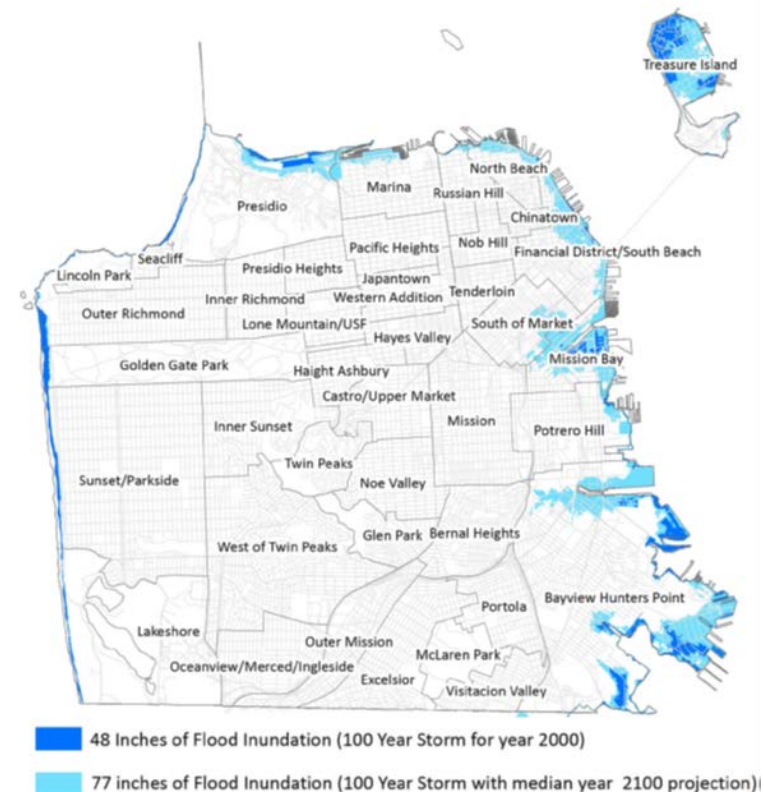

Data limitations impede innovative and adaptive approaches to reaching low-income residents and stymie collaborative efforts.

- Unrecognized non-energy benefits.

Non-energy benefits are often not considered in cost-effectiveness tests, which devalues some of the most important factors that motivate investment in clean energy upgrades, such as family health and safety, comfort, tenant retention, improved indoor air quality, energy savings reinvested into community, reduction in energy use which, in turn, reduces the impacts of climate change, etc.

2. Bolster Workforce Development Opportunities

Recommendation 2.1

Support contractor training for small and minority contractors to increase their capacity and access to financing in bidding on green and public-sector projects.

To promote diversity among small local contractors, the City should engage with the contractor community which faces barriers in accessing emerging green sector work. This is due to small business owners' capacity barriers, lack of resources, bonding, and lack of access to finance.

Creating training curriculum and connection to employers and projects is crucial to supporting low income communities of color. Contractors that do business with the City must have a working knowledge of Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) as well as state and local Green Building Codes.

Implementation 2.1a

SFPUC establish and fund contractor outreach and capacity training as needed at the Contractor Assistance Center.

Implementation 2.1b

SF Environment to perform a feasibility study on the development of additional training modules for DERS including EE, renewables, electric vehicles and energy storage.

Recommendation 2.2

Training programs in San Francisco related to construction should include an upskill training component that creates a baseline of DERs (including EE) knowledge.

Sometimes, the most necessary upgrade isn't the light-bulbs or furnace, but the building itself. Before EE-upgrades are complete, the City must address existing structural deficiencies. Existing DER (including EE) programs should have budget appropriated to help struggling property owners address health and safety issues, followed by energy.

While addressing safety and structural deficiencies, many trades (carpentry, plumbing, electrical, abatement, etc.) could be involved. At the same time, these properties provide opportune, real-life training for apprentices and students. Thus, including basic DER curriculum in training programs will allow workers to be competitive in the green economy.

Implementation 2.2a

Board of Supervisors requests a hearing asking the Office of Economic and Workforce Development, in collaboration with SF Environment, how they would incorporate DERs (including EE) in broader workforce training programming.

Recommendation 2.3

Improve coordination among various local organizations providing workforce development training and comprehensive DER (including EE) programs.

Align the goals of apprentices from labor unions and curriculum of students from existing, local workforce development programs, such as Asian Neighborhood Designs (AND), Rising Sun, and City College of San Francisco Construction Technology Program, to those of comprehensive DER (including EE) programs.

Implementation 2.3a

SF Environment should continue to follow state legislation focused on achieving the goals of SB350 including but not limited to future amendments to Assembly Bill 1088.

3. Increase Financing for Small Business Upgrades

Recommendation 3.1

Expand the SF Environment microloan pilot program and / or establish an on-bill repayment for small businesses for projects below $5,000.

Small business owners pursuing EE upgrades are responsible for paying whatever is not covered by rebates, which is approximately 22% of the project cost. Currently on-bill repayment options via PG&E have a $5,000 loan amount minimum. This in turn precludes small businesses from completing projects as many do not have the cash to pay the co-pay up front. To address this gap, SF Environment developed a microloan pilot project to help small businesses move forward with their EE upgrades.

Currently an existing partnership between SF Environment and Mission Asset Fund provides the microloan. Further partnerships should be explored with platforms for businesses that cannot access federally sponsored programs, which include additional lending circles and online lenders like Funding Circle. The Celtic Bank, another SF Environment partner, has made their small and medium size business product line available on an online credit marketplace, which also bypasses extensive loan applications and pre-qualification timelines.

Small businesses should not be limited to PG&E sponsored on-bill financing, main street banks and microloan programs through existing City partnerships since these programs will not cover the amount (typically $100,000 +) for a small retail like a corner market to get up to code. It is recommended that SF Environment work with the OEWD to explore increasing exposure of other City partnerships connected to Small Business Administration (SBA) funding. For example, the Revolving Loan Fund through Main Street Launch, could provide capital to finance equipment replacements in their entirety.

Implementation 3.1a

Perform a feasibility study to extend the SF Environment microloan pilot project, and potentially create an on-bill repayment system, to future CleanPowerSF program development.

Recommendation 3.2

Support SF Environment's efforts to implement the multifamily BayREN model (e.g., whole building approach) for commercial properties via the BayREN Business Plan currently awaiting CPUC approval.

Under the BayREN model, there is more flexibility for SF Environment to provide energy efficiency upgrades versus the Energy Watch program, which has more stringent restrictions that prevent consideration of comprehensive upgrades for the customer.

Implementation 3.2a

Board of Supervisors directs the City Attorney to draft a letter to the CPUC on behalf of the City and County of San Francisco.

Recommendation 3.3

Support pay-for-performance program development at SF Environment and the SFPUC.

The rebate amount available to the commercial sector for EE upgrades only applies to changes made that surpass current building energy code requirements. This means that businesses who find themselves far behind code are not eligible to receive incentives for the energy savings that could help them reach compliance with the current code. Therefore, the incentives available are relatively small compared to the total cost of EE upgrades.

There is also currently a movement away from paying incentives for each EE measure, such as a lighting retrofit, to creating EE incentives based on actual energy savings, which may solve for the previously noted barriers. It is recommended that PG&E allow SF Energy Watch clients to receive actual, not claimable, savings through a pay-for-performance model. Meaning, the City must advocate for market mechanism that enable incentives based on actual performance of a building after EE upgrades, rather than the legacy widget implemented based incentive structure. In its Business Plan submittal to the CPUC, the BayREN program proposed to add commercial customers to its portfolio of services, complimented by a pay-for-performance incentive structure. As the implementer of the SF BayREN program, SF Environment wrote this section of the Business Plan and is closely following CPUC review (and pending decision). It is recommended that the Board of Supervisors advocate for approval of the BayREN Business Plan to the CPUC in Q1 2018 should a public comment opportunity become available..

Implementation 3.3a

Perform a feasibility study to analyze if CleanPowerSF should support a pay-for-performance model under future EE program development.

Recommendation 3.4

Consider development of a model in which independent businesses of similar type can be aggregated in terms of EE upgrade measure to reduce the cost and complexity.

Implementation 3.4a

Evaluate SF Energy Watch's comprehensive refrigeration maintenance pilot project as a successful model for replication.

Implementation 3.4b

Support SF Environment's evaluation of opportunities to potentially aggregate similar EE customers.

Issue Spotlight: Successful Small Business Pilot Programs

By: Miriam Zouzounis, Committee Member

As we have learned, a comprehensive approach to EE is necessary to achieve the City and state's climate action goals. One-time incentives for equipment upgrades must be paired with technical support, education, and training that ensures long-term energy savings.

In 2015, SF Environment's Energy Watch program conducted a street-level campaign targeting small businesses in the food and beverage sector. The intent of this campaign was to help businesses take advantage of EE upgrade incentives. During the campaign, staff noted that the refrigeration equipment at numerous businesses throughout the city was in poor operating condition. In some stores, equipment was in such disrepair that contractors were not willing to install rebated component parts.

Regular maintenance of refrigeration equipment is essential for reliability over its lifetime and cost savings through reduced energy use. It is also critical to ensuring the community has access to safe food products. SF Environment found that improper maintenance was attributed to business owners' limited time, misperception of cost, and lack of awareness and technical expertise to conduct regular equipment maintenance.

Based on lessons learned in 2015, SF Environment developed a project using Strategic Energy Resources funding through the SF Energy Watch program. The Comprehensive Refrigeration Maintenance for Small and Medium Businesses pilot project targeted the food and beverage sector, aiming to not only upgrade equipment but also provide essential education and training to business owners on the importance of maintaining refrigeration equipment.

The pilot reached 40 corner stores, offering basic best practices training to these small business owners to prolong equipment life and ensure reliability. The training included the following:

- Schedule a walk through with business owners to identify and understand the functionality of components of their refrigeration systems

- Discuss ongoing maintenance needs of refrigeration equipment to ensure optimal operation and avoid unnecessary energy use to keep products cold,

- Demonstrate safe, accessible best practices to enable regular cleaning techniques that can prevent both costly equipment failures, and mold, rust, and other safety hazards that neglected systems may produce that are near food products,

- Equipping business owners with support materials that support regular equipment maintenance to prevent unnecessary financial costs (i.e., list of cleaning supplies, thermometers, maintenance checklist, and temperature logs).

The pilot also measured actual energy savings through continuous monitoring and real-time data collection of several interventions developed by SF Environment. Overall, the pilot found energy usage was reduced up to 36% based on the combination of interventions that were applied at an individual business. The intent of collecting this data was to try to standardize the savings associated from proper maintenance, which could influence future policy measures and rebate programs.

However, due to varying conditions of existing refrigeration equipment and maintenance practices in small grocery stores, SF Environment found it wasn't feasible to standardize energy savings broadly for this sector to influence changes in existing rebate programs.

In addition to refrigeration equipment services, SF Energy Watch provided no cost EE assessments for other upgrade measures like lighting and paired those with available rebates. SF Energy Watch also connected business owners to its microloan program. Administered in partnership with local nonprofit Mission Asset Fund (MAF), SF Environment's microloan program makes 0% loans (up to $2,500) available to fund these hard-to-reach businesses' co-pays for rebate-eligible energy efficiency projects.

The funding used to implement this pilot was made available through SF Environment's Energy Watch program with PG&E. PG&E had to review and approve a proposal request from SF Environment for the pilot. The 2016 pilot's scope was expanded in 2017 and implementation will extend through 2019.

4. Prioritize Multifamily Housing

Recommendation 4.1

San Francisco to offer a customer-friendly, comprehensive program for DER solutions and water efficiency upgrades.

A comprehensive DER program does not currently exist for the multifamily sector, as programs for electric vehicles and energy storage are new, as is CleanPowerSF. There is tremendous potential to serve hard to reach populations by designing innovative programs that make it easier for customers to undertake EE upgrades, in addition to other DER solutions. For non-profit managed affordable multi-family housing, this is especially useful outside of the 10-15-year financing lifecycle of the buildings. SF Environment currently operates multiple private sector EE programs providing services to thousands of businesses, property managers, building owners, and tenants in multiple languages throughout San Francisco and has done so since 2001 (through various funding pathways including PG&E, ABAG (BayREN) and grants from the CEC and U.S. Department of Energy). SF Environment has the knowledge, infrastructure, and track record to develop and implement new DER (including EE) programs under CleanPowerSF. The Committee therefore recommends that SF Environment and the SFPUC continue to work together on the development and implementation of DER (including EE) programs.

Implementation 4.1a

SF Environment and SFPUC collaborate to offer DERs and water efficiency upgrade program services, including on-bill repayment options to multi-family affordable properties.

Recommendation 4.2

Increase outreach to City agencies, apartment owners, managers and associations and vendors about SF Environment's "one-stop shop" for all local and state DER (including EE) programs and financing available in San Francisco.

A one-stop shop will make it simpler for the community to find information on incentives, financing options and available technical support services offered by the City. In turn, this will assist property owners / managers in pursuing outstanding/deferred EE upgrades and other potential DER projects that could improve the economics of the property for both owner/manager and tenant.

Implementation 4.2a

Request City agencies and other public points of contact link to a page on the SF Environment website that explains the one-stop shop and its offerings and partner with other community organizations, especially those that help the vulnerable, to conduct residential outreach and education.

Implementation 4.2b

Board of Supervisors ensures that SF Environment has sufficient funding to expand outreach and technical support to customers.

Issue Spotlight: Mission Affordable Housing

By: Sam Moss, Committee Member

San Francisco has more than 200 multi-family affordable housing (MAH) sites providing over 20,000 units of affordable housing to the City's low-income & working-class communities. In this instance, MAHs in San Francisco are defined as 100 percent affordable housing for low-income and very low-income tenants that make no more than 60% of the Area Median Income. This project was developed specifically by and for Mission Housing Development Company

MAHs continue to be underserved and have significant unrealized benefits with regards to energy efficiency. MAHs in San Francisco face barriers that make it difficult for energy efficiency measures to be adopted:

- There is the challenge of split incentives, where tenants pay utility bills through a "utility subsidy" while property owners are responsible for capital improvements to the building.
- There is also a challenge with financing capital improvements for energy efficiency measures because the savings are often difficult to capture to help repay the loans.

- Many MAH sites pre-date Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and essential life safety codes. Because of this, EE work has the potential to trigger extremely expensive upgrades and is therefore not pursued.

Implementing energy efficiency at MAH sites will help both the building owner and residents save money on utility bills, improve comfort and quality of life, and promote resilient housing for low-income families. Mission Housing Development Corporation has actively pursued a variety of different strategies to make these improvements and overcome the barriers previously noted. By partnering with stakeholders such as the Association for Energy Affordability (AEA) and SF Environment, Mission Housing Development Corporation has completed several energy efficiency projects in recent years. Here is one case study:

The Betel Apartments houses fifty (50) residential units of affordable multi-family housing that was originally built in 1976. Residents were relocated and their furnishings put in storage as construction crews moved from floor to floor of each building. Units were fully modernized with new appliances, LED lighting, new bathrooms and kitchens, modern heating systems, durable and low-emitting flooring, water saving plumbing fixtures, and improved mechanical ventilation. Common area upgrades were also installed, including LED lighting, high-efficiency combination heating and domestic hot water boilers, and a new solar hot water system.

Like the Esperanza and Colosimo Apartments, Mission Housing worked closely with an SF Environment project manager, to secure a $37,500 rebate for the projects. Again, the rebate helped with the purchase of higher quality, higher efficiency equipment to achieve aggressive energy saving goals.

Finally, in addition to the efficiency, durability, and indoor air quality benefits, Mission Housing wanted to go above and beyond code and funding requirements for the project to achieve higher standards. To this end, they worked with AEA to third-party verify and certify the project under the GreenPoint Rated certification program. Third-party verification of all construction materials and practices is required to accomplish a GreenPoint Rating. The project is projected to achieve 96 points, which earns a Silver category designation.

Issue Spotlight: Challenges to Renovating Multifamily Properties

By: Holly Kaufman, Committee Member

In San Francisco's multi-family apartment buildings, owners often have little incentive to make energy efficiency upgrades as tenants typically pay energy bills for their individual units. Unless a building has high bills for common spaces shared by all tenants, such as lobbies and laundry rooms, owners have high investment costs compared to potential savings from upgrades. Landlords who care about environmental stewardship can find it difficult to pay for ongoing necessary maintenance and compliance with mandates (such as seismic retrofits), as well as to pay for energy efficiency upgrades.

Landlords can pass on a portion of the cost of major efficiency improvements through very small increases if approved by the City's Rent Board. However, petitioning the Rent Board is a lengthy and expensive process, and the payback period is over many years.

Some property owners may qualify for BayREN, the local program that provides up to a $750 per unit rebate if there is a minimum 15% energy savings throughout the building. In a small building, especially one where simple and low-cost efficiency measures have already been implemented, the total rebate is low compared to the cost of required measures. Likewise, Property Assessed Clean Energy (PACE) financing may be a way for homeowners or owners of large multifamily buildings to fund major projects. PACE financing can pay for a project minus any rebates, but many owners find it challenging to find a lender willing to loan less than $100,000, or loan to someone who already has a mortgage.

Owners, particularly of small buildings, must not only have the funds available or be willing to take on debt for a significant period of time, but also be highly motivated to seek out, understand and implement energy efficiency measures beyond the easy, inexpensive and non-intrusive ones like switching light bulbs. SF Environment's "one-stop shop" can assist owners in identifying which energy efficiency measures are appropriate for their building and which of the various financing programs an owner qualifies for, including through state and federal agencies, utilities and non-profits. The comprehensive "one-stop shop" feature should be clearly spelled out on SF Environment's website, and known and advertised at all the other contact points that owners are in frequent touch, including other City agencies.

Even with the availability of clear and correct information, owners may not undertake major efficiency projects without increased communication and information on existing programs and significant increase in the financial incentives.

5. Streamline the Process for Energy Upgrades

Recommendation 5.1

Establish a DER (including EE) ombudsman program.

SF Environment is constrained by its funding sources which determine the types of EE measures and incentives that can be offered by the City. These policies for how funding can be used are developed at the state level. For SF Environment to provide comprehensive DER (including EE) services to San Francisco residents, there should be General Fund dollars to allow SF Environment the flexibility to act as the DER ombudsmen to the community. The ombudsman would fill the gap of what can be incentivized by the state with a layer of funding to meet the needs of San Francisco.

SF Environment EE auditors in the BayREN and SF Energy Watch programs successfully work with specific target audiences on EE upgrades. An ombudsman program will help SF Environment with providing additional DER services not currently allowed in existing programs (e.g., EVs, storage, renewables) while in the field.

Implementation 5.1a

San Francisco Board of Supervisors allocates General Fund resources to finance a DER (including EE) ombudsman program at SF Environment.

Recommendation 5.2

Public interfacing City agencies promote DERs (including EE) to their clients as part of their department's Climate Action Plan, referring clients to programs implemented by SF Environment including but not limited to SF Energy Watch and BayREN.

There are many opportunities for encouraging EE upgrades when individuals engage with City agencies. To reach San Francisco's climate action goals, City departments track their greenhouse gas emissions (GHG) and create reduction plans in an annual report called the departmental Climate Action Plan. The Committee recommends that EE planning extend beyond the activity of an individual department to how interactions with the community and that department can help the City achieve substantial EE savings and in turn meet its GHG reduction goals.

Implementation 5.2a

San Francisco Board of Supervisors introduces an ordinance requiring this.

Recommendation 5.3

Increase the flexibility of historic preservation requirements so that windows, doors, exterior and interior walls and other building elements can be made from more efficient and less expensive materials if the finished look maintains the historic visual integrity of a building.

San Francisco's historic preservation requirements often prevent altering the look of building exteriors, which can make replacing windows and doors—key elements for an energy-efficient building envelope—difficult. For example, San Francisco requires that older buildings have wood frame windows, which prevents the installation of windows using more energy efficiency materials. The City has a policy opposing the use of vinyl; however, there are other options for windows that are paintable, require little maintenance, and are significantly less expensive.

Implementation 5.3a

SF Environment collaborate with the Historic Architectural Review Board to review the historic preservation rules to include energy efficient materials.

Recommendation 5.4

Create shared learning for energy efficiency and workforce development (e.g. Richmond Build workforce development program, on-bill financing) with other Bay Area CCA programs.

Marin Clean Energy and Sonoma Clean Power have established programs on providing energy efficiency incentives including on-bill repayment and workforce development. It would be useful for San Francisco to learn from their successes and challenges as we develop programs for CleanPowerSF.

Implementation 5.4a

Ensure funding is available for SF Environment and SFPUC staff to conduct outreach together to other Bay Area CCAs.

Recommendation 5.5

SF Environment continues to follow CPUC efforts on DERs through participation in various regulatory proceedings to ensure a comprehensive approach to energy solutions is achieved to help cities reach their climate action goals.

Implementation 5.5a

As needed, the Board of Supervisors directs the City Attorney to draft a letter to the CPUC on behalf of the City and County of San Francisco.

6. Remove Barriers to Data Collection

Recommendation 6.1

Establish energy benchmarking requirements for multifamily buildings.

Energy benchmarking is the process of summarizing the energy used by an entire building, which enables tracking of trends and comparison to similar buildings under similar conditions across the nation. San Francisco was among the first cities in the U.S. to approve a benchmarking Ordinance. The City's Environment Code Chapter 20 requires that each whole non-residential building larger than 10,000 square feet must be benchmarked and building owners or their representatives must annually electronically share a brief report of key benchmarking results with SF Environment, and tenants. The mandatory "Annual Energy

Benchmark Summary" encapsulates energy usage for one building for one calendar year.^[1]

Assembly Bill 802 \(2015\) was informed by San Francisco's experience; AB802 requires benchmarking commercial and multifamily buildings of 50,000 square feet or larger statewide, and requires utilities to provide property owners with the whole-building energy usage history that is needed for benchmarking. San Francisco Environment Code Chapter 20 applies to a broader group of commercial buildings (10,000 square feet or greater), but multifamily is exempt because when the ordinance was adopted in 2011 it was onerous for a multifamily building owner to obtain energy usage data for benchmarking. Benchmarking ordinances in cities outside of California, as well as ordinances adopted by Los Angeles and Berkeley after AB802, all require both commercial and multifamily benchmarking of both energy and water use. Since the Legislature has directed utilities to provide whole-building energy data, San Francisco's Ordinance should be updated to bring the benefits of benchmarking to the multifamily sector, so that the City is the single consistent point of contact, engagement, and support for energy benchmarking. The data collected under an amended Ordinance would help the City target EE incentives, financing, and technical assistance to buildings in San Francisco.

Implementation 6.1a

SF Environment work with stakeholders to develop the policy.

Implementation 6.1b

San Francisco Board of Supervisors introduces an ordinance to establish benchmarking for multifamily buildings.

Recommendation 6.2

State of California change its data consent law to allow more access for local governments to identify potential program customers, track participation, and track energy use.

To obtain customer specific energy usage data, utility customers must provide consent (via authentication via PG&E Share My Data) to allow the City's EE programs to access detailed historic energy usage, such as 15-minute "interval" data. Such 15-minute "interval" data could be analyzed at low cost to determine the best opportunities for follow up, such as assistance adjusting thermostats or other operating conditions vs. identifying inefficient equipment. Requiring consent from each customer is a barrier for

^[1] <https://sfenvironment.org/energy/energy-efficiency/commercial-and-multifamily->

properties/existing-commercial-buildings-energy-performance-ordinance/benchmarking

EE program implementers, making it difficult to conduct research to target customers, to evaluate the success of assistance provided, and to monitor for potential follow-up if savings are different than expected. While detailed energy usage history is confidential, local government EE programs should be able to use the information with appropriate safeguards.

Implementation 6.2a

Board of Supervisors directs the City Attorney to draft a letter to the CPUC and California Energy Commission (CEC) on behalf of the City and County of San Francisco.

Recommendation 6.3

Survey individuals served by energy efficiency programs to learn of their challenges.

The Committee heard presentations from energy efficiency program administrators and implementers, however it was beyond the scope of the Committee to survey the sentiments of constituents and recipients of EE program services.

Implementation 6.3a

Ensure funding is available for SF Environment to develop and administer a survey.

Issue Spotlight: Cap-and-Trade, CalEnviroScreen, and San Francisco

By: Antonio Diaz, Committee Member

Among the Energy Efficiency Coordinating Committee's responsibilities, according to the enabling legislation, is to advise the Board of Supervisors on the "spending and allocation of new monies, including revenue received from the State cap-and-trade program." The Committee did not engage much in this issue. Although San Francisco has received climate investments,⁸ the City does not rank highly using the methodology adopted by the state of California in identifying communities eligible for a portion of the cap-and-trade funds specifically targeted for disadvantaged communities.

AB 32 & SB 535

California's cap-and-trade program was created with the adoption of AB 32, the Global Warming Solutions Act of 2006, a market-based approach to reduce the state's greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions to 1990 levels by 2020. As stated by the California

Air Resources Board, “Under cap-and-trade, an overall limit on GHG emissions from capped sectors will be established by the cap-and-trade program and facilities subject to the cap will be able to trade permits (allowances) to emit GHGs.”⁹

Thus, GHG emitting facilities such as power plants and oil refineries, among other sources, can buy, sell and trade carbon allowances during auctions which are held quarterly. The revenues from the auctions are deposited into the Greenhouse Gas Reduction Fund (GGRF).

In 2012, the Legislature passed, and Governor Jerry Brown signed into law, Senate Bill 535 (de León). Under the provisions of SB 535, at least 25% of the funds that go to the GGRF must go to projects that benefit disadvantaged communities most impacted by climate change, with a minimum of 10% of investment projects located within these communities.

These investments are meant to benefit disadvantaged communities by providing funds for emissions reduction programs such as energy efficiency upgrades, clean freight transportation, and local clean energy sources as well as to improve a community’s quality of life through jobs, transit improvements, affordable transit-oriented housing, and other benefits.

The bill also directs California Environmental Protection Agency (CalEPA) to identify these neighborhoods via a public process utilizing a tool that considers the combination of environmental pollution and socioeconomic indicators.

CalEnviroScreen

For many years, the environmental justice movement in California, and across the nation, have advocated for the development of scientifically sound tools to identify environmental justice communities, i.e., low-income communities and communities of color disproportionately burdened by multiple sources of pollution and socioeconomic impacts.

In 2014, after years of input from community organizers, advocates and other stakeholders and an extensive peer review process, CalEPA and the Office of Environmental Health Hazard Assessment (OEHHA) released the first ever cumulative impact screening tool, the California Communities Environmental Health Screening Tool (CalEnviroScreen or CES).

CES is a tool that identifies the presence of both pollution burdens and population vulnerabilities throughout California’s approximately 8,000 census tracts. The current proposed iteration of the tool uses 20 statewide indicators that cover pollution burdens including but not limited to ozone, Particulate Matter 2.5, and hazardous waste facilities. Additionally, important population characteristics include asthma emergency room visits, cardiovascular disease, poverty and unemployment, among others.

CES uses the indicators to provide a statewide ranking of the census tracts in California. High total scores indicate high cumulative amounts of pollution and vulnerable population characteristics.

San Francisco Ranking

As stated previously, SB 535 mandated that a portion of GGRF funds be directed to the state’s “disadvantaged communities” (DACs). CalEPA selected CES as the tool to identify DACs for certain GGRF investments.

As a result, in the recently finalized updated version, CES 3.0, there are 11 census tracts

⁹ California Air Resources Board website. Cap-and-Trade Program. Background Information. Retrieved from

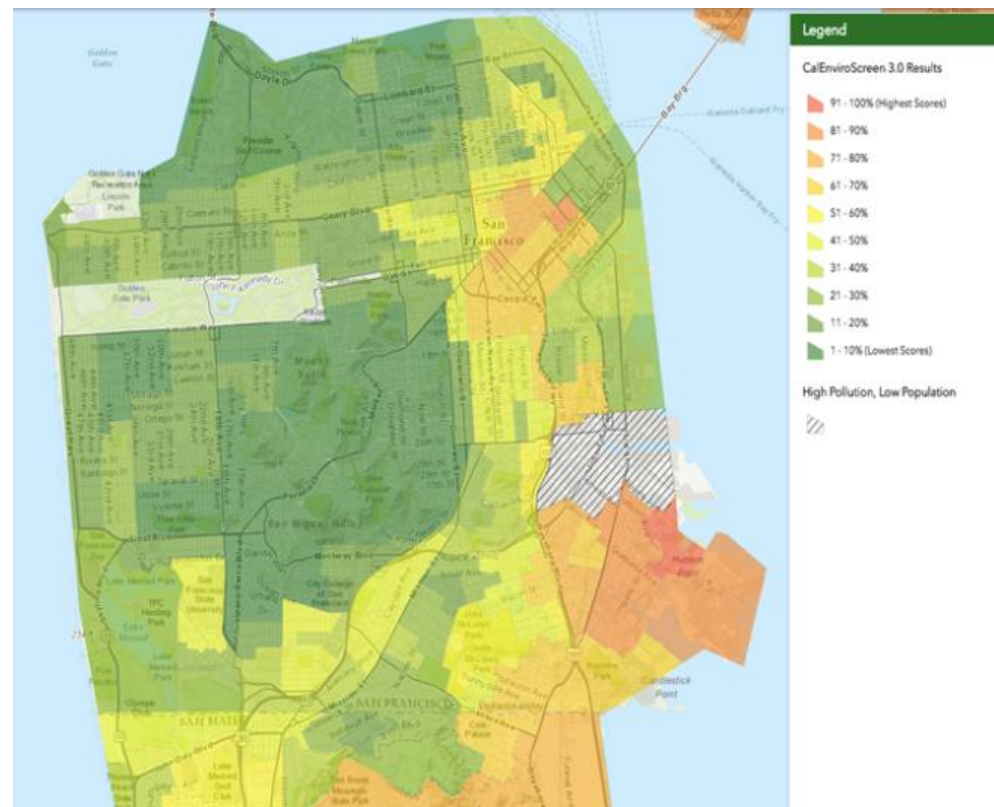

<https://www.arb.ca.gov/cc/capandtrade/capandtrade.htm>

in San Francisco that meet the threshold for being in the top 25% of California's most disadvantaged communities. In the previous iteration of the tool, CES 2.0, there were 3 census tracts in San Francisco that were in the 25%. Thanks to the advocacy of several agencies, cities, and a coalition of community organizations dedicated to serving San Francisco's low-income communities, the finalized version 3.0 increased the number of tracts in both San Francisco and the greater Bay Area considered DACs.

San Francisco has received climate investments. For example, three affordable housing projects have been funded through the Affordable Housing and Sustainable Communities program, which utilizes GGRF funds. Other programs that have benefited San Francisco include the Clean Vehicle Rebate Project, the Hybrid and Zero-Emission Truck and Bus Voucher Incentive Project, the Public Fleet Vehicle Rebate, the Low Carbon Transit Operations Program and the Single-Family/Small Multi-Family Energy Efficiency and Solar Water Heating program. The City has also benefitted from investments from the Energy Program Investment Charge.

Advocates and environmental justice organizers continue to work with the CalEPA and OEHHA to strengthen the tool. Additionally, they have supported legislation, such as AB 1550 (Gomez) the Climate Investments in Disadvantaged Communities and to Low-Income Households (which sets aside 10% of the funding for low-income households outside a designated disadvantaged community), to increase climate investments in overburdened communities.

DEPARTMENT OF ELECTIONS

John Arntz, Director

Memorandum

To: Honorable Members, Board of Supervisors

Cc: Elections Commission

From: John Arntz, Director of Elections

Date: June 29, 2020

RE: Report to the Board of Supervisors Regarding Planning for the November 3, 2020, Consolidated General Election

On May 19, 2020, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors (Board) enacted Ordinance No. 200400, "amending the Municipal Elections Code to require the Department of Elections (Department) to expand use of vote-by-mail ballots at the November 3, 2020 Consolidated General Election, to report to the Board regarding planning for that election, and to report to the Board regarding implementation of the Voter's Choice Act in future San Francisco elections." Subsequently, on May 5, 2020, Governor Newsom signed Executive Order N-64-20, and on June 18, 2020, signed Assembly Bill 860, mandating universal mailing of vote-by-mail ballots and universal access to Accessible Vote-by-Mail systems to all registered voters in California.

The purpose of this memorandum is to report to the Board on the Department's planning for the November 3 election in light of current law. This report addresses the following topics: (1) voter outreach, education, and services, including to limited-English speaking communities and persons with disabilities; (2) staffing needs, hiring strategies, and staff training; (3) voting equipment and capacity; (4) preliminary voting locations and hours, dropbox or curbside drop-off locations and hours; (5) ballot collection and processing; and (6) public health measures and procedures for both voters and poll workers.

Some of the services and programs proposed by the Department in this report are not mandated by current law and are contingent upon certain funding in the Department's recently resubmitted FY2020-2021 budget. As per the Mayor's Budget Office instructions, the Department has noted a list of potential cost reductions and their corresponding impacts on elections services and outreach programs for the November 3 Election.

Regarding potential reductions to the Department's budget, the Elections Commission has communicated its concerns that reductions to the Department's funding could "seriously jeopardize" the conduct of the November 2020 election (see Attachment 1).

I. Voter Outreach, Education, and Services, Including to Limited-English Speaking Communities and Persons with Disabilities

A. Voter Outreach and Education

To provide election services throughout the COVID-19 pandemic, the Department has developed a three-prong outreach plan designed to reach San Francisco residents with a wide range of multilingual, multi-format information about the November 3 election. Although the current health guidelines prohibiting large gatherings have required the Department to postpone its participation in live outreach events, the Department intends to reach City residents, focusing on the most vulnerable communities, using mostly no-contact outreach strategies and partnerships with city departments—in particular the Office of Racial Equity and the Office of Civic Engagement and Immigrant Affairs—local agencies, and community-based organizations.

First, over the course of the next four months, the Department intends to send City residents several mailings and digital notices, each of which will highlight key information about the November 3 election, including expanded vote-by-mail service for all registered voters, in-person voting options, and the recently introduced ranked-choice voting ballot format that allows voters to rank up to 10 candidates in a given contest. These informational mailings and notices will include: i) a language preference notice, ii) a voting options notice, iii) notices with information relevant to military and overseas voters, college student voters, and unhoused voters, iv) a digital resources notice, v) a Voter Information Pamphlet, vi) “Your Ballot is on its Way” notice, vii) vote-by-mail instructions, and viii) address verification notices.

Second, the Department is developing a myriad of multimedia tools and resources, including digital flyers, online slideshows and trainings, social media feeds, and digital newsletters. The Department will also update its website to highlight information about voting options in the November 3 election and key election dates. To help voters maintain the most current information in their registration records and learn about essential election topics, the Department will offer several online self-help tools, including the Voter Portal, My Election Navigator, and a ranked-choice voting practice ballot.

Third, the Department continues to leverage its partnerships with other city departments, community-based organizations, local media, schools, hospitals, employment centers, and local businesses to effectively distribute digital outreach and registration materials. Many of the Department’s partners work with the general public as well as members of vulnerable or hard-to-reach populations, including voters who are elderly, first-time voters, voters living in low-income communities, members of the City’s language minority groups, voters with disabilities, and voters experiencing homelessness.

Using the three-prong outreach approach of sending voter notices, offering comprehensive digital resources that are based on principles of accessibility, cultural relevancy, and user-friendliness, and extending its reach through local partnerships, the Department intends to saturate the City with key information about the November 3 election.

i. Mailings and Digital Communications

Serving as the first part of its three-prong, mostly no-contact approach to outreach for this fall’s election, the Department intends to increase its communication with voters and prospective registrants via mailing a series of multilingual notices and sending digital notices to voters who provided email addresses as part of their registration records. All of these notices are described in this subsection.

(a) Voting Options Notices

To inform voters about expanded vote-by-mail services and in-person voting options in the November 3 election, the Department intends to send multilingual notices to each of the 374,446 households in San Francisco this summer and fall.

These notices will provide key information about voting by mail, in-person voting options, and available accessible and language services.

Voting Options notices will encourage voters to "Take action today!" to ensure timely delivery of their ballots this fall by checking their residential and mailing addresses in their registration records via the Secretary of State's website at voterstatus.sos.ca.gov or by contacting the Department of Elections at (415) 554-4375 or sfvote@sfgov.org. Further, the notices will advise voters to sign up to receive automatic notifications on the status of their mailed ballots via email, SMS (text), or voice message at wheresmyballot.sos.ca.gov.

The Department will also send digital versions of the Voting Options notice to nearly 250,000 voters who provided email addresses as part of their registration records.

(b) Language Preference Notices

For the November 3 election, the Department will provide official bilingual ballots and sample ballots in English and Chinese, Spanish, and Filipino, official monolingual Voter Information Pamphlets in English, Chinese, Spanish, and Filipino, and bilingual facsimile ballots in English and Burmese, Japanese, Korean, Thai, and Vietnamese. Voters may select a language preference for election materials and ballots when registering to vote, by contacting the Department, or using the Department's online request form.

In a proactive effort to inform voters about availability of translated election materials, on June 12, the Department sent nearly 20,000 language preference mailers to City voters born in Chinese, Spanish, Filipino, Burmese, Japanese, Korean, Thai, or Vietnamese-speaking countries with no language preference in their registration records as well as voters who did not provide their birthplace when registering to vote. These mailers include bilingual information about official and facsimile ballots available in several languages and options for selecting a language preference. Voters may select their language preferences on the notices and return the notices, postage-paid, to the Department. Department staff will process returned notices by entering voters' stated language preferences into the registration database and use this information for mailing the official and facsimile ballots, and Voter Information Pamphlets this fall.

On June 5, the Department also sent a digital version of the notice to nearly 7,000 voters in this group who have email addresses in their registration records.

In an effort to reach new voter registrants, who register after the initial mailings are sent, the Department will continue sending notices on a rolling basis up through the mailing of vote-by-mail packets in October.

(c) Tailored Notices to Military and Overseas Voters, College Student Voters, and Unhoused Voters

The Department will send notices with additional tailored guidance to voters serving in the military or residing overseas, college student voters, as well as voters whose registration records indicate they may be experiencing homelessness.

While all California voters are entitled to receive their ballots in person or via mail, voters serving in the military or residing abroad are also entitled to receive their ballot by email or fax. One consequence of the COVID-19 pandemic has been a slowdown of international mail delivery times. On June 19, the Department sent an email notice to nearly 3,000 military and overseas voters, encouraging them to consider updating their ballot delivery preferences to email or fax to avoid potential issues with mail delays. The Department mailed postal letters with similar content to approximately 600 military and overseas voters without email addresses in their registration records.

In an effort to reach college students whose residences in the fall may be impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic, in August, the Department will send an email notice to voters registered at residence halls and dormitories associated with San Francisco State University, University of California, Hastings College of the Law, and University of San Francisco. The notices will provide key information about the upcoming election and options for updating voter registration information, including residential and mailing addresses.

Also in August, the Department will attempt to contact all voters who may be experiencing homelessness as indicated by their voter registration at cross streets, asking such voters to provide or update their mailing addresses where they receive mail. These notices will also explain other voting options available to San Francisco voters, such as picking up ballots at early voting locations or visiting one of the City's in-person voting sites.

(d) Digital Resources Notice

This summer, the Department will send emails describing digital election resources to 250,000 San Francisco voters who provided email addresses as part of their registration records. These digital notices will outline online voter tools and resources, including online registration, digital versions of the Voter Information Pamphlet, and online accessible vote-by-mail system. The notices will also encourage voters to use the Department's Voter Portal to check their registration details, track their vote-by-mail ballots, and find the locations of in-person voting sites as well as announce the launch of My Election Navigator, a new online tool that provides voters with personalized election information in one easy-to access place.

(e) Voter Information Pamphlet

Prior to each election, the Department produces a Voter Information Pamphlet and Sample Ballot (VIP) in English, Chinese, Filipino, and Spanish. The VIP is available in PDF, HTML, XML, large-print, MP3, USB flash drive, CD, and National Library Service (NLS) cartridge formats. The VIP provides information about candidates and local ballot measures, voting options and key election dates, and a sample ballot matching the voter's ballot type.

The VIP for the November 3 election, which the Department will send to City voters in October, will include several pages dedicated to voting options, highlighting the mailing of ballots to all registered voters, in-person voting options, and the availability of language and accessibility resources.

(f) “Your Ballot is on its Way” Notices

A few days before vote-by-mail ballots begin arriving in San Francisco mailboxes, the Department will send notices to voters with email addresses in their registration records, advising voters that their ballots should arrive shortly. There will be two versions of this message: one tailored to those who traditionally vote by mail and the other to those who voted at polling places in previous elections and who may not expect to receive a ballot in the mail, despite the Department’s previous outreach on the subject. These emails will not only serve to remind voters to expect their vote-by-mail ballot packets soon, but to reiterate ballot language and accessible format choices, as well as in-person voting options.

(g) Vote-by-Mail Instructions

The Department will send a vote-by-mail packet with a ballot for the November 3 election, along with an instructional insert and a postage-paid return envelope to all City voters. In an effort to educate voters who are new to voting by mail, the instructional insert will include step-by-step illustrated instructions and information on how to properly fill out the return envelope, how to request a replacement ballot, and ballot return options and deadlines. The instructions will also provide information on how voters may request large-print ballots, and ballots in different languages, and access their ballots through the online accessible vote-by-mail system. Vote-by-mail packets will also include “I Voted!” stickers, so voters who vote by mail can express their enthusiasm for participating in the election.

(h) Address Verification Notices

When voters move without updating their voter registration information, the United States Postal Service will return mailed correspondence to the Department. Upon return of election mail, the Department will attempt to contact the voters again using address verification postcards, as well as by email when email addresses are available. These follow-up communications will likely increase the number of ballots delivered in a timely manner to those who have moved within the City.

ii. Digital Outreach

Serving as the second part of its three-prong outreach plan, the Department will bolster its efforts to connect with voters using digital channels. Such efforts include updating the Department’s website, sfelections.org, to highlight the availability of digital tools and resources, including online registration, ranked-choice voting practice ballot, and the accessible vote-by-mail system; expanding the Department’s repository of outreach materials and trainings published in digital formats, including flyers, brochures, and presentations; and increasing engagement across social media channels. All of these projects are described in this subsection.

(a) Website

The Department's website, sfelections.org, features essential information about registration and voting and self-help voter tools, all available in multiple languages and presented with key accessibility functions, including screen-reader compatibility, high contrast and adjustable font size, and Alt text for images. The website also includes pages dedicated to language and accessibility resources, as well as information on registering and voting in special circumstances.

