Mae has also founded and co-founded various international and community organizations for which she remains as Honorary official and director memberships, also for which she continues to support today in the hopes of phasing in younger professionals to preserve and strengthen our community and to become our future leaders. She also co-founded and continues to serve as Honorary official director and life memberships of various local, national, and international organizations. Mae continues her support for many of the charitable organizations in California and is a major founding contributor since the inception of Napa Valley Annual Film Festival that celebrated its 10th Annual Film Festival with venues throughout Napa Valley Wine Country in November 2019.

Commissioner Mae Woo's business career has been largely concentrated in the world of commercial real estate investments, originally as principal and partner in the syndication of shopping centers and apartment complexes since the early 1960's and as Co-Founder/Office Manager of Life Investments Planning Corp. and Co-Founder/Vice President of Select Income Management Co., Inc. Her professional career began as Administrative Assistant to the Chief of Operations, Western Regional Office, Department of the U.S. Army & Air Force Exchange Service, in their retail departmental business, aka the "PX'S".

Upon early semi-retirement, she founded and co-founded various nonprofits for whereby she is prominently honored among the early San Francisco Chinatown Community Leaders and still remains supportive and active, among which are the CCWA (Chinese Consolidated Women's Association in 1999) in cooperation with the CCBA (Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association), the foremost Chinese-American organization in the U.S. established in 1854 that subsequently founded and supported auxiliary organizations nation-wide and globally.
