PROGRAM DESIGN AND STANDARDS

I. PROGRAM DESIGN

A. PROJECT OVERVIEW: The following is a programmatic description of what will be accomplished during the contract period.

On January 10, 2019, the City, on behalf of the Bay-Peninsula Regional Planning Unit (RPU), was awarded SlingShot 2.0 funding by the California Workforce Development Board (CWDB) to focus on regional apprenticeship systems alignment and systems building. Coordinating the development of a seamless service delivery model for regional apprenticeship was to be accomplished through the RPU, including the City, Subrecipient, and work2future and San Benito County.

Since then, the leadership group of the RPU has explored and maximized opportunities for regional and cross-sector apprenticeship models to benefit the region's businesses and job seekers. The RPU has worked closely with the region's workforce boards, education systems, tech sector employers, training providers and industry champions to ensure that all apprenticeship models are properly vetted and sustainable. Subrecipient built systems for collaboration and regular communication among the RPU to ensure continual momentum. The team worked collaboratively to isolate strong players in the tech apprenticeship space and to assess how to loop each one into the SlingShot project.

As the SlingShot 2.0 grant wound down, the CWDB on June 2, 2020 approved a request by the City to modify its Regional Plan Implementation (RPI) 3.0 grant to shift the scope of work from a wastewater treatment workforce initiative to one that continues and accelerates the SlingShot 2.0 apprenticeship work.

In this next phase of the apprenticeship work, the four RPU partners will take stock and reexamine apprenticeship and other earn and learn opportunities in light of the COVID-19 pandemic. This exploration process will include understanding employer post-virus priorities and capacities through interviews with both talent acquisition - to understand evolving talent and skill demands - as well as corporate social responsibility staff - to understand the depth of employer commitments to diverse and non-traditional hiring.

As a result of this research the RPU partners will be grounded in the emerging economy and share best practices practices with job seekers, employers, the CWDB and regional stakeholders. Research and subsequent design and implementation activities will focus on regional employers requiring tech-related skills, including so-called advanced manufacturing companies.

The partners will also leverage funder and research relationships built during SlingShot 2.0 to explore opportunities for additional funding and research support to design and implement tech and high skill apprenticeship programs in the region. Those potential funders and partners include Jobs for the Future, the New America Foundation and the Brookings Institution.

Institutionally, Subrecipient will lead the RPI 3.0 initiative with support from the City, work2future and San Benito County. Upon an examination of available resources, OEWD may engage a research organization to enhance the efforts of regional partners.

With regards to the longer-term sustainability of the regional apprenticeship collaborative, the RPU partners aim to build out a regional committee comprised of workforce boards, educators, employers and industry champions that will continue to support regional apprenticeship pipelines, curriculum development, networking building, and education campaigns, all while focusing on equity and access.

In addition to the specific scope of work below, all project WDB partners will:

- Manage local program to achieve local and project deliverables/goals
- Provide timely reporting and invoices to project fiscal and program leads
- Participate in regional planning and coordination
- Comply with grantor performance and expenditure requirements
- Monitor local subrecipients

B. SCOPE OF SERVICES

It is the goal of RPI 3.0 to recruit and build relationships with employers, assess their needs, and when possible, convert them to active apprenticeship employers. Subrecipient, with the possible support of a research organization, will study and design a prototype of a post-COVID Bay Area tech apprenticeship or other earn and learn program, while convening key partners to design and implement a regional system to create a replicable and scalable model for tech apprenticeship/earn and learn. Subrecipient will host meetings that focus on determining processes, exploring practical tools and resources for network sustainability, reviewing best practice apprenticeship models for scalability, and establishing a feedback loop among stakeholders.

The Scope of Work will include but is not limited to the following:

Research and Landscape Analysis of Bay Area Apprenticeships/Earn and Learn Opportunities

In light of the COVID-19 pandemic, Subrecipient and partners are engaging employers to better understand the evolving landscape for apprenticeship and earn and learn and is identifying stakeholders in the region who are already implementing tech apprenticeships, are struggling to understand tech apprenticeships, or are interested in building apprenticeship programs within their companies. Using this information, Subrecipient and partners will aim to identify and pilot a set of existing apprenticeships or foundational curriculum that can be harmonized across sectors at the occupation level. Additionally, the landscape analysis will focus on assessing the current education systems that support, utilize, or attempt to offer apprenticeship pipelines to employers.

Stakeholder Convenings and Network Building

Using human-centered design principles, Subrecipient and a possible research partner may convene K-12 education providers, regional community colleges, four-year colleges and universities, training providers, employers, job seekers, industry champions, and workforce development boards to discuss promising approaches for a sustainable Bay Area tech apprenticeship network. Subrecipient will bring relevant stakeholders to the table, facilitate meetings, and summarize outcomes and agreements in furtherance of a Bay Area apprenticeship approach.

Subrecipient and partners will continue to build on the existing communication infrastructure to coordinate, engage, and continuously strengthen the stakeholder network. Techniques and tools may include using research from the landscape analysis and other promising practices to enhance outreach materials for employers or setting up a contact database or platform for regular communication.

Summary of Best Practices Research

Using research and landscape analysis results to guide best practices for regional adoption of tech apprenticeships, Subrecipient and, perhaps, a research consultant will produce guidelines and best practices for building regional apprenticeships and apprenticeship pipelines.

RPI Project Lead

Subrecipient will provide project leadership for the RPI 3.0 project in the Bay-Peninsula RPU. Subrecipient will create and update project work plans and will lead all efforts to create and manage events, such as convenings, meetings, or larger network building efforts. 8.7 Warranties

a. Subrecipient represents and warrants that:

- 1) It has secured and will secure all rights and licenses necessary for its performance of this Agreement.

- b. City makes no warranty that the intellectual property resulting from this Agreement does not infringe upon any patent, trademark, copyright or the like now existing or subsequently issued.

8.8 Intellectual Property Indemnity

a. City shall have the right to monitor and appear through its own counsel (at Subrecipient's expense) in any such claim or action. In the defense or settlement of the claim, Subrecipient may obtain the right for City to continue using the license intellectual property or replace or modify the licensed intellectual property so that the replaced or modified intellectual property becomes non-infringing provided that such replacement or modification is functionally equivalent to the original licensed intellectual property. If such remedies are not reasonably available, City may be entitled to a refund of all monies paid under this Agreement, without restriction or limitation or any other rights and remedies available at law or in equity.