To alert voters to election changes, including the mailing of ballots to all registered voters, access to the online Accessible Vote-by-Mail system for all voters, and safe in-person voting opportunities, the Department will prominently feature voting options in the November 3 election on its homepage. To expand the reach of its website, the Department will encourage its community partners and city departments to feature a link to sfelections.org on their websites.

1. Voter Portal

The Department provides an online Voter Portal to facilitate convenient access to individualized registration and election information. After logging in, Voter Portal users can review the data in their registration records, view sample ballots, find their elected officials, opt in or out of paper Voter Information Pamphlet mailings, track their ballots from ballot assembly through delivery, verification, and counting, and request a replacement ballot. To ensure that voters receive their ballots at the correct address and in their preferred language, all voters will be encouraged to double-check information in their registration records, including current address and language preference for election materials.

2. My Election Navigator

In an effort to provide voters with personalized election information in one easy-to access place, the Department will launch a new online tool, My Election Navigator. This tool is intended to help voters choose their preferred voting method after presenting users with three simple questions and generating customized responses.

The first question is, "Are you registered to vote in San Francisco?" After the voter selects a response, the tool provides information about registering to vote to those who need it, and encourages all voters, including those who are already registered, to keep their registration information current.

The second question, "Have you decided how you will vote in the upcoming election?" helps voters who have already decided how they will vote (by mail or in person) navigate to specific content regarding their chosen voting method, and helps those who are still deciding understand the different voting options available.

The third question, "Are you familiar with ranked-choice voting in San Francisco that allows voters to rank up to ten candidates in local contests?" allows the Department to provide targeted education to voters unfamiliar with the expanded RCV ballot format. Those unfamiliar with RCV will be invited to read more about the subject and to practice marking an online ballot with immediate feedback on common RCV ballot-marking errors.

Voters seeking specific information can skip the questionnaire and navigate directly to the topics that interest them using the tool's repository of election-related links and resources, which include answers to common questions, such as how to provide a temporary mailing address, how to find out what's on the ballot, how to request a replacement ballot, and ways to get involved with the election process.

By providing flexible navigation to election topics, My Election Navigator will serve as a useful resource for all types of voters, ranging from first-time voters who are unfamiliar with the voting process to voters seeking detailed information about voting options in the November 3 election. This new tool will soon be available from the homepage of the Department's website as well as from the sidebar of all landing pages.

(b) Outreach Materials in Digital Formats

For the November 3 election, the Department will develop multi-format informational materials covering a variety of election-related topics and transition many of its multilingual outreach presentations and educational materials that would normally be presented in person, to digital formats. The development of such materials will be guided by the key criteria that meet the following equity baseline thresholds for engaging in and with vulnerable communities: (1) accessibility, language, and cultural relevancy, and (2) user-friendliness/user-legibility.

Voters and other interested parties will be able to download these resources from sfelections.org or request CD or USB copies via postal mail. In addition, the Department will provide outreach trainings to local partners via teleconferencing technology such as Zoom. Teleconference topics will range from best practices in voter registration drives to understanding how to assist residents voting by mail for the first time.

(c) Social Media and Digital News

Throughout the November 3 election cycle, the Department will post updates on social media sites, such as Twitter, Facebook, and Next Door, publishing "bite-sized" bits of important information on changes to voting options and other key election information. Many of these posts will include links to detailed informational pages and voter tools on the Department's website.

For City residents who prefer more traditional news formats, the Department will issue press releases and news articles for redistribution by local media outlets and community partners. The publications, which will be made available on the Department's website and distributed directly to the Department's contacts, will focus on voting options in the November 3 election and other key information.

iii. Local Partnerships

Serving as the third part of its three-prong, mostly no-contact approach to outreach for this fall's election, the Department has begun collaborating remotely with its local partners. These partners include nearly 250 nonprofit, community-based and private sector organizations, advisory committees, local businesses, hospitals and care facilities, colleges, and other city departments and government agencies.

In lieu of conducting in-person presentations and meetings with its community partners at various City venues, the Department will offer various outreach materials and presentations on YouTube, through its website, and in CD and USB formats. Through new multilingual digital presentations, webinars, and newsletters the Department intends to explain pertinent election topics to its partners who can in turn provide election information to members of the City electorate.

The Department will intend to supplement its outreach efforts about the November 3 election to members of populations likely to benefit from additional, focused outreach through a grant program with local nonprofit and community-based organizations. Focus populations include unhoused or housing insecure residents, residents of neighborhoods with turnout below the City average, seniors and people with disabilities, members of the City's minority language communities, and first-time voters.

Outreach partnerships will focus on disseminating essential election information such as what has changed for this election, how to register online or by mail, how to vote by mail or in person, how to utilize curbside voting, how to schedule ballot pick-up, and how to request emergency ballot delivery services.

(a) City Departments, Agencies, and Community-Based Organizations

The Department will collaborate with the City's Emergency Operation Center (EOC) outreach team to distribute election information to the City's most vulnerable populations. The Department will supply EOC outreach team with several thousands of multilingual posters with key election information for distribution to local merchants and door hanger flyers for reaching residents in the following neighborhoods: Civic Center/Downtown, South of Market, Bayview/Hunters Point, Visitacion Valley, Chinatown, Western Addition, Excelsior/Outer Mission, and Ingleside.

The Department will continue its partnership with the Office of Civic Engagement and Immigrant Affairs (OCEIA) to engage San Francisco residents who are immigrants and/or Low English Proficiency (LEP). Collaborating remotely when possible, the Department will work with the multilingual OCEIA Community Ambassador Street Team to distribute election information to populations who may not receive election messages via mainstream channels.

The Department will also continue to provide services and information to City voters in jail through a collaborative effort with the Sheriff's Department and its Prisoner Legal Services Unit (PLS). Working closely with PLS, the Department will administer the Incarcerated Person Voting Program to provide election services, such as tailored outreach and materials, registration forms, and ballot delivery, to voters and potential registrants currently in county jail or otherwise involved in the justice system.

The Department will continue to collaborate with the San Francisco Library for the Blind and Print Disabled and the San Francisco In-Home Supportive Services Public Authority to reach the people served by these agencies and to distribute digital election materials to their constituents.

Similarly, the Department will collaborate with city departments and local agencies, such as the Office of Racial Equity, the Department of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, and the San Francisco Housing Authority, and organizations such as Project Homeless Connect, Swords to Plowshares, the Homeless Prenatal Project, Episcopal Community Services, Catholic Charities, Five Keys, and many other community partners that provide services to vulnerable populations. Through the channels established by such departments and organizations, the Department intends to reach residents living in low-income communities, voters with disabilities, and voters experiencing homelessness.

The Department will work with staff at local shelters and navigation centers to assist voters experiencing homelessness in receiving their election materials. The Department has begun developing materials for shelter staff and other people who work with voters who may be experiencing homelessness, that explain the importance of distributing vote-by-mail ballots and other election mail to voters registered at shelters or navigation centers. The Department is simultaneously developing a guide designed for direct use by voters experiencing homelessness. This guide will explain voting options in the November 3 election, how to complete the residential fields of a registration affidavit using cross streets or a shelter address, how to complete the mailing address fields using general delivery, shelter, or other temporary address, and how to select a language preference for election materials.

To supplement its outreach efforts, on June 9, the Department issued a Request for Proposals (RFP) seeking to identify partners willing and able to assist in disseminating information about the November 3 election using effective and engaging outreach strategies. The Department will collaborate with and provide funding to local nonprofit and community-based organizations who can assist in educating members of the City's vulnerable or hard-to-reach populations about how they can participate in the November 3 election, providing information about voter registration, voting by mail and other voting options, language and accessibility resources, key dates and deadlines, and other election topics.

The Department will organize training for grantees selected through this RFP and will provide grantees with a variety of ready-to-use, multilingual, multi-format, outreach materials, including posters, brochures, digital presentations, and videos on topics such as voter registration and voting options, ranked-choice voting, poll worker recruitment, and general election information. Grantees will be expected to begin outreach activities on August 24 through Election Day.

(b) Advisory Committees

The Department will continue working with the Language Accessibility Advisory Committee (LAAC), a Department networking group comprised of language access leaders and members of the public, to reach and disseminate election information to voters from minority communities and improve language-related services and materials offered by the Department. Similarly, the Department will continue its collaboration with the Voting Accessibility Advisory Committee (VAAC), a Department networking group comprised of accessibility experts and members of the public, to improve its materials and services for voters with disabilities and seniors. To facilitate input from the LAAC and the VAAC, the Department plans to transition its in-person meetings with the committees to virtual formats.

(c) Hospitals and Schools

Prior to every election, the Department works closely with many care facilities and hospitals throughout San Francisco to provide election-related services to people in such facilities. This summer, the Department will reach out to nearly 135 hospital and care facilities to provide resources designed to help patients and residents register to vote and participate in the election while observing health guidelines. Through this partnership, approximately two weeks before the election up until Election

Day, the Department will facilitate ballot pick up and delivery for voters who are homebound, in a hospital or residential care facility, or otherwise find themselves unable to use another voting option.

The Department will also work with colleges and universities located in San Francisco to disseminate digital election information and materials. Communicating remotely with student advocates, professors, and school administrators, the Department will provide these resources to all interested parties and encourage the distribution of election-related messages through student communication channels, and for campuses that will be open in the fall, in classrooms and campus bulletins.

(d) Employment Centers and Local Businesses

The Department intends to expand its connections to job training and vocational service providers this election cycle, especially those who serve residents of neighborhoods with below-average voter turnout. In addition to providing election materials, the Department will create and distribute materials designed to inform program participants about temporary and short-term employment opportunities with the Department and serving as a poll worker.

To increase the visibility of election-related materials at locations that provide essential goods and services to City residents, the Department will work with merchants to display elections-related posters in their storefronts, with particular focus on businesses in neighborhoods with below-average city turnout. Poster topics will focus on voting options, language and accessibility options, and the opportunity to serve as a poll worker.

B. Universal Vote-by-Mail Service and Accessible Vote-by-Mail System

On June 18, 2020, Governor Newsom signed Assembly Bill 860, which requires California counties to mail ballots to all registered voters for the November 3 election and permits all voters to use a remote accessible vote-by-mail (AVBM) system to access their ballots. Accordingly, the Department will mail ballot packets and open its AVBM System to all registered San Francisco voters starting 29 days before the November 3 election.

In preparation for expansion of voting by mail to all registered voters in the upcoming election, the Department has taken several steps to ensure timely delivery of vote-by-mail (VBM) ballot packets to voters in October. This work has involved collaborating with the United States Postal Service (USPS) regarding delivery logistics; establishing earlier production schedules with ballot vendors; redesigning outgoing and ballot return envelopes to ensure compliance with the latest guidelines for election mail; updating the content of vote-by-mail packets; and providing voters with BallotTrax, a free ballot tracking and alert system that allows voters to track the status of their mail-in ballots, from printed to accepted.

i. Collaboration with the United States Postal Service and Distribution of Vote-by-Mail Packets

The Department has been collaborating with the United States Postal Service (USPS) to plan and organize the timely delivery of an increased volume of ballot packets this fall, and to ensure the designs of ballot envelopes and other official mailings meet current guidelines for official election mail. The Department plans to continue this dialogue with the USPS through Election Day to ensure timely processing of election mail, including ballots, election notices, and Voter Information Pamphlets.

Approximately one month before Election Day, the Department, in collaboration with its ballot printing and assembly vendor and the USPS, will initiate VBM packet mailings to San Francisco's registered voters. The Department will continue mailing VBM packets to new registrants and those who need replacement ballots up until four days before Election Day or October 30.

For most voters, VBM packets will contain a multi-card ballot, an instructional insert, a postage-paid ballot return envelope, and an "I Voted!" sticker. Non-citizen residents registered to vote in the local Board of Education Election will receive a single-card ballot, listing only the Board of Education contest, an instructional insert, a postage-paid ballot return envelope, and an "I Voted!" sticker.

As in previous elections, voters will be able to track their ballots by inputting their credentials into the Department's online lookup tool or by calling the Department's toll-free line. When checking the status of their ballots using the Department's Voter Portal, voters will be provided with current information as their ballots move through the following eight production, delivery, and processing steps:

1. The ballot is printed
2. The VBM packet has been assembled and is ready for mailing
3. The VBM packet is delivered to the USPS en route to the voter
4. The Department is in receipt of the voter's voted ballot packet
5. The Department has verified the signature on the return envelope
6. The return envelope has been accepted and is ready to be opened
7. The Department has removed the ballot from the return envelope
8. The Department has counted the ballot.

For the November 3 election, the Department will provide voters with an additional option to track the status of their ballots through the Secretary of State's Where's My Ballot? at wheresmyballot.sos.ca.gov. In addition to the steps available through the Department's Voter Portal, Where's My Ballot? provides the date that the voter's ballot is expected to be delivered to the voter and allows voters to sign up to receive notices via email, text, or voice message regarding the status of their ballots.

ii. Envelope Design

In collaboration with its printing vendor, the Department has established an earlier production schedule for the printing and preparation of nearly 1.3 million envelopes (outgoing and return envelopes), to be distributed to voters this fall.

Each bilingual version of the newly designed outer ballot envelope features a notice translated into the other seven languages in which ballots and election materials are available, reminding voters who have not already updated their language preference that it is not too late to receive replacement or facsimile ballots in any designated language.

To encourage voters to return their ballots on time and to avoid potential mailing delays, the outer envelope features the phrase, "Do not delay, vote and return your ballot today!" The outer envelope also features a checklist, describing the contents inside the vote-by-mail packet, so those who are new to voting by mail are made aware of these components.

In addition to incorporating all requirements for official ballot return envelopes listed in Section 3011 of the California Elections Code, the ballot return envelope also includes signature line punch-outs to assist voters with visual impairment in locating the signature field. The envelope also provides instructions on how voters unable to sign may substitute a witnessed mark for a signature. To alert voters to providing the required information, the Department increased the overall size of the signature field and added a reminder to sign the envelope accompanied by a large exclamation mark, so that voters are yet again reminded about signing the envelopes before returning their ballots.

In keeping with guidance from health officials, the Department redesigned ballot return envelope which now features a “peel and seal” strip allowing for sanitary self-sealing.

Both the outer and return envelopes will feature an Intelligent Mail Barcode, which the USPS uses to sort and track election mail.

As discussed in Section 1A, the Department will review and update the voting instructions enclosed with VBM packets, focusing on presenting the essential steps of voting by mail in plain language. The VBM instructions will include step-by-step illustrated instructions for marking regular and ranked-choice voting contests, how to request a replacement ballot, as well as ballot return options and deadlines (Ballot return options are described in more detail in Section IV of this report.) The instructions will also provide information on how voters may request large-print ballots, ballots in different languages, and access their ballots through the accessible vote-by-mail system.

iii. Accessible Vote-By-Mail System

The Department will open its Accessible Vote-by-Mail system to all registered San Francisco voters for the November 3 election starting 29 days before the election (In accordance with federal election law, the AVBM system will be open for voters serving in the military or residing overseas no later than 45 days before the election.)

The AVBM system, which is compatible with many personal assistive devices such as head-pointers and sip and puffs, allows voters to download and mark screen readable vote-by-mail ballots. For security reasons, the AVBM system does not store or transmit votes over the internet. Consequently, voters must have access to a printer to print and return their AVBM ballot printouts by mail or in person in a timely manner, just as vote-by-mail voters who use official paper ballots must do.

To access a ballot through the AVBM system, a registered voter will need to visit sfelections.org/access, and input their birthday, house number, and ZIP code.

Once logged into the AVBM system, voters can read or listen to ballot navigation, voting instructions, connect an assistive device such as a head pointer or sip and puff, or adjust the font, contrast, and language settings as desired. After marking and reviewing ballot selections, a voter will need to generate a ballot printout.

Voters may return AVBM ballot printouts by using the official ballot return envelope enclosed with vote-by-mail packets that all registered voters will receive this fall or their own envelopes. If using their own envelopes, voters will need to complete and enclose a Ballot Return Form (available through AVBM system), which will allow the Department to conduct the required signature comparison on the envelope with the signature in a voter's registration record while protecting the secrecy of the ballot during processing.

II. Staffing Needs, Hiring Strategies, and Staff Training

Multiple factors make the November 3 election notable in its workload and complexity, including those associated with an increase in new voter registration applications and updates to voter records, a higher volume of telephone and email inquiries, and a higher volume of ballots to be processed. In addition, the November 3 ballot will consist of multiple cards, containing local, state, and federal candidates and local and state measures, which will result in a larger VIP, increased workload associated with translations and proofing, and a higher number of cards to process and tabulate.

The combination of these factors, compounded by the COVID-19 pandemic, will create exponentially more work for the Department than in a "typical" election, with most processes affected. Accordingly, the Department will develop hiring staffing ratios and schedules commensurate with the projected workload and complexities of this election.

This summer and fall, the Department will recruit, onboard, and train nearly 300 temporary employees to aid its full-time staff in conducting the November 3 election. These seasonal employees will help provide election-related services to voters and campaigns, assist with candidate filings, maintain voter records, compare signatures on vote-by-mail ballot envelopes, prepare and staff in-person voting facilities, process voted ballots, and take part in post-election canvass.

As part of its effort to protect the health and safety of election workers while meeting operational demands of the November 3 election, the Department will modify its hiring, training, and workplace practices as described in this section.

A. Hiring Strategies

In recruiting short-term employees to assist with various election activities, the Department plans to utilize various advertisement strategies, employing private and governmental job search engines and social media posts, and collaborating with its community partners, including local community-based organizations and job training and vocational service providers. The Department plans to design digital and print notices regarding temporary election job openings and provide such notices to its community partners who in turn can distribute the notices to their networks. The Department will also send emails about temporary job openings to San Francisco residents across the City.

In a proactive effort to avoid potential staffing issues due to extended or revived quarantines, the Department intends to hire additional reserve personnel with flexible employment start and end dates, focusing on positions that perform key functions such as processing voted ballots or maintaining voter records.

To support the City's effort to minimize movement of people across the City, the Department has developed a virtual Recruiting and Interview program using Zoom video conferencing for interviewing applicants to fill many seasonal positions. Applicants without access to internet video conferencing at home will be invited to join video conference interviews via sanitized computer stations at City Hall.

To maximize the efficiency and safety of the hiring process, the Department will collaborate with the Department of Human Resources (DHR) to update job announcements for temporary positions to include information regarding health risks associated with serving the public. In order to limit the number of instances each new employee will need to leave home during the hiring process, the Department will work with the DHR to schedule fingerprinting appointments concurrent with completion and signing of other hiring paperwork.

B. Training

The Department has been maintaining and will continue to provide regular communication with employees regarding measures the City and the Department is taking to provide a safe and healthy workplace and steps that employees can take to protect themselves at work and at home. These communications are meant to help employees understand and comply with safety protocols, such as using personal protective equipment (PPE), practicing social distancing, and maintaining sanitary practices, and be aware of the availability of testing and additional employee resources.

For every election, the Department provides an Employee Orientation Program (EOP) to its newly hired seasonal employees. Over the course of two hours, employees are introduced to the Department's mission and goals and voter service standards that ensure accuracy, timeliness, and professionalism. The EOP also introduces new staff to emergency evacuation protocols, employee benefits, services, and resources, and workplace protections and responsibilities. For the November 3 election hiring cycle, the Department will revise EOP curriculum to provide a comprehensive overview of the City's and Department's practices and resources developed to protect and support employees in the pandemic.

In preparing temporary staff to complete the vital, deadline-driven tasks in each election cycle, the Department conducts many training sessions in the months leading up to Election Day. Traditionally, the Department has conducted such trainings in a live, group environment where staff received printed training materials, viewed presentations conducted by an instructor, practiced using elections applications and equipment, and asked questions during live question and answer periods. For the November 3 election cycle, the Department intends to conduct many of its training presentations via newly recorded webinar sessions as well as distributing digital worksheets and quizzes via email, and facilitating hands-on practice in a remote setting.

The Department plans to cross-train some employees to perform essential tasks outside of their traditional divisional responsibilities to ensure continuity of operations in the event of staff absences.

Recognizing that phishing attempts and other cybersecurity risks may be higher during the COVID-19 pandemic, the Department requires all staff with access to the Department's network to take or retake cybersecurity training.

C. Health and Safety at the Workplace

As part of its effort to ensure the health and safety of employees and visitors, the Department has posted COVID-19-related notices, implemented social distancing protocols, reconfigured workspace layouts, procured and distributed personal protective equipment (PPE), and introduced regular sanitation practices to minimize staff and public exposure to COVID-19. Going forward, the Department will continue to monitor federal, state, and local health advisories closely and adjust these practices and policies as necessary.

i. Health Directives

To assist staff with understanding and following pandemic-related directives, the Department has posted multilingual signs with instructions regarding sanitary practices, testing options, hand hygiene, and social distancing at the entrances to its main office in City Hall, Room 48 and the warehouse on Pier 31. To keep members of the public equally aware, the Department also posted signs in areas with high public foot traffic. The signs provide information recently published by the Center for Disease Control, the San Francisco Department of Public Health, and the San Francisco Department of Human Resources.

The Department also maintains a repository of COVID-19-related guidance and materials on its internal online Employee Resources Portal, providing employees with easy access to a set of frequently updated documents from the City's Department of Human Resources website and the Center for Disease Control and Prevention website.

ii. COVID-19 Safety Plan Monitors

To assist staff members in navigating a dynamic flow of information from official sources, the Department has designated two of its employees as COVID-19 Safety Plan Monitors (SPMs). The SPMs are responsible for ensuring implementation of all safety and sanitation requirements regarding the COVID-19 virus at the worksite; addressing COVID-19 related questions from employees; administering daily health screening for employees which is required to be completed prior to an employee entering the worksite; and ensuring the adequate supply, distribution, and use of PPE.

iii. Social Distancing

The Department has taken several steps to limit crowding and protect the health of its employees while maintaining efficient onsite operations in the November 3 election cycle.

First, the Department plans to relocate some of its operations from City Hall to Bill Graham Civic Auditorium. The current plan involves relocating most ballot processing operations and approximately 150 staff necessary to complete the ballot extraction, tabulation, adjudication and remake tasks associated with processing vote-by-mail, provisional, and conditional ballots, to Bill Graham Civic Auditorium. (See Section V for more information.)

Second, the Department has adjusted its office layout to ensure six-foot distance between each occupied workstation to help employees maintain proper distance from their colleagues. The Department added markers denoting six-foot spaces in the area at the public front counter where visitors stand while awaiting or receiving assistance, and installed a glass partition at the counter as an extra measure of health protection.

Third, the Department has created a pedestrian traffic map for those working in or passing through the office. Employees have been directed to utilize the entrances (and exits) nearest their workstations and to limit contact and conversation with others to essential communications. Employees are encouraged to walk down one of the main halls, rather than passing through other Department divisions areas, on their way to and from amenities in City Hall. Employees have also been asked to avoid common workplace behaviors such as shaking hands, utilizing communal snack bowls and containers, and congregating at tables during lunch or coffee breaks. The Department has posted reminders about workplace policies and keeping proper social distancing in common areas including the mail-processing and supply storage rooms.

Fourth, to facilitate maximum social distancing, reduce the number of employees at any Department office area at a given time, and alleviate commute-time crowding, the Department will adopt staggered staff schedules. That is, instead of traditional Monday-Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. work schedules, the Department will modify and vary its employee hours at the outset of the election cycle, layering standard weekday schedules with a variety of early, late, and weekend schedules.

Fifth, in addition to reorganizing its office layout and staggering employee schedules, the Department will further minimize direct human interaction by replacing most on-site meetings and interactions at its offices with technology-assisted no-contact meetings and communications. Wherever feasible, digital Zoom or Microsoft Team meetings will take the place of face-to-face meetings, with attendees participating from their desks or workstations even if they work in the same facility.

Finally, the Department will update its Observation Guide to remind election observers to comply with all new health-related practices, including the requirement to maintain six feet of distance between observers, voters, and election staff, at all times. The updated Observation Guide will also highlight the fact that the Department streams nearly all of its election and ballot processing activities online.

iv. Personal Protective Equipment, Workplace Hygiene, and Sanitation

The Department has incorporated CDC recommendations and local health guidelines related to personal protective equipment, hygiene, and sanitation into its practices.

Department employees now have regular and continual access to PPE such as facemasks and gloves, as well as alcohol-based hand rubs, disinfectants, and paper towels for wiping down work surfaces. Hand sanitizers and facemasks are also available to visitors.

Employees with greater potential for exposure based on the nature of their work have access to supplemental PPE. For example, nitrile gloves are available to staff handling mail, petitions, registration forms, and other public-facing paperwork. To prevent cross-contamination, all staff have received training on proper glove usage and disposal, including hand sanitation or washing after removal.

All staff have been trained on how to maintain the Department's new cleanliness and sanitation standards in their respective areas, as well as how to maintain respiratory etiquette (covering coughs and sneezes). Employees have been asked to label personal work supplies, such as staplers, pens, and cups, with their names, and sanitize common surfaces and supplies, such as fax machines and printers, after each use.

III. Voting Equipment and Capacity

In anticipation of an increase in number of voters voting by mail, the Department evaluated its ballot processing capacity and is currently working with the City on procuring additional equipment used for extraction of ballots from the returned vote-by-mail envelopes. The Department's current six Opex Model 72 openers/extractors were operating at maximum capacity to handle the number of vote-by-mail ballots received during recent high voter turnout elections.

With the November 3 election likely being among the highest turnout election in the City's history with a record number of voters choosing to vote by mail, the purchase of four additional ballot extractors is vital to the Department's ability to provide timely results. Additional extractors will increase the efficiency of ballot processing while compensating for potential delays in processing resulting from implementation of physical distancing requirements and limiting capacity of staff present at one time in the facility. The processes for which this equipment provide support are described in Section V.

IV. Preliminary Voting Locations and Hours, Dropbox or Curb-Side Drop-off Locations and Hours

All City voters will have several options for obtaining and returning their ballots for the November 3 election. Any voter may receive their ballot by mail or in person at a voting center or polling place, via curbside voting, through an authorized family or household member, or, if necessary, via emergency ballot delivery service. Any voter may return their ballot by mail or in person at a voting center, polling place, or by authorizing another person to do so on their behalf.

In the upcoming election, in addition to mailing ballots to all registered voters, the Department will maintain a full array of neighborhood polling places and intends to organize several voting centers, and ballot pickup and delivery services.

A. Voting Site Locations

The Department is currently conducting an audit of all polling places and voting centers used in recent City elections, identifying sites with areas insufficient to protect voter privacy and support current social distancing guidelines as well as buildings occupied by individuals at higher risk for severe illness from COVID-19, such as senior care facilities and hospitals. To protect public health in the upcoming election, the Department will adopt new procedures (see Section VI for more details) and relocate potentially unsafe voting sites to more suitable locations.

To date, nearly 60 former polling places have been deemed unsuitable or unavailable for the use in the November 3 election, the Department is currently working to identify an equal number of new polling place sites as soon as possible. While the Department intends to organize Voting Centers in City Hall and the Joseph Lee Recreation Center, the Department is still working to identify at least two additional sites as possible Voting Centers. In evaluating the suitability of new sites, the Department is evaluating the potential impact to language minority voters, seniors, voters with disabilities, and residents of neighborhoods with turnout below the City average, and is therefore considering Census data, data obtained through the American Community Survey and data provided by local community partners.

Prior to the election, the Department will send multilingual mail and email notices to voters whose assigned polling places have changed. Any information on new polling place sites available before the Department prints the Voter Information

Pamphlet will be included in that pamphlet, with voters affected by later changes receiving supplemental mail and email notices on a rolling basis up through Election Day. Finally, as in all elections, the Department will post relocation information at polling sites no longer in use.

i. Voting Wait Times Tool

In an effort to provide safe and efficient in-person voting services for the November 3 election, the Department has begun developing an interactive Voting Wait Times Tool. The Voting Wait Times Tool will enable any voter who wishes to return their vote-by-mail ballot in person, obtain a replacement vote-by-mail ballot, pick up or drop off a ballot for another person, or cast their ballot in person, to easily identify convenient voting sites.

The tool will also provide recently reported wait times at voting sites across the City, which will not only allow voters who need to visit a voting center or polling place to identify facilities with the shortest lines, but will also allow voters who want to drop off ballots to identify locations with low foot traffic. In addition, because the tool will identify polling places with the same ballot type, it will allow a user to make an informed decision whether to vote a standard ballot at a voting center or their assigned polling place, or to vote provisionally at another polling place with the same ballot type (neighborhoods lying in the same combination of jurisdictions present the same combination of contests, so all votes on ballots with a voter's assigned ballot type can be counted).

After launching the Voting Wait Times Tool, the user will see a map with voting site icons for all voting centers and polling places in the City. The user may click on any voting site icon to discover essential facts about that site, including its street address, voting hours, and reported wait times. Users may adjust the map view manually (zoom, pan, etc.).

The user will also see slightly more detailed site information (with accessibility facts) presented as a list in a separate panel.

The user may filter results by entering their registered residential address. This will restrict listed and mapped voting sites to the user's assigned polling place and other polling places with the same ballot type. The address query function utilizes autocomplete, so the user only needs to enter the first few characters of their home address to conduct a search.

The user may further filter results to view only voting sites open before Election Day or all sites open on Election Day. The results will also include recently reported wait times at each site.

To support the Voting Wait Times Tool, the Department is working to develop a web-based application that will allow Election Day roving support personnel and voting center staff to report wait times at voting sites in real-time. The data inputted into this application will feed into the Voting Wait Times Tool, allowing voters and the public to review reported wait times at each in-person voting location.

B. Polling Place Services

Each of the City's 588 polling places for the November election will be open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Election Day. All polling places will offer bilingual paper ballots in English and either Chinese, Spanish or Filipino and provide language assistance from bilingual poll workers on request. At some polling places where voters may need assistance in additional languages, the Department will provide facsimile (reference) ballots in Burmese, Japanese, Korean, Thai, and Vietnamese. All polling places will also offer accessible ballot-marking devices with touchscreen and audio formats, personal assistive device compatibility, and accessible voting tools such as page magnifiers, pen grips, and seated voting.

At the polling places, the Department will provide ballot-scanning machines that tabulate votes onsite. Voters who surrender their vote-by-mail ballots or for whom a Roster of Voters indicates that their ballot has not been received and counted by the Department, will be issued standard (non-provisional) ballots that can be tabulated by a ballot-scanning machine. Provisional voting will be available to voters whose names do not appear in the Roster (e.g., voters who missed the registration deadline).

C. Voting Center Services

In addition to the main City Hall Voting Center, the Department intends to organize three additional auxiliary voting centers for the November 3 election. All voting centers will serve all City residents—including eligible non-citizens—who wish to obtain personal assistance, use accessible voting equipment, pick up or drop off ballots, obtain replacement ballots, cast their ballots in person, or, after the registration deadline, register conditionally and vote provisionally.

At the voting centers, the Department will provide accessible-marking devices but there will be no ballot-scanning machines onsite. During voting hours, voters will deposit voted ballots enclosed in vote-by-mail envelopes into sealed ballot boxes monitored by Department personnel.

To facilitate no-contact voting, the Department will staff a ballot drop-off box outside each open voting center, adding a second box at City Hall on the two weekends before Election Day.

The City Hall Voting Center will be open during an entire 29-day early voting period. Between Monday, October 5, and Monday, November 3, the Voting Center will be open weekdays, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Weekend voting will be available on the two weekends before the election, October 24-25 and October 31- November 1, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Election Day, Tuesday, November 3, the Voting Center will observe the same voting hours as polling places, 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Beginning Saturday, October 31 and through Election Day, the Department intends to open three additional voting centers in neighborhoods where residents may benefit from additional voting opportunities.

Any auxiliary voting centers will be open on Saturday and Sunday, October 31 – November 1, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Monday, November 2, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Tuesday, November 3, 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Ballot drop-off stations will be set up outside all voting centers beginning Saturday, October 31 and through Election Day for the convenience of voters returning their vote-by-mail ballots and be staffed with two employees during all hours of operation.

D. Ballot Pickup and Delivery Services

Any voter who cannot or does not receive a ballot by mail for the November 3 election may visit a voting center to vote onsite or request a "to go" ballot packet containing an official ballot, a postage-paid return envelope, voting instructions, and an "I Voted!" sticker. Any voter may also authorize a spouse, child, parent, grandparent, grandchild, sibling, or person over 16 residing in the same household to pick up a ballot packet on their behalf using a Ballot Pickup Authorization Form or contact the Department to designate a temporary mailing address to receive a ballot by mail. In addition, as part of its effort to distribute ballots to all registered voters in the November 3 election while minimizing crowding at in-person voting sites, the Department will offer curbside voting and emergency ballot delivery services.

First, as in recent elections, the Department will offer curbside service for voters with disabilities or illnesses at in-person voting sites. Such voters may also request accessible tools and reference materials, translated materials, including voter guides and facsimile ballots, and personal or language assistance.

Any voter may request curbside service at any in-person voting location by notifying a poll worker or voting center representative or calling in to the Department's phone bank, or by contacting the Department in advance. Given that the number of voters requesting curbside service is likely to increase in the upcoming election, the Department is currently assessing the feasibility of expanding curbside voting at all polling places and voting centers, evaluating the infrastructure, geography, and flow of pedestrian and vehicle traffic at each location.

Second, as in recent elections, in the last week of the election, the Department will provide emergency ballot delivery to voters who cannot or does not receive a ballot in the mail and who is unable to pick up a ballot in person or to authorize another person to pick up a ballot packet on their behalf. Such voters include patients in hospitals or homecare, and residents of shelters, nursing homes, convalescent homes, and other short-term and long-term care facilities in San Francisco. Working closely with facility staff, the Department will distribute ballots and accessible voting materials to these voters.

In accordance with California Elections Code, emergency ballot delivery service is only available in the week before Election Day and is intended to serve as a method for voters experiencing unexpected illness or disability. As a contingency plan to serve potentially large number of San Francisco residents in quarantine due to COVID-19 this fall, the Department is prepared to expand the staff devoted to this service if necessary. As with all vote-by-mail ballots, ballots delivered as the result of an emergency may be returned by mail or in person by the voter or any person authorized by the voter to do so.

V. Ballot Collection and Processing

In recognition that turnout for the November 3 election may be the highest in the City's history and the expanded use of vote by mail, the Department will take several steps in an effort to improve the safety, efficiency, and capacity of its ballot collection and processing procedures.

To maintain social distancing between staff and election observers in ballot processing areas, the Department will relocate some of its ballot processing activities, typically conducted in City Hall, to an off-site location. The Department is seeking to secure additional space at the Bill Graham Civic Auditorium. The Auditorium lacks a secure fiber connection, which means that the Department will be able to only partially relocate ballot processing activities, such as ballot extraction, adjudication, remake, scanning of ballots on ImageCast Central scanners, while processing of the ballots through the Agilis Ballot Sorting system and signature verification will remain in City Hall.

A. Ballot Collection

The City's early voting period for the November 3 election will begin on October 5, 29 days before Election Day. As explained in Section I, in October, the Department will mail ballots to all registered voters. In addition, as explained in Section III, all City voters will be able to visit voting centers throughout the early voting period to request to pick up or mark replacement vote-by-mail ballots, obtain personal assistance, or use accessible ballot-marking devices. Those who prefer to cast their ballots at their neighborhood polling places will be able to do so on Election Day. Voters will be able to return their ballots in person to any voting center or polling place, or by mail through Election Day.

At the voting centers, voters will deposit voted ballots into sealed ballot boxes monitored by Department personnel, and at the end of each day, all boxes containing voted ballots will be escorted by Deputy Sheriffs to the Department's ballot processing facilities, with additional mid-day transfers being made as necessary to accommodate high voter turnout.

At the polling places, the Department will provide ballot-scanning machines that tabulate votes onsite. All voted ballots and memory cards from the ballot-scanning machines will be transported to the Department after the close of the polls.

The Department will organize two collection points to facilitate the return of voted ballots and election materials from the polling places. The Data Collection Center, which receives memory cards from the ballot-scanning machines, will be located at City Hall's McAllister Street entrance. The Processing Center, which receives voted ballots, rosters of voters, and other vital election materials, will be located at the Department's warehouse at Pier 31. These two sites will be staffed by approximately 80 workers who unload, log, and organize materials delivered by hundreds of Municipal Transportation officers and Deputy Sheriffs.

B. Ballot Processing

With the passage of Assembly Bill (AB) 860 that made several amendments to the California Elections Code the Department can commence ballot processing 29 days before Election Day instead of 10 business days. AB 860 also extends the deadline by which vote-by-mail ballots must be received by the county elections official to the 17th day after Election Day. Accordingly, the Department will count ballots received in the mail up until November 20, so long as ballots are postmarked or dated on or before Election Day.

Vote-by-Mail ballot processing will consist of five steps: 1) envelope scanning, 2) signature comparison, 3) transfer of accepted envelopes to Bill Graham Civic Auditorium for processing, 4) ballot extraction, and 5) votemark scanning. As part of Step 2, Department staff will attempt to notify any voters who have submitted ballot return envelopes with missing or mismatched signatures, encouraging such voters to submit new signature samples so their ballots can be accepted. As part of Step 4, dedicated teams will “adjudicate” (interpret ambiguous marks using standardized rules) or “remake” (duplicate valid votemarks on irregular ballots onto new ballots for counting). Each of these five and two ancillary ballot processing steps are described in details below.

In addition to processing vote-by-mail ballots, the Department will also process provisional ballots and ballots cast by conditional voter registrants.

i. Envelope Scanning

The Department will begin scanning returned vote-by-mail envelopes as soon as it receives the first such envelope in early October.

San Francisco’s official vote-by-mail return envelopes include barcodes with ID number of the voter to whom the enclosed ballot was mailed. Upon receipt of each official return envelope, the Department will use an Agilis Ballot Sorting system to read the envelope’s barcode and to scan, upload, and link the signature on the envelope to the voter’s record in the Election Information Management System (EIMS registration database). Staff will also use the Agilis system to divert unreadable return envelopes, separating them for manual review.

Vote-by-mail return envelopes successfully processed by the Agilis system, as well as those processed by manual envelope review teams, will be forwarded to the signature comparison team, also stationed at City Hall.

ii. Signature Comparison

The Department utilizes a multi-stage review process to compare each ballot envelope signature with the signatures on file for that voter. Using this method, no ballot is challenged for a signature-related reason unless the signature in question has been reviewed by three different staff members and compared to all signatures in the voter's record.

In the first stage, a staff member compares the signature on a given return envelope to the signature image from the corresponding voter's affidavit of registration, and determines whether these two signatures compare by looking for common characteristics. If the signatures compare, the ballot is accepted and transferred to the extraction team for opening and tabulation. If the signatures do not compare, the ballot is placed on pending status and proceeds to the second stage.

In the next stage, a different staff member compares the voter's signature on the return envelope to all other signatures in the voter's file. Only when the signature does not compare to any signature on file, will the ballot proceed to the third stage. In this final stage, another staff member will again compare the signature to all signatures in the voter's records. If, after three attempts to find a comparable signature, staff still cannot verify the signature on the return envelope compares with one on any form signed by the voter to whom the ballot was sent, the ballot must be challenged and the voter notified.

(a) Voter Notification Program

The Department attempts to contact voters with challenged ballots using several methods. First, the Department mails a bilingual cure form regarding the challenge and actions the voter must take to allow the Department to count the ballot, and a postage-paid return envelope. Second, the Department provides notification to voters with challenged ballots via the Department's online Voter Portal, which offers a digital version of the cure form. Finally, if the voter has an email address or telephone number on file, the Department attempts to contact the voter by email and/or telephone, generally within one working day of challenging the ballot.

Voters may return challenge cure forms by mail, email, or fax, as well as in person to any polling place or voting center. In addition, the Department will facilitate home delivery and pickup of challenge cure forms for voters unable to travel.

Upon receipt of a challenge cure form, a staff member will scan the voter's signature sample, link the scan image to the voter's file for future reference, accept the voter's ballot, and forward the ballot envelope on to the ballot extraction team.

iii. Transfer of Accepted Ballot Envelopes for Processing

After undergoing envelope scanning and signature comparison (Steps 1 and 2), accepted vote-by-mail ballots will be transferred from City Hall for ballot extraction and vote counting (Steps 3 and 4) to the Bill Graham Civic Auditorium using a secure custody transfer process.

To transfer accepted vote-by-mail ballot envelopes to the Auditorium, Department staff will begin by placing batches of ballot envelopes into ballot transport boxes secured with tamper-proof seals, and record the seal numbers on a custody transfer form. Staff will then place the secured ballot transport boxes onto mobile racks, complete an inventory check, and encase each rack with shrink-wrap and tamper-proof tape.

A Deputy Sheriff will accompany Department staff to transfer racks via truck to the Auditorium. Finally, two Department staff members at the Auditorium will receive the racks, confirm the security seals are intact, confirm seal numbers match those recorded, and sign the custody transfer form. Ballot extraction staff will then remove the security seals, dismantle the shrink-wrap, and bring the transport boxes to the ballot extraction area.

iv. Ballot Extraction

As each rack of accepted vote-by-mail ballots is delivered, the ballot extraction team will begin inserting ballot envelopes into the Opex high speed envelope extractors. After ballot envelopes are processed (slit open) by the machine, staff will manually remove and flatten individual ballot cards and ready them for scanning. Throughout the extraction process, staff will protect vote secrecy by keeping envelopes face down so that voter information is removed from view. After extraction and flattening, boxes of accepted ballots will be transferred to the votemark scanning team.

v. Votemark Scanning

After ballot cards have been removed, staff will scan the cards for tabulation using Dominion ImageCast Central (ICC) scanning machines. When scanned ballots contain potentially valid over-votes, under-votes, blank contests, marginal marks, or write-in votes, ICC scanners divert such ballots for manual review and adjudication.

(a) Ballot Adjudication and Remake

State law requires the Department to count irregular votemarks, provided the intent of the voter is clear. Therefore, as explained in the previous section, when an ICC scanner detects a ballot with marginal or irregular markings or a write-in vote, an image of the ballot is sent to an adjudication team for review and interpretation.

Some types of irregularly marked ballots require Department staff to remake ballots on ballot-marking devices so votes can be read and tabulated properly by ICC Scanners. These include provisional ballots with invalid votes (e.g., those cast by voters using ballot types containing contests in which they are not eligible to vote and physically damaged vote-by-mail ballots (such as partially torn ballots).

To ensure consistent processing, both tasks are completed by two person teams using illustrated guides with standardized rules. In order to maintain social distancing, the Department will adopt new methods to allow adjudication and remake staff to work in pairs without coming within six feet of each other.

Adjudication teams will work at separate stations, rather than at single stations, with one member of each team marking a main screen and the other using a mirrored monitor to review and confirm adjudication actions. Remake teams will also work in tandem at different stations, with one member of the team entering votemarks and the other member of the team comparing those marks to ballot printouts.

After processing and tabulation, original, adjudicated and remade ballots will be securely transferred and stored at the Department's warehouse for the duration of archival period.

(b) Voting System and Election Transparency

The City's voting system enables an increase in election transparency through public posting of images of voted ballots, equipment logs, and election reports.

In every election, the Department posts a complete set of preliminary and final election results data. In the last election, the Department began posting a "Cast Vote Record", which lists how votes for all contests and ballot measures were recorded on each ballot card. Data provided in the Cast Vote Record is captured from ballots as they are scanned by the voting equipment and before vote tabulation occurs, allowing members of the public to tabulate votes from specific precincts, districts, etc. and compare against the official election results.

The November 2019 election was the first election for which the Department posted images of voted ballots, allowing members of the public to view images for each voted ballot cast in the City. In addition to capturing images of voted ballot cards during processing, the system appends an "audit log" showing how the voting system interpreted and tallied each vote mark appearing on the images, and when applicable, how the markings were adjudicated by personnel. These "AuditMarks," available alongside ballot images at selections.org/results provide interested members of the public with information about how the voting system operates and counts votes, and enables the comparison of each digital image to the individual ballot card's Cast Vote Record in order to verify that the system correctly tallied ballots.

Prior to posting ballot images for the November 2020 election, the Department will again redact any identifying information voters may have placed on ballot cards. To preemptively address and clarify any questions that the public may have on the redacted information, the Department will begin posting its redaction policy alongside ballot images. Under the policy, staff will be required to redact the names of unqualified write-in candidates, in addition to such marks as signatures, initials, names, addresses, voter identification numbers, social security numbers, driver's license numbers, or any other identifiable information. Redacted ballot files will be sorted by precinct and type (vote-by-mail or in-person voting) and posted with election certification documents.

The Department will also post transaction logs from the voting equipment used in the November 2020 election. These logs record the operation of equipment during scanning and processing tasks, further informing members of the public regarding the system's operation.

(c) Ballot Audit and Review

For the March 2020 election, the Department posted a prototype of a new application that allows the public to sort the images of vote ballot according to precinct, contest, and district. The Department was the first county in the country to utilize this application, known as "Ballot Audit and Review."

The City's voting system vendor has continued development of this application that the Department will also post on its website. Next versions of the Ballot Audit and Review application will allow the sorting of ballot images according to specific candidates and vote markings. Members of the public will be able to personally audit the votes cast during the election using the images of the voted ballots and sorting these images with more specific criteria.

(d) "Quick Facts" on Voting System in Voter Information Pamphlet

The Department strives to bring transparency to all election cycle processes, including those involving voting equipment, and invites the public to observe and review its processes. With public awareness in mind, the Department has devoted a page of the November 3 Voter Information Pamphlet to "Quick Facts" about the voting system, including information about ballot image posting and voting system security. This new section of the VIP also features information on how the public may observe Logic and Accuracy testing of the voting machines and other elections processes.

vi. Election Results

The Department will release the first preliminary summary report of election results at approximately 8:45 p.m. on Election Night. This report will provide the results from the vote-by-mail ballots that the Department received and processed before Election Day. With this first summary report, the Department will also release a preliminary Statement of the Vote and Cast Vote Record data.

At approximately 9:45 p.m., the Department will release a second summary report of results. The second report will add the initial votes received from polling places to the votes reported in the first results report. At approximately 10:45 p.m., the Department will issue a third summary results report that will add more votes from polling places received since the previous report. After all polling places have reported, the Department will release a final summary report as well as a second preliminary Statement of the Vote, and Cast Vote Record data.

The Department will continue to process and count ballots after the Election Day and will report the final election results no later than the election certification deadline, December 3, 2020.

VI. Public Health Measures and Procedures for Both Voters and Poll Workers

To protect the health of voters and poll workers in the November 3 election, and to ensure that every eligible voter is able to vote securely and conveniently, the Department has begun taking steps to identify, staff, and supply safe, spacious voting locations and to modify its voter processing procedures at in-person voting locations. For the upcoming election, the Department plans to relocate polling places as necessary to safeguard public health, develop pandemic-compliant procedures for assisting voters, recruit a large and diverse group of poll workers, and provide comprehensive poll worker training using a remote curriculum as much as possible.

A. Polling Site Procedures

The Department identified COVID-19 related changes to polling place and other in-person voting location procedures and is incorporating these changes into poll worker training and recruitment materials.

The Department will collaborate with the Department of Public Health in ensuring that safety procedures and practices established at in-person voting locations are in line with the current federal and local health guidelines.

In addition, the Department will continue to monitor public health official communications about COVID-19 in the next several months, further modifying procedures at in-person voting locations as appropriate to reduce risks of transmission and ensure compliance with new governmental directives.

i. Social Distancing Protocols

As part of its effort to mitigate unnecessary contact between poll workers and voters, the Department will introduce social distancing measures at all polling places. For the same reason, the Department will establish limits on the number of individuals allowed in each polling place at any given time, based on the size of the facility and current CDC recommendations. The Department will comply with recommended social distancing policies by reconfiguring polling place layouts that allow for sufficient space between the election table, voting booths, voting equipment, poll workers, and voters. All new layout and reconfiguration plans will take the particular needs of voters with disabilities into account, protecting the rights of such voters to move through a polling place freely and to vote privately and independently.

To assist poll workers in setting up safe and accessible polling places, the Department will create several diagrams showing recommended placements for hand-sanitizing stations, election tables, voting equipment and marked voter pathways. To help poll workers mark six-foot intervals along pathways, the Department will provide painters' tape, which poll workers can also use to hang signs and identify suitable standing or sitting areas for election observers. The Department will provide all poll workers with facemasks and face shields and instruct poll workers to wear them at all times on Election Day.

The Department intends to staff each site with Polling Place Ambassadors, responsible for maintaining health-related protocols. Polling Place Ambassadors will be stationed at site entrances so they can assist voters dropping off their vote-by-mail ballots without having to enter a voting area, distribute hand sanitizers, answer voter questions, remind voters to maintain sufficient distances from one another, and limit the number of voters entering a voting area at any one time.

In addition to regular announcements from Polling Place Ambassadors, voters will see multilingual signs at polling place entrances reminding them to maintain six feet of distance between themselves and others. As an additional layer of voter spacing and line control, poll workers will mark the official start of voting lines with taped marks on the floor six feet from the election table where voters sign the roster and receive their ballots. Voters at the front of election table lines will be asked to wait to approach the election table to sign the Roster and receive a ballot until poll workers call them to do so.

To avoid close contact between voters and poll workers stationed at the election table, the Department has modified its check-in procedures. As each new voter approaches the election table, the poll worker will step back six feet, instructing the voter to sign the roster with verbal assistance only. Ballot issuance procedures have been similarly modified to allow voters to retrieve their ballot cards without coming into close contact with the poll worker.

ii. Cleanliness and Sanitation Protocols

The Department will implement cleanliness and sanitation standards at each site and will train all poll workers on these protocols. These standards will include frequent and thorough handwashing, distribution of alcohol-based hand sanitizers with at least 60% alcohol to all voters and poll workers at all entrances and exits, and recurrent disinfection of surfaces and supplies. The Department will provide nitrile gloves to all poll workers to be worn when disinfecting the polling place and handling supplies. To avoid cross-contamination, the Department will provide poll workers with illustrated step-by-step instructions on how to remove and dispose of these gloves in the Poll Worker Manual.

The Department plans to purchase a number of new supplies as part of its plan to maintain clean and sanitary in-person voting locations. To protect voters using the ballot-marking devices, the Department will procure single-use screen protectors and disposable, sanitary earpiece covers for the headphones, and stylus pens that can be used to mark the touchscreen ballots. Additionally, the Department will procure EPA-approved disinfectants and disposable paper towels to clean ballot marking pens, voting booths, voting equipment, tables, chairs, and any other frequently touched surfaces and objects regularly. To clean voting equipment and touch screens, poll workers will use manufacturer recommended 70% isopropyl wipes.

The Department redesigned its vote-by-mail and provisional ballot envelopes, which will now have adhesive "peel and seal" strips. The Department plans to replace reusable ballot secrecy sleeves with either single-use paper secrecy sleeves or laminated secrecy sleeves that poll workers can easily sanitize. Polling places will be provided with copies of the Voter Information Pamphlet and ballot facsimiles printed on non-porous material that can be cleaned after each use.

B. Poll Worker Recruitment

In order to protect those willing to serve as poll workers, the Department has taken several steps to modify its poll worker recruitment and training programs.

First, in an effort to recruit a large and diverse group of regular and on-call poll workers, the Department will partner with local organizations and civic groups to disseminate information about the opportunity to serve as a poll worker. The Department also plans to collaborate with the Employment Development Department to expand poll worker recruitment efforts to those who are currently unemployed.

Second, the Department will facilitate remote recruitment for individuals interested in serving as poll workers and streamline the sign-up process on its website so that it is simple, accessible, and easy to find. Prospective poll workers will be able to complete and submit a poll worker application on the Department's website or contact the Department to request a paper application with a postage-paid return envelope.

To assist members of the public in evaluating the decision to serve as poll workers in the November 3 election, the poll worker application will include a link to a CDC website with information regarding vulnerable populations who are considered at high risk during the COVID-19 pandemic. To mitigate exposure during the hiring process as much as possible, most applicants will undergo the interview and sign-up process via phone. To ensure safety of those who prefer to complete the process in person, the Department will equip its Poll Worker Recruitment office located in the annex, a room adjacent to the City Hall café, with some additional precautions, such as plexiglass partitions and frequent sanitation of frequently touched areas.

C. Poll Worker Training

The Department has been revising its poll worker training programs, with a focus on expanding the availability of digital learning resources so that poll workers can prepare for Election Day remotely. In lieu of regular in-person training, newly recruited and returning poll workers will receive a comprehensive, digital presentation on the policies and procedures necessary to administer voting safely on Election Day. The training will be available on the Department's website and in USB flash drive and CD format.

Virtual poll worker training for the upcoming election will be comprised primarily of training videos and interactive slideshows, presented with audio and closed captioning. In addition to providing these online and web-based training resources for all poll workers, the Department will offer small group sessions (with no more than 15 people in a large room at one time) for Inspector where they can practice operating voting equipment and ask questions about new sanitation and social distancing protocols.

The Department has also been updating the Poll Worker Training Manual to incorporate all government-recommended social distancing and hygiene protocols. For example, the updated Manual will include poll worker scripts, translated into multiple languages, reminding voters to maintain six feet of distance between themselves and others at all times, as well as new Job Cards with step-by-step instructions detailing new voter processing procedures. Copies of the Manual will be distributed to poll workers in print versions by mail and digitally through posting of mobile-compatible versions on sfelections.org.

Prior to attending live small group training sessions or serving voters on Election Day, all poll workers will be asked to complete a COVID-19 self-assessment survey, which will advise anyone exposed to the virus or showing symptoms not to report for class or service. In anticipation of poll worker absences on Election Day, the Department will dedicate a telephone line to handle COVID-19 related poll worker absences and organize personnel to assist in coordinating the dispatch of replacement poll workers.

VII. Conclusion

The Department's proposed plan for the November 3 election demonstrates its ongoing commitment to providing a full array of equitable voter outreach and resources to San Francisco residents. Additionally, the current plan will allow the Department to maintain its dedication to providing election services to members of vulnerable and hard-to-reach populations, seniors and voters with disabilities, members of the language minority groups, voters who are experiencing homelessness, and residents of neighborhoods with turnout below the City average.

Re: FY2020-21 and FY2021-22 Department of Elections Budget Cuts

Dear Honorable Mayor London Breed and Honorable Supervisor Fewer,

On Wednesday, June 17, 2020, the San Francisco Elections Commission was alarmed to learn that due to the City's budget shortfalls, the Director of Elections was required to modify his proposed FY 2020-21 and FY 2021-22 budget to include $2.8 million in cuts. The Elections Commission feels strongly and unanimously that anywhere near this kind of budget cut would very severely jeopardize the City's ability to conduct a free, fair and functional election in 2020. At a time when the security and integrity of elections are facing profound threats across the country, San Francisco should not add to the chaos by cutting necessary funding for essential election services. We understand the City's current budget problems and the need to make difficult choices, but if election security fails, then all government services fail with it. The Elections Commission urges the Mayor and the Supervisors to approve the budget as initially submitted by the Director of Elections, and to disregard the cuts that the Director was mandated to propose in the amended budget.

Sincerely,

SUBJECT: Fiscal Year 2019-2020 Annual Emergency Firefighting Water System Report

Pursuant to Resolution No. 484-19, the San Francisco Public Utilities Commission and San Francisco Fire Department hereby provide the following report on the City's Emergency Firefighting Water System (EFWS). Resolution No. 484-19 urges the departments provide a consolidated annual report to the Board of Supervisors, "...on the state of the City's EFWS preparedness for a major earthquake and fire and planned funding from the ten-year Capital Plan."

This report addresses the information requested in Resolution No. 484-19 and provides an update on the City's EFWS preparedness.

Program Background

The San Francisco EFWS is vital for protecting against the loss of life resulting from multi-alarm fires, as well as the loss of homes and businesses by providing an additional layer of fire protection. The system is used throughout the year for the suppression of multiple-alarm fires. The system delivers water at high pressure to the SFFD for firefighting purposes. The primary source of water is the SFPUC's Hetch Hetchy Regional Water System, which supplies water to one reservoir and two storage tanks. The water is subsequently supplied from the reservoirs and tanks into 135 miles of pipelines. The secondary source of water for the EFWS is the San Francisco Bay. There are two seawater pump stations that can supply seawater into the pipelines, as well as 35 suction connections along the northeastern waterfront, which allow fire engines to pump water from the Bay. Finally, two fireboats are available to supply seawater by pumping into any of the five manifolds connected to pipelines.

In 2010, 2014, and 2020, San Francisco voters approved three Earthquake Safety and Emergency Response (ESER) General Obligation Bonds, allowing the City to make critical public safety investments and upgrades to emergency response facilities and infrastructure, including the EFWS.

With the passage of each ESER bond, the SFPUC, SFFD, Public Works, and the Office of Resilience and Capital Planning in the City Administrator's Office have made it a high priority to evaluate, plan, repair, upgrade, and expand EFWS infrastructure throughout San Francisco. In addition to ESER funded upgrades, large development projects in San Francisco have also installed EFWS infrastructure within and adjacent to project boundaries.

2020 Earthquake Safety and Emergency Response Bonds

In March of this year, San Francisco voters approved the 2020 Earthquake Safety and Emergency Response General Obligation Bond. That bond's programming included $153.5 million for the Emergency Firefighting Water System. That funding will be allocated to replace, extend and seismically upgrade system components to increase the ability to provide adequate water throughout the City for firefighting following a major earthquake and during multiple-alarm fires.

With the ESER funding, many upgrades will focus on improving EFWS capabilities in the City's western neighborhoods. The results and recommendations of the 2018 Westside Emergency Firefighting Water System Options Analysis planning study will help to inform the selection and design of specific projects to be funded through ESER 2020. Upon the completion of required environmental review, construction will proceed for selected projects.

Capital Projects: Fiscal Year 2019 – 2020

During Fiscal Year 2019-2020, ESER bond funds were utilized on a total of 10 capital projects, funding the installation of EFWS infrastructure and/or funding engineering and planning work in advance of installing the infrastructure. Please refer to Table 1 for more information.

Active Fires, Trainings, and Inspections: Fiscal Year 2019-2020

Additionally, the SFFD, SFPUC, and other agencies used EFWS infrastructure for trainings and active fires, performed routine inspections, and held joint meetings to discuss emergency response planning and project priorities. A summary of the SFFD's EFWS activities and partners for Fiscal Year 2019-2020 is provided in Table 3.

Maintenance Projects: Fiscal Year 2019 – 2020

Over the past year, the City Distribution Division (CDD) of the SFPUC completed numerous important maintenance activities to ensure that the EFWS is in a state of good repair. A summary of maintenance activities can be found in Table 4 of this report (page 7).

Update on Memorandum of Understanding

In 2015, the SFPUC and SFFD signed the Memorandum of Understanding Regarding the Operation and Maintenance of San Francisco Water Supply Systems Related to Fire Suppression. The SFPUC and SFFD are actively collaborating to update this Memorandum of Understanding to better detail and memorialize annual emergency response exercises, including simulated disaster and earthquake drills involving the EFWS. The timeline on this update has been delayed due to Coronavirus response; however, SFPUC and SFFD expect this update to be completed in 2020.

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Board of Directors,

I am writing to support the creation of temporary transit-only lanes to speed up public bus transport. However, I oppose allowing private buses use of the temporary transit-only lanes. Unlimited numbers of private buses operating in red lanes will interfere with Muni operations. When we get through the current pandemic, we must tackle the climate crisis. Public transportation is an important tool in fighting climate change and must be given priority, as stated in the Transit-First Policy of our charter. These temporary emergency transit lanes are good step in the right direction if used only for public transit.

Additionally, adoption of a policy permitting private buses to operate in transit-only lanes would go against local ordinance -- SFTC Division I Section 7.2.72, based on the state definition of a transit bus, California Vehicle Code Division I Section 642 -- and state law, California Vehicle Code section 21655.1(a).

Moreover, the agency has conducted no environmental study on the impact that unlimited numbers of private buses might have on the disruption of Muni if private buses are permitted to operate in transit-only lanes.

Please adopt a policy that creates temporary transit-only lanes strictly for the operation of public transit vehicles.

Sincerely,

MTA Board,

I do not support any more transit-only lanes. One of them on your list is Masonic Avenue. The City just spent a fortune taking out parking and narrowing the lanes of traffic to increase cross-town traffic flow - at least that was the reason given in public meetings. Now you are admitting that there is more traffic and fewer buses, and yet you are going to take out a lane and give it to buses? This defies logic.

I am also guessing that these lanes are going to benefit private transportation companies more than they benefit the general public. All done without an EIR.

MUNI is going ahead as if COVID never happened. Until there is an effective vaccine I, and many others, will not ride public transit. In addition, the nature of the work place has already changed, and it is unlikely to return to the commute-to-an-office template.

It is time for MUNI to come up with a truly public transportation service that is safe, comfortable, quiet, reasonably-priced, reliable, and effective for everyone.

Sincerely,

Katherine Howard

Dear Board of Directors,

I am writing to support the creation of temporary transit-only lanes to speed up public bus transport. However, I oppose allowing private buses use of the temporary transit-only lanes. Unlimited numbers of private buses operating in red lanes will interfere with Muni operations. When we get through the current pandemic, we must tackle the climate crisis. Public transportation is an important tool in fighting climate change and must be given priority, as stated in the Transit-First Policy of our charter. These temporary emergency transit lanes are a good step in the right direction if used only for public transit.

Additionally, adoption of a policy permitting private buses to operate in transit-only lanes would go against local ordinance -- SFTC Division I Section 7.2.72, based on the state definition of a transit bus, California Vehicle Code Division I Section 642 -- and state law, California Vehicle Code section 21655.1(a).

Moreover, the agency has conducted no environmental study on the impact that unlimited numbers of private buses might have on the disruption of Muni if private buses are permitted to operate in transit-only lanes.

Please adopt a policy that creates temporary transit-only lanes strictly for the operation of public transit vehicles.

Sincerely,

Sydney Ji

Dear Members of the MTA Board of Directors:

I am writing to support the creation of temporary transit-only lanes to speed up public bus transport AND to be limited to publicly owned and operated transit buses, as defined in California Vehicle Code Division I Section 642 -- and state law, California Vehicle Code section 21655.1(a).

I oppose defining private buses as "transit buses" thus allowing private commercial enterprises to qualify for the special perks intended to be reserved for our publicly supported services. No private buses should be allowed to use the temporary transit-only lanes.

Moreover, the MTA has not conducted an environmental study on the impact that unlimited numbers of private buses might have on the disruption of Muni operations if private buses are permitted to operate in transit-only lanes.

Please revise the language of the policy that creates temporary transit-only lanes to include restricting the use of these lanes to the operation of public transit vehicles only, before voting on adoption.

Sincerely,

Nancy Wuerfel

I left out another comment -- as far as I know there is only ONE bus line on Masonic, that runs every 15 to 20 minutes, on a good day.....and right now, the route has been shortened. And you are planning to limit all other traffic for that line? Or maybe this is being done for the private companies?

MTA Board,

I do not support any more transit-only lanes. One of them on your list is Masonic Avenue. The City just spent a fortune taking out parking and narrowing the lanes of traffic to increase cross-town traffic flow - at least that was the reason given in public meetings. Now you are admitting that there is more traffic and fewer buses, and yet you are going to take out a lane and give it to buses? This defies logic.

I am also guessing that these lanes are going to benefit private transportation companies more than they benefit the general public. All done without an EIR.

MUNI is going ahead as if COVID never happened. Until there is an effective vaccine I, and many others, will not ride public transit. In addition, the nature of the work place has already changed, and it is unlikely to return to the commute-to-an-office template.

It is time for MUNI to come up with a truly public transportation service that is safe, comfortable, quiet, reasonably-priced, reliable, and effective for everyone.

I don't know if it's Covid related, but the fireworks this year are egregious. My poor dog is trembling every night thinking the world is ending. Last night was like it was 4th of July itself! If you look on nextdoor, everyone is complaining, this has been going on for over a month, every night. If you flew drones over the neighborhood it would be easy to see who is doing it, doesn't seem like anything is being done.

Hi Rafael, BOS, Mayor Breed,

I disagree with the proposal to ban natural gas from new buildings. This just pushes more load the electric grid, and gas fired power plants, and makes it appear that SF has “lowered emissions”. It’s inefficient and it hurts restaurants and other businesses. You know that PG&E cannot maintain the electric grid, which has caused many many more deaths than natural gas in California. What are people supposed to do when the power is out? How can they heat their homes and cook without natural gas if that’s their preference? The timing for this proposal couldn’t be more terrible. I wish you would focus on cutting red tape in city hall and solving the homeless problem. Pretty soon we will hit our emissions goals without having to do a thing because the economy will be dead.

Best,

To all:

Problem:

Too many people are walking about, often coming up within a few feet of others, who are not wearing masks.

Practical Solution (inexpensive):

Post simple signs, plastering them throughout the streets and parks that read as follows—

Please wear a mask to protect others and to end the pandemic.

Why it may work:

It's non-confrontational and lacks wordiness. People respond to reminders. Also, it will relieve those of us who wear masks from the burden of simmering anger, as we will no longer feel that they need to be told, while we march on, zigzagging through the obstacle course that we are presented with, as we try to get a little fresh air and exercise while maintaining a safe distance.

Other Idea:

Some signs should be in Chinese and in Spanish; they, too, should keep it simple. Too much writing on any one sign might be glazed over. (A line drawing of a head with a mask, nose and mouth covered, could be effective.)

Why it's necessary for our city to do more:

The virus increases daily and people cannot get back to work until we get the virus under control.

Outcome:

San Francisco can serve as a model for other cities and towns to aspire to. We love it here, right? So why not make this happen?

RE: Dropbox Link sent from Christina Ayala (Dolan Law Firm)

My name is Matt Gramly. I am an attorney in San Francisco with The Dolan Law Firm. I live on Stanyan Street in between Waller and Beulah, right across from the SFPD Park Substation. I am currently working from home during shelter in place. My girlfriend lives with me, she is also an attorney and is also working from home. Kezar Sports Pub is directly next door to us. They recently opened a front patio, which we are happy about, we've missed them. Today, however, there was a soccer game. Kezar put a tv out front up against their building to show the game. For over two hours several drunk sports fans (with drums) were so loud we couldn't get any work done. Apart from the noise, there was no social distancing, there's a porta potty out front with no where for people to wash their hands when they are done, there's no disinfecting going on, no social distancing, hardly any masks, etc. We basically have a super spreader hotspot right outside our front door. The noise was intolerable for over two hours. Apparently this is going to happen every Thursday afternoon for the foreseeable future. I called 311, they transferred me to SFPD nonemergency line. I described what was going on, the person who answered the call said they would send a car. When an SFPD car arrived an hour later, the officer who was in the car used his PA radio to say "You'll never walk alone" which is painted on the front of the bar, and is the slogan of the soccer team playing. The crowd went crazy cheering and yelling and banging their drums. One reveler went over to the SFPD car, gave the officer a scarf for the soccer team, the officer held it up and everyone went nuts again. The officer left, and nothing changed. If this was a Saturday I wouldn't care. But it was 2:00 p.m. on a Thursday. People walking down the sidewalk have to walk in between the tv and the drunk soccer fans to get through. Several people in our building and in the other two residential buildings on our block are working from home. We can't have this. Any help you can provide would be greatly appreciated. My cell number is 415-350-3083.

Thanks,

Matt Gramly

Re: 5G harms health and privacy - here's some legislative steps to take

Dear Ms. Stefani,

Thank you for your consideration of the misgivings that I, and many others, share regarding the risks pertaining to the deployment of 5G technology.

This week, more than 150,000 people are participating in an online Summit to examine the facts pertaining to 5G. To be clear, we understand that there are indeed benefits to this technology. We also understand, however, that there are very significant risks which have not been addressed to date. As my elected representative, I urge you to examine then take immediate action to mitigate these risks.

What are the risks and negative impacts from 5G? These fit into the following broad categories: 1) adverse health impacts, 2) privacy impacts, 3) national security risks and 4) budgetary impacts.

ADVERSE HEALTH IMPACTS have been confirmed in over 3,600 medical studies that include cancer, sterility, heart conditions, exacerbation of other underlying conditions and much more including environmental impacts.

PRIVACY IMPACTS include the harvesting of personal data about citizens without their knowledge or consent. 5G facilitates granular "contact tracing" surveillance. The "business case" for 5G right now is surveillance devices and cameras, not data service for consumers.

NATIONAL SECURITY RISKS include providing hostile nations with access to sensitive military and critical infrastructure networks.

BUDGETARY IMPACTS rise from lawsuits against municipal authorities for failure to comply with current statutory protections such as those provided in the ADA and FHA and tort liability for personal injuries caused by exposure from wireless infrastructure on public right-of-way.

Individually, these risks would merit further action. Collectively, they should justify treating the matter as an urgent, immediate priority.

To be clear, to date there are no independent safety studies demonstrating the safety of prolonged exposure to the microwave and millimeter-wave frequencies; or phased array beamforming intended to be used for 5G in the future.

Thus, with thousands of studies indicating harmful bio-effect(s) from wireless radiation, and since the wireless industry tells us that 5G requires installation of transmitters emitting wireless radiation 24 hours a day in front of every 3-10 homes, causing or facilitating the deployment of 5G and then exposing individuals against their will violates their right to bodily integrity and is a battery tort. The emissions crossing private land are a nuisance.

For a legislative template, see Burlington's Small Cell Policy, which is being used as a model in municipalities throughout the country:

www.burlington.org/town_government/small_cell_information.php

States such as Wisconsin, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Louisiana, Oregon, New York, and California have taken action to limit and exert more control over the 5G rollout.

Federal legislators including Senators Richard Blumenthal and James Gaughran; and Representatives Anna Eshoo, Thomas Suozzi, Dan Lipinski, Andy Kim, and Peter DeFazio have all formally initiated an inquiry regarding the safety of 5G technology and have requested documentation of its safety.

Countries and cities around the world, including Switzerland, Brussels, Italy, Greece, UK, Slovenia, Nigeria, New Guinea, have completely halted or postponed the roll out of 5G until its safety has been firmly established.

Leading tech and industry professionals including Frank Clegg, the former President of Microsoft Canada, have made pragmatic appeals to policy makers regarding the risks of 5G technologies (see: youtu.be/xSP2exnmJXg). Mr. Clegg has requested that his industry, the telecommunications industry, be required by policy makers to do full safety testing on 5G and pursue technological options such as fiber optics which mitigate health, privacy and security risks.

What actions can be taken? Contrary to what you may be told by federal authorities, state authorities or even your own legal counsel, there are significant actions you can take right now to join other communities in the protection of the rights of the citizens within your community.

THESE ACTIONS INCLUDE:

- 1) pursuing ordinances that require the telecom provider to comply with the ADA/FHA;
- 2) requesting applications for installation from 5G service providers stating their compliance with FCC installation requirements;
- 3) submitting these applications to FCC for environmental impact assessment; and
- 4) ensuring that electrosensitive citizens (3.2% of population on average) are provided with an environment free from harm.

Furthermore, please note that at least 23 municipalities from around the US are currently suing in the federal 9th District Court for the rights to regulate and control the rollout of 5G infrastructure in their local communities.

For more information, and/or to receive a summary of key legal facts and proven-successful steps you can take within your local government, please see “5G & Wireless Facts at a Glance” (copy-paste this link): solutionsforhumanity.net/wireless-facts-at-a-glance/

You are the last line of defense for the members of your community including your own family and friends. It is my hope that you will join with others in the pursuit of ordinances that protects all of us.

Sincerely,

Ellisse Pennington

Dear Board of Supervisors, neighbors, and local media:

Open Letter: Does the Board of Supervisors Care About Black Lives?

In recent weeks this Board has spoken in favor of black lives so often, that you might think racist gentrification had not been destroying the black community of our city for decades.

Community organizer Rheema Calloway said it best:

"San Francisco has the highest displacement rates of blacks outside of Hurricane Katrina. That is a natural disaster."

African-Americans in San Francisco are twice as likely to experience disability over all other ethnicities. Yet African-Americans only account for 3-5% of the total population of SF.

This board has a very real role in the racist gentrification of San Francisco and as the governing legislative body you all have a lot of power to do something about it. If Black Lives Matter is to be more than a trendy slogan used by Amazon, Nike, and the NFL, we need concrete changes that foster growth and support of the black community instead of racial segregation onto polluted soil.

- If this Board cares about black lives, then increase funding to the African-American Cultural Center and similar places of support for the black community.
- If this board cares about black lives, then give black business owners subsidies to stay in business during these hard times.
- If this Board cares about black lives, then increase funding for public schools in black and PoC communities like Bayview-Hunters point, Tenderloin, and Visitation Valley.
- If this Board cares about black lives, then oppose the UC Hastings settlement that will target, harass, and force homeless black lives out of the tenderloin against their will.
- If this Board cares about black lives, then create a program to pay for medical expenses for the black communities that have been devastated by pollution and soil toxicity in Bayview-Hunters Point and Treasure Island.
- If this Board cares about black lives, then create subsidies and funding for healthy grocery stores in black communities instead of liquor stores in our urban food deserts.
- If this Board cares about black lives, then support chronically underfunded POC domestic violence centers like Women Against Rape, Woman, Inc. and La Casa De La Madres. Create domestic violence services for men and boys will so we can heal the cycles of abuse in POC communities before police intervention.
- If this Board cares about black lives, then create a community oversight committee of black residents so that the remaining 5% of black lives in San Francisco can grow and rebuild their communities together.

Some of our city supervisors, namely Shamann Walton and Dean Preston, have been making some positive efforts in support of the black community. So far, the steps taken have been modest and will not actually reverse the tide of racist gentrification happening in the city.

I urge the Board of Supervisors to work to address at least some of the issues in this open letter to provide at least some modicum of support for the black community, which continues to face racist gentrification and segregation into our most polluted and impoverished neighborhoods.

- If this Board cares about black lives, then support chronically underfunded POC domestic violence centers like Women Against Rape, Woman, Inc. and La Casa De La Madres. Create domestic violence services for men and boys will so we can heal the cycles of abuse in POC communities before police intervention.

- If this Board cares about black lives, then create a community oversight committee of black residents so that the remaining 5% of black lives in San Francisco can grow and rebuild their communities together.

Attention: All Members of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, Mayor London Breed and Chief Bill Scott,

I don't expect any of you to read any of the links below. But this Black lives matter in San Francisco is BS based on the evidence. We do not have the upper hand on political racism here but can get the upper hand if only you are willing to try something new.

As a longtime resident of San Francisco (1960), I have been screaming for justice for Blacks in San Francisco mainly before the SF Board of Supervisors for quite some time. Along with other Black San Franciscans, we all have been ignored by SF City Hall. Now, people want to scapegoat SFPD?

I am no defender of law enforcement. I created the hashtag #BadgesForBrains for the acts I have seen and experienced by law enforcement. Personally, I think SFPD is more arrogant than racist, but I've seen the racism. That said, defunding the police will not help end any of the issues I mentioned below:

Dear Supervisor Ronen (with the BoS and Supervisor Mandelman on cc):

I live in D8 and am writing to you in your capacity to bring Jane Natoli's nomination to the SFMTA board to a vote. As someone who relies on public transportation in my daily life (pre and hopefully post pandemic) and who believes that transit is an incredibly important part of our city, I wanted to write to you to share my support for Jane Natoli's nomination.

I am writing to ask when you will bring her nomination to the Board for a vote. It's been 74 days since Mayor Breed nominated Jane. With only four members of the board currently, these seats need to be filled quickly to ensure that the SFMTA has the oversight and support that it needs. I strongly believe that Jane, someone who regularly relies on multi-modal transit (biking, buses) and who will be the first trans member of the board is that person.

Please proceed with the vote to put Jane on the board. San Francisco needs her leadership -- and your leadership to bring us there.

Thank you.

Dear Supervisor Haney,

I am following up on the petition to change the name of ISIS St. in San Francisco.

Please see the petition by clicking the link below.

re: <http://chng.it/N9wQ2V4F4S>

I know that you folks have been in crisis mode but as the City comes back to life I would like to follow up with you about the change of the offensive/evil name of ISIS Street.

I received an email from Han Zou in February stating that your office had been communicating with Supervisor Mandelman about a possible Milk St.

The first suggestion to change the name to Harvey Milk St., may be either controversial or not supported by the gay community, which is disappointing.

Hence, I am open to renaming the street to any other worthy or notable person that has had a positive impact in the South of Market Community.

It is clear that society is no longer tolerant with names, statues, flags, etc., that have a connotation of hate, discrimination or oppression.

It is obvious that a street name of "ISIS Street" is no longer acceptable in San Francisco.

You may not be aware of all the atrocities that the ISIS terrorist organization has caused throughout the world - so please take a moment to review the petition.

Mr. Haney - if you no longer support a name change - please tell me why and I won't bother you about this again.

I am a constituent in district 6 and I would appreciate a response.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Subject: Resolutions on Racism, Police Abuse and Transparency -- #200683 (Item #33, meeting of June 30)

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Supervisors,

Thank you for your recent resolutions that, in part, call on others outside of San Francisco to act more effectively and aggressively to fight police misconduct and extreme racial disparities in the criminal legal system and in society in general. I support the sense of urgency -- and emergency -- behind the resolution that will have the Board declare "war on racism" and I urge you to adopt it.

However, as you well know, there are local fronts in this "war" that are in need of your attention too. I hope you will follow-up very soon with specific resolutions urging various San Francisco officials and bodies to act in the same manner on the same topics you are asking others outside of San Francisco to act.

For example --

1. Full transparency about fatal police shootings and other misconduct records

Thank you for unanimously adopting a resolution (#200628) calling on the City of Vallejo to release the body camera footage of the recent tragic police killing of San Francisco-raised Sean Monterrosa. Please consider adopting a resolution urging the SFPD and Police Commission to be fully transparent about its disciplinary decisions in its own cases involving fatal shootings, uses of force causing death or great bodily injuries, sexual assault and dishonesty.

In calling on Vallejo to be more transparent, your resolution refers briefly to the SFPD killing of Jessica Williams. She was killed by SFPD Sgt. Justin Erb on May 19, 2016 in a shooting that the DPA, SFPD and Police Commission all eventually agreed was unjustified and in violation of department policy. As you'll recall, she'd been the third person of color killed by SFPD in highly questionable circumstances in just over five months (after the killings of Mario Woods and Luis Gongora Pat). There had been turmoil, intense media scrutiny, marches on City Hall and an extended hunger strike outside Mission Station.

There was very high public interest in how the SFPD discipline system would handle this killing that cost Chief Greg Suhr his job by the end of the day that she'd died. For the sake of community trust and confidence, the US Department of Justice COPS Office has since called on the Commission, DPA and SFPD to be as transparent as the law allows about disciplinary dispositions and a new state law (SB 1421) went into effect on January 1, 2019, making that information about fatal police shootings no longer confidential.

Yet, when the Police Commission decided last September to suspend Sgt. Erb for 45 days rather than terminate him, they did so in closed session and inexplicably voted to not tell the public what they had done. The Commission, DPA and SFPD all kept this information secret for nine months until it was finally released to a reporter as part of the DPA's full investigative file he'd requested several months prior under the Public Records Act. (<https://missionlocal.org/2020/06/jessica-williams-justin-erb-sfpd-shooting/>.) I believe the Police Commission's failure to immediately disclose the disciplinary disposition for the unjustified killing of Jessica Williams violated the Brown Act. Even if it did not, they clearly had the legal discretion to release this information -- and, per their commitments to implement the USDOJ COPS recommendations, had promised that they would do so. Instead, they kept the news of this 45-day suspension secret for nearly nine months. I have been unable to determine whether this was a one-time aberration based on bad legal advice or whether the Commission and SFPD are still keeping secret other disciplinary decisions made over the last 18 months in SB 1421 categories of serious misconduct.

Please consider a resolution calling on the Police Commission and SFPD to immediately be fully transparent -- per their prior USDOJ COPS commitments and SB 1421 -- about what particular disciplinary actions they've taken over the last 18 months in cases involving police fatal shootings, uses of force resulting in death or great bodily injury, sexual assault or dishonesty.

Please consider including in that resolution support for SB 776, introduced today in the California Legislature to mandate even greater access to police misconduct records and to impose civil fines on agencies who unlawfully keep these records secret. (<https://www.mercurynews.com/2020/06/29/bill-would-broaden-and-speed-up-access-to-police-disciplinary-records-and-make-complaints-about-racist-cops-public/>.) SFPD continues to use force and deadly force disproportionately against people of color. A local "war on racism" should feature the San Francisco Board of Supervisors rushing to lead the charge for greater transparency over these sorts of issues.

2. End local use of the qualified immunity defense in SFPD misconduct litigation.

Thank you for including support for the federal George Floyd Justice in Policing Act in your resolution (#200683) to be voted on tomorrow and directing that your support be conveyed to our federal representatives. As you may know, led by San Francisco's own Speaker of the House, Nancy Pelosi, late last week every single House Democrat (and three Republicans) voted in favor of that bill which, among other things, would end use of the judicially-created and arbitrary qualified immunity defense in litigation seeking to remedy federal civil rights violations by police officers and agencies.

(<http://clerk.house.gov/evs/2020/roll119.xml>.) Unfortunately, because of opposition from the Trump administration and their allies in the police unions, it appears that bill will not be taken up this year by the Republican-controlled Senate.

However, with the unanimous support from House Democrats for ending the use of the qualified immunity defense, there is no reason to wait until next year for San Francisco to start to live by its stated principles by no longer asserting this now widely-discredited barrier to using federal civil rights litigation to deter and remedy police misconduct --

"These are tools that the government is permitted, but not required, to use as roadblocks against valid constitutional claims. If progressive officials, at any level of government, are truly committed to accountability and to the Black Lives Matter movement, they can lay down these weapons and let citizens whose constitutional rights have been violated be heard in court....

Individual officers could hardly complain about this state of affairs, because government entities across the country routinely defend and indemnify officers in civil rights litigation brought seeking damages. But government lawyers have the power and obligation to determine whether particular litigating positions are in the public's interest. If progressive prosecutors can exercise their discretion not to prosecute certain categories of offenses, then progressive mayors, governors, or attorneys general (or municipal attorneys) can exercise their discretion not to raise certain defenses in civil rights litigation.

Significant benefits would follow if progressive elected officials, nominally committed to movements like Black Lives Matter, took this step."

<http://bostonreview.net/law-justice/alex-reinert-we-can-end-qualified-immunity-tomorrow>

In short, with Speaker Pelosi taking this position, the California Democratic Congressional delegation unanimous in its support, and all of them following the leadership of the bill's lead sponsor, Congressional Black Caucus Chair and former Speaker of the California Assembly Karen Bass, why on earth would San Francisco wait?

Please consider a resolution calling on the San Francisco City Attorney's Office and the Police Commission and SFPD (as named defendants in federal civil rights litigation) to immediately stop asserting the qualified immunity defense per the provisions of the proposed George Floyd Justice in Policing Act.

I am a long-time resident of District Eight but would, of course, be happy to assist any of you or members of your staff in drafting or reviewing these suggested resolutions.

Thank you.

Hello Supervisor peskin can you tell the tax payers why is the Mayor London Breed paying city worker to stay at home and collect a full weeks pay? PUC Sewer Repair are rotating there shifts. They have one group working one week and the second group working the next week. So it turns out that the first group will be working and the second group will be at home getting Paid! And so on it go's. So they are getting paid a full pay check when they are only working half the time. Dose the City Of San Francisco have that type of money to spend It must be nice. Dear Member of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors,

I am deeply troubled by the recent incidents where statues of Cervantes, Columbus and Spanish settlers were vandalized across the USA and specifically the recent defiling of the Miguel de Cervantes statue in San Francisco.

These acts of violence against symbols of Hispanic culture are evidence of the deeply rooted anti-Hispanic bias and hatred in some parts of American society, supported by prejudiced and inaccurate school education and Hollywood stereotypes.

The attacks against Columbus are based on false information spread for centuries by English and Dutch propaganda (they were at war with Spain). Columbus (and Spaniards) did not commit genocide and was not the first to bring slavery to the Americas.

The reason for the death of thousands of natives was due to disease brought by Europeans. No one ordered or carried out mass exterminations of Indians. In addition, the reason why Americans call Latins or Hispanics brown is because Spain had very few settlers and they mixed with the native population. The majority of current day Mexico is the fruit of this hybridization, called mestizaje. They are descendants of settlers and natives.

Although no one will deny that Spain practiced slavery, Native American tribes and the Aztecs practiced slavery as well. And so did the English, French, Dutch, Ottoman Turks, Arabs, Africans, etc. during that time period.

Queen Isabel of Spain ordered that Indians be protected and admonished Columbus for carrying hundreds of Indians to Spain and ordered him to take them back.

Going back to statues, we can get into a back and forth discussion about Columbus and Fray Junipero Serra, but attacking Cervantes has no excuse. Cervantes is the most important writer in Spanish literature, beloved by Spanish-speakers, including Mexico and the rest of Spanish-speaking America. He was never in the Americas and didn't own slaves. In fact, Cervantes was captured by the Turks in a battle and held captive and a slave until he was ransomed. The Taliban-like vandals that defaced his statue in San Francisco clearly show their deeply-rooted hate for Hispanic culture. It has nothing to do with Black Lives Matter, which I support.

How about a fair and balanced treatment of history in American history books and an unbiased dialog about Hispanic culture in California?

Best regards,

Angel Romero

SUPPORT

Via Electronic Mail

Dear Supervisors:

The American Civil Liberties Union of Northern California (ACLU of Northern California) is proud to support and stand with San Francisco's youth leaders and respectfully asks that you vote in favor of placing the Vote16 Charter amendment ("Vote16") on the November 2020 ballot. Vote16 would allow young people aged 16 and 17 to cast their ballots in municipal elections and has been the culmination of years of dedication and work by San Francisco's youth.

Sixteen and seventeen year olds are key stakeholders in our democracy: they are active, engaged, and informed participants in civic and political efforts. San Francisco youth are strong community leaders. This leadership is embodied by the work of the Vote16 campaign and the San Francisco Youth Commission; as well as by the hundreds and thousands of young people leading actions and demanding change after the murders of Breonna Taylor, George Floyd, and Ahmaud Arbery. Young people serve a vital role in our democracy, and their leadership and vision are undeniable in San Francisco. Vote16 would allow these young leaders the opportunity to have a say in matters that affect them personally.

American Civil Liberties Union of Northern California

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR Abdi Soltani • BOARD CHAIR Magan Pritam Ray

SAN FRANCISCO OFFICE: 39 Drumm St. San Francisco, CA 94111 • FRESNO OFFICE: PO Box 188 Fresno, CA 93707
TEL (415) 621-2493 • FAX (415) 255-1478 • TTY (415) 863-7832 • WWW.ACLUNC.ORG

Further, Vote16 would create an opportunity to form lifelong voters by allowing young members of our community to begin voting at 16 in local elections. Early involvement in the voting process is likely to increase registration and turn out rates amongst young voters. Vote16 is therefore an important opportunity to increase civic participation.

For all of these reasons, the ACLU of Northern California supports placing Vote16 on the November 2020 ballot and we urge you to support this effort.

Sincerely,

To SF Planning Department:

I'm writing to voice my opposition to the development project proposed on Edgehill Mountain along Kensington Way and Vasquez Avenue.

I fully agree with CARE's position that the construction would threaten the safety of homes below and above and would destroy valued forest and open space, that the proposed buildings are disproportionately large in scale and too many to fit the character of the neighborhood and that the traffic imposed by multiple new driveways and by construction vehicles is unsupportable on streets that are already too narrow for vehicles to pass with any parked cars.

Furthermore, this project does nothing to address San Francisco's affordable housing crisis and detracts from efforts to address climate change with high-density housing close to public transportation.

This project is preposterous and the city needs to do the right thing by its residents and designate the area as permanent open space.

Hello,

This project has no right to go forward. How can a site with so much wrong with it be considered for development? How many of the projects that were approved by the engineers under investigation for corruption should be investigated for compliance issues?

Mission Local just posted a list of the characters charged so far: <https://discoveryink.wordpress.com/2020/06/25/feds-level-charges-against-walter-wong-in-latest-salvo-of-ongoing-mohammed-nuru-probe/>

TREASURE ISLAND BUILDING MORATORIUM RESOLUTION

Whereas, in the new report, Adapting to Rising Tides Bay Area, the waters in the San Francisco Bay will be 4 feet higher in the year 2060 which will be equal to the amount of fill to be added for new construction; (1)

Whereas, Treasure Island was the site where battleships were cleaned after a nuclear blast at the Bikini Atoll leaving radioactivity on site; (2)

Whereas, the Navy deposited radium-dipped devices in landfills on Treasure Island in the past; (2)

Whereas, in 2006 the Navy published an account of radioactivity on Treasure Island, however, since that publication, new locations of radioactivity have been found in areas where it was not supposed to be; (2) (3)

Whereas, in 2008 contractors found and removed almost 1,300 small radioactive objects on Site 12 beside housing areas; (2)

Whereas, in 2011 state technicians tested Treasure Island's roads with gamma scanners and found 5 areas of "significantly elevated radiation levels" in places accessible to the public; (2)

Whereas, cesium-137 was found close to a building where this substance was stored, when experts reported further tests were needed to be done, the Navy and the City's development authority said there was no need for action and the health department did not comment; (2)

Therefore be it Resolved, that all parties involved in the cleanup of Treasure Island, including the City Attorney, the Navy, the City development authority on Treasure Island, the California Department of Toxic Substances Control, the SF Health Department, the Treasure Island Homeless Initiative, Lennar and FivePoint Holding LLC construction companies and the John Stewart Co. which manages leases on Treasure Island, halt construction on Treasure Island until these relevant agencies consider it safe and free of radioactivity or any other toxic waste and the fear of rising water has subsided.

Asha Safai, Board of Supervisors,

Increase Homeless camping and Graffiti painted on Retaining walls facing 280 fwy below Lick Widerning High School, is a constant "sore spot" in this Area/Neighborhood! Garbage and trash,increased with Homeless and taggers,makes this walkway "Unsafe and Useless" to general public,when they could go across by "Balboa Bart Station Walkway" which is lite up and not secluded! Please Lobby with DPW and City to consider "Closing off this Walkway" and Plant with Trees/Shrubs and secured illegal access with fencing/concrete walls to prevent more illegal camping and trash that increase crime and rodents in this area into the neighborhoods!

Thank you,
Chris W.

P.S. Also please Lobby Bart to "eradicate the Pigeons nesting inside Balboa Bart Station" for Years!!....especially by the Up escalators from platforms and simple inexpensive Pigeon Spikes glued to areas that Pigeons roost or nest...its a matter of Health and costs of Pigeon Crap everywhere in the station,making it unsightly and unhealthy! Subject: Utility company run amok: Request for inquiry into Recology night time operations

Dear Board of Supervisors,

I am a resident of 900 Bush Street (La Galleria with 194 residential units) and am chairing a committee formed by this HOA to negotiate with Recology Operations about the deafening noise created by their metal receptacles, at wee hours in the morning.

Ever since Recology has become the sole garbage disposal company, it has been very difficult to voice concerns or request any reasonable changes. Since Oct- Nov 2019, Recology has moved the timing of garbage pickup to as early as 4:00 am on many days. This creates an immense war-zone like racket with metal on metal clanging and hammering in early mornings. A very brief audio of the noise is attached below (please try listening at least half way through). Causing such a racket between 4:00 to 6:00 am is highly detrimental to the residents well being and is now bordering on willful harassment by the company.

Formal complaints have been submitted at #311 number many times, but to no benefit. Continued complaints from the harassed residents led us to form a committee on this.

A brief survey of the residents in April 2020 has shown that majority feel that this is adversely affecting their quality of life and wellness. Half of the respondents want to move away because of this noise issue.

The route manager (Kareem Saber) seems to be trying his best to help with the issue but his hands are tied due to poor staffing (and lack of creative thinking or funding). Recology does not seem to have enough drivers and are scheduling 14 hour shifts for their current drivers that begin at 4:00 am. A suggestion to replace the metal containers with large plastic ones was turned down (Recology only has the 96G plastic bins which are not large enough to accommodate cardboard boxes and other large items).

The annual bill for garbage pickup from 900 Bush Street, La Galleria building with 194 units, is $310,000.

The pickup location is at 835 Taylor Street.

There is an equally large building with 165 units on 1001 Pine street and multi-unit buildings on the other side of Taylor street. The garbage receptacles for all buildings are located between 825 to 855 Taylor St.

The annual billing for just this segment of Taylor Street (between Bush and Pine) is likely to be in the range of $600,000 to $700,000. This should be more than sufficient to cover the cost of all operations, while leaving enough to satisfy the investor greed.

This is a large utility company and very much like PG&E, with little oversight and wreaking havoc in the local resident's lives. We would be truly grateful if the board of directors could request an audit into this. This company should be able to hire more drivers and shorten their shifts to regular working hours during the day or be able to figure out replacements for the metal containers with resin based, less noisy containers.

It would be a tremendous help to the SF residents, if the county would consider establishing an 'Time based mandate' for the company to conduct its operations within. It is apparently not common sense to the company's management that such metal clanging should be avoided at such hours. There are barely 6 to 7 hours of quiet time that we get. As our elected officials, please do not let a large corporate take that away and/ or force the residents to relocate.

Warm regards,
Neha Garg

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2020 12:43:23 PM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear San Francisco Board of Supervisors,

Based on an increasing number of reports regarding the disproportionate use of violence by police officers toward unarmed African-Americans and people of color around the country, city residents are becoming deeply concerned with the increasing presence of police during peaceful demonstrations that will result in more violence and have a chilling impact on the participation of communities of color. As a private citizen, I therefore respectfully request that the SF City Government, Local Officials, and Agencies please act against increasing police violence and hold them accountable to the harm they have.

Law enforcement nationwide often make racially based stops and interrogations. I am deeply concerned that the presence of the SF Police Department and the surveillance capabilities that will come with it, will further traumatize communities of color. I am also concerned that the aggregation of transportation data on communities of color will be used to justify the use of force and violence in those areas in the guise of VISION ZERO creating "safe streets," and will be used to further repress communities organizing for police accountability. Simply put, the presence of the SF Police Department will not result in community healing. Instead, it will result in community killing. The most disturbing part of it all, is that this outcome is predictable.

As a private citizen, I am calling on SF Mayor London Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and the San Francisco Planning Department to become visionary leaders by pledging to defund the SF Police Department and diverge VISION ZERO "enforcement" funding to "EQUITY" investment in the resources that really keep us safe and healthy, especially in Black communities, Indigenous communities and communities of color. I am calling you to commit to the following:

To never again vote to increase police funding or to increase the police department's budget.

To propose and vote for a $200 million cut from the San Francisco Police budget and move it towards City response to projected COVID-19 shortfalls.

To expand current street safety infrastructure and transportation investment in community-led health and safety strategies in communities of color, instead of investing in police or affluent communities.

To do everything in your power to compel the SF Police Department and all law enforcement agencies to immediately cease enacting violence on community members.

Our cities need your leadership, our people are hurting, and Black communities are crying out for health and safety in the midst of pandemic. Now is the time to invest in a safe, liberated future for our city. We can't afford to keep funding SFPD attacks on Black lives. Asking affected communities to take on the burden of figuring out how to make COVID19 work in a landscape of police violence is dismissive at best and insulting at worst.

As such, we urge you to take a step towards peace, healing and reconciliation by committing and pledging to the points above.

Sincerely,

Christina Nowak

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Sara Ryugo, and I am a resident of San Francisco. This past month, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Sincerely,
Sara Ryugo

Hi!

My name is Andrew Udell and I live in San Francisco (in Noe Valley)! These past few weeks have helped me reflect on the current state of policing and it's clear we need massive change, especially with regards to our budget and I'm reaching out to you all as public officials.

SFPD gets an insane amount of resources that could otherwise be used to help end homelessness, fight climate change, and make our city more livable. Last year, SFPD had a budget of over $611M and we haven't seen any improvements to important issues like homelessness, climate change, mental health, safety, and housing affordability. Instead, what we have seen is the outcome of heavily armed and quick-to-violence police.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Zach Michaud, and I am a resident of San Francisco. Recently, our nation has been gripped by protests calling for rapid and meaningful change with regard to police behavior, an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America. Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. Accordingly, it has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as these protests continue.

SFPD has been a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was over $600M, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city. Instead, we see wasteful and harmful actions of our police.

I'm aware of Mayor Breed's statements about funneling resources away from the police and I would like to urge you all to make this a meaningful, lasting change, as opposed to a small, minor, and temporary one. I call on you to continuously phase resources away from the SFPD budget and towards community-oriented programs to help those in poverty in our city, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. We implore you to give every member of our community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need.

We can be a beacon for other cities to follow if only we have the courage to change.

Hello,

I am writing today to advocate for my neighbors and my community in saying: we must fund our community services at a greater rate to benefit and advance our oppressed communities. To find these funds for our oppressed and specifically Black communities, we must defund the police.

This money must be taken away from the police because policing as an institution is inherently violent towards Black people and other marginalized groups. I do believe we must develop a model of safety that do not involve police, because police do not promote public safety.

Please let me know what you are using your power to do specifically, to make sure our marginalized communities are advanced and cared for. Please let me know specifically, how you are reallocating funds within the city budget to benefit our Black residents.

Sincerely,
Jamie Reeves

Hello Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Elizabeth Andrews, and I am a resident of San Francisco. These past several weeks, our nation has seen hundreds of thousands of protesters demanding rapid and meaningful change across the country. They're demanding that we drastically change police behavior, end racism/anti-Blackness, and IMMEDIATELY right the awful wrongs that Black people face in America. I stand with them, and I hope you'll stand with them, too.

It has come to my attention that the budget for 2021 is being decided as protestors fight on, which has inspired me to write you today. Historically, the SFPD has proven to be a waste of our resources. Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, pulled heavily from the San Francisco general fund. While spending extraordinary amounts on policing--spending that arguably harms the Black community--we have not invested in improving safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability--issues that disproportionately and deleteriously affect Black San Franciscans.

I call on you to slash the SFPD budget--to stop spending money militarizing our police force--and to instead invest in solving these problems. I truly believe that our courage to change will inspire other city officials--officials who admire the innovation and creativity that exudes from San Francisco--to do the same. Let's be the change we'd like to see in this world.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Andrews

Hello Supervisors!

My name is Elliot Young, I'm a lifelong resident of San Francisco, I was born here 24 years ago, and I've lived here my entire life. I went to Grattan Elementary School in Cole Valley, the neighborhood I grew up in, then A.P. Gianinni Middle School, and after that, the Ruth Asawa School of the Arts. My point is that this city made me into the adult I am now, and I care deeply about San Francisco, and all of my fellow San Franciscans.

Through my life here in SF I've had the opportunity to meet, and vote for several of you (looking at you specifically, Supervisors Haney and Preston, hello), as I've lived in Cole Valley, Pacific Heights, the Outer Sunset, the Outer Richmond, and now most recently, by USF in the Western Addition/NOPA area. I've lived in all of these different places because, like so many San Franciscans, I don't own a home here, nor do my parents. But that's not why I'm writing to you today.

I want to state my support, as a San Francisco resident and native, for the immediate defunding of the SFPD. We as San Franciscans need to think bigger, and be better, than the history of violent, racist policing in this country.

We need to strip the SFPD's budget as dramatically as possible, with the goal of abolishing the police entirely, in their current iteration, and funding community alternatives, as well as investing further in things that will make a more dramatic difference in our city, such as Education, public health, the homelessness crisis, and the unsustainable cost of living (particularly rent) in this city.

Listen to this email, and hear the protestors in the streets. Enough is enough. We don't want reforms, we want to get rid of the system entirely. We could be on the forefront here in San Francisco, showing the rest of the world what is possible.

Thank you, I hope, for taking the time to read this email. I look forward to hearing back from the board, and as a constituent and resident, I am demanding I get some sort of response. Stay safe and healthy.

With the Utmost Sincerity & Severity,
Elliot M Young

To the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, specifically the Budget & Finance Committee of Supervisors Sandra Fewer, Shamann Walton, and Rafael Mandelman,

My name is Chris Konnaris. I am a resident of the Bay Area, and I am emailing today to demand a divestation of funds from San Francisco's police department and redistribution towards social services focused on community safety and health. These include: San Francisco Human Services Agency, Adult Protective Services, SF Dept of Emergency Preparedness and Assistance, Medi-Cal, CalWORKS, County Adult Assistance Programs, JobsNOW!, Families Rising, Family and Children's Services, and SF Dept of Homelessness and Supportive Housing, to name a few.

As you are reviewing Mayor London Breed's proposed city budget for the next two years, I know SF's financial outlook has changed drastically as a result of COVID-19 and many social services are up for budget cuts. I also know that the SFPD has a history of fatal police shootings (the murders of Alex Nieto, Amilcar Perez-Lopez, Mario Woods, Luis Gongora Pat, Jessica Williams, the list goes on), and countless reports of officer misconduct and brutality that continue to persist despite efforts by the District Attorney and public defenders to press charges, and despite implementation of additional bias trainings and other reforms from both a local and federal level. These harmful issues persist and something needs to change.

(With funds that are directed to the police department I ask that additional efforts towards ending police violence be made, outlined in Campaign Zero (<https://www.joincampaignzero.org/solutions#solutionsoverview>).)

I am demanding that you remove funds from this institution that violently responds to community concerns and move these vital funds to services that work to de-escalate crime before it has the chance to emerge. These services, initiatives such as affordable housing, youth programs, social worker support, mental health support, and crisis intervention and hotlines, are better equipped to protect our communities both now and long-term than police departments that have a consistent and inexcusable history of violence and excessive force, specifically against communities of color, as we are seeing at a local and national level from police departments around the country. Social services also play a vital role in providing support and resources for marginalized communities during a global pandemic. This divestation is crucial and urgent to ensure the flourishing of all communities and an end to systemic racism and oppression.

Sincerely,
Chris K

Our city has been at the forefront of much of this action. For that I'm proud.

But sadly it isn't enough.

As you decide the budget for 2021, please reconsider allocating funds to the SFPD.

Why?

Simply put, SFPD has been a waste of our resources.

Last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund.

While we've been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, we have NOT seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in our city.

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers,

My name is Katie Straub. I lived in San Francisco in 2015 and 2016. I left the city for many reasons; one of them was the lack of support for homelessness, mental health and affordability—especially for Black Americans.

As I watch our nation gripped by protests calling for change, I think of my one-time home of San Francisco and the plight of Black Americans in it.

Our country is calling for an end to racism and anti-Blackness and immediate reform in how Black people are treated in America.

Accordingly, I am writing from my own experience in SF, as well as the experiences of my friends and colleagues living there, when I implore: We need fewer dollars spent on police and more dollars spent on proactive measures for public good, especially as it impacts Black lives.

It has come to my attention that last year, the SFPD budget was $611,701,869, the majority of which comes from the San Francisco general fund. While the city has been spending extraordinary amounts on policing, it has not seen enough meaningful improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability—issues so crippling that it impacted my move away from San Francisco several years ago. Instead, the city invests in the harmful actions of police.

I call on you to reduce the SFPD budget and instead use those extraordinary resources towards solving homelessness, mental health and affordability, which is felt most by Black neighbors and veterans.

I want to see San Francisco claim status as a great, safe and vibrant city for everyone—not just for some. I implore you to give every member of your community experiencing homelessness a place to call home and the treatment they need. San Francisco should be a beacon for other cities to follow, if only it had the courage to change.

I thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

As these protests continue, our city is making decisions about the 2021 budget.

SFPD is a waste of resources with an overexpanded mandate and a failed record. Despite spending over $600 million, we have not seen improvements to safety, homelessness, mental health, or affordability in San Francisco. This should not surprise us, because police forces are neither trained nor designed to solve those problems. Instead, armed response has eaten the budgets for other human services and become the default reaction to crises of all kinds, with the inevitable results of escalation, conflict, and death.

I am heartened to hear that San Francisco is considering fundamental changes to 9-1-1 protocols, and I am writing to voice my support for those first efforts and to encourage you to be bold in slashing the SFPD budget. Put those resources towards solving homelessness, which is felt most by our Black neighbors and veterans. Use them to invest in mental health care facilities so that every member of our community can safely receive the treatment they need. And re-envision policing as a last resort, with a limited scope of responsibility and the extensive training and preparation to allow officers to safely carry it out.

Greetings,

In a study of abused women, over 80% said they would not call the police again because they were scared that their abuser would only get a "slap on the wrist," and that they would come back and hurt them. Seeing that abused women do not feel safe calling the police to help them escape situations of domestic violence, should we cater to these women and create a new task force? The answer is yes.

We need specialized teams to respond to issues of domestic violence, that are not police. Police simply do not have, and cannot receive the extensive, rigorous training that specialized experts on deescalating domestically violent situations and helping victims escape their abuser require. This takes years of training and education, it's one of many issues that police are simply not fit to handle, like they are expected to today. And I don't just want to see woman officers respond to these calls, because they are still police officers who are not fit to deal with these situations, in terms of the training and education they have.

Defunding the police is about more than the safety of our Black neighbors, which is absolutely vital in itself. It is about making women more safe by ensuring their issues are cared for in a specialized way by trained professionals.

Are you willing to help victims of domestic violence?

Thanks,
Jamie

I was biking to work in the Dogpatch neighborhood and two officers in a marked SUV stopped me, demanded ID, and questioned me for at least 15 minutes because they alleged I went through a stop sign that did not exist.

In another instance, I marched peacefully with protesters on Market Street downtown and when I and dozens of others kneeled down with our hands in the air, the officers in riot gear pointed beanbag guns at our faces.

My June article, (“San Francisco’s COVID Curve Hasn’t Flattened” — COVID in Nursing Homes: A Geriatrician Worries About Her Mom) is now available on-line at www.stopLHHdownsize.com. A printer-friendly PDF file is attached. Hyperlinks to various supporting background files and media articles are available via my web site and in the attached PDF file.

Berenice and Her Daughter the Doctor: Berenice is a vibrant 102-year-old woman who clearly has a lot more years to live left in her. Dr. Palmer — a fierce, dedicated patient advocate — doesn't want to lose her mom, or anyone else, to the COVID-19 virus.

My new article explores how Mayor London Breed is weaving incompatible City policies, by rightly ordering shelter-in-place, but then effectively suspending public meetings of policy bodies — including those involved with affordable housing production — via her suspension of multiple portions of San Francisco's Sunshine Ordinance.

When I began writing this article on April 19, I had no idea it would take two-and-a-half months for the story to unfold, and then research and write. I was inspired by my former co-worker and friend, Dr. Teresa Palmer, and the story of her mother who just turned 103 and who has been isolated in a San Francisco skilled nursing facility since the pandemic descended.

While writing this, I added my experience with Milwaukee's Department of Public Health over 40 years ago, grateful for its outreach with syphilis contact tracing, however titillating readers may find that anecdote.

This article touches in part on efforts of some healthcare providers in California who are begging Governor Newsom to grant them overly-broad legal and criminal immunity from any repercussions from COVID-19 illnesses and deaths occurring in California's nursing homes, and opposition from nursing home advocates to any such grant of immunity.

But in large measure, this (admittedly long) piece was written as — and was intended to be — an historical summary of significant national, state, and local events that have worsened the impact of COVID-19 on nursing home residents and their families during the four months since COVID-19 surfaced all over the world.

It's been four months — fully 124 days — since Mayor London Breed issued her initial Statement of Local Emergency on February 25. As well, 104 days have passed since Breed issued her citywide COVID shelter-in-place order on March 16, 101 days have passed since Governor Newsom issued his statewide COVID shelter-in-place order on March 19, and 95 days since San Francisco first announced one patient and five staff at Laguna Honda Hospital tested positive for COVID back on March 26.

The next day, Breed begged the feds on March 27 to send her 110 federal employees to help stop the slow of spread at Laguna Honda and other skilled nursing facilities in San Francisco when LHH's case count grew by one, to a total of seven cases. During April and May, whenever Breed would hold a daily press briefing, she dragged along Dr. Grant Colfax, San Francisco's Director of Public Health to present updates and case counts on the situation at Laguna Honda. By May 15, Colfax reported total cases at LHH had risen from 7 cases to 29 cases (18 staff and 11 residents).

Then Breed's press conferences vanished for the most part, after President Trump suspended meetings of the White House Coronavirus Task Force (featuring Dr. Fauci) in late April. Breed and Colfax went curiously silent on the number of cases at LHH, as if the virus had been defeated. (Spoiler alert: COVID hadn't gone anywhere, let alone "away.")

This article documents that both the San Francisco Department of Public Health and California's Department of Public Health have refused to report accurately (or at all) the true number of COVID infections in each of San Francisco's 19 to 21 skilled nursing facilities, or California's 1,224 skilled nursing facilities (SNF's), by reporting aggregate facility-level data.

Sadly, even though Trump called for slowing down COVID-19 testing nationwide fearing his re-election loss, his own Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) under its administrator Seema Verma just rolled out a new dashboard of CMS' web site reporting actual facility-level case counts for COVID infections of both staff and nursing home residents in the 15,400 SNF's nationwide; the data for the first week ending May 24 became available on-line around June 4. Unfortunately, there's an 11-day lag between when facilities have to report the data before CMS finally posts it on-line. So far, CMS has published a total of four reports.

Details of data for the week ending June 7 were posted on-line on June 18; data for the week ending June 14 was posted on-line on June 25. CMS' fifth report, for the week ending June 21, is expected to be posted on-line on July 2.

But that's where we finally learned that as the June 14 weekly reports submitted to CMS, COVID cases at LHH had climbed from 29 cases to a total of 75 cases (48 staff and 27 residents). And citywide, of the 19 San Francisco SNF's (not 21) reporting data to CMS, the total number of staff and residents with confirmed COVID infections totaled 179 cases across the 19 facilities (98 staff and 81 residents) in San Francisco. That's despite the six federal staff Breed snared in late March to help slow the spread of COVID in San Francisco SNF's, and despite the fact that the City has had nearly 100 days since the pandemic first arrived to bolster infection control procedures.

Both numbers — the then 75 cases at LHH and the 179 cases in SNF's citywide as of June 14 — may not be numbers Breed wants you to know about. Just like Trump doesn't want you to know that the federal government has been derelict in its response to COVID in nursing homes, where a minimum of 42% of COVID-related deaths have occurred in facilities that house just 0.62% of the total U.S. population.

And just like Governor Newsom, who also knows all too well — but may not want you to know — that at least 53% of California's 4,333 COVID deaths as of June 3 had been reported by CDPH as having occurred in SNF's and other Residential Care Facilities for the Elderly (RCFE's) throughout the state. Newsom may also not want you to know that he might still be considering granting legal immunity to operators of California SNF's.

Pour yourself a cup of coffee, and enjoy the read ...

Full Disclosure: My decade of employment at Laguna Honda Hospital overlapped Dr. Palmer's stellar career there.

COVID in Nursing Homes: A Geriatrician Worries About Her Mom San Francisco's COVID Curve Hasn't Flattened

by Patrick Monette-Shaw

The wail “I can't breathe” is heartbreaking. It haunts so many of us.

Berenice Palmer will soon celebrate her 103 birthday. One of her favorite quotes is from comedian and filmmaker Woody Allen:

“I don't want to achieve immortality through my work. I want to achieve it through not dying.”

For 102 years, Berenice has managed not to die, or die prematurely. She's now a resident of a skilled nursing facility in San Francisco. Like Woody, Berenice doesn't appear to be afraid of dying. She just doesn't want to be there when it happens. A mom after my own heart!

Berenice's daughter — Teresa Palmer, MD, a geriatrician — has grown worried. “I don't want my mom to die,” says Dr. Palmer. She, along with several prominent healthcare organizations in California — including California Advocates for Nursing Home Reform (CANHR), the California Association of Health Facilities (CAHF), and the California Association of Long-Term Care Medicine (CALTCM) — are worried that placing COVID-19 patients in nursing homes that aren't equipped to care for them, and also aren't prepared to protect other nursing homes residents from acquiring the virus, is dangerous and may likely to lead to killing more older adults in nursing homes and assisted living facilities.

“The lives of nursing home patients are worth something and they need to act like it,” Palmer says, with the “they” referring to both those who operate nursing homes, and state and local long-term care regulatory agencies. Palmer should know, since she was employed at San Francisco's Laguna Honda Hospital and Rehabilitation Center for 15 years, after starting there in 1989 and passing the Geriatric Medicine Certification exam in 1994 as a Board-certified geriatrician.

Nursing Homes: Hotbeds

Although it is not widely reported in the news media, nursing homes are hotbeds for coronavirus outbreaks. To date, at least one-fifth of COVID-19 deaths nationwide are connected to nursing homes. One problem involves the lack of public information about just how many COVID-19 infections have occurred in nursing homes.

Unfortunately, many states — including California — are asking nursing homes to admit and take care of COVID-infected patients in their facilities, even if facilities aren't equipped or prepared to do so safely.

Initially, the California Department of Public Health (CDPH) sent notices to each Skilled Nursing Facility (SNF) in the state indicating that the facilities might be required to accept COVID-19 patients, and should begin to prepare for admitting the patients — even if patients were still infectious.

Following sustained opposition from members of the public, CDPH loosened its requirements so that nursing homes could refuse to accept COVID-19 patients if the facilities are unable to follow Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) infection prevention and control procedures for the care of COVID-19 patients, including if facilities lack adequate personal protective equipment for workers; lack an ability to designate a specific wing, unit, or a separate building to isolate the COVID patients in; or lack other ways to prevent transmission of the coronavirus.

Berenice and Her Daughter the Doctor: Berenice is a vibrant 102-year-old woman who clearly has a lot more years to live left in her. Dr. Palmer — a fierce, dedicated patient advocate — doesn't want to lose her mom, or anyone else, to the COVID-19 virus.

“ Many states — including California — are asking nursing homes to admit and take care of COVID-infected patients, even if their facilities aren't equipped or prepared to do so safely. ”

It's not known how many SNF's notified CDPH that they would be unable to accept COVID-19 patients, and whether the State of California decided it had to look for alternate placement sites.

As of May 1, California appeared to be so desperate to find facilities in which to place patients recovering from COVID-19 that the State began trying to entice assisted living facilities — which are licensed by the California Department of Social Services (CDSS), not the State's Department of Public Health that licenses SNF's — into accepting coronavirus patients by promising reimbursement of $1,000 per day per patient. Assisted living facilities that may not already be current hotbeds of COVID-19 transmission, but they may soon be.

“ California began trying to entice assisted living facilities — which are licensed by the California Department of Social Services — into accepting coronavirus patients by promising reimbursement of $1,000 per day per patient. ”

Troublingly, pursuant to Governor Gavin Newsom's emergency orders, CDSS has:

“... been granted the authority to waive any provisions of the Health and Safety Code or Welfare and Institutions Code, and accompanying regulations, interim licensing standards, or other written policies or procedures with respect to the use, licensing or approval of facilities or homes within CDSS' jurisdiction in order to respond to the threat of COVID-19.”

It's worrisome when any social services agency is granted authority to waive provisions of the health code and the institutions code that addresses licensing of medical and skilled nursing facilities, as if the COVID patients could be cared for by social workers rather than cared for by medical clinicians.

Increasingly, the need for expanded public information about coronavirus cases and deaths in U.S. nursing homes and long-term care facilities has become greater, both because the public needs to know which specific facilities have problems and because governments need that information in order to direct resources to address the problems.

“ It's worrisome when any social services agency is granted authority to waive provisions of the health code and the institutions code that addresses licensing of medical and skilled nursing facilities. ”

As a reminder, look at what politicians are actually doing and what they have done, not what they're saying. Governor Gavin Newsom and Mayor London Breed have talked a good game (what they're saying) about expanding COVID-19 testing. But what have they actually done?

On April 16, President Trump boasted 3.5 million COVID-19 tests had been performed. Given a population of 350 million nationwide, that was a pathetic testing rate of just 1% of all Americans, nothing to be proud of — unless you're Trump. [Aside: A month later, Trump bragged just 8 million COVID-19 tests had been performed by May 11, just 2.3% of all Americans. He didn't mention that testing was largely restricted to only people displaying symptoms, not asymptomatic people, and he didn't mention anything about national plans to implement on-going retesting.] It had taken until March 13 before Trump even got around to bothering to declare a National Emergency.

COVID-19 outbreaks in congregate settings around the world have left experts very worried. From jails to homeless centers, from skilled nursing facilities to nuclear-powered submarines, people who live in congregate settings face far greater risks of acquiring the virus.

On Tuesday, April 14 Governor Gavin Newsom outlined six key steps that need to need to be in place before he decides whether to “re-open” California and relax his statewide shelter-in-place order. The first two conditional steps involve 1) Greatly expanding COVID-19 testing capabilities and contact tracing; and 2) Maintaining protections for our most vulnerable living in congregate settings, particularly including seniors living in nursing homes and homeless people living unhoused or in shelters. National guidelines called for not re-opening until cases in a given jurisdiction have flattened and no deaths have occurred in the past 14-day period.

As of May 5, Newsom's own first two criteria were nowhere near close to being achieved throughout California, let alone in San Francisco. Nor had San Francisco or California reached President Trump's guidance that states could reopen when a state's total coronavirus outbreak had no deaths during a 14-day period. No state had achieved Trump's goal by May 5, and indeed California's total cases continues to rise by 1,000 to 2,000 new cases per day.

Thankfully, Mayor London Breed did the right thing by extending her shelter-in-place order set to expire on May 3 through at least May 31, and didn't let it expire. On May 13, the mayor of Los Angeles initially announced he would extend L.A.'s shelter-in-place order through the end of August. Breed may have to extend San Francisco's stay-at-home order into June or July, or perhaps August.

Accelerators for COVID-19 Transmission: Nursing Homes

Nursing homes are considered by public health experts to be accelerators or incubators for the coronavirus, in part because of chronic understaffing, lax infection control procedures, and lax infection control enforcement; in part because social distancing is difficult in these facilities and other congregate settings; and in part because people with dementia's have trouble adhering to physical- or social-distancing verbal queuing.

Obviously, members of the public need to know which nursing homes have COVID-19 outbreaks in order to ask questions about what is being done to protect the residents, their families, and the community from further spread of the deadly virus. If for no other reason, facility-level COVID data should be disclosed so families can decide whether their relatives may want to move into, or move out of, any given facility.

"If for no other reason, facility-level COVID data should be disclosed so families can decide whether their relatives may want to move into, or move out of, any given facility."

Disturbingly, nursing homes, legislators at all levels of government, and regulatory agencies around the U.S. have failed to publicly release data in a timely manner — or at all — about the spread of, and prevalence and incidence of, COVID cases in nursing homes.

Not releasing facility-level COVID data leaves our democracy in the dark about what our government is doing to protect us. The secrecy behind which nursing homes have had COVID-19 outbreaks has impacted lives, and the thousands who have died. We deserve to see transparently what our government is doing — or isn't doing — in our names.

Nursing Homes: Worldwide

What do you do when you're warned a worldwide pandemic is headed your way? If we want to save the most lives, don't we need to focus on where the most lives are at risk revealed in other jurisdictions? The place where the most lives are going to be stolen by COVID-19 are the lives of people in nursing homes, assisted living facilities, and other long-term care facilities.

Sadly, the most lives stolen so far have been in nursing homes all over the world.

"Sadly, the most lives stolen so far have been in nursing homes all over the world."

- Canada: As of mid-April 2020, nearly half of the COVID-19 deaths in Canada were at long-term care facilities.
- Spain: By April 18, more than 13,600 Spaniards in nursing homes who were diagnosed as probable or confirmed coronavirus cases had died.
- France: In early April, about a third of reported coronavirus deaths in France had occurred among nursing home residents.
- In Belgium, 43 percent — 1,687 — of the country's total COVID-19 deaths had occurred in nursing homes.

Statistics from additional countries mirror this global catastrophe.

Nursing Homes: United States

Unsurprisingly, it's not just nursing homes in other countries. It was just as bad in the United States. Nursing homes should have been priority testing sites for COVID-19 nationwide, but weren't despite the massive ten-fold surge in the number of U.S. nursing home deaths — from 2,246 to 28,100 deaths — during the one-month period ending May 11:

On April 10, NBC News reported there were 2,246 COVID-related deaths in nursing homes nationwide, which was likely vastly undercounted because of the lack of widespread testing and testing kits. The 2,246 deaths were only from 24 states, with large states like Florida, California, and Pennsylvania not reporting deaths from COVID in long-term care facilities. Many of the states reported patient deaths, but not deaths of nursing home staff.

The New York Times published a story on April 14 that based on its research, 3,800 nursing home residents had died in U.S. The Times noted the 3,800 figure was likely an undercount since many facilities and states have declined to provide detailed information and data.

MSNBC's Rachel Maddow reported on April 16 that the federal government was not tracking the number of COVID-19 cases in nursing homes nationwide. It seemed inconceivable that both the CDC (Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services) and CMS (Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services) were not tracking COVID cases as part of nursing home infection control regulators.

MSNBC reported on April 17 that there were more than 5,600 deaths at long-term care facilities across the U.S. The next day, news surfaced that nearly one-fifth of all COVID-19 deaths nationwide had occurred in nursing homes — 7,300 nursing homes deaths out of the then approximate 39,000 COVID deaths nationwide, or 19%. But that's deceptive and probably widely under-reported, because only 19 states were reporting nursing home deaths from COVID as of April 18.

Five days later, Nightline reported that the number of COVID deaths in nursing home had reached 11,000 by April 23, 22% of the then 49,750 U.S. deaths. The April 23 Nightline report stated 26 states were reporting nursing home deaths — an increase of seven states — so its virtually certain that nursing home deaths are still being vastly under-reported, since just half of all states were reporting nursing home COVID data.

“Nursing homes should have been priority testing sites for COVID-19 nationwide, but weren't despite the massive ten-fold surge in the number of U.S. nursing home deaths — from 2,246 to 28,100 deaths by May 11.”

Over just one short month, the number of COVID-related deaths in U.S. nursing homes surged, when Rachel Maddow reported that there were at least 20,000 nursing home deaths nationwide as of May 7. Once again, that's likely massively under-reported, since as Figure 1 shows only 35 states were reporting nursing home data at that point.

Maddow also reported on May 7 that accurate nationwide reporting of nursing home deaths may not become available until the end of May, if then. Maddow aired a segment on Vice President Mike Pence delivering Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) on behalf of the federal government for the first time since the COVID pandemic began to the Woodbine Rehabilitation and Healthcare Center, a nursing home in Alexandria, VA — without Pence wearing a face covering. Maddow reported that Seema Verma, Administrator of CMS who oversees nursing homes nationwide, accompanied Pence for the photo-op, also without wearing a face covering. (Pence, you may remember, also skipped wearing a face mask when he visited the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota on April 28 after being informed that face masks were required by Mayo Clinic guidelines.)

Verma claimed CMS may begin releasing facility-level data on coronavirus cases and deaths in nursing homes around the country, perhaps at the end of May, after promising since mid-April that the data would soon be forthcoming. By the time we were scheduled to get that critical data perhaps by the end of May — assuming Verma wouldn't delay releasing the data yet again — six to eight critical weeks would have slipped away.

Notably, President Trump nominated Verma to lead CMS on November 29, 2016 even before he took office; she was confirmed by the U.S. Senate on March 17, 2017. Trump expected Verma to take a hands-on role in his administration's plans to repeal and replace President Barack Obama's Affordable Care Act (ACA). Verma had previously been hired by then-Indiana Governor Mike Pence to develop Indiana's Republican-friendly version of Medicaid expansion. The state paid her nearly $5 million over four years.

Vice President Pence appointed Verma to the White House Coronavirus Task Force on March 2, 2020. Since then, Verma has stalled for over three months releasing accurate nationwide nursing home data. Ms. Verma appears to know where her bread is buttered, public health be damned. Which may explain her delay in releasing this critical nursing home data.

President Trump's Federal Nursing Home Response

It was bad enough that President Trump and the federal government didn't get around to distributing PPE to any nursing homes on behalf of the federal government until the first time on May 7, when Pence and Verma showed up without wearing facial coverings while delivering PPE supplies in Alexandria.

Pence was scheduled to deliver more PPE to a yet-unnamed nursing home in Orlando, FL on Wednesday, May 20 as part of a belated White House propaganda initiative to deliver PPE to 15,000 nursing homes nationwide.

On May 11, the Associated Press reported the White House had finally recommended all nursing home residents and staff be tested for COVID-19 within two weeks. Vice President Mike Pence, who heads the White House Coronavirus Task Force, told governors during a conference call the federal government's recommendation was nursing home testing be done.

The AP reported that Dr. Deborah Birx, coordinator of the White House Coronavirus Task Force, also told governors on May 11 to focus over the next two weeks on testing all one million nursing home residents nationwide. Birx has been the U.S. Global AIDS Coordinator since 2014.

Brix made no mention of how over one million tests would be administered in a 14-day period. And she said nothing about follow-up re-testing plans going forward.

Trump and Verma also asserted on May 12 that testing of nursing home patients and staff should be done within two weeks. There's no word yet on whether that actually happened.

“ Since then, Verma has stalled for over three months releasing accurate nationwide nursing home data. ”

“ On May 11, the Associated Press reported the White House had finally recommended all nursing home residents and staff be tested for COVID-19 within two weeks. Trump and Verma also asserted on May 12 that testing of nursing home patients and staff should be done within two weeks. ”

The Trump administration's belated focus on nursing home testing stands in stark contrast to New York Governor Andrew Cuomo, who had announced the day before on May 10 a new executive order containing several new rules, including:

- If nursing homes in New York can't handle caring for a patient with COVID-19, they are now required to transfer the patient to another facility that can;
- All nursing home staff must be tested for COVID-19 twice a week, and nursing home employees who refuse to be tested may be prohibited from working until they agree to testing; and
- Hospitals can only discharge a patient to a nursing home if the patient tests negative for COVID-19.

To drive home his point about the urgency of the nursing home testing, Cuomo stated the same day that nursing homes and adult care facilities that violate his new rules could have their operating licenses suspended or revoked, and could face non-compliance penalties of $2,000 per day.

Cuomo stands in stark contrast to President Trump. Despite Trump's pitch with Verma on May 12 calling for increased testing in nursing homes, on May 14 Trump made an about-face, asserting:

"It could be that testing is over-rated. If we didn't do any testing, we would have very few [COVID] cases."

— Donald J. Trump
May 14, 2020

That may be part and parcel of Trump's hopes to review all COVID-19 deaths to see if they were misclassified, hoping to reduce the sheer raw number of COVID fatalities. What Trump seems incapable of understanding, as Maddow noted, is that even without testing you'd likely still have the same number of cases and deaths (if not many more, due to missed opportunities to do contact tracing), but you just wouldn't know about them (or know where to direct resources).

Part of Trump's problem is that he just doesn't get it that by changing data and restricting release of information about just how bad things are doesn't actually change just how bad things are in reality land. He may figure that he can just stop telling us information, but that's not going to stop us from wanting the information. We just want to be told the truth.

Is this Trump's newest ostrich-with-his-head-in-the-sand nincompoopism? Oh, wait! I forgot this is Trump we're talking about:

"[Trump] was the dumbest goddamn student I ever had."

— William T. Kelley, Professor
Wharton Business School

"What Trump seems incapable of understanding, as Maddow noted, is that even without testing you'd likely still have the same number of cases and deaths, but you just wouldn't know about them."

State-Specific Nursing Home Data

News reports on April 17 indicated that 40% of COVID-19 cases in New Jersey and 50% of cases in Massachusetts were residents of nursing homes. Just days before, Massachusetts Governor Charles Baker had reported on April 13 that of 800 positive nursing home cases in his state, 46% (~368 people) occurred in nursing homes. Within four days, the percentage of infections in Massachusetts nursing homes on April 17 had climbed significantly.

On April 19, New York State reported that 25% of the COVID deaths in the state had occurred in nursing homes. The day before, it was reported 1,200 of California's COVID cases had occurred in nursing homes, a number that appeared to be vastly under-reported.

As of April 30, the Rachel Maddow Show reported several states have been particularly hard hit with nursing home deaths:

- Rhode Island: 75% of COVID-19 fatalities were linked to nursing homes.

- Pennsylvania: Nursing homes accounted for 65% of COVID-19 deaths.
- Colorado: More than 1 in 5 (20%) of coronavirus cases were related to residential facilities.
- North Carolina: More than half of COVID-19 deaths were linked to nursing homes.
- Maine: More than half of coronavirus deaths had been nursing home residents.
- Minnesota: Most of the state's 160 deaths from COVID-19 as of April 21 were tied to long-term care facilities.
- Iowa: More than half of the COVID-19 deaths were among long-term care facility residents.
- Maryland: 51% of COVID-19 deaths were linked to elderly care facilities.

Notably, Maddow didn't include summaries of California and New York State nursing home deaths data.

The April 11 New York Times article noted that the number of nursing home residents and employees who had died at that point accounted for more than half of all deaths in 14 states.

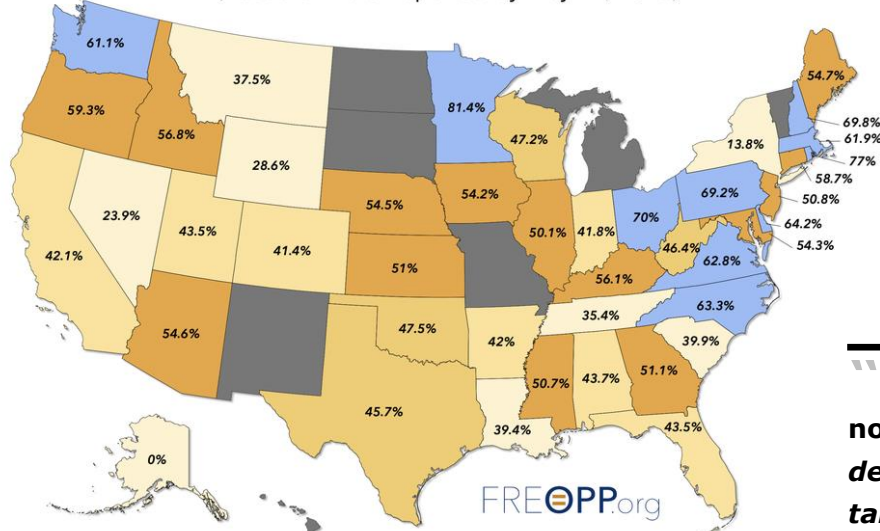

In Kirkland, Washington the coronavirus outbreak at the Life Care and Rehabilitation Center nursing home initially reported 15 patients had died, but that quickly grew to 37 patient deaths and resulted in a $611,000 fine on April 2 from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid (Medi-Cal) Services (CMS) for the nursing homes' failure to report the increasing rate of respiratory infections. News has since surfaced that in addition to the CMS fine, the family of a patient who died at the facility has filed a wrongful death lawsuit.

Within a month — and before the end of May when nursing homes were required to respond to the new testing guidance CMS and CDC had mandated — the incidence of COVID-related deaths in nursing homes nationwide grew even worse.

On May 26 Forbes published an article noting that by that point there were still seven states that refuse to report COVID-related deaths in nursing home and long-term care facilities, including Hawaii, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota, Missouri, Michigan, and Vermont. The federal government had instituted such a requirement on May 5 requiring reporting of COVID-related nursing home deaths.

Map 1: 42% of COVID Deaths From 0.62% Of U.S. Population

Share of COVID-19 Deaths Occurring in Nursing Homes & Assisted Living Facilities
(Based on Data Reported by May 22, 2020)

On May 26 Forbes published an article noting that 'Among states reporting their death totals, 42% of COVID deaths have taken place in long-term care facilities ... that house 0.62% of the U.S. population'.

Source: FREEOPP.org, reported by Forbes.

Forbes reported that "Among states reporting their death totals, 42% of COVID deaths have taken place in long-term care facilities," and added "Let that sink in: 42% of all COVID-19 deaths are taking place in facilities that house 0.62% of the U.S. population."

Forbes noted the 42% is likely an undercount, because other states — including New York, the epicenter of COVID-19 in the U.S. with 30,565 COVID-related deaths as of June 13 — exclude from their nursing home death tallies those who died in a hospital, even if they were originally infected in a long-term care facility. Add in nursing home residents who died in hospitals in the remaining seven states, and it's more likely that 50% of COVID-related deaths nationwide have occurred among nursing homes.

“ Add in nursing home residents who died in hospitals in the remaining seven states, and it's more likely that 50% of COVID-related deaths nationwide have occurred among nursing home residents. ”

- 24 of the 43 reporting states reported more than half of COVID deaths were nursing home and assisted living residents.
- 14 states reported 50% to 59% of COVID deaths in their states were nursing home and assisted living residents.
- 7 states reported 60% to 69% of COVID deaths in their states were nursing home and assisted living residents.
- 3 states reported 70% to 79% of COVID deaths in their states were nursing home and assisted living residents.
- 1 state — Minnesota — reported 81% of its COVID deaths were nursing home and assisted living residents.

Also troublingly, CMS and CDC do not appear to be requiring nursing facilities in five U.S. territories (American Samoa, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands) report COVID-19 case data and deaths. So, the impact on Americans living in those territories is not uniformly reported and may push total U.S. cases far higher.

California Nursing Homes: Beseled by Sketchy Data

On March 30 and April 1, 2020 California's Department of Public Health (CDPH) issued a directive to all skilled nursing facilities in California stating that all SNF's should prepare to accept COVID-19 patients. CDPH's directives stated SNF's shall not refuse to admit or readmit a resident based on their status as a suspected or confirmed COVID-19 case: “SNF's shall institute appropriate precautions to prevent the spread of infection to health care personnel and other residents.”

Multiple patient advocacy groups promptly objected to CDPH's directives.

The California Association of Health Facilities (CAHF) issued a statement before April 15 saying it doesn't support the placement of COVID-19 positive patients in skilled nursing facilities. CAHF believed doing so would only be acceptable if a facility has a separate wing or building to place COVID patients in; if a facility has adequate staffing, proper and sufficient equipment; and if a facility fully adheres to infection control guidelines.

“ The California Association of Health Facilities issued a statement saying it doesn't support the placement of COVID-19 positive patients in skilled nursing facilities, unless a facility has a separate wing or building to place COVID patients in. ”

For its part, California Advocates for Nursing Home Reform (CANHR) issued an emergency action plan on April 10 arguing that facilities without any patients with COVID should refuse to admit infectious COVID-19 patients, and recommended that specific facilities be established and dedicated to accepting patients being discharged from acute-care hospitals.

CANHR recommended establishing COVID-19-only dedicated post-acute care facilities in counties and require all hospital post-discharge patients to be tested for COVID-19 and if positive, transferred to such facilities.

CANHR recommended the CDPH directives be revised to prohibit SNF's from admitting COVID-19 patients from hospitals and to prohibit hospitals from sending them, in part because too many SNF's have proven they cannot handle the COVID-19 virus and it will be a death knell for the residents. CANHR believed California should also immediately prohibit all inter-facility transfers, unless they are to COVID-19-only dedicated post-acute care facilities.

CAHNR also noted the California Association of Long-Term Care Medicine (CALTCM) had developed a detailed plan for the establishment of COVID-19 only facilities that the State of California should adopt.

Oddly, on April 12, one news source presented a list of 21 states across the U.S. with the highest numbers of positive tests performed per 100,000 of the population. Sadly, California didn't even make the list. Six days later, on April 18, another news source reported California ranked #48 in the number of COVID-19 tests performed to date. Newsom talked a great game, but statewide testing was pathetic at that point, mostly because of the difficulty in acquiring the test kits, reagents, swabs, etc., and because of a backlog in testing capacity at private and public laboratories.

Since April 12, COVID cases in California nursing homes worsened. As of May 5, 47% to 50% of COVID-19-related deaths in California had occurred in nursing homes and assisted living facilities. [It's grown, since.]

After New York's governor Andrew Cuomo announced on April 23 that he was requiring New York State facilities to provide public data about the number of COVID cases in New York nursing homes, California's Department of Public Health (CDPH) finally released preliminary data about the number of COVID-19 cases in California nursing homes on Friday, April 17 reporting that 258 of California's 1,224 nursing homes had reported one or more COVID cases among staff or residents.

"Since April 12, COVID cases in California nursing homes worsened. As of May 5, 47% to 50% of COVID-19-related deaths in California had occurred in nursing homes and assisted living facilities."

CDPH's inaugural April 17 report indicated 1,279 staff and 1,721 residents had tested positive in California SNF's as of April 17, 2020 — for a total of 3,000 positive cases. [Those numbers grew to 5,702 staff and 9,718 residents, for a total of 15,420 cases just in California SNF's by May 31, excluding assisted living facilities — a 414% percent change increase across only six weeks.]

California's initial data didn't include deaths or exact figures reporting the number of infected patients and staff at most of the skilled nursing facilities. The data was also limited to Skilled Nursing Facilities (SNF's) licensed by CDPH and didn't include assisted living facilities, Residential Care Facilities for the Elderly (RCFE's), Adult Rehabilitation Facilities (ARF's), or board-and-care homes, all of which are licensed by other California state agencies, not CDPH.

"California's initial data didn't include deaths or exact figures reporting the number of infected patients and staff, was limited to SNF's, and also didn't include other types of assisted living facilities."

Unfortunately, CDPH's data was deeply flawed then, and still is.

First, CDPH had to release an update to its data the very next day on April 18 to remove three facilities that had initially been wrongly named as having COVID cases. By April 24, CDPH was shamed into reporting limited data listing all 1,224 nursing homes in the State, not just the first 258 facilities named on April 17.

Second, the data was a one-time "point-in-time" snapshot; it wasn't known whether CDPH would update the on-line regularly, or how often.

Third, the data was deeply flawed because for both staff infections and patient infections, CDPH only reported whether a given facility had less than 11 cases among either staff or patients, and didn't report the number of actual cases in each facility, under the pretext of protecting patient and staff medical records privacy.

For instance, CDPH's reported there were less than 11 staff members at San Francisco's Laguna Honda Hospital who had tested positive for COVID-19, but local news media reported that San Francisco's Department of Public Health confirmed on April 16 that 15 LHH staff members had tested positive. Similarly, CDPH reported zero patient infections at LHH — not merely "less than 11" — despite the fact that SFDPH had reported four patients had tested COVID-19 positive as early April 6.

CDPH also reported on April 17 that the Central Gardens SNF in San Francisco had 26 staff members and 36 patients who had tested COVID-positive. But media reports show 28 staff members and 39 residents at Central Gardens on Ellis Street in the Western Addition neighborhood have tested positive, including four patients who have died.

The CDPH report listed just one facility in Costa Contra County at the Orinda Care Center, LLC — despite the fact that Contra County officials have released public data showing 14 skilled nursing facilities in the county have reported staff or patient COVID-19 infections.

Some time before April 8, news broke reporting 60 cases of COVID among staff and residents of Gateway Care and Rehabilitation Center in Hayward (Alameda County), including 10 patient deaths. By April 15, the viral outbreak had grown to 65 infections and had claimed 13 lives, and by April 17 CDPH reported a total of 102 cases at Gateway Care (33 staff and 69 residents). By April 15, the Gateway outbreak had spread to a neighboring facility, Windsor Post-Acute Care Center, infecting another 10 staff plus another 7 residents. [Strangely, as of June 3 CDPH reduced the Gateway Care cumulative data downward to 31 staff and 48 residents, but it's not clear why the total cases dropped from 102 to 79.]

CDPH initially said on April 17 that in the future it planned to begin reporting the number of patient deaths at each SNF, but how soon CDPH would begin reporting data on staff and patient deaths at each facility also wasn't initially announced or known. At some point, CDPH started reporting the number of staff and patient deaths in each facility, but only on-line. As of May 1, when site visitors download the Excel file reporting data for each facility, only the number of staff and patient infections are reported in the downloaded file; for some reason, the data shown on-line reporting the number of patient and staff deaths were not included in the downloaded file.

On May 6 CDPH finally started including facility-level staff and resident deaths in the downloaded Excel files, without any explanation of why it had suddenly started reporting deaths at specifically-named SNF's. What was that delay all about?

“ On May 6 CDPH finally started including facility-level staff and resident deaths in the downloaded Excel files, without any explanation of what the delay in reporting had been about. ”

One glaring problem with the CDPH data is that as of May 13, only 85% of California's 1,224 SNF's had complied with reporting COVID-19 data to the State. Fully 15% of the SNF's — 184 facilities — apparently believed they didn't have to comply with reporting the data to CDPH, so the data presented was obviously woefully incomplete and flawed. Why hadn't CDPH — or the State legislature — gotten involved to require the errant 184 SNF's to report their data?

Another problem with the delay in reporting is that patients and their families have no idea of which of the facilities may be placing them and their loved ones at risk. Another problem with the delayed reporting is that legislators around the state have no idea of where the hot spots are in nursing facilities throughout the state.

Does CDPH really believe it can pass off this bogus “data,” after local Health Departments and local media have been reporting data that clearly exceeds what CDPH is willing to report officially? How dumb does CDPH think we are?

What About Other California Facilities?

In addition to the 1,224 SNF's licensed by CDPH, there are approximately 7,400 other facilities in California licensed to provide lower levels of care for people who don't qualify for 24/7 skilled nursing level of care, including Residential Care Facilities for the Elderly (RCFE's), Adult Residential Facilities (ARF's), and smaller so-called “board-and-care” homes. The three other types of facilities are often smaller facilities, many having just six to ten patients.

A week after CDPH began reporting on-line updates of the number of patients and staff who tested positive for COVID-19 in the state's SNF's on April 17, California's Department of Social Services (CDSS) belatedly also began reporting¹ the number of patients and staff who had tested positive in RCFE's and ARF's on April 22. Weirdly, CDSS lumps both patient and staff infection data into a single number, and also lumps both the RCFE and ARF data into the same single number. Why can't CDSS stratify the data into four numbers, so we know how many patient vs. staff infections have occurred in each of the two types of facilities?

“ In addition to the 1,224 SNF's licensed by CDPH, there are approximately 7,400 other facilities in California licensed to provide lower levels of care for people who don't qualify for 24/7 skilled nursing level of care. ”

The number of COVID infections in California skilled nursing and assisted living facilities is worse than currently reported in the national news media.

Yellow shading: After CDPH suddenly revised SNF patient and staff cases downward by 1,721 on May 14, it also stopped updating data on its web site during its migration to new CDC data.

Pink shading: After a five-day break, CDPH updated its web site data on May 19 reporting updated CDC data for 3,052 additional patient cases in SNFs, but not updated data on staff infections.

Blue shading: Eleven days after CDPH stopped updating its web site data on May 14, it finally updated re-validated CDC data for 2,359 additional staff COVID-19 infections in SNFs on May 25.

Table 1 illustrates that as of June 3, 2020 fully 53% of California's COVID cases had occurred in skilled nursing and assisted living facilities, but that's probably an undercount for a number of number of reasons:

- CDPH asserted the June 3 SNF data involved reporting by 93% of the 1,224 SNF facilities. That suggests the data didn't include reports from 86 of the facilities, potentially translating to incomplete counts. Since CDPH began posting the data, some reports have only included as few as 81% (991) of the SNF's, with up to 233 facilities not providing current data.
- Between May 14 and May 25, CDPH struggled to update its web site to accurately reflect the new date being reported to the CDC and CMS. It's not clear whether those reporting problems have been fully resolved.
- Since CDPH is still "scrubbing" data by hiding facility-level data behind de-identification guidelines (using reporting of "<11") to protect HIPAA patient-specific data, its unclear whether accurate cumulative data is being under-reported.

On June 15, Governor Newsom held a televised press briefing for the first time in some days, during which he observed that of the then 5,000-plus COVID-19-related deaths in California, 50.3% had occurred in nursing facilities across the state.

CDPH: Better Late Than Never

The California Department of Public Health (CDPH) hasn't been behind the eight ball during much of the COVID-19 pandemic. CDPH routinely issues guidance to licensed healthcare facilities through its All Facilities Letters (AFL). On May 11, CDPH issued AFL #20-52 requiring all skilled nursing facilities in the state to expand their existing infection control policies by developing and implementing CDPH-approved COVID-19 mitigation plans for their facility within 21 calendar days.

As of June 3, fully 53% of California's COVID cases had occurred in skilled nursing and assisted living facilities, but that's probably an undercount.

On June 15, Governor Newsom held a televised press briefing during which he observed that of the then 5,000-plus COVID-19-related deaths in California, 50.3% had occurred in nursing facilities across the state.

Eleven days later CDPH issued AFL #20-53 on May 22, which only recommended (but didn't explicitly require) each SNF in the state develop COVID-19 Mitigation Plans that include baseline, surveillance, and response-driven testing of SNF residents and healthcare staff to prevent spread of COVID-19 infections.

But sadly, it took CDPH until June 2 before it got around to issuing AFL #20-55, which requires that all SNF's in the state perform and report to CDPH the results of COVID-19 baseline testing of all residents and healthcare staff in facilities that did not currently have any positive cases, and that the baseline testing be completed by June 30, 2020.

The three delays were ridiculous:

- By May 11, when CDPH required development of COVID mitigation plans, there were already 2,779 COVID-19 related deaths in California, 1,322 (47.6%) of them in SNF's and RCFE's across the state, which CDPH had to have known about. There were also 81,795 COVID-related deaths nationwide by then.
- By May 22, when CDPH merely recommended developing mitigation plans in SNF's, California had 3,649 COVID-19 deaths, of which 1,760 (48.2%) had occurred in SNF's or RCFE's, and deaths nationwide had reached 97,490. CDPH must have known this data on May 22.
- By June 2, when CDPH mandated that baseline testing of all staff and residents be completed by June 30, California had 4,235 COVID-19 deaths, of which 2,259 (53.3%) had occurred in SNF's or RCFE's, and deaths nationwide had reached 107,970. CDPH must have known this, too.

“ By June 2, when CDPH mandated that baseline testing of all staff and residents be completed by June 30, California had 4,235 COVID-19 deaths, of which 2,259 (53.3%) had occurred in SNF's or RCFE's. ”

It's almost as if CDPH believed ignorance is bliss when it comes to completing baseline testing.

That it took CDPH until June 2 to mandate baseline testing be completed by the end of June was all the more shocking because two months earlier Governor Newsom pledged on April 10 he would make addressing the threat of COVID in nursing homes his top priority. At this point, every day of needless delay completing baseline testing matters.

It was also shocking because CMS Administrator Verma had asserted a month earlier on May 12 that COVID testing of nursing home patients and staff nationwide should be done within two weeks. Why CDPH extended Verma's end-of-May directive for baseline testing until the end of June wasn't explained.

“ CMS Administrator Verma had asserted a month earlier on May 12 that COVID testing of nursing home patients and staff nationwide should be done within two weeks. Why CDPH extended Verma's end-of-May directive for baseline testing until the end of June wasn't explained. ”

I guess better late than never may be better, but how many deaths may have been avoided had earlier is better been used? After all, those lives lost were not disposable, since those lives matter, too.

Data from the state also remains sketchy because of the spotty — or complete lack of — reporting by some facilities, delays in reporting by many facilities, and the failure to provide full data by hiding behind HIPAA patient privacy protections to withhold data that can easily be aggregated without violating individual patient privacy.

Testing San Francisco's 21 SNF's, Including Laguna Honda Hospital

On April 13, San Francisco's Director of Public Health, Grant Colfax reported that 303 of LHH's approximately 1,700-member staff had been tested for COVID by either DPH or by staff members' own medical providers. That meant just 17.8% of LHH's staff had been tested by April 13. Similarly, Colfax announced 215 of LHH's 750 residents had been tested, which represented just 27.6% of patients had been tested. [It took another six weeks into early June before all LHH staff and residents completed the initial round of universal testing.]

On April 22, Dr. Colfax indicated San Francisco has an aspirational goal of providing universal access to COVID-19 testing. The City was nowhere near close to being able to provide universal testing for people who have symptoms, let alone those who may have been infected but had remained asymptomatic.

The City began testing a limited number of asymptomatic “essential” employees on May 4, but as of May 19 San Francisco was still predominantly testing only those exhibiting coronavirus symptoms. Universal testing of all asymptomatic San Franciscans has not begun.

On May 1, San Francisco health officials announced the City would mandate regular, universal COVID-19 testing for residents and staff in all of the City’s 21 public and private skilled nursing facilities. Testing was to begin Monday, May 4 at Laguna Honda Hospital, but for some reason was delayed and didn’t get underway until Wednesday, May 6. It was expected testing at LHH would be completed by Friday, May 8, but as of May 19 testing of all of LHH’s staff had not yet been completed. This clearly took much longer than the initial plan.

“ On May 1, San Francisco health officials announced the City would mandate regular, universal COVID-19 testing for residents and staff in all of the City’s 21 skilled nursing facilities. ”

The initial announcement on May 1 indicated San Francisco would “for the most part” supply the test kits for the first round of testing, presumably in all 21 SNF facilities. But that came with a caveat: “As the process matures and skilled nursing facilities start doing their own testing, they may be responsible for [acquiring] the kits [perhaps at their own expenses], as well, when they have adequate supply,” Department of Public Health spokesperson Rachel Kagan said.

Testing of all 21 SNF’s was projected to take roughly a month, but three weeks into May only half of the facilities had completed testing. The Jewish Home said its full staff and patients would be tested between May 21 and May 25 but expected results wouldn’t be announced until June 1.

During Breed’s press conference on May 19, San Francisco Director of Public Health Grant Colfax presented an update on “universal testing” in all of the City SNF’s. Colfax said testing of 2,087 people — 718 patients and 1,369 staff — had been completed at LHH. Colfax said the rest of LHH’s staff would finish testing by the next week, but didn’t explicitly mention 400 of LHH’s staff apparently remained to be tested. Turned out, it took over two weeks, not one, to complete that testing.

“ On May 19, San Francisco Director of Public Health Grant Colfax announced the cumulative count rose to 29 cases at LHH (11 residents and 18 staff). ”

Colfax noted that as a result of the expanded testing at LHH, four new cases were discovered that lead to uncovering four more cases. The cumulative count rose to 29 cases at LHH (11 residents and 18 staff), an increase of eight cases since the previous report on April 26 when 5 residents and 16 staff COVID cases were reported.

The five initial patient cases at LHH were in the South 4 and South 5 neighborhoods. Among the additional six patient cases, five occurred on South 2, and one on North 4. The six new patient cases on North 4 and South 2 were worrisome, because they were in different areas of the hospital, with the North Tower almost being a separate building.

Let’s review the timeline: On March 6, Breed closed LHH to all visitors. Eighteen days later, on March 24 five LHH staff members were reported to have tested positive; the next day, LHH’s first patient tested positive.

Those first six cases so alarmed Breed that she brazenly wrote to Robert Kadlec, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Assistant Secretary for Preparedness on March 27, requesting 110 federal staff be sent to San Francisco to slow the spread of COVID-19 in the City, particularly at Laguna Honda Hospital. At that point, there were just 7 COVID cases (6 staff and 1 resident) at LHH.

“ Breed brazenly wrote to the U.S. DHHS on March 27, requesting 110 federal staff be sent to San Francisco to slow the spread of COVID-19 in the City, particularly at Laguna Honda Hospital. At that point, there were just 7 COVID cases (6 staff and 1 resident) at LHH. ”

The first question was, did the U.S. DHHS have 110 extra staff sitting around it could dispatch to a single city? After all, there are approximately 15 additional U.S. cities with populations roughly the size of San Francisco. Where were the feds supposed to come up with that level of staffing — 1,760 federal employees — to support sending 110 staff to each of the 16 cities needing help, with Trump sitting in the White House?

Three days later, Breed posted a press release on March 30 in which she indicated LHH had 11 COVID infections — 9 staff and 2 residents. She also indicated on March 30 that six federal and state experts — not 110 — had arrived to help. Her press release indicated she was still “awaiting a response” from Secretary Kadlec.

“ Three days later, Breed posted a press release indicating on March 30 that six federal and state experts — not 110 — had arrived to help. ”

In response to a records request placed on June 7 seeking any response to Breed from Kadlec or the U.S. DHHS, the Mayor’s office responded on June 9 saying it had “conducted a search for any written response from DHHS and found none [no response from DHHS]. Accordingly, we have no records to provide in response.”

It’s hard to believe that Kadlec or his office did not respond in writing to Breed offering a written explanation or justification so it would be on the public record. I guess that means Breed may have gotten six, but not 110, federal helpers.

A month after Breed went seeking federal support, staff infections at LHH had risen to 16 and patient infections had risen to 5, for a total of 21 cases by April 27, despite the handful of federal and state assistance.

Three weeks later, COVID infections at LHH rose to 29 cases by May 19 — 18 among staff and 11 among residents. That was at least six weeks after infection control specialists from the CDC and state were ostensibly brought in to stop the LHH COVID outbreak from growing further.

“ Three weeks later, COVID infections at LHH rose to 29 cases by May 19 — 18 staff and 11 residents — six weeks after infection control specialists from the CDC and state were brought in to stop the LHH COVID outbreak from growing. ”

On May 19 Colfax said testing in the 21 SNF’s in the City was ongoing, and 40% of testing of staff and patients was completed, with five facilities finished, four underway, and the remaining 10 or 11 facilities were still being “planned.” He didn’t name the names of any of the other facilities.

Two weeks later, only 17 of San Francisco’s 21 SNF’s had completed testing as of June 1. Slide 9 in a DPH presentation informed the Health Commission on June 2 that only 17 of the facilities had completed the “universal” testing.

A records request was submitted to DPH on June 4 seeking 1) A list of the names of the 17 facilities in which testing had concluded by June 1 and data on the number of positive infections of staff and residents in each facility; and 2) The names of the 4 remaining SNF’s that were still undergoing universal baseline testing of all staff and residents.

Sadly, DPH declined to provide any records, saying on June 5 “The San Francisco Dept. of Public Health does not have responsive records at this time. We are committed to protecting the privacy and confidentiality of patients.”

This far into the pandemic, why is SFDPH not even willing to release the names of the 17 facilities that completed universal COVID-testing by June 1? Releasing the names of those facilities can not possibly involve HIPAA patient privacy protection violations.

It took until June 18, when CMS provided an update on its web site that we learned that as of June 7, LHH COVID cases had reached 71 — 46 staff and 25 residents — fully 10 times more than Breed reported on March 27 as 7 total cases at LHH. We didn’t learn of that ten-fold increase in cases at LHH from Breed or Colfax. We learned of it from CMS public data.

“ It took until June 18 before we learned from CMS (of all places), not from Breed, that as of June 7, LHH COVID cases had reached 71 — 46 staff and 25 residents — fully 10 times more than Breed reported on March 27 as 7 cases at LHH. ”

Breed Admits “We Haven’t Lowered the Curve”

“The numbers are still going up. The number of deaths are still going up. We have not lowered the curve.”

— London Breed, Mayor
May 6, 2020

Data posted on the San Francisco Department of Public Health’s COVID-19 Tracker web site documented that on May 6, our City had 1,806 COVID-19-positive cases, and a total of 33 deaths from the coronavirus. In the 19 calendar days since May 6, the COVID-19 Tracker web site reported:

- The number of COVID-19-positive cases climbed by 593 additional cases to a total of 2,399 positive cases, which represented fully 25% of San Francisco’s cases then to date. Worse, the increase from 1,806 to 2,399 cases represented a 33% change increase across those 19 days.
- The number of San Francisco COVID-related deaths has grown by eight additional deaths — from 32 on May 6 to 40 as of May 21, within just a 15-calendar-day period. Those additional eight deaths are 20% of the total 40 deaths. Ten days later, San Francisco saw three additional COVID-related deaths by May 21.

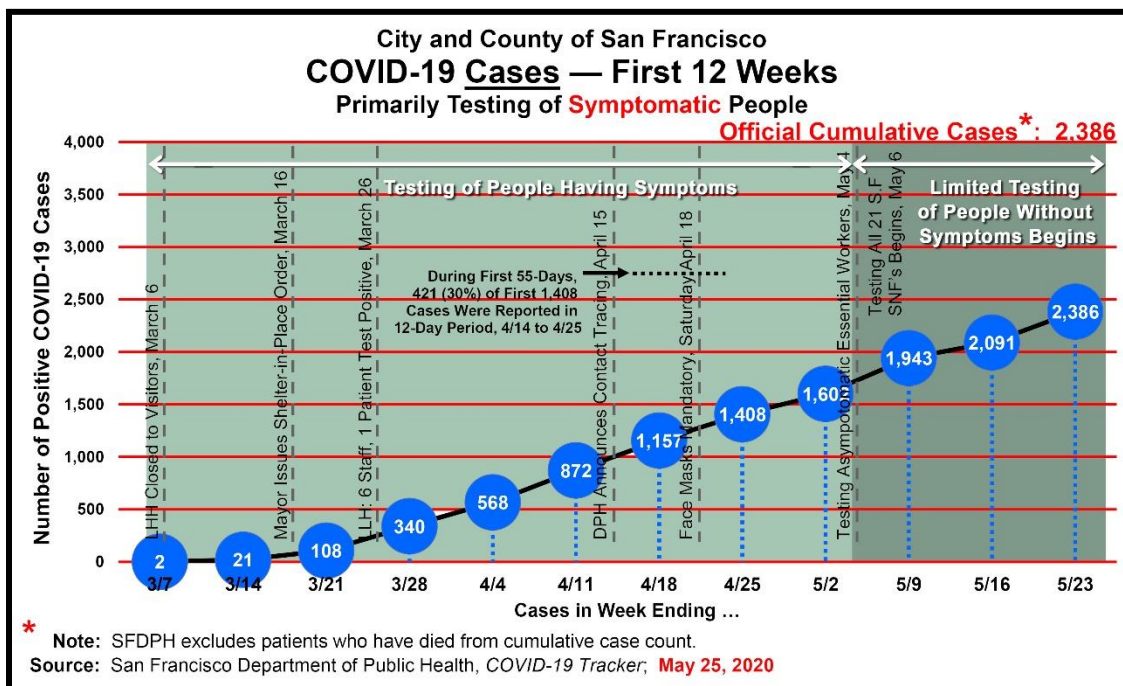

Figure 2 shows that the vast majority of COVID cases occurred in the nine-week period (though May 6) when testing was largely confined to only people displaying symptoms. Since May 6, there is still only limited testing for asymptomatic people, and the total number of cases are still going up. DPH had not finished testing all residents and staff in all 21 San Francisco skilled nursing facilities that were scheduled to complete testing before the end of May, as had been promised.

“ Figure 2 shows that the vast majority of COVID cases occurred in the nine-week period (though May 6) when testing was largely confined to only people displaying symptoms. Since May 6, there is still only limited testing for asymptomatic people. ”

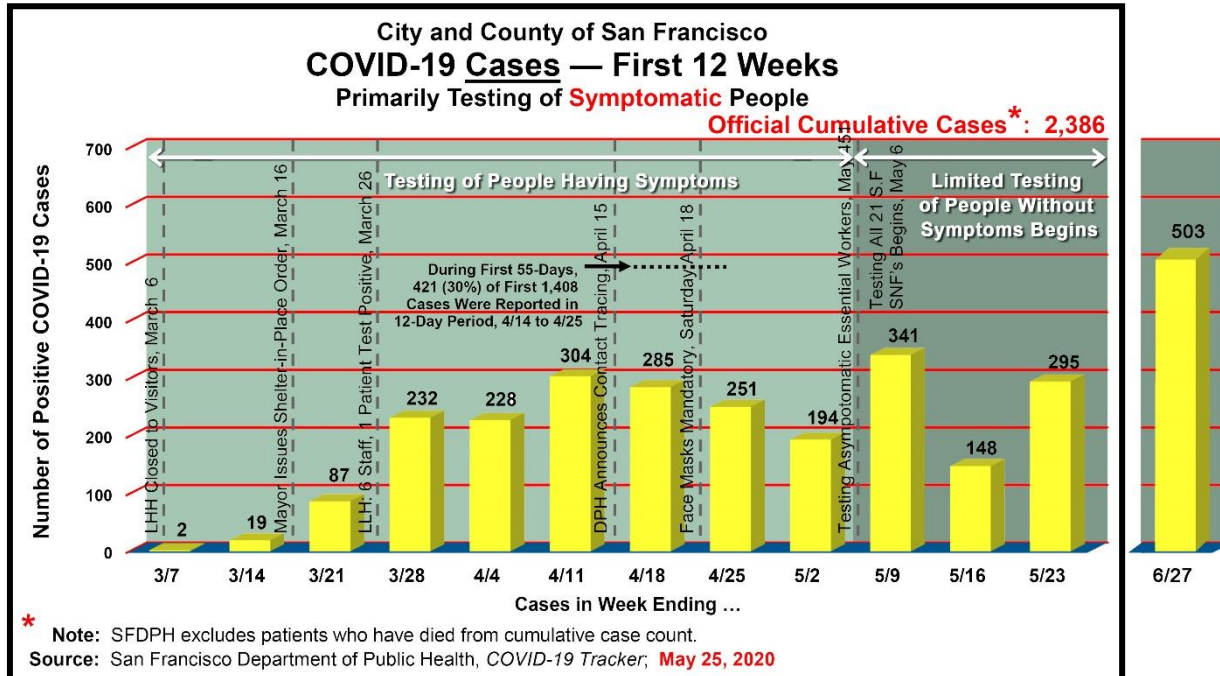

Figure 3 illustrates that in the week ending on May 23 — two weeks after Mayor Breed observed on May 6 that San Francisco hadn't flattened its curve — the number of new cases each week still remained alarming. Indeed, May 23 (the 12th week of reporting) was the third highest week in weekly cases (341 cases ending the week May 9, 304 cases ending the week of April 11, and then 295 cases in the week ending May 23).

Then came the week ending June 27, when weekly cases soared to 503.

Figure 3 illustrates that in the week ending on May 23 — two weeks after Mayor Breed observed on May 6 that San Francisco hadn't flattened its curve — the number of new cases each week still remained alarming.

Then the week of June 27 came along, when the weekly case count soared to 503.

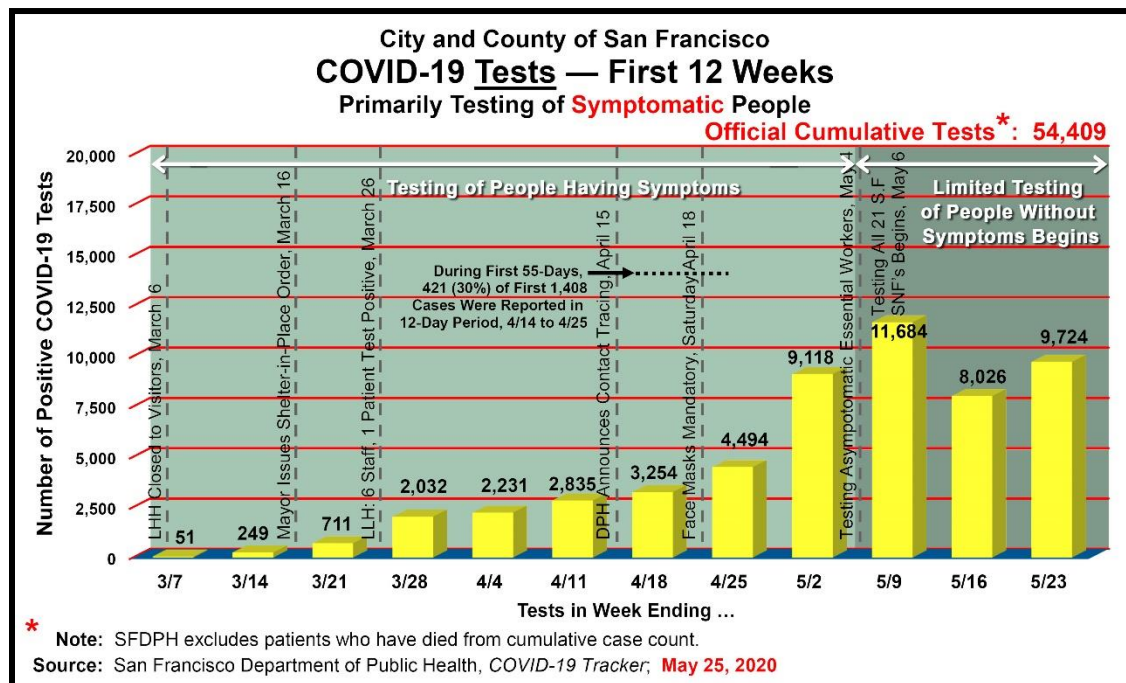

Figure 4 illustrates that fully 29,434 — 54% — of San Francisco's 54,409 tests conducted through May 23 were taken during the three weeks ending May 9, May 16, and May 23 after Breed admitted on May 6 that San Francisco's curve had not been flattened. That's because testing was still largely restricted to only essential workers who may be asymptomatic, not all vulnerable populations who may also be asymptomatic.

When is the City going to mandate — and rapidly conduct — testing of all staff and residents in Residential Care Facilities for the Elderly (RCFE's), Adult Residential Facilities (ARF's), and all other assisted living facilities in the City, in addition to universal testing in all of the 21 SNF's? So far, Breed, Colfax and San Francisco haven't indicated when the City will start or even complete universal testing in other assisted living congregate facilities. Every day of delayed universal baseline testing matters!

San Francisco's Non-Existent Contact Tracing

To put it bluntly, Mayor Breed and Director of Public Health Grant Colfax appear to be deliberately misleading San Franciscans about the City's efforts involving contact tracing of people who acquired COVID-19. To repeat, on March 27 Breed submitted a letter to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, and sent courtesy copies of her letter to Vice President Mike Pence, Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi, U.S. Senators Feinstein and Kamala Harris, Congresswoman Jackie Spier, and Governor Gavin Newsom, specifically requesting support for the COVID-19 outbreak at Laguna Honda Hospital. Perhaps Breed thought that name dropping the names of five prominent Democrats might get the Republican-controlled U.S. DHHS to respond.

At that point, one resident and six staff had tested COVID-19 positive at LHH.

Breed brazenly requested on March 27 that the fed's send 110 federal staff — including four infection control registered nurses; 10 additional professionals to conduct contact tracing; five respiratory therapists; 20 other healthcare testing workers; four epidemiologists; two laboratory staff; and five medical doctors, 30 RN's, 10 LVN's, and 20 personal care aides — all "to slow the spread of COVID-19 [and protect] our vulnerable skilled nursing residents and healthcare workers."

It's a wonder Breed didn't ask that the kitchen sink, a partridge in a pear tree, two turtle doves, three French hens, eight maids a milking, and ten lords a leaping also be thrown in for good measure, as long as she was begging for external help.

When did the federal government have enough on-hand staffing to divert 110 federal workers to a single jurisdiction? What about the additional 16 jurisdictions around the country that have populations nearly the size of San Francisco or larger, who may also have needed external staffing support help from the feds? Clearly, the feds didn't have 1,760 extra staff on hand to send 110 staff to each of those 16 jurisdictions. What was Breed thinking? Or was this an exercise in sheer gluttony?

Four days after Breed submitted her letter, KCBS Radio reported on March 31 that Breed announced she had received just six doctors from the state and feds — not 110 additional staff. Then she bemoaned the six were "not nearly enough to get us to a better place in regard to Laguna Honda Hospital." Ironically, Breed was lucky to get even six doctors; the feds could have sent her six geese a laying, instead.

Figure 4 illustrates that fully 29,434 — 54% — of San Francisco's 54,409 tests conducted through May 23 were taken during the three weeks ending May 9, May 16, and May 23 after Breed admitted on May 6 that San Francisco's curve had not been flattened."

"When is the City going to mandate — and rapidly conduct — testing of all staff and residents in every assisted living facility in the City, in addition to universal testing in all of the 21 SNF's?"

"To repeat, Breed requested on March 27 that the fed's send 110 federal staff 'to slow the spread of COVID-19 [and protect] our vulnerable skilled nursing residents and healthcare workers.'

Clearly, the feds didn't have 1,760 extra staff on hand to send 110 staff to each of those 16 jurisdictions.

On March 31 that Breed announced she had received six doctors from the state and feds — not 110 additional staff.

Breed bemoaned the six were 'not nearly enough to get [LHH] to a better place'."

Sadly, Dr. Colfax claimed on April 15 — two weeks after Breed failed to procure additional contact tracing resources from the state and federal governments — that San Francisco was belatedly ramping up contact tracing. Colfax offered no explanation about how the contact tracing personnel had been acquired, other than announcing the City is now belatedly training City employees such as librarians as disaster service workers to do the contact tracing normally provided by Department of Public Health employees. We have seen little data on how the contact tracing is progressing.

Colfax's April 15 claim occurred the same day that the San Francisco Examiner reported Dr. Tomás Aragón — the official Health Officer for the City and County of San Francisco — lamented in March that a lack of investment in public health has limited San Francisco's ability to conduct contact tracing investigations. The Examiner reported that Aragón had said:

"We don't have enough [staff] to do syphilis contact [tracking] investigation. "We are down to the bare bones of public health infrastructure."

—Tomás Aragón, MD, DrPH, County Health Officer
May 20, 2020

First, nobody believes the Department of Public Health is down to bare bones anything, except perhaps for DPH's just six bare bones Respiratory Care Practitioners in job classification code 2536 (during a respiratory pandemic known as COVID-19) on the City payroll ending June 30, 2019 who were paid a mere $277,855 in combined salaries, and accounted for just 3.3 full-time equivalent employees based on their total number of hours worked.

By contrast, DPH's payroll ending in June 2019 included 18 fat-cat Clinical Nurse Specialists (CNS) in job classification code 2323 — including LHH's disgraced CEO, Mivic Hirose, who was removed from her job as a result of the patient abuse scandal at LHH last June but remains on the City payroll — at a cost of $3.9 million in base salaries. The 18 Nurse Specialists accounted for 17.9 FTE's based on their total number of hours worked. We have nearly six times as many FTE's doing Clinical Nurse Specialist work than we have Respiratory Care therapists.

You can almost bet that DPH's 18 Clinical Nurse Specialists are not providing either respiratory care, or any direct patient care at all! I know from my decade working at Laguna Honda Hospital that the CNS' do not provide direct patient care; they sit in offices and create various "make work" nursing programs.

I have an idea: Since the 18 Clinical Nurse Specialists are largely doing desk jobs pushing paperwork for DPH, why not re-assign them to being part of DPH's contact tracing workforce — you know, as disaster service workers? That way, Breed wouldn't have to burden the feds for staffing that she and former Mayor's should never have trimmed back to bare bones status over the years.

Second, if we don't have enough resources to do contact tracing for syphilis, how the hell do Colfax and Breed now expect anyone to believe San Francisco is suddenly ramped up to do adequate COVID-19 contact tracing? Particularly in the absence of not having re-assigned those 18 Clinical Nurse Specialists to staff the ramparts.

"Since the 18 Clinical Nurse Specialists are largely doing desk jobs pushing paperwork for DPH, why not re-assign them to being part of DPH's contact tracing workforce as disaster service workers?"

I have an admission to make, 'lo 40 years later. Back in 1971 or 1972, when I was sowing my oats coming out of the closet as a young man, I was startled (and later ashamed) when I first received a phone call, followed by an in-person visit to my apartment, from Milwaukee's Department of Public Health, informing me that through contact tracing it had received a report that I may have been infected with syphilis (or worse, I had infected someone else with it). I was of course mortified that the government — Big Brother — could track me down over a sexually-transmitted disease. It took me awhile before I was grateful that they had! And for the compassion they had shown me. If Milwaukee could do so in 1972, why can't San Francisco now?

To the extent that Newsom's and Breed's plans to loosen their social- and public-distancing and their shelter-in-place orders hinge on increasing contact tracing and greatly expanded testing, we're off to a very rocky start!

Two months after Breed received the six federal doctors on March 31, the number of COVID infections at LHH soared ten-fold by June 7 to 71 cases — 46 staff and 25 residents. Apparently, the six federal staff — with or without the assistance from a partridge in a pear tree, two turtle doves, or eight maids a milking — and the expanded contact tracing proved to be ineffective at slowing the ten-fold COVID-19 tsunami that swept through Laguna Honda Hospital.

False Negatives, and Retesting

All along, there have been concerns the true number of COVID-19 infections may be unknown, in part due to the problem of false-negative test results. Since mid-April, even China admits that preliminary research suggests the most common form of COVID-19 test produces false negative results 15% to 30% of the time. Most PCR tests undergo years of lab testing before they are used. With COVID-19, there wasn't that kind of time before the COVID-19 tests were pressed into use.

If someone tests negative for COVID-19, it only means they probably weren't infected at the time their specimen was collected. They may have been very early in their stages of infection at the time their specimen was collected.

Preliminary research indicates that common tests for COVID-19 may produce false negative results up to 30 percent of the time, and the inaccuracies are probably caused by the collection of samples, not the actual laboratory testing. In part, that's because sample collection relies on using swabs placed in the back of the nose and mouth where it may be difficult to get to the place where the virus is located and hiding out, and collect a reliable sample.

Some experts in laboratory medicine express concerns the false-negative rate could be even higher.

On May 15, ABC's World News Tonight with David Muir reported that a new analysis conducted by Johns Hopkins University shows there is a small window in which to obtain accurate test results. It is not only important to get tested; it also may be important when you get tested. The analysis noted that:

- After three days of symptoms, false negatives were reported 20% of the time.
- On the day symptoms appeared, 38% [were false negatives].
- But the number of false negatives jumped to 100% when patients were tested after exposure to the virus, but four days before they exhibited symptoms.

It's not yet clear if the John Hopkins study applies only to the rapid, 15-minute point-of-care COVID-19 test produced by Abbott Laboratories — ID NOW — initially used by the White House, or if all PCR-based tests have the same narrow window of test accuracy.

False negatives can occur using different PCR tests, meaning they're more useful for confirming the presence of an infection rather than giving a patient the all-clear. People who test negative are advised to have a retest.

False negative tests can occur if a specimen is not properly obtained, or if a patient was tested too early or too late in their infection. Laboratory error is also a possible cause of false negative test results. The PCR tests currently being used to diagnose active cases of COVID-19 can only indicate the presence of the virus material during the period of active infection. The tests do not indicate if a person was infected and subsequently recovered.

The Johns Hopkins analysis also found that Abbott's test missed one-third of infections when sample swabs were stored in chemicals meant to preserve samples, and more than 48 percent when sample swabs were kept dry.

On Thursday, May 14, the FDA posted a public alert on its web site stating that Abbott's test might return false-negative results that "may need to be confirmed" by other testing methods, including a high-sensitivity authorized molecular test.

“ Apparently, the six additional federal staff and the expanded contact tracing proved to be ineffective at slowing the ten-fold COVID-19 tsunami that swept through Laguna Honda Hospital. ”

“ All along, there have been concerns the true number of COVID-19 infections may be unknown, in part due to the problem of false-negative test results, since preliminary research indicates common tests for COVID-19 may produce false negative results up to 30% of the time. ”

On May 8, news surfaced that Pence's press secretary Katie Miller (wife of Stephen Miller, Trump's speechwriter) had tested positive for COVID-19. Trump noted that Ms. Miller had tested negative "for a very long period of time," including testing negative on Thursday, May 7 before she suddenly tested positive on Friday, May 8. There were no reports of how many times she had tested negative, or whether she had been tested with the Abbott ID NOW test.

Strangely, the White House, Pence, and Trump have all been completely silent on whether all of Ms. Miller's previous negative test results were actually false negatives, and whether she may have actually been positive and asymptomatic for several days while she wandered around the White House. For that matter, it may not have dawned on anyone in the White House to wonder how many other White House staff may have also repeatedly received false negative test results.

It isn't known whether either Mayor Breed or Governor Newsom are factoring in the probability of a significant number of false negative test results in their race to re-open the City and the state. Those false negative test results may be contributing to the failure of flattening the curves.

Nursing Homes Seek Legal Immunity From Governor Newsom: A Cover Up

As early as April 23, The Mercury News (formerly known as the San Jose Mercury News) published a scathing editorial calling on Governor Newsom to end the cover-up of COVID-19 nursing home deaths in California. Newsom had promised on April 10 to make addressing the threat of COVID in nursing homes his top priority. The Merc noted the most-basic tool for fighting any endemic or pandemic is accurate information, and without accurate information families have no way of knowing which facilities are safe, or unsafe. Obviously, a time of crisis is no time for information cutbacks.

California's reported nursing home data is believed to be grossly underestimated, given the paucity of data being released.

Part of the problem is that California's Department of Public Health (CDPH) has chosen to hide running totals of patient and staff infections in each nursing home using a tool known as "de-identification," in which facilities with less than 11 patients or 11 staff infections are reported simply as "<11," escaping having to report actual aggregate facility-level data. CDPH claims the de-identification and the resulting data secrecy is to comply with the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA), the federal health privacy law to protect individual patient's data. The HIPAA claim is just a pretext to avoid disclosing crucial data. There's nothing in HIPAA that prohibits releasing aggregate data that doesn't include patient identifiers. And it's neither realistic nor plausible to believe that members of the public could glean the identity of any given patient from release of thousands of records rolled into a single raw number for a given facility.

But that's a bogus claim Newsom is allowing to continue, because neither patient names nor their personal identifying information is released. So, the facilities, counties, and CDPH are essentially colluding in a cover-up, preventing Californians from learning which facilities have COVID outbreaks, how many cases they've had, how many deaths there have been in each facility, and whether the cases were among staff or residents. The Mercury News asserted this is fundamental public records information that should be updated and disclosed daily under the California Public Records Act (CPRA).

"Strangely, the White House, Pence, and Trump have all been completely silent on whether all of Katie Miller's previous negative test results were actually false negatives, and whether she may have actually been positive and asymptomatic for several days while she wandered around the White House."

"It isn't known whether either Mayor Breed or Governor Newsom are factoring in the probability of a significant number of false negative test results in their race to re-open the City and the state."

"As early as April 23, The Mercury News called on Governor Newsom to end the cover-up of COVID-19 nursing home deaths in California."

"Part of the problem is that California's Department of Public Health (CDPH) has chosen to hide running totals of patient and staff COVID infections in each nursing home using a tool known as 'de-identification.' CDPH's bogus claim is a pretext to avoid disclosing crucial data."

Here we are on June 8 — 81 days after Newsom issued his statewide shelter-in-place order on March 19 and 59 days since he promised on April 10 to make addressing the threat of COVID in nursing homes his top priority. All this time has slipped away, and we still don't have an adequate sense of how widespread the COVID pandemic has hit California's nursing homes and assisted living facilities at the facility level, and how hard they have been hit.

On April 9, six organizations wrote to Governor Newsom requesting that he issue an executive order granting blanket immunity for health care providers and facilities. They also asked that all current state statutes and regulations be waived to achieve blanket immunity for them.

The six organizations were seeking an overly-broad get-out-of-jail-free card from all administrative, criminal, and civil liability for any injury or death as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. But they went further, requesting immunity for non-COVID problems, too.

The proposed overly-broad executive order would cover both reckless elder and dependent abuse situations as well as non-COVID-related negligence in any health care setting, without adequate public oversight of how many deaths in nursing homes were caused by criminal negligence. The industry-authored immunity proposal would permit anything a provider does or neglects to do, including mistreatment of non-COVID patients, to have no legal consequences.

“ On April 9, six organizations wrote to Governor Newsom requesting that he issue an executive order granting blanket immunity for health care providers and facilities. They were seeking an overly-broad get-out-of-jail-free card from all administrative, criminal, and civil liability for any injury or death as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic to avoid any legal consequences. ”

It's clear that the executive order being sought is designed to protect the nursing home industry and its profits, not to protect the lives of elderly patients.

The six agencies included three trade associations for physicians, hospitals, and health insurance plans (including the California Medical Association representing physicians; the California Association of Health Plans representing insurance plans; and the California Hospital Association, representing about 400 hospitals and is an organization closely affiliated with the Hospital Council of Northern and Central California). The three organizations have a vested interest in helping hospitals resume performing elective procedures — rather than in providing COVID care — in order to increase profit margins in hospitals.

The three additional organizations who petitioned Newsom included the California Assisted Living Association, representing various assisted living and continuing care retirement communities; Leading Age California, which represents assisted living facilities, affordable housing providers, and skilled nursing and community-based care facilities; and the California Association of Health Facilities, another trade association representing skilled nursing and intermediate care facilities for people with developmental disabilities.

Their April 9 letter was shocking, in part, because San Francisco's Department of Public Health had just rolled out its preliminary on-line “COVID-19 Tracker” web site just two days earlier, on April 7, which initially reported 622 COVID cases citywide and nine COVID-related deaths.

The six agencies must have known public accountability and public records transparency were coming their way, and wanted Newsom to step in to shore up liability protections. It should be noted that the April 9 letter to the Governor came just 21 days after Newsom had issued his statewide shelter-in-place order on March 19, but before members of the public began to learn on April 17 just how widespread the COVID-19 pandemic had become in California.

In retrospect, the April 9 letter seeking broad immunity was also shocking because it was sent to Newsom eight calendar days before the California Department of Public Health (CDPH) launched its own COVID-19 web site on April 17 beginning to report the number of COVID infections among nursing home staff and residents, which then stood at 3,000 infections. CDPH would take longer before it started the number of deaths of nursing home staff and residents.

By April 9, California had 19,691 COVID cases and 538 COVID-related reported deaths, even before we were told how many of the cases were in skilled nursing and assisted living facilities. By the time the public learned of CDPH's new web site reporting facility-level COVID data on April 17, the number of COVID cases statewide rose to 29,154 cases and 1,037 COVID-related reported deaths — in just the eight days after the six agencies begged Newsom for absolute legal immunity.

“ On April 17, the number of COVID cases statewide rose to 29,154 cases and 1,037 COVID-related reported deaths — just eight days after the six agencies begged Newsom for absolute legal immunity. ”

It's a fair assumption that the six trade associations and their lobbyists seeking immunity from Newsom knew from their own quality management staff, risk management staff, or their member hospitals' infection control and utilization management staff that they all had a tsunami-level problem on their hands, long before — perhaps for weeks — their April 9 letter to Newsom.

By April 28, when data reporting became somewhat more accurate, of the 1,862 statewide COVID-related deaths 792 (42.5%) occurred in skilled nursing and RCFE facilities across the state.

Luckily, 17 organizations submitted a letter to Governor Newsom on April 23 opposing the immunity request. The 17 organizations included Justice in Aging, ACLU-California, California Advocates for Nursing Home Reform (CANHR), Disability Rights California, Disability Rights Education and Defense Fund, National Health Law Program, the Western Center of Law and Poverty, and ten additional organizations.

“ Luckily, 17 organizations submitted a letter to Governor Newsom on April 23 opposing the immunity request, noting there is no legitimate public policy reason to grant such broad immunity. ”

They noted there is no legitimate public policy reason to grant such broad immunity:

They asked that Newsom not grant the immunity. As of June 22, Newsom hasn't granted any such immunity order. ”

“The extent of the requested immunity is staggering: Complete immunity for all negligence, whether or not related to a shortage of equipment and, in fact, whether or not related to COVID-19. There is no legitimate public policy reason to completely release health care providers from responsibility for their own negligent or reckless actions or behavior.”

The letter also noted that granting immunity is unnecessary even for health care impacted by COVID-19, because existing laws regarding negligence already require that circumstances be considered to determine liability.

The 17 organizations respectfully requested that Newsom not grant immunity for health care providers, since existing legal standards already in place are designed to account for any “surrounding” circumstances. Granting them immunity would send a signal of improperly valuing providers more than the lives of their patients.

To date, Newsom has not issued any such immunity order, but patient advocates remain fearful that he will. Nursing homes should not be shielded from accountability via blanket immunity!

COVID First Wave Isn't Over

Breed was right, of course, when she noted on May 6 that San Francisco had not flattened its COVID curve. We're still not through the first wave. But Breed continues to prematurely re-open various types of businesses in San Francisco.

Newsom, for his part, is painfully aware that California's first wave isn't over, either. He said so during his weekly COVID press conference on June 22. But he's sending mixed messages, since on June 10 Newsom claimed there is no turning back on plans to re-open the State.

Of note, between June 10 and June 22, there were an additional 648 COVID-related deaths, pushing California's COVID death toll to 5,523. And between June 10 and June 22, an additional 38,926 COVID cases were diagnosed, fully 21.7% of California's now 179,605 total COVID cases. Those increases over that 12-day period should be telling Newsom he should turn back his plans to re-open the State.

Newsom did indicate on June 22 that if there's a surge in COVID cases, the State could dial back and re-impose the shelter-in-place orders.

Breed and Newsom appear to be far too impatient and may be re-opening the City and the State far too soon.

“Breed and Newsom appear to be far too impatient and may be re-opening the City and the State far too soon.”

As of June 23, there have been at least 23,530 patient and staff COVID-19 infections in California SNF's and RCFE's. There have been 91 deaths of SNF staff, 2,348 deaths of SNF patients, and 406 deaths of staff and residents in California RCFE's, totaling a minimum of 2,845 premature COVID-19 deaths in various types of elder care facilities — 51% of California's 5,577 COVID-related deaths through June 23.

Each of those 5,577 people had names, families, and life stories, and they, too, may have wanted to achieve immortality through not dying, like Woody Allen and Berenice.

In San Francisco and elsewhere around the world, COVID-19's impact on people of color has been dramatic: As of June 22, of San Francisco's now 3,185 COVID cases, 50.1% were among Hispanic residents, who make up roughly 15% of San Francisco's population. Of the 3,185 COVID cases in San Francisco, 11.9% were among Asian-Americans, but of the now 48 deaths in the City through June 22, 45.8% (22) of the deaths were Asian-Americans.

Sadly, these alarming numbers only include the first wave of COVID, even before we get to a second wave next fall.

Trump has been hawking nonsense since May that without testing there wouldn't be so many known cases, when he claimed “It could be that testing is over-rated. If we didn't do any testing, we would have very few [COVID] cases” As Rachel Maddow noted in May, without the testing Trump would have had the same number of COVID cases (if not more), but he — and the rest of the nation — just wouldn't know about them, as if ignorance is bliss.

“There have been at least 23,530 patient and staff COVID infections in California SNF's and RCFE's. There have been 91 deaths of SNF staff, 2,348 deaths of SNF patients, and 406 deaths of staff and residents in California RCFE's, totaling a minimum of 2,845 premature COVID-19 deaths — 51% of California's 5,577 COVID-related deaths through June 23.

Each of those 5,577 people had names, families, and life stories.”

A month later, Trump returned to beating the same dead horse. “If we stop testing right now, we'd have very few cases, if any,” Trump said on June 15 during an event for seniors at the White House.

Trump even pushed Vice Poodle Pence into encouraging state governors during a June 15 conference call to adopt the administration's claim that increased testing helps account for the new coronavirus outbreak reports, even though evidence has shown that the explanation is deliberately misleading.

At his re-election kick-off rally (Part 2) in Tulsa, Trump returned to trying to push the same water uphill, saying:

“Trump claimed on June 20 he had asked that testing be slowed down. On June 24, news surfaced the Trump administration plans to end federal funding of 13 COVID testing sites by June 30. He's not kidding.”

“Testing is a double-edged sword. When you do testing to that extent, you're going to find more people; you're going to find more cases. So, I said to my people, ‘Slow the testing down, please.’”

— Donald J. Trump
June 20, 2020

The White House tried to walk Trump's nonsense back, pathetically claiming he was “just kidding.” But on June 23, Trump clearly stated “I don't kid [around].” News surfaced Wednesday, June 24 that the Trump administration is set to end federal funding for 13 COVID-19 testing sites on June 30 in five states: Illinois, New Jersey, Colorado, Pennsylvania, and Texas. Indeed, he's not kidding and if he gets away with ending that federal funding it won't be long before he tries to end all federal funding for COVID testing, and not just in those five states.

Obviously (unless you're Trump) federally-funded and federally-supported testing sites remain critically needed, particularly as new COVID-19 hotspots are identified.

It's as if Trump, Pence, and their voter "base" really believe that either 1) The coronavirus is smart enough to only infect, sicken, and kill people who received a COVID-19 test, and their resulting illnesses and deaths were brought on because the virus was smart enough to know the victims had been stupid enough to seek getting a test; 2) The virus is smart enough to skip biting you if you haven't received a test; or 3) That stopping testing would simply result in fewer COVID cases, COVID would magically go away completely, or COVID would hop an international flight back to Wuhan (most likely another misguided Trump conspiracy theory).

Clearly, most graduates of Wharton Business School (except perhaps Trump) understand that any effort to restrict testing will mean more Americans will lose their lives. That suggests that deliberately withholding testing that could end up saving lives borders on criminal behavior, at least in my book. Maybe Trump was the dumbest person to graduate from Wharton.

Most graduates of Wharton Business School (except perhaps Trump) understand that any effort to restrict testing means more Americans will lose their lives."

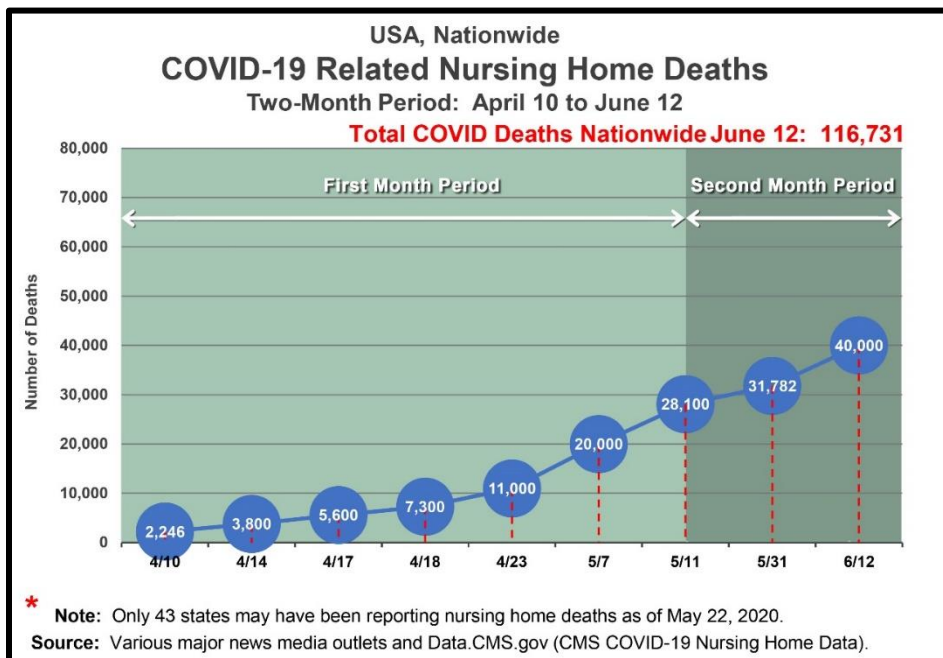

Sunshine, Sunlight: The Best Disinfectant

On June 12, Rachel Maddow interviewed David Grabowski, MD, a healthcare policy professor at Harvard Medical School. News had surfaced during a hearing indicating there had been at least 40,000 COVID-related deaths in nursing homes nationwide, but Grabowski believes that number is a wild underestimate and we still don't have a full count of the actual number of nursing home COVID deaths, in part because data collection at the start of the pandemic was a huge problem.

Maddow and Grabowski believe the federal government was derelict in its nursing home corona virus response.

The federal government was derelict in its nursing home corona virus response."

Grabowski said the federal government should have been delivering usable personal protective equipment (PPE) to nursing homes but failed to do so, even though PPE is the number one weapon to fight COVID in nursing homes and robust testing is the number two weapon.

Grabowski believes we are in the same position with nursing homes that we were in four months ago, in March, when our national nightmare began! Clearly, nursing facility residents and staff deserve better.

If we want to contain coronavirus in this country, it has to start in nursing homes, since that's where the greatest number of deaths are.

Secrecy and misinformation from the highest levels of government have worsened the affects from COVID-19. But failure to take a hard look at our response as a nation is naive and dangerous, and will leave us vulnerable to similar or worse outcomes during future pandemics.

Although sunlight may not be the best disinfectant, when it comes to the coronavirus by shining a light on our response, and guaranteeing transparency around future preparedness, we can begin to treat the disease of indifference that has infected our democratic institutions.

Forbes was right: The most important statistic is that well over 42% of COVID-related deaths in the U.S. have come from the 0.6% of the nation's population living in nursing homes. None of these lives were "disposable" or "expendable."

Since COVID-19 is a deadly respiratory illness affecting people's ability to breathe, I'm haunted wondering how many of the 2,845 people who have died in California nursing facilities through June 23 uttered "I can't breathe" as their last words.

Like Dr. Palmer, I want answers, too!

Full Disclosure: My decade of employment at Laguna Honda Hospital overlapped Dr. Palmer's stellar career there.

Dear Supervisors,

I'm writing to ask for your support to allocate at least $10 million to the Jackson Playground renovation project and name it as a priority project on the 2020 Health and Recovery bond.

Before Covid-19, San Franciscans from all zip codes came to Potrero Hill to play at Jackson Park. With two of only nine fields with lights in the City, our two ball fields absorb heavy usage. Nighttime adult leagues as well as middle and high school teams from the San Francisco Unified School District practice and play at Jackson Park.

Now, more than ever before, our community is flocking to Jackson seeking health and healing. Our 120 social distance circles are well used. But once ballgames are allowed again, there will be no open space at Jackson for us to gather. According to SFRPD, over 2,200 people use the park every week. And, with all the current and projected development in the east side of the City, this number will certainly increase.

Jackson Playground hasn't been updated since the 90s, and the playing fields have suffered significant wear and tear with such intense weekly use. In addition, the playground and restrooms don't comply with the American with Disabilities Act requirements. Jackson meets the investment priorities identified by the San Francisco Recreation and Parks Department.

Friends of Jackson Park has been working in good faith with the community and City agencies since 2013. During that time over $17MM in pledged funds from both private and public sources has been secured. The Jackson Park renovation project will be shovel ready when the requested funds are received from the next Parks bond to bridge the funding gap.

Related California's recently constructed 1601 Mariposa Street project in Potrero Hill has generously supported the Friends of Jackson Park with a sizeable private donation in order to help realize this vision of high quality open space so that Jackson Park may best serve the growing residential community of the Eastern Neighborhoods and San Franciscans alike

Dear Board of Supervisors, I live right by McLaren Park and it has been my respite and solace during this pandemic. I am writing in support of the 2020 San Francisco Health and Recovery Bond. McLaren Park has been looking much better since the infusion of money from the 2012 parks bond measure, but there are several projects that are unfinished. These projects include the amphitheater, the paths and trails, the bike park, etc. These are shovel-ready projects for which Park and Rec, along with the community, have already done much planning. One project I especially want finished is the repaving of the broken parts of the paved paths so that my husband, who is 80 years old, can walk on them without fear of falling. It will also allow runners to run without fear of tripping, as well as parents pushing strollers or folks in wheelchairs to get around the park. Some of these broken areas of the paved paths were repaired with money from the last bond, but there was not enough money to finish the project.

The 2020 San Francisco Health and Recovery Bond supports these shovel-ready projects and will help grow the economic recovery for our City. Many folks have discovered McLaren Park for the first time during this pandemic, and now realize what a treasure it is. The $6 million for improvements to McLaren from the 2020 San Francisco Health and Recovery Bond will finish projects planned but not yet completed, and folks will see how this once neglected park has become a true gem for this City.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

We support a safe, thriving and inclusive Lower Haight. Therefore, we support of the 2020 San Francisco Health and Recovery Bond that is being considered for the November 2020 ballot. The 2020 Bond will allow San Francisco to come together and begin an economic recovery that will create opportunities for all, especially with the economic impacts of the COVID-19 global pandemic.

The 2020 San Francisco Health and Recovery Bond will prioritize shovel-ready projects delivering essential government services, support economic recovery through job creation for San Franciscans, provide funding for behavioral health and health access, while prioritizing basic infrastructure investments in our parks and recreation facilities and right-of-way infrastructure so people can get back to work quickly and help San Francisco recover.

It has been widely reported that parks have been a welcome respite and source of physical and mental health well-being during this pandemic. Yet many San Francisco residents lack access to quality open space and supportive services, including our neighbors in the Western Addition.

Please support the 2020 San Francisco Health and Recovery Bond by approving the Bond proposal for the November 2020 Ballot.

The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Dear Supervisors,

I writing to express CHMWarnick's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Why, may I ask, have we named this ordinance the Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards, when in-fact it will cause (not prevent) further spread of the disease to employees and guests?

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

I find it appalling that the union has pushed insistently on what owners should do to protect employees but when it comes to driving up labor costs (and union dues/fees) they don't seem to care about employee exposure at all. In fact they are suggesting that we force both employees and guests, in a time of the Covid pandemic, for additional and unnecessary exposure. The irony cannot be lost on the board of supervisors. Why would the union propose an ordinance that further exposes employees to Covid outside of the potential to increase union dues? There simply is no other reason than to push their own financially-driven agenda at the expense of the employees and guests.

While I certainly cannot claim to understand politics and the reasons you would want to side with the union on this proposal, I can tell you as an Asset Manager I will advise owners not to open if this provision is passed. This ordinance will only go to further expose our guests and employees to this disease and will only further exacerbate exposure so the only responsible response will be to simply not open and mitigate additional the health risk.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

This pandemic has decimated group, business, and leisure travel. Without these vital segments driving our occupancies we will be unable to generate enough revenue to offset expenses and sustain our workforce. This legislation will increase our operating costs at a time when revenues do not sustain operating. Hotels will be forced to either eliminate services and positions or extend their "termination of operation" until market conditions change. That will not be a good outcome for our colleagues, the city of San Francisco, or major stake holders like restaurants and attractions. Our employees, our guests, and medical experts should be the voices of how we manage this unprecedented time in history. This legislation does not reflect those voices.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

Approving this ordinance unnecessarily will only force businesses to either remain closed or go out of business permanently. This will leave many of your own citizens without income and medical benefits.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Sincerely,

Thank you for your help.

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Hotel G San Francisco's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

Due to the complexities of navigating through these very murky waters, we think that it is best to follow guidelines designed and implemented by health organizations with a keen understanding of hotel operations, Health departments who work in tandem with the CDC, Hotel Council, CHLA, AHLA and the likes. As an industry leader myself and other professionals have spent numerous hours on calls with these agencies designing re-opening guidelines. We are also considering the guidelines from Local Unite 2 as they also have a huge stake in employee health concerns and how their membership is managed through this time. Without having the assurances and guidance of the previously mentioned entities, we may lose the ability to foster trust among our employees returning to work if the Board of Supervisors are dictating health and safety guidelines rather than actual health and safety organizations that are trained in these very comprehensive guidelines.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Dear Supervisors,

I'm writing to express Fairmont San Francisco's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Fairmont San Francisco is implementing guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging Association, and American Hotel & Lodging Association that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines. On top of that the we have worked with world renowned companies like Ecolab, Veritas and Infectious Diseases experts from the John Hopkins University to ensure our colleagues and guests are safe during their time in our hotel.

For an extensive period of time the City of San Francisco has been challenged with negative experiences and publicity in regards to our street conditions as well as the excessive homeless population. This and the high cost of living has effected the hotel industry significantly over the years and as a result major city wide conventions have left already to other cities pre COVID 19. The current pandemic is accelerating the departure of many other conventions and it will prohibit tourist returning to San Francisco.

Our occupancies, daily rate and all revenues have declined by over 75 % for 2020, according to many economist the road to recovery is estimated to be at least three to five years. This ordinance will add at a minimum an additional 15 % to our labor cost which subsequently will trigger to stay closed as not opening our business makes more sense.

This is the time that all constituents, The City of San Francisco, UNITE HERE and hotel business owners in San Francisco need to come together and support each other to recover from this still ongoing horrific pandemic. We need to collaborate to ensure we can support health care for San Franciscans, support employment as well supporting the Cities budget by driving business into San Francisco so we can restore the immense damage that has been done to all.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Dear Supervisors,

As the Complex General Manager for the Hilton Union Square and Parc 55 hotels, I am writing to express strong opposition to an emergency ordinance currently under Board consideration: Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings (File #200638).

The safety and wellbeing of our Team Members and guests has always been at the heart of our hospitality. While our cleaning and sanitation protocols exuded high standards well before the pandemic, our efforts to keep both groups free from harm has also adapted to the challenges of COVID-19 through Hilton CleanStay with Lysol Protection—our new collaboration with RB (maker of Lysol and Dettol), in consultation with the Mayo Clinic, to develop elevated practices and Team Member training.

Our mission to always operate with the health of guests and Team Members as our “North Star” has led us to partner with leading health experts to meet the challenges at-hand. The onerous mandates this emergency ordinance presents would not only unduly complicate the protocols we’ve undertaken under the guiding hand of these experts, they would present serious financial harm for a business working responsibly toward the goal of reopening, serving guests and most critically, getting as many of our 1,400 currently furloughed Team Members back to work as soon as possible.

Respectfully, we urge the Board to oppose this ordinance. Health guidelines should be determined by the experts in the field—whether through the innovative health partnerships Hilton and the hotel industry at-large have established, per the San Francisco Department of Public Health, or both—not by the Board of Supervisors.

Sincerely,

We were fortunate to be able to re-open our doors on June 10, 2020, after our closure on March 20, 2020. Our ability to do so was largely due to keeping our overhead expenses low and having management assume many of the operational responsibilities. At this point, any added costs would jeopardize our ability to remain open and/or further limit the number of employees that we can keep working. We understand the importance of maintaining a safe and clean environment and have put together extensive plans that outline specific protocols for our guests and employees.

As a longtime resident of San Francisco, (my family goes back two generations) I personally believe this proposed ordinance is the last thing we need to get my coworkers (many of whom our residents as well) back to work. For an industry that has been beyond decimated by the effects of the pandemic, we need help, not onerous legislation to prop our industry back up and to support the local economy again as the city's biggest industry.

The cost associated with this ordinance is more than prohibitive to get our buildings reopened. Our labor agreements were signed based on a booming travel sector and appetite to visit our city. It will be years before we will ever see the Occupancy and more importantly rates we once had previous to Covid19. Now is not the time to add extremely restrictive measures and additional costs, many hotels will fail and in turn other businesses as well, that rely on tourism to support them.

During the time when many hotels closed, some remained open and without issue, why does this need to be legislated now? There have been no outbreaks and no employees put into unsafe conditions, to my knowledge, while they care for our first responders and most vulnerable populations. I find it odd that no other industry has this sort of legislation pointed at them – are you really safer going to a grocery store touching items that 100s of other people have or sitting down on MUNI knowing full well it wasn't sanitized prior to you getting on? We have an exhaustive list of protocols and safety measures in place when guests return to the city and I don't see how someone staying in their own room is a bigger risk than anything we are currently allowed to do.

A middle ground needs to be found and one that is not so blatantly one sided, all parties need to have a voice at the table. We all want our teams and guests to be safe, I don't believe that needs to be legislated especially when you don't find this ordinance applicable to your own buildings. No one runs a business to lose money, and if what we see now is any indication, its more cost effective to suspend operations than keep our hotels up and running. I would hope you come to an agreement that allows us to bring our team back and start to rebuild our industry.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Dear San Francisco Board of Supervisors,

As a hotelier in California, I write in strong opposition to the proposed Healthy Buildings Ordinance that the Board of Supervisors is considering. This proposal far exceeds guidance from federal and state public health officials and will increase exposure risks for our employees and guests and likely force hotels to remain closed.

With hotels facing the worst economic crisis on record, nine times worse than September 11 and lower occupancy than the Great Depression, this ordinance jeopardizes small business hotel owners who could not afford to implement it and keep their doors open. It will force San Francisco hotels to shut down for the remainder of the year, putting many at risk at closing permanently and leading to thousands of jobs lost forever.

The ripple affect across San Francisco and California would result in hundreds of millions of dollars in tax revenue lost, impacting important funding for education, transportation, parks, and other vital government services.

Further, the ordinance contradicts federal and state health officials who recommend limiting personal interaction, not mandating that it occur on a daily basis.

The economic and health implications of the mandate would cause immense harm to our industry and put our employees at risk. I urge you to vote NO on the proposed ordinance and keep hotels open in San Francisco!

Dear City of San Francisco Supervisors:

I am the President & Chief Executive Officer of Sunstone Hotel Investors, which, through its subsidiaries, owns the 821-room Hyatt Regency Embarcadero. I am writing to you to express strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. Our top priority is the health and safety of every single hotel associate and hotel guest. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors, and we believe strongly that the Ordinance increases health risks rather than reduces them.

Due to the unprecedented impacts of COVID-19, the Hyatt Regency Embarcadero has been closed since March 22, 2020. The single-most important factor in determining when and how the hotel is reopened is the health and safety of the hotel associates and guests. To that end, San Francisco hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on robust medical guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines. Furthermore, our industry's leading management companies have also adopted stringent COVID 19-era protocols for health and safety such as Hyatt's Global Care & Cleanliness Commitment, Hilton CleanStay and Marriott's Committed to Clean programs. Hyatt's cleanliness and training accreditation process was developed through the Global Biorisk Advisory Council (GBAC).

We believe the proposed ordinance will place employees at our hotels at increased risk of contracting COVID 19 as a result of its daily room cleaning mandate, which will inherently result in greater close-quarters interaction between employees and guests. The ordinance's "every 30 minutes" cleaning requirement ignores the reality that competent and professional hotel management companies with decades of experience have already developed stringent requirements to provide safe guest and employee experiences in light of the COVID 19 threat. And the ordinance's daily linen and towel cleaning requirements are contrary to City's environmental and sustainability goals. Finally, it goes without saying that burdensome and counter-productive cleaning requirements will only postpone the reopening of many hotels in San Francisco.

For all these reasons, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Sincerely,

Additionally, there are studies out now that show surface contaminated with the new coronavirus—known as fomite transmission—is not the most prominent way the virus infects other people. Based on data from lab studies on Covid-19 and what we know about similar respiratory diseases, surface transmission is not to be the main way the virus spreads."

Guest's health and safety is our absolute number one priority, and we have already adopted an extremely strict standard of cleaning protocols. Adding the additional standards proposed would cause an undo, and unnecessary burden onto our operation. A burden health professionals have not deemed necessary. In fact the adoption of these standards could cause the opposite effect, and require more frequent and closer interaction between our Colleagues and Guests. Many Guests prefer not to have anyone in their room during their hotel stay for their own safety and peace of mind. In addition, requiring all areas of Public Areas to be cleaned every 30 minutes would force our team to "clean around" Guests in the area, thereby opening up the potential for closer interactions, and increasing their potential exposure.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

It will force San Francisco hotels to shut down for the remainder of the year, putting many at risk at closing permanently and leading to thousands of jobs lost forever.

The ripple affect across San Francisco and California would result in hundreds of millions of dollars in tax revenue lost, impacting important funding for education, transportation, parks, and other vital government services.

Further, the ordinance contradicts federal and state health officials who recommend limiting personal interaction, not mandating that it occur on a daily basis. The economic and health implications of the mandate would cause immense harm to our industry and put our employees at risk.

I urge you to vote NO on the proposed ordinance and keep hotels open in San Francisco!

Sincerely,

Heather Turner

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express W San Francisco strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

I am deeply concerned if this ordinance passes, that it will delay the opening of our hotel even further and keeping our associates out of work for an extended period of time. As a LEED Platinum EB certified hotel we pride ourselves on keeping our hotel clean and safe and have implemented very high safety standards even pre COVID-19.

Our industry and in our case Marriott International have rallied put in place training and cleaning protocols that will keep our employees and guest safe and comfortable.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Dear Supervisors,

The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines should be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

We have used the time since the hotel is closed to study these guidelines and prepare a plan for our property in order to ensure the safety of our employees and guests so that we can reopen safely again. Please rest assured that we understand the importance of cleaning, disinfecting, physical distancing, required face coverings and other preventive measures and that we are well prepared to enforce all of these precautions. However, cleaning public areas, elevators and restrooms every 30 minutes is excessive – especially with the low occupancies we will have to deal with. Additionally, employees are required to enter and clean each room every day according to this ordinance while many guests will not be comfortable having staff in their room and it will be safer for the staff to clean the room when the guest is not present and to even allow time after their departure according to the recommendations from the CDC in case the guest was COVID-positive.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

To Whom It May Concern,

I trust all is well with you during this time of crisis. I am writing to you because I want to be heard. I grew up dreaming to be one of the successful ones in this industry and share the passion I have delivering hospitality. I was on the peak of my career before the pandemic hit and I am heartbroken to see hotels and restaurants suspension everywhere. I never would have imagined that the industry I love most will be in such turmoil. However, I am very proud to say that one of our Hotels – Hotel Spero held on and we plan to keep going by strategizing our finances and operations without compromising the CDC, OSHA and WHO guidelines to protect our guests and team members given a modified budget expense that we have to work on a daily basis. It is disheartening to see the proposed ordinance and legislation which will literally crush all the efforts that we are doing to keep operating and to keep serving our guests, partners, customers and have a glimpse of hope for our furloughed/laid-off employees.

I ask on behalf of every families that we consider our second home and family away from home to PLEASE do not pass this ordinance and legislation in order for us to hang on and together we can help each other to recover all the loses and that together we can get through this pandemic strong and healthy.

I am hoping for your kind consideration regarding this matter. The CHANGE need to start from us by being compassionate to every aspect of the industry we love the most.

Jasmin

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Fairmont San Francisco's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

I am confident that my hotel will be following strict industry standards to make sure that our guests and staff are safe. However, if we are required to follow the emergency ordinance, I do not see how we can move forward successfully with regards to financials. It would mean significant increases to our staffing which would need to be passed on to our guests in an already challenging market. My role at the hotel is to execute very special events and meetings. Part of that is making sure that the guests at these events are safe. I feel we can do so while adhering to the current guidelines from health and lodging experts.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Dear Supervisors,

I writing to express that the San Francisco Fisherman's Wharf Marriott is in strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

Should this Ordinance pass, the only feasible way to recoup some of the costs would be to pass it on to our guests. Since San Francisco is already a high priced city to visit, the added costs will be extremely detrimental to tourism. Many cities are lowering their rates to attract guests, we on the other hand would have to increase, again, not making San Francisco a viable place to visit. With less occupancy and less people visiting, it also will have a negative effect on retail, food, beverage, and attractions. With less rooms occupied, it would also adversely effect our staff. Less business means less employees working throughout the entire hotel and city. Ultimately, the hotel is currently operating at a dramatically reduced capacity due to the unprecedented impacts of COVID-19. If passed, this Ordinance will make it significantly more challenging to keep the hotel open for business.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Hotel Zetta's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

It has taken a lot for my team, especially housekeepers to come back to work despite what they hear on the news but they came because we are following and are trained in CDC guidelines such as not going into stayover rooms and leaving rooms vacant for 24-72hr after checkout. If this ordinance passes we will need to tell our team that we are obligated to go against these guidelines because the Board of Supervisors are defying logic and science. How is this going to inspire our employees to come back to work?

The need to clean all areas including walls of the hotel every 30 minutes clearly does not make sense and is regardless of occupancy. The cost of this will result in closed hotels delaying even further their opening date and will likely close down some opened hotels. I am not sure how this is therefore increasing jobs but rather making a terrible situation even worse. Lets not even get into the loss in tax revenue for the city.

Lastly it is clearly illogical that hotels and offices need to follow these rules but government owned buildings do not. Why the risk of infection is less in the government building is less than hotels I don't know.

I am grappling to understand what I am missing here and how through this ordinance you are selflessly looking after your constituents. Hoteliers are in the business of maintaining the highest standards and have done so for years. We have protocol already in place that is based in objective science. You need to take this issues of your plate and refocus on cleaning issues that you are responsible for, the streets.

Again, I ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Dear Supervisors:

I am writing to express The Westin St. Francis Hotel on Union Square strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. For over 115 years, the health and safety of our employees and guests is our hotel and industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

We are so proud of the great history of the Westin St. Francis hotel and this period of time has challenged the hotel more than any other period in the hotel's history. We are genuinely concerned that this ordinance would have significant impact on our ability to operate, impacting over 500 employees who have worked at the hotel for over 20 years. We take great pride in our cleaning protocols and have worked tirelessly over the past 100 days to ensure we are following all of the guidance that the medical experts have provided.

I would ask you to review these guidelines that we have adopted. Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

We are puzzled how this ordinance will further enhance the current COVID19 guideline. We wish to weather this together, not shifting ones risk or liability to another.

Subject: Fairmont San Francisco Opposition to Emergency Ordinance File #200638 Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Fairmont San Francisco's strong opposition to the so called Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our colleagues and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging Association and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance with input from the CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines. These guidelines are further enhanced by Fairmont's parent company, Accor's own scientifically validated protocols that far exceed your proposed approaches.

A valid and ongoing collective bargaining agreement exists between Fairmont San Francisco and Unite HERE. We enjoy solid relationships with our union partners at Local 2. However, their authoring of this legislation on your behalf remains a mystery. Historically, the unions and the hotels have always reached agreement, sometimes this process take longer than others, but we get there. Your involvement in this area is most perplexing.

Respectfully, ladies and gentlemen, you have larger, more urgent issues to address for the tax paying citizens of San Francisco. Fairmont San Francisco has costed out the "ordinance" to measure the potential financial impact. The analysis completed today would result in millions of dollars of unnecessary steps, materials and equipment, which you claim is related to cleanliness and disease prevention. This is unequivocally incorrect. Many hard working employees will suffer the loss of hours, income and benefits if you insist on enacting this position.

We are in the business of hospitality. We operate great hotels that are clean and well maintained for the enjoyment of millions of travelers annually. We provide excellent careers to the hard working women and men of San Francisco, transient occupancy tax dollars fund numerous city-wide critical services. We urge you to re-evaluate your position.

The San Francisco hotel community finds it baffling that City, State and Federally owned facilities will be exempt from these "Cleanliness and Disease Prevention" ordinances. Is the work carried out or the persons that complete it in those facilities of lesser importance to the Board of Supervisors?

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance. I would welcome an opportunity to set up a phone call or meeting to further discuss this situation.

Yours in hospitality,

Paul S. Tormey

June 29, 2020

Dear Supervisors

On behalf of the more than 200 hotels in San Francisco and 6,000 statewide, we, respectfully, fail to understand the need for the proposed Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings.

San Francisco hotels have worked closely with guidelines from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Gov. Newsom, the California Department of Public Health and your own county's public health officer to develop the Hotel Council's Prevention & Enhanced Cleaning Guidelines that exceed, short of hospitals, the standards of any other industry. On April 30 – almost two months ago – the California Hotel and Lodging Association issued its 10-page Clean + Safe certification guide with customized plans for employee trainings, appropriate signage, regulatory forms and updates. In May, the American Hotel and Lodging Association released its comprehensive Stay Safe program aligning with CDC recommendations and AHLA's authoritative Advisory Council.

We adhered strictly to the governor's guidelines on June 12, when 51 of 58 California counties reopened for tourism. San Francisco, painfully, has not reopened nor does it have immediate plans to do so. We also partnered with Gov. Newsom's Office of Emergency Service to supply personal protective equipment to San Francisco hotels and those throughout the state.

We employ tens of thousands of people directly and support hundreds of thousands of other businesses. Because of the San Francisco's shelter-in-place mandate – now the longest in the state – our hotels and small businesses have had to lay off thousands of workers. This legislation will stop hotels from reopening and keep these hard-working employees unemployed.

Your so-called Healthy Buildings Ordinance has nothing to do with health or business. It's a sell-out to politically connected union leadership. The ordinance is not based on CDC recommendations, but on the self-interests of the largest hotel union in the country. It puts labor protections ahead of proven health protections. There is nothing progressive about it.

The ordinance, drafted by the labor union, is designed to add new positions at every hotel while also supporting the hotel union bosses to legislate the end of incentive programs that allow guests to opt-out of daily cleaning. This is unsafe and harms the environment. The legislation, selfishly, exempts all City, State and Federal buildings. Why are these standards targeting specific industries and not the public buildings where the legislation is being heard?

San Francisco's hotel community has been in the forefront of stepping up to respond to the pandemic, housing first responders and our most vulnerable populations. No industry was safer, cleaner or more committed to the health and welfare of visitors and employees.

Once again, the Board of Supervisors is out-of-touch with the reality hotels and our employees face. Once again, the hotels were not invited to participate in the legislation. And, once again, San Francisco's over-regulation puts hotels closure to the brink of not surviving.

This ordinance does little to serve the public good, harms the No. 1 industry in San Francisco, pollutes the environment and further delays the return of more than 25,000 San Francisco hotel employees to work. Please stop this ordinance now and let science, not politics, guide our public health decisions.

Date: Friday, June 26, 2020 9:22:12 AM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Supervisors:

We write to ask your support for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

This ordinance is about much more than a safe reopening. It is about how we rebuild San Francisco's reputation as the best place to come to work or to visit. And it is about making sure that thousands of people of color who make our city's hotels and office buildings run have the tools they need to keep everyone healthy.

But Local 2 does want to be clear on one point: hotel workers are in no rush to reopen tourism too early. While the California Hotel and Lodging Association is on a PR blitz to lift travel restrictions, we are deeply grateful that our Department of Public Health has been deliberate and conservative. We are eager to return to work – but only when it is genuinely safe for all of us to do so. No hotel worker should be cannon fodder for corporate money-making.

For a picture of what happens when hotel companies decide for themselves how to reopen, just look at big tourist destinations in Las Vegas, Texas, and elsewhere. In those places, hotels actually reduced cleaning services, public health guidance has gone unenforced, and case rates have soared. This is no accident: hotel industry executives have cynically discussed turning this crisis to their advantage almost since it began.

San Francisco must show the world we are going the opposite direction. Now is the time for more cleaning, not less. Now is the moment to tell potential travelers that, when our city reopens, our hotels will be the cleanest, healthiest places anyone can visit. Now is our opportunity to pledge that San Francisco will hold hotel companies to the highest standards – during this pandemic, and beyond. The Healthy Buildings Ordinance does exactly that.

Hotel executives like to take credit for knowing how to clean. With due respect, we don't see many corporate officials cleaning guest rooms. That work is done by thousands of women – overwhelmingly immigrants and people of color, in communities that have borne the brunt of this disease and its effects. The Healthy Buildings Ordinance gives those women the tools and the protections they need to help bring our tourism industry back to life.

Please approve it.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express our strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. I manage two hotels—The White Swan Inn and the Petite Auberge. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

If this ordinance was passed it would negatively affect our guests, staff and overall business. Our guests are telling us they do not want us to enter guest rooms once the rooms are occupied. We are carefully following guidelines distributed.

On the other hand I am getting tremendous feedback from guests of how dirty the city feels and that is making them uncomfortable walking around. Energy must be spent cleaning up our city.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Sincerely,

Louis Kimball

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors. Our industry locally has not only the Hotel Council but also the American Hotel and Lodging and California Hotel and Lodging Associations and all the major hotel brands that have developed stringent cleaning processes and COVID processes to keep everyone safe. These processes have already been implemented widely for essential travelers and in areas where hotels have opened previously.

These guidelines are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH, and CAL OSHA. The guidelines we are using were created in collaboration with such institutes as John Hopkins University, Mayo Clinic, and other leading health experts.

I represent White Swan Inn and Petite Auberge in San Francisco, two small hotels, but also work with several hotels outside the City and, therefore, very familiar with processes. This measure is overbearing, and it does not make us safer, and creates unnecessary financial hardship at a time when we are on the brink of bankruptcy. This will definitely impact our decision making as this, along with additional taxes, fees, and costs, create a climate that makes it near impossible for small and large hotels to survive and reemploy our workforce.

Please consider that we are entering a three to four year period of a severely curtailed tourism industry. As you are aware, San Francisco's tourism industry and all its related industries (transportation, restaurants, attractions, retail, events/meetings, etc.) are decimated. The City receives 35% of its leisure, business, and conventions from international travel (not expected to return till 2023), 20% from conventions held at Moscone (all but gone in 2020, severe impact expected in 2021), 25% business travel (all companies have curtailed business travel thru at minimum 2020), and the balance 25% is domestic leisure. You are aware that we still have SIP in place, and even afterward, we will not reach 25% in domestic leisure given everyone is fleeing Cities for road trips and beach staycations... We can provide you with exact numbers if you want to understand the true impact of what this pandemic represents for San Francisco and our unemployed residents. I serve on the Board of San Francisco Travel and am happy to pull this together for you if you haven't already received this information. You can do the math on what this means for the small leisure driven hotels but also for our City. The recovery can't be shouldered by additional burdens and costs.

On a personal level, since I am on a roll here, I am also writing to you as a resident of Hayes Valley and have lived in the City for 39 years... I encourage you to focus your attention to cleaning our streets, dealing with our unsheltered population, substance abuse, mental health issues and now also unrelenting crimes that are happening in my and other neighborhoods (break-ins cars, retail, and residences, bike thefts, etc.) as well as the number of tents and unsanitary conditions on our streets. It is unhealthy and downright dangerous. I don't understand why the Board and the City can not collaborate and make it their focused efforts to create solutions and civic pride so that we can come out of this situation stronger!

The bickering and divisiveness must stop for everyone's sake – You are all Democrats and caring Citizens of San Francisco first! I am happy to help be part of the solution and a common-sense approach, but it has to be balanced, and allow residents and businesses of all sizes to start rebuilding again rather than wanting to flee the City for green pastures elsewhere...

Sincerely, Ingrid

Dear Supervisors:

I am writing to express BRE's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is the hotel industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors. San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, the California Hotel & Lodging Association, and the American Hotel & Lodging Association that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines. In addition, for any branded hotels such as Marriott, Hilton and Hyatt, those organizations have also developed strict cleaning protocols for their properties, in conjunction with various government and medical organizations.

BRE owns 13 luxury hotels around the country, including the Courtyard San Francisco Downtown. Our sister company, Ashford Hospitality Trust owns 117 hotels. Our entire hotel portfolio has been devastated by the COVID-19 pandemic. We closed the majority of the BRE hotels during the pandemic. In the last few weeks, we have reopened a number of the hotels, but due to market conditions, our San Francisco property is still closed. Our brands and managers have partnered with countless health organizations to develop improved cleanliness standards that ensure the highest standards for our guests when we reopen our doors to the public. Many of the steps outlined in the proposed ordinance are already contemplated in the plans developed by the brands and managers. Some of the ordinance components grossly contradict the guidance of respected health organizations, including the daily housekeeping requirement. This component of the ordinance simply puts room attendants AND guests at greater risk by exposing both to viruses by cross contamination. By limiting housekeeping to check-outs only, the guests are not subjected to viruses potentially left by the housekeeper. Similarly, the housekeepers exposure to virus contaminated materials is greatly reduced by having them touch the room at check-out only. Based on our discussions with our housekeeping associates, most of them prefer to clean check out rooms only.

Similarly, the door attendant component of this legislation only serves to put both the guests and the attendant at risk. Frequent cleaning of the door handles and strategically positioned sanitizer stations - both measures included in the brand/manager guidelines - are sufficient to ensure limited transmission of the virus. Requiring the deployment of a doorman only increases the possibility of transmission between our guests and the employees. During this Covid 19 crisis we learned our guests now prefer less contact with hotel employees. We have installed plexiglass screens at the front desk and encourage our guests to check in and out via the brand apps and use "mobile key" where available, completely eliminating contact between front desk agents and guests. Requiring guests to pass by a doorman each time they enter the hotel is counterproductive to minimizing contact between guests and employees.

Two final points:

1. If this ordinance is so important to public safety, why then are government buildings not included? I believe the safety of all that enter our government offices is no less important than the safety of private sector workers and travellers needing temporary accommodations.
2. While some may believe this ordinance will fill job vacancies, I can assure you that the opposite is true. Every hotel owner/manager has developed models that estimate operating costs at varying occupancy levels using pre-COVID staffing models and set opening dates based on that criteria. If this ordinance is passed, operating a hotel will require significantly more labor, which is the highest cost line item in hotels. When we plug the new labor costs into our models, we will need more revenue/occupancy to sustain those labor costs. Given the lack of any kind of material demand in San Francisco at the present time, we would look to move our reopening date possibly to the end of year. This would impact our entire hotel staff, not just housekeepers. Extended closures will also affect your city's tax base by impaired values on hotels and reduced sales and occupancy taxes. This ordinance will ultimately hurt workers and tax revenues.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Sincerely,

Mitch Roberts

Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Hotel Fusion's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

The ordinance is not based on recommendations from the Centers for Disease Control, but rather, the self-interests of the largest hotel union in the country. It puts labor protections ahead of proven health protections. There is nothing progressive about the ordinance. We believe it threatens the lives and livelihoods of potentially thousands of San Francisco workers.

If this ordinance is passed, it will force our hotel to make staff cuts in other areas of the hotel, and putting our hard worked San Francisco workers out of a job. This is not what any of us, including yourselves want to happen. Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

When that happens based on our current assumptions we are prepared to re-open abiding by the Hotel Councils guidelines mentioned above as well as Brand requirements. I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Subject: The Laurel Inn Opposition to Emergency Ordinance File #200638 Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express the Laurel Inn's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

If passed, this ordinance would negatively impact the Laurel Inn's financial ability to remain open as a viable business to guests seeking lodging as a housing option during the shelter in place order and as a viable hotel welcoming guests once restrictions are lifted. We, among a few properties, have been able to remain open with elevated cleaning protocols, meeting and exceeding guide lines and recommendations, to accommodate the needs of the few who have required lodging with elective surgeries resuming and other essential travel to care for loved ones. We fear this ordinance will jeopardize all the efforts already put in place and fear we will not be able to bring back to work the team members as planned in order to contribute to the fabric of the neighborhood and this great city at large. This would be economically devastating both in short and long term to our community and our staff.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Sincerely,

Sincerely,

GILL EKLOF

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear San Francisco Supervisors,

I writing to express Hyatt Regency San Francisco's sincere opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

This pandemic has had an unprecedented impact on our industry and our workforce. The outlook for the remainder of the year remains dismal and it is clear we will not generate enough revenue to offset expenses and maintain our workforce. This legislation will increase our operating costs at a time when revenues do not sustain operating. Hotels will be forced to either eliminate services and positions or extend their "suspension of operation" until market conditions change. That will not be a good outcome for our colleagues, the city of San Francisco, or major stake holders like restaurants and attractions. Our employees, our guests, and medical experts should be the voices of change, this legislation does not reflect those voices. The safety of both our staff and our guests is of paramount importance during this time. The proposed ordinance will place employees at our hotels at increased risk of contracting COVID 19 as a result of its daily room cleaning mandate, which will inherently result in greater close-quarters interaction between employees and guests. .

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Sincerely,

Matt

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Dear Supervisor,

Hello,

My name is Julian, and I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. It is important. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning. Especially now during the current Covid19 crisis.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. I want to go back to work, but not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to honestly tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,
Julian Penrose

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Board Supervisors,

On behalf of Ashford Inc., I would like to express my and our company's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests remain our industry's number one priority; however, health guidelines must be determined by medical experts. Guidelines should be determined in the Department of Health, not the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

In preparing to reopen our doors, our brands and managers have worked tirelessly with multiple health organizations to develop standards that will ensure the highest cleanliness standards for our guests. Unfortunately, many of the steps outlined in the proposed ordinance are in contradiction with the guidance of those respected health organizations. As cross contamination is of great concern with regard to the daily housekeeping requirement, limiting housekeeping services to check out only will provide less exposure to guests as well as employees. Reducing risk and preserving the health and wellbeing of our guests and employees, again, remain our number one priority.

We ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Sincerely,

Jeremy Welter
President and Chief Operating Officer
Ashford Inc.

Whom It May Concern,

On behalf of Braemar Hotels and Resorts, I am writing to voice our strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests are our industry's number one priority; however, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

As a leader in the hospitality industry, Braemar Hotels and Resorts has already experienced the devastating economic and practical effects of the COVID-19 pandemic. In spite of numerous challenges, we remain committed to providing only the highest level of hospitality and care to our guests, which includes stringently abiding by current regulations set forth by the world's leading health organizations. San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines and developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging.

In passing this emergency ordinance, the Board is imposing onerous requirements on our employees that directly contradict the advice of multiple health organizations. Increasing the frequency of housekeeping services threatens to expose our employees and guests to the novel coronavirus, and it will have the effect of undermining the attention and care we have dedicated to flattening the curve for the past several months. The ordinance's directives are intolerable from the standpoint of the hospitality industry and everyday citizens alike due to the potential risks they may pose.

Again, we urge you to not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to continue to provide the guidance.

Sincerely,

Richard Stockton
Chief Executive Officer and President
Braemar Hotels and Resorts

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Ashford Hospitality Trust's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests continue to be our industry's number one priority, but health guidelines need to be determined by the Department of Health's medical experts, not the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by numerous groups, including the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging. These guidelines are all based on informed, expert guidance from CDC, CDPH, and CAL OSHA guidelines.

When travel stopped, the hospitality industry was among the most devastated industries, putting 90 percent of our company's jobs at risk. These jobs include hourly workers, college students, single moms, and families working hard trying to make ends meet. The economy is still not yet fully open. Any further onerous mandates placed on our business will impact our ability to reopen, put more jobs at risk, all without improving the safety for our customers and employees.

In closing, we reiterate our strong opposition to this ordinance and ask that you not approve it and allow the medical experts to provide the effective guidance.

Sincerely,

Rob Hays
President & Chief Executive Officer
Ashford Hospitality Trust

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Brookfield Properties strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement?

This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously.

Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? This is a notable omission. All facilities should follow the same standards.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance.

Sincerely,

Chenay Kilgore

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Chancellor Hotel strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Date: Friday, June 26, 2020 1:52:51 PM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Madison Marquette's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time. There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? The proposed ordinance does not include "a building or set of buildings owned by the City or by any other unit of government, whether local, state, or federal". The exemption for municipal buildings seems to be an acknowledgement that compliance with this ordinance will be burdensome and expensive so the City does not want to impose those burdens on itself. Any and all facilities should follow the same standards.

Our current protocols strictly follow CDC and WHO guidelines and we feel that it is in the best interest of public health that office buildings and hotels follow guidelines developed by the medical experts, not guidelines legislated by the Board of Supervisors and targeted at only specific industries.

We ask that you not approve this ordinance, and instead, allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Board of Supervisors,

I am writing to express American Asset's Trust strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring 4 to 12 minutes dwell time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

Public buildings should not be exempt. They should set a standard and be an example not be exempt. This is a notable omission. Any and all facilities and buildings should be required to follow the same standards if the true intent is the health and safety of employees, tenants and the general public..

American Assets Trust has already increased cleaning scope requirements and implemented protocols per CDC guidelines, at an increased cost, at all of our properties.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance, and allow the medical experts and the appropriate responsible health organizations to provide proper guidance.

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Subject: Brookfield Properties at 685 Market Street's Opposition to Emergency Ordinance File #200638, Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Brookfield Properties at 685 Market Street strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? This is a notable omission. Any and all facilities should follow the same standards.

685 Market Street has assigned separate staff to increase cleaning cycles at all high-touch areas of the building including but not limited to security desks, elevator buttons, all handrails, push to exit buttons, all door handles/push plates, two stairwells, common corridors, all restrooms. Our HVAC systems have been evaluated and test to ensure proper operations. Indoor Air Quality has been spot checked throughout the building. We are complying with CDC guidelines and protocols to ensure the safety and security of our tenants.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance, and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance.

Sincerely,

Frank Miskus

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Date: Friday, June 26, 2020 2:20:43 PM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express One California Street management's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? This is a notable omission. Any and all facilities should follow the same standards.

Our building continues to follow CDC guidelines and protocol and has already engaged extra janitorial staff for enhanced cleaning and disinfecting at the substantial expense of almost $20,000 per month. Following the proposed requirement would require an estimated $100,000 per month in janitorial fees for large buildings – this would create a hardship for ours and most buildings.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance, and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance. Thank you.

Even before the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic, we were strictly adhering to OSHA standards and since then, we have closely followed guidelines provided by government authorities, the CDC and the San Francisco Department of Public Health. Our day porter disinfects all high-touch areas every thirty minutes we are enforcing the temporary law that everyone who enters the property must wear a face covering.

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Subject: Embarcadero Realty Service's Opposition to Emergency Ordinance File #200638, Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Embarcadero Realty Service's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? This is a notable omission. Any and all facilities should follow the same standards.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,
Ana

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express 140 New Montgomery LLC's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? This is a notable omission. Any and all facilities should follow the same standards.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance, and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance.

Sincerely,

Subject: Cova Hotel Opposition to Emergency Ordinance File #200638 Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Cova Hotel strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

We are struggling with the current Pandemic and we wish to reopen as soon as possible and to bring our entire team back to work but this proposition passes, our Hotel cannot absorb any additional labor cost. It will hurt us and it will prevent us from reopening at a full capacity and reduce the number of employees the hotel will bring back. We just cannot afford any additional operations cost increased at this time.

We have been very proactive working on our new safety and cleaning guidelines following the current recommendations from CDC's recommendation which is based on scientific research with additional guidance from San Francisco Health Dept, Hotel Council and California Hotel & Lodging and the American Hotel & Lodging Association. Our hotel has been very supportive of The City programs to help stop the spread of the pandemic and we are following all the proper cleaning and safety protocols.

Again, we ask that you not to approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Thank you

Sincerely,

Simon Sin

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Dear San Francisco Board of Supervisors,

As a hotelier in California, I write in strong opposition to the proposed Healthy Buildings Ordinance that the Board of Supervisors is considering. This proposal far exceeds guidance from federal and state public health officials and will increase exposure risks for our employees and guests and likely force hotels to remain closed.

With hotels facing the worst economic crisis on record, nine times worse than September 11 and lower occupancy than the Great Depression, this ordinance jeopardizes small business hotel owners who could not afford to implement it and keep their doors open. It will force San Francisco hotels to shut down for the remainder of the year, putting many at risk at closing permanently and leading to thousands of jobs lost forever.

The ripple affect across San Francisco and California would result in hundreds of millions of dollars in tax revenue lost, impacting important funding for education, transportation, parks, and other vital government services.

Further, the ordinance contradicts federal and state health officials who recommend limiting personal interaction, not mandating that it occur on a daily basis.

The economic and health implications of the mandate would cause immense harm to our industry and put our employees at risk. I urge you to vote NO on the proposed ordinance and keep hotels open in San Francisco!

Good Afternoon Supervisors,

I am writing on behalf of the San Francisco Travel Association to express concern about the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of the hard working employees and guests is our industry’s number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, as they are done for other industries and businesses.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

We are very concerned about the effect this legislation will have on our ability for hotels to reopen, and stay open, to welcome visitors back to San Francisco to support our restaurants, museums, hotels, small businesses and attractions.

Sincerely,

Attachments: image002.png

Dear Supervisors:

I am writing to express CZS Property Management, LLC's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? This is a notable omission. Any and all facilities should follow the same standards.

I am also very, very concerned with the allegations that this emergency order was drafted by a hotel union. Why would the Board of Supervisors allow a labor union to draft an important emergency order rather than following Cal-OSHA, state, or federal agencies such as the CDC or EPA. If the Board of Supervisors felt the need to independently verify Cal-OSHA, state or federal agencies such as the CDC or EPA, why not seek out medical experts and scientists rather than a labor union who most certainly is not qualified to advise on these matters, and most certainly cannot consider the issue with any objectivity given their mission to further the interest of employees in this very space?

There is nothing more important to CZS Property Management than the safety of our employees and tenants, and we have implemented practices across our portfolio to safeguard against this coronavirus. We manage several buildings in San Francisco, and those buildings with common space shared between tenants are cleaned and disinfected on a regular and documented basis using products on the EPA-approved N-list. I would highly encourage you to take a moment to review the N-list, as it includes the contact time an approved product must be left on a surface so that it is effective. Some of these products must remain on the surface for 20 minutes or even longer to be effective – has that even been considered in this proposed unscientific ordinance?

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance, and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance.

Please contact me at my cell phone number below with any questions.

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Subject: Kilroy Realty Corp's Opposition to Emergency Ordinance File #200638, Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards
Date: Friday, June 26, 2020 5:03:42 PM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Kilroy Realty Corporation's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? This is a notable omission. Any and all facilities should follow the same standards.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance, and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance.

Sincerely,

GAIL RINGER
Sr. Asset Manager

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

The Bay Area Transportation Working Group (BATWG) is a non-profit, all volunteer organization of experienced transit experts and long time transportation advocates

Open Letter to:

Dr. Grant Colfax, Director, SF Public Health Department

Dr. Tomas Aragon, Officer, SF Public Health Department

Dr. Sunny Pak, Director of the Chinatown Medical Center

Dear Drs. Colfax, Aragon and Pak:

On June 18th the SFMTA announced that its re-established Muni Metro service slated to go into effect in August will henceforth require riders who, pre-Covid-19, traveled on Muni Metro Lines J and L to get their downtown destinations by transferring to K/M or N trains at the West Portal and Church Street Stations. It appears that for the following reasons the MTA's sudden interest in transferring couldn't have come at a worse time, in part because it will increase the chances of riders becoming infected by the Corona Virus. *

1. Riders of the J and L Lines who previously boarded at surface stops along San Jose, 30th, Church, Taravel, 15th and Ulloa have recently been seating themselves on replacement buses in accordance with social-distancing guidelines. If as planned Muni Metro service resumes in August the MTA's new plan would make it much more difficult for J and L riders, or perhaps all LRV riders, to avoid infection.

2. Transferring riders would be required to queue-up at the West Portal or Church Street Stations. This will make it difficult if not impossible for arriving groups of transferring riders to socially distance themselves while waiting for inbound K/M or N trains. It is difficult to imagine how the station platforms could avoid becoming overcrowded, especially during times of unexpected service delays.

3. Boarding inbound M and N trains presents an even more serious problem, especially when, as is bound to happen, the limited number of available seats are already taken, again especially during times of unexpected service delays.

To minimize the risks for Muni riders who must commute by public transit during the pandemic, the SFMTA should be asked to defer its transfer-oriented new service plan for as long as COVID remains a major threat.

* The SFMTA's only stated reason for its recent interest in requiring some riders to transfer is to increase the peak-period carrying capacity of the subway (requiring longer but fewer trains). So the question becomes, why is it necessary at this time of dramatically reduced Muni ridership to be increasing the peak-period carrying capacity of the Muni Metro subway?

Sincerely yours,

Gerald Cauthen

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

San Francisco Board of Supervisors
1 Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett Place
San Francisco, CA 94102

Subject: Opposition to Emergency Ordinance File #200638, Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Dateline Properties, Inc.'s strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? This is a notable omission. Any and all facilities should follow the same standards.

In compliance with the CDC and Department of Public Health the following measures are being done to mitigate spread of the Covid-19 virus:

- HVAC – maintenance of HVAC including but not limited to cleaning vents and replacing filters.
- Plumbing – flushing toilets and running water once a week (vacant offices), water testing.

98 BATTERY STREET, SUITE 600
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA 94111

Tel (415) 392-3322

Fax (415) 392-3280

- Cleaning and disinfection – hired a day porter to specifically disinfect high touch surfaces at least 3 times a day (elevator call buttons, door handles, restroom faucets and flush, handrails, etc)
- Signage – install information regarding use of face covering, hand washing / disinfection, staying home if sick, social distancing (in elevators, hallways, restrooms and lobbies), limited occupancy in restrooms
- Restrooms – limit number of occupancy (maximum of 2 persons at a time)
- Elevators – limit number of occupancy (maximum of 4 persons per ride)
- Alcohol stations – placement of alcohol stations on all lobbies and hallways (due to limited availability of hand sanitizers we use alcohol)
- Use of face covering – in common areas of the building (and inside office space), no mask, no entry policy.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance, and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Elaine Tycangco
Manager

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Subject: Cushman & Wakefield Opposition to Emergency Ordinance File #200638, Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Cushman & Wakefield's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? This is a notable omission. Any and all facilities should follow the same standards.

Commercial office buildings are already cleaning high touch points and common areas multiple times each morning, afternoon and at night. Adding another layer of rules is onerous and not necessary.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance, and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance.

Sincerely,

James A. Kilroy

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Subject: Police Arrest Tactics and Protocols - Four-Point Safety Arrest
Date: Friday, June 26, 2020 7:24:03 PM

Attention San Francisco Supervisors,

Recent events in various cities in California and other cities in the United States have brought attention to the need for safer means of handling suspects by police. I believe we should look into some tactical options for practical alternatives, in addition to other measures, including cultural change, training and accountability. The numerous cases that have recently brought BLM advocates to the streets in the thousands have been simple knee-jerk reactions to the brutal treatment of unarmed people at the hands of police.

Using both handcuffs and anklets or fetters is an idea I'd like to throw into the discussion as alternatives to choke holds and other potentially lethal or life-threatening methods. The logic of this suggestion is fairly simple: If you, as a police officer, are able to apply both hand cuffs and anklets to restrain all extremities in an arrest, there should be little or no need for any further violence. Although there may be a need to also hogtie the suspect who fails to cooperate, this hogtie maneuver can be done without any need for choke holds, tasers, mace or rubber bullets and the like once all extremities are already securely restrained.

The potential threat is tactically neutralized with what we call the Four-Point Safety Arrest (4PSA), accomplishing safety for law enforcers as well as safety for suspects, and, of course, the nearby community. Once an officer declares "Hands tied!" and another confirms "Feet tied!", the battle is over.

Some arrestees may also resort to spitting or biting or hopping away, or even swinging their cuffed hands in an aggressive manner. This is when you hogtie the person and possibly put a cloth bag over his head and face. Still no real threat, just a nuisance. The guy or gal could be doped up or looney. Simply coupling the handcuffs and anklets with another pair of cuffs will accomplish "Cross tied!" (hogtied). Maximum and complete control accomplished. No one dies or is severely injured. Safety accomplished, public safety, which is our mission here.

I imagine it would often take at least two officers to apply both hand cuffs and anklets to a resisting suspect. But, the sooner this is accomplished, the sooner safety is established for all involved. De-escalation can be managed without tasers or choke holds, especially when and if all officers are trained and become comfortable with this as the routine method for the majority of arrests. Devices like the BolaWrap from Wrap Technologies may also be useful to restrain the legs from a safer distance of ten feet, or so. Either way, our martial arts experts should have fun providing the safest and most efficient tactics to accomplishing the end result of security and safety for all involved. We acknowledge that some very important training and objective re-thinking will be required. A clear concept of arrest completion and safety accomplished. Unambiguous protocols.

Resisting arrest may simply be a logical reaction to our nation's history of police abuse and racial discrimination. Now, with COVID-19, many people from all ranks will fear being locked up in overcrowded and unsafe jail cells. Can you blame them? Some may also react to the attempt to bind their ankles by police. As a new protocol, our law enforcers need to apply methods to show that such a procedure is in their best interest. Law enforcers will also have to learn that tactical changes can also improve their own safety and enhance their careers, as well. We also all need to recognize that the "drug war" is over. The most notorious killers in recent decades have been corporate opioid peddlers along with corrupt medical doctors.

Something to think about, please!

Best regards,

Ray Cruz

San Francisco Board of Supervisors

Re: Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings

Dear Board of Supervisors,

On behalf of the Surfrider Foundation's San Francisco Chapter, Californians Against Waste, Clean Water Action, and our network of activists we are writing to express our concern over the Emergency Ordinance regarding Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings.

While we believe in the importance of protecting the health and safety of visiting tourists, we must use science-based evidence to guide our standards in order to avoid unintended consequences. We understand the ordinance would require hotels and office buildings to execute additional cleaning procedures above and beyond those recommended by health experts. While additional cleanings might seem beneficial to the customer, they can potentially put the employee at added risk and will cause unnecessary waste.

In particular, the ordinance requires dirty linens to be placed in a sealed single-use bag after each guest's stay. Given the overall risk of disease transmission during the laundry process likely is negligible, per the Centers for Disease Control, instructing employees not to shake the linens and to place them in a bag that can be enclosed or covered in between rooms is a much less wasteful way of achieving the same end goal.¹

This emergency ordinance also cites the California Department of Public Health and CalOSHA's COVID-19 Industry Guidance from May 12, but a newer version was released on June 5.² In the updated guidance, hotels are recommended to "[remove] and [clean] all towels and linens at the conclusion of each guest stay", rather than changing bed linens and towels on a daily basis as stated in the emergency ordinance. We encourage the Board of Supervisors to use the updated guidance. This will reduce exposure risks for employees and produce less waste.

<https://www.cdc.gov/infectioncontrol/guidelines/environmental/background/laundry.html>

² COVID-19 Industry Guidance: Hotels, Lodging, and Short Term Rental, California Department of Public Health and CalOSHA (2020) <https://files.covid19.ca.gov/pdf/guidance-hotels-lodging-rentals.pdf>

We strongly encourage you to consider the unintended impacts of the proposed ordinance and would recommend further consultation with experts in the field and use the best-available science to ensure safety while reducing unnecessary waste. The hotel industry has been making positive strides to reduce waste and we encourage you to support their efforts and to not pass ordinances that will unnecessarily hinder their progress. Thank you for your consideration and attention to this matter.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Wilson Meany's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance.

Sincerely,

Janice Thacher, Partner

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Subject: JLL's Opposition to Emergency Ordinance File #200638, Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards
Date: Saturday, June 27, 2020 11:55:31 AM
Importance: High

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express JLL's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? This is a notable omission. All facilities should follow the same standards.

I would be happy to share our best practice protocols which are based on municipal guidelines and health recommendations.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance, and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance.

Sincerely,

Nicole Hom

To Mayor Breed, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and San Francisco Elected Officers

My name is Winston Nilumol, and I am a resident of San Francisco. I am calling on you to reduce the SFPD Budget for 2021, and divert the funds toward meaningful programs that will improve our quality of life. I stand behind your proposal for Police Reform and will be on the lookout for future announcements behind actionable change. I support the decision to redirect police funding directly into underserved communities and will show support with my vote. By redirecting funds into underserved communities or even middle income communities, I am hoping that these communities will flourish and reinvest directly back into their own communities.

Anti-Black racism, racist police violence, and police brutality have been prevalent for a long time now, but recent events have compelled me to write to you in hopes of enacting meaningful change with regard to police behavior; I implore you to take action to bring an end to racism and anti-Blackness, and take on immediate reform to how Black people are treated in America.

Last year, the SFPD budget was over $600M. I understand there is a need for law enforcement; however, there is an opportunity to divert a portion of this exorbitant budget to improve quality of life for our city and its citizens while at the same time addressing the potential root of criminal activity head on vs. having police waste time and resources to react after the crime (with a poor closure rate at best).

Defunding the police is a somewhat risky proposition, but what we have been doing to date has not been working and therefore I believe it is necessary to explore and test new options immediately. Camden, NJ has already disbanded its police department in 2013; the city's homicide rates have since dropped, and community/police relations have significantly improved.

We have an opportunity to lead meaningful change for the nation, and now is the time to act.

Regards,
Winston Nilumol

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Thank you so much Mr. Heckel!

I appreciate the time you took to consider and respond to my inquiry. I'm really impressed with the work done by the DataSF team over the years and the savvy visual presentation of data.

I don't mean to be political here (promise). However, given this response from the Mayor's office, I'm confused as to why the Mayor raises her 'concern' in the media that out-of-county unhoused individuals might be accessing San Francisco's mandated Covid-19 isolation/quarantine temporary housing stock, potentially leaving fewer rooms for San Franciscans, and in particular, Black unhoused San Franciscans.

The data currently compiled and presented simply doesn't support such a 'concern,' leaving me to remain skeptical of that 'concern' being a reasonable cause for the delay in housing homeless individuals, as the Mayor has suggested.

Randall,

This is in response to your public records request below.

The City does not have a systematic way to track and compile data of out-of-county individuals' attempts to access the hotel rooms secured for shelter during the COVID-19 emergency. Placement to these rooms is the result of street and shelter referrals. There is not an external and public referral system so out-of-county individuals could only attempt to access the rooms by being engaged by outreach teams on the streets. Thus, we have no data to provide on that topic. Similarly, there is no data tracking individuals who are not referred to a hotel room.

Regarding demographic data, including race, such information can be found on the City's public tracker at <https://data.sfgov.org/stories/s/4nah-suat>

Please note that we are responding on behalf of the Mayor's Office only and not on behalf of other city departments. If you have any questions, please let us know.

Regards,

Hank Heckel

Dear Mayor Breed,

Thank you for attending today's full S.F. B.O.S. meeting. I very much was aligned with the nuanced legislative priorities you put forward and the collaborative spirit.

However, in response to Supervisor Preston's queries, you referenced a concern that out-of-County demand for City-sourced (and mandated) hotel rooms was potentially leaving the San Francisco homeless Black community de-prioritized for both short and long-term shelter (I'm paraphrasing if you'll forgive me).

Please provide me with the source-data the City compiles on out-of-County individual ATTEMPTS to access SF City/County-mandated hotel rooms and shelter space of all categories. Does the city attempt documented intake procedures or issue DENIAL OF SERVICE correspondence to each applicant? Is racial data collected during intake? Please explain.

I also ask for the data your office relies upon to make decisions on the PACE of housing our City's homeless neighbors. You've responded to concerns around delays in filling up hotel rooms repeatedly in multi-media statements by reminding people of 'the reality' of getting our homeless neighbors housed ASAP.

Respectfully,

Randall Sloan

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

Dear San Francisco Board of Supervisors,

As a hotelier in California, I write in strong opposition to the proposed Healthy Buildings Ordinance that the Board of Supervisors is considering. This proposal far exceeds guidance from federal and state public health officials and will increase exposure risks for our employees and guests and likely force hotels to remain closed.

With hotels facing the worst economic crisis on record, nine times worse than September 11 and lower occupancy than the Great Depression, this ordinance jeopardizes small business hotel owners who could not afford to implement it and keep their doors open. It will force San Francisco hotels to shut down for the remainder of the year, putting many at risk at closing permanently and leading to thousands of jobs lost forever.

The ripple affect across San Francisco and California would result in hundreds of millions of dollars in tax revenue lost, impacting important funding for education, transportation, parks, and other vital government services.

Further, the ordinance contradicts federal and state health officials who recommend limiting personal interaction, not mandating that it occur on a daily basis.

The economic and health implications of the mandate would cause immense harm to our industry and put our employees at risk. I urge you to vote NO on the proposed ordinance and keep hotels open in San Francisco!

Dear San Francisco Board of Supervisors,

As a hotelier in San Francisco, I write in strong opposition to the proposed "Healthy Buildings Ordinance" that the Board of Supervisors is considering. This proposal far exceeds guidance from federal and state public health officials and will increase Covid-19 exposure risks for our employees and guests. It will also likely force hotels to remain closed.

Since February and into the unforeseeable future, hotels have endured the worst economic crisis on record. It is exponentially worse than the impact of the Great Depression, September 11, and the Great Recession combined, resulting in low occupancies and hotel closures. In turn, the pandemic has created vast unemployment among both hourly and management staff. Nearly 50% of the workers from the Palace Hotel live, work, and vote in San Francisco and they are your constituents that are among the ranks of the unemployed. The "Healthy Buildings Ordinance" also jeopardizes small business hotel owners who could not afford to implement the ordinance and keep their doors open for business. It will likely force many San Francisco hotels to suspend business operations for the remainder of the year. Additionally, it puts many hotels at risk of closing permanently which would result in thousands of jobs lost forever.

The "Healthy Buildings Ordinance" could cause a ripple affect across San Francisco and California, resulting in the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars in tax revenue, thus impacting important funding for education, transportation, parks, and other vital government services. Just to put it into perspective, my hotel has had mass group, leisure, and business travel cancelations resulting in room revenue declines in 2020 that equate to a drop in transient occupancy tax (TOT) of $6.50M compared to our plan for the year, and a drop of $6.23M in TOT compared to what the Palace generated and contributed in 2019 for the City. This $6.5M drop in City tax revenue is just for the Palace Hotel alone!

Furthermore, the ordinance contradicts federal and state health officials who recommend limiting personal interaction because the ordinance requires daily housekeeping service. We have learned from our hotels that are currently still opened and operating through the pandemic, that nearly all guests staying for multiple nights do not want daily housekeeping service as they wish to limit person to person contact and Covid-19 exposure risk.

The economic and health implications of the mandate would cause immense harm to our industry and put our employees at risk. I urge you to vote NO on the proposed ordinance and keep hotels open in San Francisco!

Best Regards,

CLIFTON CLARK

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear San Francisco Board of Supervisors,

As a hotelier in California, I write in strong opposition to the proposed Healthy Buildings Ordinance that the Board of Supervisors is considering. This proposal far exceeds guidance from federal and state public health officials and will increase exposure risks for our employees and guests and likely force hotels to remain closed.

With hotels facing the worst economic crisis on record, nine times worse than September 11 and lower occupancy than the Great Depression, this ordinance jeopardizes small business hotel owners who could not afford to implement it and keep their doors open. It will force San Francisco hotels to shut down for the remainder of the year, putting many at risk at closing permanently and leading to thousands of jobs lost forever.

The ripple affect across San Francisco and California would result in hundreds of millions of dollars in tax revenue lost, impacting important funding for education, transportation, parks, and other vital government services.

Further, the ordinance contradicts federal and state health officials who recommend limiting personal interaction, not mandating that it occur on a daily basis.

The economic and health implications of the mandate would cause immense harm to our industry and put our employees at risk.

I urge you to vote NO on the proposed ordinance and keep hotels open in San Francisco!

Sincerely,
Michelle Hyjek

Supervisors Yee, Fewer, and Mandelman,

The League of Pissed Off Voters has endorsed each of you multiple times, and we're proud of how our members helped get you into office. We consider you allies in our effort to build a progressive governing majority. In these unprecedented times, there is nothing more progressive you can do than vote for the emergency ordinance to secure hotel rooms for San Francisco's most vulnerable. #HotelsNotHospitalBeds

We know you will soon be grappling with how to balance a brutal budget deficit, and we understand it's unclear how much we will be reimbursed for the cost of these hotel rooms. But it is clearly a wise investment to minimize the spread of the coronavirus in our most vulnerable populations. And the moral argument is much more important and unequivocal than any fiscal argument: don't let our unhoused needlessly neighbors die on our streets!

Most urgently,

The San Francisco League of Pissed Off Voters

P.S. The lack of oversight on this failure to care for our homeless neighbors is one more reason we call on you to create a homelessness commission.

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express our strong opposition on behalf of Mirae Asset, Owner of Fairmont San Francisco, to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

Foremost we are committed to the wellbeing of our guests and employees and have maintained highest levels of responsibility required. We are puzzled how this ordinance will further enhance the current COVID19 guideline. If this provision is passed, it will only create additional financial liabilities to the owners and will become demotivating factor to reopen the hotel. We wish to weather this together, not shifting ones risk or liability to another. Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Thank you for your help.

Best Regards,

Kenneth Han

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Subject: Strategic Hotels & Resorts Opposition to Emergency Ordinance File #200638 Cleaning and Disease Prevention
Date: Monday, June 29, 2020 6:36:06 AM

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

Dear Supervisors,

On behalf of Strategic Hotels & Resorts LLC, the owner through its subsidiary of The Westin St. Francis San Francisco on Union Square, I am writing to express strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines. As well, our industry's leading management companies have also already adopted stringent COVID 19-era protocols for health and safety such as Marriott's Committed to Clean program.

We believe the proposed ordinance will place employees at our hotel at increased risk of contracting COVID 19 as a result of its daily room cleaning mandate, which will inherently result in greater close-quarters interaction between employees and guests. We are aware of no scientific data supporting the proposition that daily room cleaning will reduce the transmission of COVID 19 – and common sense and logic together dictate that there would only be greater COVID 19 transmission as a result of the greater close-quarters interactions from daily cleaning. The ordinance's "every 30 minutes" cleaning requirement ignores the reality that competent and professional hotel management companies with decades of experience have already developed stringent requirements to provide safe guest and employee experiences in light of the COVID 19 threat. And the ordinance's daily linen and towel cleaning requirements are obviously contrary to City's environmental and sustainability goals.

Lastly, please understand that if the ordinance is passed, we expect many hotels in San Francisco will simply keep their doors shut rather than face its burdensome requirements.

For all these reasons, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Thank you for your attention to this,

Dave

Subject: San Francisco Healthy Building Ordinance

Dear San Francisco Board of Supervisors,

As a hotelier in San Francisco, I write in strong opposition to the proposed "Healthy Buildings Ordinance" that the Board of Supervisors is considering. This proposal far exceeds guidance from federal and state public health officials and will increase Covid-19 exposure risks for our employees and guests. It will also likely force hotels to remain closed.

Since February and into the unforeseeable future, hotels have endured the worst economic crisis on record. It is exponentially worse than the impact of the Great Depression, September 11, and the Great Recession combined, resulting in low occupancies and hotel closures. In turn, the pandemic has created vast unemployment among both hourly and management staff. Nearly 50% of the workers from the Palace Hotel live, work, and vote in San Francisco and they are your constituents that are among the ranks of the unemployed. The “Healthy Buildings Ordinance” also jeopardizes small business hotel owners who could not afford to implement the ordinance and keep their doors open for business. It will likely force many San Francisco hotels to suspend business operations for the remainder of the year. Additionally, it puts many hotels at risk of closing permanently which would result in thousands of jobs lost forever.

The “Healthy Buildings Ordinance” could cause a ripple affect across San Francisco and California, resulting in the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars in tax revenue, thus impacting important funding for education, transportation, parks, and other vital government services. Just to put it into perspective, my hotel has had mass group, leisure, and business travel cancelations resulting in room revenue declines in 2020 that equate to a drop in transient occupancy tax (TOT) of $6.50M compared to our plan for the year, and a drop of $6.23M in TOT compared to what the Palace generated and contributed in 2019 for the City. This $6.5M drop in City tax revenue is just for the Palace Hotel alone!

Furthermore, the ordinance contradicts federal and state health officials who recommend limiting personal interaction because the ordinance requires daily housekeeping service. We have learned from our hotels that are currently still opened and operating through the pandemic, that nearly all guests staying for multiple nights do not want daily housekeeping service as they wish to limit person to person contact and Covid-19 exposure risk.

The economic and health implications of the mandate would cause immense harm to our industry and put our employees at risk. I urge you to vote NO on the proposed ordinance and keep hotels open in San Francisco!

Best Regards,

CLIFTON

San Francisco Board of Supervisors

RE: Opposing “Healthy Buildings Ordinance”

Dear Supervisors:

On behalf of the American Hotel & Lodging Association (AHLA), the sole national association representing all segments of the U.S. lodging industry, including iconic global brands, hotel owners and franchisees, lodging real estate investment trusts (REITs), hotel management companies, independent properties, bed and breakfasts, state hotel associations, and industry suppliers, we thank you for your leadership during this unprecedented public health and economic crisis.

To prepare America’s hotels to safely welcome back guests and employees as the economy reopens, AHLA recently launched “Safe Stay,” an industry-wide, enhanced standard of health and safety protocols. The standards of Safe Stay were developed with the input of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and under the guidance of an Advisory Council comprised of industry leaders representing all segments of the hotel industry, and in conjunction with public health experts to advance best practices for protecting against the coronavirus.

Four focus areas comprise the standards of Safe Stay: employee and guest health, employees' responsibilities, cleaning and disinfecting products and protocols, and physical distancing. As hotels across the nation begin welcoming guests back to the properties, employees will be trained to implement the heightened safety and cleanliness protocols developed to mitigate the spread of coronavirus. Safe Stay represents the top priority for the industry, the health and safety of guests and employees.

As the San Francisco hotel community seeks to rebound from the collapse of demand due to the coronavirus pandemic, ensuring the safety of guests and hotel associates is paramount. Unfortunately, the misguided "Healthy Buildings Ordinance" before the Board of Supervisors goes well beyond any public health guidance and will increase exposure risks for our associates and our guests to COVID-19 and create an incredible strain on business operations.

Therefore, AHHA strongly urges that you oppose this measure so that the health and safety of guests and employees can remain in the hands of public health experts.

The proposed ordinance goes beyond public health guidance in the following areas:

- Requiring the regular cleaning at least every 30 minutes of dozens of locations, furniture, fixtures and equipment exponentially increases COVID-19 exposure opportunities between guests and employees, risks further health impacts due to excessive use of cleaning products and is operationally impossible.
- Cleaning and disinfectant requirements for porous surfaces contradict CDC guidance. ^[1]
- Mandating that employees open non-automatic doors for guests creates further exposure risks due to proximity.
- Daily cleaning of guestrooms is not grounded in public health or industry guidance and creates additional opportunities for COVID-19 exposure between guests and employees. Many jurisdictions have provided guidance or mandated that daily guestroom cleaning must be upon the request of a hotel guest.

And consumers are telling us they don't want the interaction with hotel staff either. A recent poll conducted by Morning Consult reveals that a majority of frequent travelers do NOT want daily room cleaning, and 65% would be uncomfortable with housekeeping entering their room without advance permission.

With hotels facing the worst economic crisis on record, nine times worse than September 11 and lower occupancy than the Great Depression, this ordinance jeopardizes small business hotel owners who could not afford to implement it and keep their doors open. It will force San Francisco hotels to shut down

for the remainder of the year, putting many at risk at closing permanently and leading to 35,000 jobs lost and up to $800 million in tax revenue loss impacting funding for schools, transportation and other vital government services. The ripple affect across San Francisco and California would result in hundreds of millions of dollars in tax revenue lost, impacting important funding for education, transportation, parks, and other vital government services.

We thank you for considering this request and for your continued work on behalf of the residents of San Francisco during this historic public health and economic crisis. We look forward to working with you to rebuild our industry so that we can continue contributing to the success of your state.

RE: Opposing “Healthy Buildings Ordinance”

Dear Supervisors:

On behalf of the American Hotel & Lodging Association (AHLA), the sole national association representing all segments of the U.S. lodging industry, including iconic global brands, hotel owners and franchisees, lodging real estate investment trusts (REITs), hotel management companies, independent properties, bed and breakfasts, state hotel associations, and industry suppliers, we thank you for your leadership during this unprecedented public health and economic crisis.

To prepare America’s hotels to safely welcome back guests and employees as the economy reopens, AHLA recently launched “Safe Stay,” an industry-wide, enhanced standard of health and safety protocols. The standards of Safe Stay were developed with the input of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and under the guidance of an Advisory Council comprised of industry leaders representing all segments of the hotel industry, and in conjunction with public health experts to advance best practices for protecting against the coronavirus.

Four focus areas comprise the standards of Safe Stay: employee and guest health, employees’ responsibilities, cleaning and disinfecting products and protocols, and physical distancing. As hotels across the nation begin welcoming guests back to the properties, employees will be trained to implement the heightened safety and cleanliness protocols developed to mitigate the spread of coronavirus. Safe Stay represents the top priority for the industry, the health and safety of guests and employees.

As the San Francisco hotel community seeks to rebound from the collapse of demand due to the coronavirus pandemic, ensuring the safety of guests and hotel associates is paramount. Unfortunately, the misguided “Healthy Buildings Ordinance” before the Board of Supervisors goes well beyond any public health guidance and will increase exposure risks for our associates and our guests to COVID-19 and create an incredible strain on business operations.

Therefore, AHLA strongly urges that you oppose this measure so that the health and safety of guests and employees can remain in the hands of public health experts.

The proposed ordinance goes beyond public health guidance in the following areas:

- Requiring the regular cleaning at least every 30 minutes of dozens of locations, furniture, fixtures and equipment exponentially increases COVID-19 exposure opportunities between guests and employees, risks further health impacts due to excessive use of cleaning products and is operationally impossible.

- Cleaning and disinfectant requirements for porous surfaces contradict CDC guidance.¹
- Mandating that employees open non-automatic doors for guests creates further exposure risks due to proximity.
- Daily cleaning of guestrooms is not grounded in public health or industry guidance and creates additional opportunities for COVID-19 exposure between guests and employees. Many jurisdictions have provided guidance or mandated that daily guestroom cleaning must be upon the request of a hotel guest.

And consumers are telling us they don't want the interaction with hotel staff either. A recent poll conducted by Morning Consult reveals that a majority of frequent travelers do NOT want daily room cleaning, and 65% would be uncomfortable with housekeeping entering their room without advance permission.

Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Intereal Corporation's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? This is a notable omission. Any and all facilities should follow the same standards.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance, and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance.

San Francisco Board of Supervisors
1 Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett Place
San Francisco, CA 94102

Re: Opposition to Emergency Ordinance - Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings
File #200638

I am writing on behalf of the members of the San Francisco Maintenance Contractors Association (SFMCA). Our Association includes union janitorial contractors which service approximately 90% of the office space in San Francisco, collectively employing nearly 4,000 janitors in the City. SFMCA members include Able Services, ABM, Lewis & Taylor, Genesis and Clean-A-Rama.

The Association respectfully opposes the passage of Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings (File #200638).

The US Centers for Disease Control (CDC) has already adopted and published detailed cleaning standards for office building environments. Cal-OSHA has also issued statewide guidelines for disinfection which are specifically applicable to office buildings. The CDC and Cal-OSHA guidelines focus on proper periodic disinfection of occupied areas and high-touch surfaces. The guidance is practical and is being followed right now in San Francisco office buildings.

The proposed Emergency Ordinance seeks to dramatically alter the CDC and Cal-OSHA guidance, and instead creates a mandatory definition of “high traffic area” which includes virtually every surface in an office building, without regard to whether the area is actually occupied or truly a “high traffic” area. These surfaces are then subjected to mandatory disinfection every 30 minutes – again without reference to whether the area is occupied or whether surfaces are frequently touched. Meeting these inflexible requirements would require a literal army of cleaning staff to be assigned to each office building, with cleaning staff forced to work in close proximity to office tenants and visitors in order to comply with the 30-minute cleaning frequencies. Rather than reducing risks, the presence of additional workers in close proximity to one another would actually increase the risk to workers, building tenants and visitors.

We are troubled to see that – apart from hotels, office buildings and their contractors – the proposed Emergency Ordinance has been carefully drafted to exclude any public office buildings in San Francisco, and also ignores other “open to the public” businesses operating in the City. Shouldn’t all “open to the public” businesses in San Francisco be treated equally? Why does the Ordinance target only on hotels and privately operated office buildings?

Finally, we note that the proposed Emergency Ordinance creates a new private right of action that would allow a broad class of individuals to file lawsuits in San Francisco Superior Court, with attorney fees and exemplary damages available as remedies. All other employers in San Francisco (and statewide) would only be subject to administrative complaints under existing Cal-OSHA rules. The unfair targeting of the hotel and office sector in San Francisco is objectionable, and will only serve to harm these two important industries for the City.

SFMCA members are extremely committed to supporting the continued return to work in commercial office buildings in a way that protects public health and safety. Our cleaners are on the front lines implementing sanitation best practices every day but, unfortunately, we did not have an opportunity to share any of this expertise during the development of the standards contained in the Emergency Ordinance. For all of these reasons, we respectfully oppose passage of Emergency Ordinance #200638.

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express Pebblebrook Hotel Trust's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638.

We own twelve (12) hotels in San Francisco and employ approximately 1,400 workers. We have been a strong supporter of the city because of its rich history, diverse and talented workforce, and its world-renowned cultural landmarks. The city showed great leadership and foresight when the COVID pandemic struck, which helped to mitigate a severe outbreak in San Francisco. We supported the city's shelter-at-home policies and recommendations and immediately suspended operations at the vast majority of our hotels in the city to protect our guests, our hard-working employees, and the communities that our hotels are located.

As many cities and communities across the country prepare to reopen again, the hotel industry has made significant progress working closely with the CDC to develop scientifically proven, stringent cleaning standards, procedures, and guidelines for the health and safety of hotel guests and workers. These standards have been formalized with the help of the American Hotel & Lodging Association ("AHLA"), the California Hotel & Lodging Association ("CHLA"), and the Hotel Council of San Francisco. The major hotel brands are supporting these efforts as well. Hilton's CleanStay program was created with assistance from the Mayo Clinic. Marriott's Committed to Clean program was developed after consultation with scientists, professors, and healthcare specialists. IHG's Clean Promise program was created with the Cleveland Clinic. The hotel industry is deeply committed to having a safe experience for our guests and employees, which we must provide for the public to have the confidence to stay and work in hotels.

We were surprised when San Francisco instituted its own hotel cleaning standards without partnering or consulting with the hotel industry. Moreover, these standards are not supported by the CDC or any other major health institute. This contradicts San Francisco's practice of following CDC guidelines for many of its health guidelines on COVID. The Board of Supervisors should not be legislating cleaning standards for hotels.

For example, San Francisco's mandate that guest rooms should be cleaned daily would result in more frequent contact and interaction between employees and guests. Many guests request that their guestroom not be cleaned daily, but the city's requirement would disregard this request. Physical distancing is critical to slowing the spread of COVID, so why would the City mandate that occupied rooms be deep cleaned daily? Forcing employees into an overnight guest's living environment, which includes all of their belongings, does not seem like the right thing to do. These practices directly conflict with the CDC's recommendations. Not only does this put our employees and guests at higher risk, but we believe this could also cause increased liability for the city of San Francisco, since these mandates conflict with the CDC and scientific research, as well as the detailed procedures and policies that the AHHA and CHLA have developed.

We cannot support the city's cleaning standards or the additional work rules, which add substantial additional costs without any tangible improvement to guest and worker safety and are not supported by the CDC. This legislation, if passed, will restrict many hotels, including ten (10) of our twelve (12) hotels, from reopening. This would be devastating to the vast majority of the 1,400 hard-working men and women at our hotels who depend on these jobs to provide for their families.

In addition, San Francisco benefits from a vibrant (and reopened) hotel industry, not only to provide 25,000 jobs for workers and their families, but also for the tax revenue the city needs during this challenging period. During 2019, we paid over $58.5 million in taxes, which includes $2.7 million in gross receipts taxes, almost $37 million in occupancy tax, over $5 million in payroll, sales and commercial rent taxes, and over $14 million in property taxes. Moreover, our company has reinvested more than $250 million into San Francisco's economy over the last ten years, improving our hotels through various construction and renovation projects. With 10 of our 12 hotels closed, the city is losing out on critical revenue and taxes every day. Moreover, these recent actions cause us to question making future investments in San Francisco.

Again, we recommend that you do not approve this ordinance. Please allow us to reopen our hotels, rehire our workers, and operate under the scientifically proven operating standards, procedures, and guidelines that we have spent considerable time and effort developing.

We look forward to continuing to be part of the San Francisco community and partnering with the city and community as the city recovers from this devastating global pandemic.

Dear Supervisors,

I am writing to express The Donatello's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of our employees and guests is our industry's number one priority. However, health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco Hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines.

This is already a very difficult year for our hotel. If these additional standards are put in place, it is going to put even further financial and operational strain on our property and will likely lead to even more reductions (both in team size and amenities). We are already operating on very tight margins, and this will only cause us to have to further reduce our business and thus also the size of our associate base. This will hurt our hard working staff and our business, and is not good for our great city.

Again, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

RE: RiverRock Real Estate Group Opposition to Emergency Ordinance File #200638, Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards

Dear Supervisors:

I am writing to express RiverRock Real Estate Group's strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings, File #200638. Health guidelines should be determined by medical experts within the Department of Public Health, CAL-OSHA, and the Centers for Disease Control, not by the Board of Supervisors.

Of particular concern is the Emergency Order's requirement to clean and disinfect high-traffic areas every 30 minutes. What is the science behind this proposed requirement? This is impracticable. Disinfection, when done properly, is laborious and slow, with most disinfectants requiring several minutes of contact time.

There is a lengthy list of high-traffic areas, including all surfaces in lobbies, hallways, stairways, etc., and to comply with the ordinance would require an army of employees disinfecting continuously. Further, the ordinance does not specifically demarcate what surfaces need to be on a 30-minute cleaning cycle within a commercial office building.

And why are public buildings exempt? This is a notable omission. Any and all facilities should follow the same standards.

We ask that you not approve this proposed ordinance, and allow the medical experts to provide relevant guidance. Sincerely,

Dear Supervisors

I am writing on behalf of RLJ Lodging Trust to express our opposition to the proposed Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. RLJ is a publicly traded real estate investment trust and owns the Courtyard Union Square and the Marriott Union Square hotels.

The current COVID -19 pandemic has severely challenged the hospitality sector. The hotel industry has been forced to take dramatic measures to address the precipitous drop in lodging demand nationwide, with San Francisco being one of the most impacted markets in the United States. We also have had to adjust long held operating standards to mitigate the impact of this new environment. Considerations for the health and safety of our employees and guests remain our industry's number one priority. However, we believe that health and sanitation guidelines should be developed by our industry in conjunction with local departments of health and other medical experts, and not legislated by the Board of Supervisors. Working with our hotel brands and management companies, we have already implemented stringent new COVID 19-cleaning protocols to ensure the health and safety of our employees and guests through such initiatives as Hilton CleanStay and Marriott's Committed to Clean programs.

Although well intentioned, we believe the approach being considered by the Board could have many unintended consequences. For example, daily room cleanings will increase potential exposure risks to both employees and guests through increased physical interactions, and daily linen and towel cleaning requirements run counter to our efforts to operate our hotels in a more environmentally sustainable way. Many of these requirements could potentially increase our costs to operate in an already challenged environment with little or no proven benefit. Finally, the ordinance could limit our flexibility to adapt to an ever-changing environment as knowledge of this disease evolves.

Our industry has every incentive provide a safe and healthy environment for our guests and employees. We ask that the Board not adopt this ordinance and allow the hospitality industry to continue to work with the appropriate medical experts to achieve this outcome.

Thank You,
Leslie Hale

Dear Supervisors,

On behalf of the owner of The Ritz-Carlton San Francisco, CWI 2 San Francisco Hotel, LP, I am writing to express strong opposition to the Emergency Ordinance – Cleaning and Disease Prevention Standards in Tourist Hotels and Large Commercial Office Buildings File #200638. The health and safety of the hotel's employees and guests has always been the hotel's highest priority. This is particularly an important concern for us in the midst of the COVID-19 crisis. Simply put, the hotel strongly requests the proposed Ordinance be rejected; health guidelines must be determined by the medical experts in the Department of Health, not by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco hotels already have guidelines developed by the Hotel Council of San Francisco, California Hotel & Lodging, and American Hotel & Lodging that are all based on medical expert guidance from CDC, CDPH and CAL OSHA guidelines. Additionally, the Ritz-Carlton brand, a subsidiary of Marriott International, has also already adopted stringent COVID 19-era protocols for health and safety, such as Marriott's Committed to Clean program.

We believe the proposed ordinance will place employees at our hotel at increased risk of contracting COVID 19 as a result of its daily room cleaning mandate, which will inherently result in greater close-quarters interaction between employees and guests. We are aware of no scientific data supporting the proposition that daily room cleaning will reduce the transmission of COVID 19. Moreover, the ordinance's "every 30 minutes" cleaning requirement ignores the reality that competent and professional hotel management companies with decades of experience have already developed stringent requirements to provide safe guest and employee experiences in light of the ongoing COVID-19 threat. Finally, the ordinance's daily linen and towel cleaning requirements are obviously contrary to City's environmental and sustainability goals.

Lastly, please understand that if the ordinance is passed, we anticipate many hotels in San Francisco will simply stay closed, rather than face the requirements.

For all these reasons, we ask that you not approve this ordinance and allow the medical experts to provide the guidance.

Thank you.

Dear Supervisor,

I am a San Francisco hotel worker. Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance. We need this law to make sure no company takes shortcuts when it comes to cleaning.

I've been laid off since the start of this crisis. And I want to go back to work. But not until it's safe for everyone. When that day comes, I want San Francisco to be able to tell tourists everywhere that our city has the highest cleaning standards in the world, and there is nowhere better to travel than the city by the Bay.

Please vote for the Healthy Buildings Ordinance.

Sincerely,

San Francisco Board of Supervisors
One Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett Place
Room 244
San Francisco, CA 94102

RE: Opposing "Healthy Buildings Ordinance"

Dear Supervisors:

On behalf of the American Hotel & Lodging Association (AHLA), the sole national association representing all segments of the U.S. lodging industry, including iconic global brands, hotel owners and franchisees, lodging real estate investment trusts (REITs), hotel management companies, independent properties, bed and breakfasts, state hotel associations, and industry suppliers, we thank you for your leadership during this unprecedented public health and economic crisis.

To prepare America's hotels to safely welcome back guests and employees as the economy reopens, AHLA recently launched "Safe Stay," an industry-wide, enhanced standard of health and safety protocols. The standards of Safe Stay were developed with the input of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and under the guidance of an Advisory Council comprised of industry leaders representing all segments of the hotel industry, and in conjunction with public health experts to advance best practices for protecting against the coronavirus.

Four focus areas comprise the standards of Safe Stay: employee and guest health, employees' responsibilities, cleaning and disinfecting products and protocols, and physical distancing. As hotels across the nation begin welcoming guests back to the properties, employees will be trained to implement the heightened safety and cleanliness protocols developed to mitigate the spread of coronavirus. Safe Stay represents the top priority for the industry, the health and safety of guests and employees.

As the San Francisco hotel community seeks to rebound from the collapse of demand due to the coronavirus pandemic, ensuring the safety of guests and hotel associates is paramount. Unfortunately, the misguided "Healthy Buildings Ordinance" before the Board of Supervisors goes well beyond any public health guidance and will increase exposure risks for our associates and our guests to COVID-19 and create an incredible strain on business operations.

Therefore, AHHA strongly urges that you oppose this measure so that the health and safety of guests and employees can remain in the hands of public health experts.

The proposed ordinance goes beyond public health guidance in the following areas:

- Requiring the regular cleaning at least every 30 minutes of dozens of locations, furniture, fixtures and equipment exponentially increases COVID-19 exposure opportunities between guests and employees, risks further health impacts due to excessive use of cleaning products and is operationally impossible.
- Cleaning and disinfectant requirements for porous surfaces contradict CDC guidance. [\[1\]](#)
- Mandating that employees open non-automatic doors for guests creates further exposure risks due to proximity.
- Daily cleaning of guestrooms is not grounded in public health or industry guidance and creates additional opportunities for COVID-19 exposure between guests and employees. Many jurisdictions have provided guidance or mandated that daily guestroom cleaning must be upon the request of a hotel guest.

And consumers are telling us they don't want the interaction with hotel staff either. A recent poll conducted by Morning Consult reveals that a majority of frequent travelers do NOT want daily room cleaning, and 65% would be uncomfortable with housekeeping entering their room without advance permission.

With hotels facing the worst economic crisis on record, nine times worse than September 11 and lower occupancy than the Great Depression, this ordinance jeopardizes small business hotel owners who could not afford to implement it and keep their doors open. It will force San Francisco hotels to shut down

for the remainder of the year, putting many at risk at closing permanently and leading to 35,000 jobs lost and up to $800 million in tax revenue loss impacting funding for schools, transportation and other vital government services. The ripple affect across San Francisco and California would result in hundreds of millions of dollars in tax revenue lost, impacting important funding for education, transportation, parks, and other vital government services.

We thank you for considering this request and for your continued work on behalf of the residents of San Francisco during this historic public health and economic crisis. We look forward to working with you to rebuild our industry so that we can continue contributing to the success of your state.

Sincerely,

Dear Board of Supervisors,

Please note that I submitted my show of support for the redevelopment of this property through the comment field on your website on June 27, 2020 (See below for the message I got upon submission), but I have not received confirmation of its receipt. I would, therefore, appreciate urgent consideration for this matter.

Plans for the property at 1420 Taraval were approved by the SF Planning Commission, and I am writing in support of moving forward with those plans. It is my firm belief that the property in question has no historical value, and moving forward with these plans will provide housing that San Francisco desperately needs. There continues to be a housing shortage, and developing the property in question is likely to offer jobs, through the development process, at a time when that too is desperately needed.

Lastly, please consider that the current property is in less than ideal condition, and may even be considered an eyesore.

For all of these reasons, I strongly support moving forward with the plans approved by the SF Planning Commission and would to request the same consideration from the Board of Supervisors.

Thank you in advance,

Tony De Souza

1420 Taraval St.

Dear Board:

I write to express my support for the proposed project on Taraval St. San Francisco's housing crisis is perhaps the worst in the nation, and our current pandemic only serves to highlight the critical importance of building more housing. The proposed project would provide housing for three families as opposed to one, and would have the added benefit of providing ground-floor commercial space. At a time when businesses are being driven from the city, newer, better commercial space is particularly beneficial.

In addition, unemployment is approaching levels not seen since the Great Depression. The construction process would provide needed employment for a team of workers at a time when many construction projects have ground to a halt.

I urge the board to approve this project and permit construction to commence.

Sincerely,

Christopher D. Strunk

Dear Board:

I write to express my support for the proposed project on Taraval St. Both of my children went to St. Cecilia School near this address and I routinely patronize the businesses on Taraval St. This building in its present form is very ugly and does not fit well into the surrounding scheme. A new building with three condos would provide a lot more housing for the area, and this city is in desperate need of new housing.

Please approve this project! The neighborhood will be better for it.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

We are writing to support the above mentioned project on 1420 Taraval Street. We have seen many new buildings go up in our neighborhood and would be in support of this project moving forward.

San Francisco needs new housing and improvements to existing older properties. This is an older house that has no historical significance and it would benefit the community to rebuild it.

This project will also create jobs and employment opportunities for many people during the difficult times that we are all navigating now.

Dear Board of supervisors;

Please allow the Mandels to demolish the house at 1420 Taraval in order to build quality housing for San Franciscans for these reasons:

- the house has no historical importance

Dear Board of Supervisors,

We are writing in support of the new property being developed at 1420 Taraval Street, San Francisco. This property will provide essential housing spaces for San Francisco's underserved population. In addition, the existing house at 1420 Taraval Street lacks any historical significance, is outdated and its rundown appearance creates an eyesore that degrades the neighborhood. A modern building will blend in with the commercial surroundings and fix this eyesore.

For most of the past 30 years, our family lived near 1420 Taraval, at 415 Castenada Avenue in the contiguous Forest Hill neighborhood. We continue to come back to this area often, visiting friends and frequenting local Taraval stores – Guerra's Meats, the SF Wine Trader Company, Safeway, and others. We also have three young adult children who have trouble finding affordable housing in the City. We applaud the Mandel's for replacing their home (they now live in the St. Francis Wood neighborhood) with three condos plus commercial space – a win-win for all! We would be remiss not to mention the high character and competent qualities of Peter and Paula Mandel. Peter was born and raised in San Francisco and his three children have been born and raised here – proud St. Cecelia and SI students. They love this City and want only to see it thrive. They will carry out this project with the utmost consideration to the neighborhood and community.

We appreciate your time and urge you to allow the development of this crucial project that offers so many benefits for the City.

I would like to voice my support for the development of 1420 Taraval St. I've lived & operated several small business in San Francisco for nearly 3 decades.

The current pandemic has only added to our housing problems. Developers are holding off on projects until the dust settles. Business are closing left & right & people are leaving our city in droves. The city needs projects like this to create employment, help off set our housing shortage & benefit from the injection of capital into our city tax base.

I strongly agree with this development at 1420 Taraval Street.

Dear Board of Supervisors,

I am writing today to support the proposed project at 1420 Taraval Street .

The current building is an eyesore and per the historical report the existing structure holds no significance.

The project was designed working in conjunction with the planning department and following planning protocols to produce a design that is in keeping with the Taraval transit corridor.

In these uncertain times investment of this type should be welcomed as its brings much needed Construction jobs and in addition will bring much needed tax revenue to the city once the project is finished .

This project will also produce much needed Family type housing.

Seeing as this project has already gone through the planning commission and they voted not to DR I urge you to endorse the intent of the Planning Dept and The planning commission and approve this project as designed.

Thank you and best,

Hello Board of Supervisors,

My name is Madeleine Galletti and my husband is Pedro Galletti. We are business owners and home owners in the West Portal area of San Francisco.

We frequently pass by the area of 1420 Taraval. The house in question looks very out of place amongst commercial space and other small apartment buildings. It would be much better replaced with a new building in it's place to blend in with the other buildings around it. Other points to note about the location at 1420 Taraval:

- The house has no historical significance
- It will create jobs and employment through the building process
- In this time where many are unemployed - it will certainly give employment to some who now find themselves unemployed!

Please consider this appeal carefully!

Your Sincerely,

Pedro and Madeleine Galletti

Dear Board of Supervisors,

We are writing to oppose the appeal of and support the proposed construction of a multi-family dwelling at 1420 Taraval Street. We live about a mile away, have lived in the neighborhood for over 20 years, and pass by this block several times per week. We have given this project careful consideration, and believe there are many reasons why this should be approved.

First, the single family house does not fit in with the neighborhood. The current house, having no historical value or significance, is on a block with mostly apartment buildings and commercial space. It's one-story concrete wall at street level is an eyesore and often tagged with graffiti. The L Taraval MUNI line runs down the middle of the road and fast food chain restaurants are nearby on surrounding blocks. Noisy trains run early morning and late night only steps from the front door.

Secondly, we understand that the city of San Francisco is trying to increase housing, especially along transit corridors. This project would do just that, adding three units. To be honest, it is the most appropriate and responsible place to accomplish this goal as the neighborhood is already mostly multi-family buildings.

We are in favor of this project as it would beautify the neighborhood, add housing units, and also keep our local economy moving forward when we desperately need it. Please feel free to contact us if you have any questions or need more information.

Thank you,
Cynthia Coyne and Chris Pollino

My Appeal with evidence

My previous hearing Statement (6-3-20)

I am a local disability and community activist and also an appellant in the case to protect the 24th Street Mission trees.

The Department of Public Works (DPW) has taken it upon themselves to illegally cut down healthy public fruit trees during an appeals process. San Francisco Public Works Code Section 811 has clear penalties for this, yet the Board of Appeals has Been giving a "kiss on the wrist" and a rubber stamp to this apartment for violating the appeals process on numerous occasions. They do not take the role seriously in protecting the public good.

It is already unconscionable to be destroying our urban canopy and cutting down healthy fruit trees during a health crisis which is worsened greatly by pollution. That they are doing so illegally, only adds to that abuse of the public trust.

I urge the public to attend tonight's meeting at 5 PM and to write a letter to the board of appeals and your local supervisor.

I kindly request the Mayors Office on Disability to submit a complaint for the ongoing accessibility violations mentioned in my appeals brief and during the hearing and communicate with me about what is necessary to process such a complaint.

I urge the Board of Supervisors to step in and correct this illegal behavior from DPW, to fine this department and use the money collected to plant more trees in our urban environment, which continues to have the smallest urban canopy of any major American city, behind New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, and others.

It is unfathomable, that during the time of COVID-19, San Francisco's Department of Public Works and Bureau of Urban Forestry are moving forward to cut down healthy, safe fruit trees in the Bayview that pose no risk to anyone. This is in stark contrast to new evidence that shows that increasing air pollution also increases the risk of infection and mortality rates from COVID-19. Subject: BOS Budget & Legislative Analyst Report vs. Reservoir Development Agreement

Land Use and Transportation Committee, Budget & Finance Committee, BOS:

The enacting Ordinance for the Development Agreement states:

The Board of Supervisors finds that due to current exigencies, the number of analyses of the Project that have been conducted, and the depth of analysis and sophistication required to appraise the Project Site, an Appraisal Review of the Project Site is not necessary and waives the Administrative Code Section 23.3 requirement of an Appraisal Review as it relates to the Project Site.

Schedule 2-2 of the Development Agreement states:

In recognition of the Fiscal Feasibility Report adopted by the Board of Supervisor as Resolution 85-18 and the depth of analysis and sophistication required to appraise the Project Site in connection with the sale of the Project Site, the Appraisal Review required by Section 23.3 is waived.

Resolution 85-18's Budget & Legislative Analyst's Fiscal Feasibility Report is cited to support bypassing Appraisal Review. However, the Budget & Legislative Analyst Report says the exact opposite. This is what the 3/9/2018 Report really says:

The price that Reservoir Community Partners will pay SFPUC to acquire the site will be informed by a cash flow analysis that takes into account the development's 33 percent affordability requirement, and by an independent appraisal and appraisal review conducted in accordance with the requirements set out in Administrative Code Chapter 23.

RECOMMENDATION: Preparation of a rigorous, independent cash flow analysis...to ensure that land price paid to SFPUC ...are maximized.

The Budget & Legislative Analyst Report affirmatively calls for compliance with the requirements of Administrative Code 23.3 to protect the public interest. Instead, the Enacting Ordinance and the Development surrenders the public interest to by gifting public land to a private developer joint venture for dirt cheap.

Do not approve the enacting Ordinance for the Development Agreement. Do not waive the requirement of Administrative Code 23.3 for independent, objective Appraisal Review.

Protect the public interest. Do not be a party to a corrupt permanent giveaway of public land at $15.95 per square feet.

Land & Transportation Committee, BOS, BRCAC, D7 Supervisor Yee:

The Balboa Reservoir Development Agreement's affordability restriction expires after 57 years. 57 years is not "in perpetuity" as it had been deceptively marketed by OEWD, Planning Dept, and Avalon-Bridge.

The situation described in the San Mateo Daily Journal article below should serve as a warning of what lies ahead.

Foster City residents living in affordable units are encountering a crisis because of expiration of affordability restrictions. The same will happen at the Balboa Project.

After 57 years, the patient Reservoir developers will have hit the jackpot when they own everything without restrictions that they bought at a giveaway price.

Don't be party to this Privatization Scam!

Here's the Foster City story:

Affordable rents to # expire at Foster City apartment building

More than 70 facing massive rent increases they say they can't afford

By Zachary Clark Daily Journal staff

- Mar 7, 2020

A Foster City apartment building's below-market rate program will soon expire, causing 74 renters, including seniors with disabilities and families, to face rent increases with some more than six times what they currently pay.

Located at 700 Bounty Drive and owned by Essex Property Trust, the 490-unit Foster's Landing Apartments entered into an agreement with the city in 1986 to keep 15% of units affordable for more than three decades. That agreement will soon sunset.

On Dec. 31, 40 of the building's below-market rate units will become market-rate ones, while rents for the other 24 affordable units will become market rate over the next two years.

While the residents aren't being evicted from their apartments, the enormous rent increases will mean many if not all of them will have to relocate. They're fearful they'll be forced to leave an area that has been their home for decades and some are worried they'll soon be homeless.

“This leaves a lot of families in a very vulnerable place,” said Corrine Warren, whose mother has been a resident at Foster’s Landing for 33 years. “This has caused my mom a lot of stress. We’re not sure what to do. We don’t know what’s going to happen.”

Residents of the below-market rate units at Foster’s Landing currently pay in rent 30% of their monthly income. For Warren’s mother, that comes out to $800 per month for a two-bedroom apartment. Starting Jan. 1, she’ll have to pay around $4,200 per month for it.

Barbara Grossetti, also a Foster’s Landing resident, currently pays $500 a month for an apartment that by the same time will likely cost about $3,200 per month.

“We have disabled people, people in their 90s here, families, single parents and seniors like me living on Social Security,” she said. “They have nowhere to go. They’ll be homeless.

“Legally [Essex] has the right to do this, but morally they don’t,” she added. “It’s all about greed, that’s what it comes down to. They’ll get so much money for these apartments.”

Grossetti moved into Foster’s Landing three years ago after being on an affordable housing wait list for six years. She said at the time she wasn’t told her below-market rate rents will soon expire.

The tenants acknowledge Essex’s legal right to charge market rate rents, but feel they should at least be granted more time to find a new home.

“Since my mother has been there 33 years I think it’s fair to give her one to three years time before the new rates begin,” Warren said. “But even then it’d be really difficult to find anything. I’ve called a few places and the wait list is between five and 10 years.”

Essex only wanted to comment on the situation in a statement. In it, Barb Pak, a senior vice president for the company, said notifications were sent to residents over a year ago “to provide ample time to prepare for the transition” with follow-up notifications delivered recently.

“The city is aware of all tenants who have expiring leases and we hope the city will help provide alternatives,” the statement adds. Essex purchased the building and assumed the affordable housing agreement with the city in 2014.

At a meeting Monday, Charlie Bronitsky, a former Foster City mayor and land use lawyer, asked the current council to discuss the situation at its next meeting and form a committee to explore potential solutions for the tenants. The council appeared amenable to his proposal.

Councilman Sam Hindi has already begun working with the tenants as well as the office of U.S. Rep. Jackie Speier, D-San Mateo, to see what can be done to support the tenants.

“It’s a tragedy,” he said of the tenants’ uncertain future. “The city wants to preserve all these below-market rate units no question about it. We need all hands on deck and I will not leave any stone unturned to try to get safety and a roof over the heads of our residents.”

Bronitsky said he’s only in the beginning stages of researching what can be done to assist, but has already concluded recently-passed state laws, including Assembly Bill 1482, do not apply in this case. Assembly Bill 1482 created rent caps in California and went into effect in January.

He said some are asking charitable organizations to help with the tenants’ rent. Councilmembers are also exploring the feasibility of placing the tenants at the top of affordable housing lists elsewhere.

Other potential actions include the adoption of an urgency rent control ordinance or the council could choose to subsidize the tenant’s rents or provide relocation assistance, among other actions. Officials are also engaging the nonprofit community to see what can be done.

Bronitsky hopes a solution can be arrived at voluntarily and said he’s trying to arrange meetings with Essex to do so.

Assistant City Manager Dante Hall said the city has met with Essex representatives on multiple occasions and is still working with them on potential solutions.

“We don’t want to say they’re not being cooperative,” he said. “Essex is still thinking about it and we’re trying to find out if we can bring in some partners or if we can find some other ways to take care of families. Hopefully we find a resolution.”

On the bright side, Hindi said no other affordable apartment complex in the city will expire until 2050.

Land Use & Transportation Committee, Budget & Finance Committee, BOS:

As you should know by now, Planning Commission, SFMTA, and PUC have all approved the necessary elements to facilitate the final approvals of the Balboa Reservoir Project.

You should also know by now that the Reservoir Project's Purchase & Sales Agreement (PSA) gives away 16.4 acres for a pittance, in the dirt-cheap amount of $11.4 Million.

You should furthermore know that the Enacting Ordinance for the Development Agreement, as well as Schedule 2-2 of the Development Agreement itself, forego Administrative Code 23.3's appraisal requirements, which is in direct contradiction to your 2018 Budget & Legislative Analyst Report's recommendation.

The US Attorney and FBI Press Release of 6/24/2020 (incidentally, one day following PUC's approval of the $11.4M sale) regarding corruption in SF City government stated:

He [US Attorney David Anderson] added, "As this investigation continues, the breadth and depth of the identified misconduct is widening. To everyone with a piece of public corruption in San Francisco, please understand that here in federal court we will distinguish sharply between those who cooperate and those who do not. If you love San Francisco, and regret your misconduct, you still have an opportunity to do the right thing. Run, don't walk, to the FBI, before it is too late for you to cooperate."

"Today's announcement is part of a complex, ongoing FBI investigation into public corruption in San Francisco city government," said FBI's Special Agent in Charge John F. Bennett. "This type of unscrupulous behavior erodes trust in our municipal departments and will not be tolerated. The FBI is committed to investigating any individual or company involved and hold them accountable.”

Please, don't be foolish enough to be part of giving away public property for cheap in what amounts to be a Privatization Scam.

And please, even if you have no direct involvement, take up the advice of US Attorney Anderson to report what you know about the suspiciously low Reservoir valuation, and the 'who, how, why' of the waiver of Administrative Code 23.3:

".....we will distinguish sharply between those who cooperate and those who do not. If you love San Francisco, and regret your misconduct, you still have an opportunity to do the right thing. Run, don't walk, to the FBI, before it is too late for you to cooperate.”

Please don't be a part of a culture of corruption.

Sincerely,

Good morning,

I am writing today to beg you to allow the San Francisco Zoo to reopen. It is a large outdoor space with little risk to visitors if people wear masks and follow the city's spacing requirements. It is not an indoor space and should not be treated as such. So many outdoor spaces are rightfully open, but for some reason the zoo is not. Our city's children need safe spaces to visit and be kids. Please, please, please allow the zoo to reopen. Keeping it closed because it was wrongly categorized is wrong.

Best,
Meg Kammerud
